TERMS OF AGREEMENT SATISFACTORY TO THE CANADIAN GENERAL COMPANY

Have Written Mayor Morrow Stating That They Accept the Proposition of the Water Commissioners, Subject to the Approval of Their Solicitors.

EXTENSIONS TO BE MADE

The negotiations with the Canadian General Electric Company may be said to have been practically closed, and the extension to the works will be made in Peterborough.

The officials of the Canadian General have written Mayor Morrow, accepting the proposition of the Water Commissioners, attendant only upon the approval of the Company's solicitors as to the exact terms of the agreement. The latter point may be termed a formality; the main thing is that the terms offered by the Water Commissioners are considered satisfactory by the Company, and nothing stands in the way of the passing of the agreement and the commencement of work upon the large extensions to the Peterborough plant that the C. G. E. has under contemplation.

A special meeting of the City Council has been called for to-nightfi for the purpose of discussing the $70,000 by-law for the erection of a power house and plant at the waterworks dam. If the C. G. E. proposition had not come along or had not been settled this scheme would have been gone ahead with, but now that the agreement with the C. G. E. is practically assured it is likely that the Council will formally decide to-night not to submit the by-law to the people.

MORTGAGE ON Y. W. C. A. BUILDING BURNED BY TWO CHARTER MEMBERS

A HISTORY READ

An unique function took place last evening at the Young Women's Christian Association building, when the mortgage on it was burned. It was an occasion that will long be remembered by those women who have been directly interested in the work, and who laboured energetically in its behalf. The building is now free of debt. There was a mortgage of $12,000 on it, but since that mortgage was executed, Mrs. Walsh has never ceased her untiring efforts to have it wiped out. A very interesting paper on the history of the Association was read by Mrs. (Col.) Stevenson. It will be published in to-morrow's issue, it being withheld on account of a pressure of matter.

The gymnasium was filled to its capacity last evening. The chair was taken by Mayor Morrow, and devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. G. Potter. The Mayor expressed his delight at being present on such an occasion, and referred to the good work that had been done by the ladies towards wiping off the debt. On behalf of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. J. H. Bennet expressed his pleasure at being present. He had always been convinced of the necessity of such an institution. He conveyed the greetings of the Y. M. C. A., as did also Rev. J. G. Potter, on behalf of the ministers of the city.

The burningof the mortgage was executed by Mrs. Walsh and Miss Nicholls.

Both these ladies were presented with bouquets of roses by the ladies of the association. During the evening vocal solos were sung with much acceptance by Mrs. Dickson Hall and Miss Davies. Dr. Park gave a violin solo in his usual finished style, and Miss Jean Hill rendered an instrumental solo very acceptably. Refreshments were served at the conclusion and a social time spent.

Annual Meeting Of Cheese And Butter Makers Is Being Held To-day

The annual meeting of the Ontario Cheese and Buttermakers Association, Peterborough District was opened this morning at the City Council chambers. A fairly good number was present. The chair was taken by Mr. T. A. Oakley, Norwood. Mr. R. W. Warde, the dairy instructor for this district, was present. He hoped the season just opening would be a successful one. He outlined improvements that could be made, throwing out many helpful suggestions that could be followed. Following Mr. Warde's remarks an address of special value to the cheese makers was given by Mr. G. G. Publow, Superintendent of the Eastern Ontario Dairy School, at Kingston. It was of an exceedingly instructive character and was followed with the deepest interest. The meeting is being continued this afternoon.

Kelly contributed a vocal solo that was given in splendid voice, and was greatly appreciated by the gathering. Mrs. McFee gave a very interesting address on China, and the girls of the Mission Band rendered a dialogue. Mrs. Carlyle was in the chair. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Towns in Eastern Ontario Will Get Together and Discuss the Question.

Kingston, April 12.—It is proposed by towns in Eastern Ontario from Trenton to Kingston to get together and discuss the power problem. It is pointed out that two companies cannot hope to succeed, and it would be advantageous for the towns to combine on one, either the Trenton Electric Company or the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Pain in Heart

"For two years I had pain in my heart, back and left side. Could not draw a deep breath or lie on left side, and any little exertion would cause palpitation. Under advice I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I took about thirteen bottles, am in better health than I ever was, and have gained 14 pounds."

MRS. LILLIE THOMAS,
Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

For many years Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been very successful in the treatment of heart troubles, because of its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles. Even in severe cases of long standing it has frequently prolonged life for many years after doctors had given up all hope, as proven by thousands of letters we have received from grateful people.

A PROVINCIAL PAUL KRUGER.

(Hon. A. G. MacKay, at London)

"What is the difference between Paul Kruger of South Africa and Paul Kruger of Toronto?" asked Mr. MacKay. "The methods of legislating citizens out of court was the method of South Africa, and it should not be tolerated in Ontario. What was the complaint of the Uitlanders, but the desire for the ballot? Don't imagine Paul Kruger is dead. Come to Toronto some time and watch a session of the house, and then you will see that he is very much alive. The courts should be barred to no man, and the government is overriding its functions when it proceeds to legislate every man out of the courts, no matter what his claim."

NO CAPITULATION.

When Hon. W. S. Fielding, Dominion Minister of Finance, and Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, effected an arrangement with the United States government, whereby tariff peace was gained, and the application of the 25 per cent. maximum U. S. tariff was obviated, the Mail and Empire and other critical Conservative journals described the arrangement as a "surrender," a "capitulation." It was argued on the other side at the time that the concessions made were merely nominal, merely a matter of form, to permit President Taft to "save his face" in withholding the maximum tariff penalty, and that these nominal concessions were justified in the interests of Canadian commerce and industry. The outbreak of a tariff war would have had a disastrously unsettling and disorganizing effect upon Canadian trade and industries, especially in the beginning; and, while Canada would have suffered less than our neighbours, she would have suffered. To avoid this conciliatory attitude, a compromise was made, amounting to a readjustment of tariff, not only with relation to the United States, but with any other country with which we have amicable trade connections. The concessions were, as asserted, slight, and how slight may be seen by the fact that on the basis of last year's trade, the reduction of duty in the articles imported from the United States, amounts to only $192,814. In a statement submitted to Parliament on Monday night the value of the thirteen groups of articles upon which Canada agreed to reduce the duty in order to avoid a tariff dispute with the United States is given as $8,015,507.

By deducting the sum of $1,615,335, the value of such articles imported from countries to which the reduction would apply anyway, under the French treaty, the net sum of $6,400,172 is given as the value of imports (on the basis of customs returns for 1909), affected by the proposed reductions as agreed upon at Washington. On this basis, the total reduction in duties is estimated at $263,149. It is shown in this official statement that the tariff item No. 711, "unenumerated articles" made light of in the House includes 55 distinctly defined items of import, besides "miscellaneous articles," of which the import value in 1909 was $112,500. In this item 711. are included bran and mill feed, celluloid and manufactures thereof, morphine, various drugs and chemicals, castor oil, cotton seed oil, wax and manufactures thereof, bleaching compound, bone and horn, cut flowers, artificial and raw silk, tar, etc. As stated, the net value in 1909, of imports, from all countries, of articles affected by the Washington concessions was $6,400,172. Imports of these articles from the United States alone was $4,814,293, on which duty of $1,120,675 was paid. The revenue under the proposed new tariff would have been $927,861, so that the net loss in duties on United States imports is estimated at $192,814.

PROBLEMATICAL PEACE.

The Toronto World prints an imaginative despatch from Montreal to the effect that Sir Wilfrid Laurier thinks of holding an autumn general election—"will seek a snap verdict while the Conservative opposition is disorganized." The world's premises are out—there is, it is claimed, no disorganization of the party. A caucus was held in the Conservative quarters in the House of Commons on Monday morning, lasting from 10 o'clock till 1 o'clock and it was given out that the utmost harmony existed in the party and that an enthusiastic resolution of confidence in Mr. Borden approving of him to the hilt, was passed. This may be true, but there are still rumblings of dissent, the apparent peace may be the calm before the storm. It may be pointed out that Mr. Foster Mr. Borden's first lieutenant, and Mr. Monk, the Conservative leader for Quebec, were not present and that Mr. Borden himself was in the caucus only a short time and that Hon John Haggart, Haughton Lennox and Blair and Whip Taylor were absentees. Everything may be lovely in the party but good Conservative authorities do not confirm this assumption. Mr. W. F. McLean has been read out of the party and his opinion which tells of discord and party anarchy is discounted, but the Kingston Standard has made a visit to Ottawa to study the situation at close range. Yesterday it printed the first of a series of articles, entitled "the Ottawa situation at close range," and this is how the Standard regards this situation.

To be sure we are glibly told by the Toronto Mail and Empire that all is well with the party, while on the other hand we are as glibly told by the Toronto News in one or other of its numerous fits of political insanity that all is Hell with the party. The truth is, all is not well with the party, nor is all Hell with the party. The further truth is—and the Standard though it dislikes to say it nevertheless feels for the sake of the party that it should be said—neither the Mail and Empire nor the Toronto News to-day can speak in respect to the present condition of affairs as speaking officially for the Conservative party. As things stand to-day there is no so-called official organ, as we can see it, in the Conservative party and perhaps it is well under the circumstances that it is so. Indeed we question if it may not be better to continue so, to the end that all the Conservative newspapers instead of as in the old days following the so-called party organs shall speak out their own minds and of their own knowledge. The Mail as things stand now is rather the representative of the old-time Conservatism—the Conservatism, that is that abides rather than progresses—than of the party of to-day or the party ideas. By this we mean in the political sense, for of course as a newspaper apart from its political attitude the Mail is a paper of which any Conservative or any Canadian might well be proud. But of its political leading, Ottawa seems to hold to it that it is a leading that does not lead—a leading that cries harmony when in fact there is no harmony and that retards rather than helps toward a real unity and a real party.

If so much were said by a Liberal journal regarding the party and the attitude of the two leading organs, it would be put down to jealousy or party eagerness to discredit its opponents; but when a journal which has fought the battles of "Toryism" and its present day synonym, Conservatism for nearly a century, thus speaks out in meeting and augurs the existence of two big a crack in the lute to consist with the angelic harmony we are assured reigns in the Conservative party, the peace in the Conservative party seems to be problematical.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A lizard six inches in length has been taken in a somewhat mutilated form from an Ottawa water tap. If Ottawa water contained nothing more serious than a healthy, clean, limber lizard it would pass, except when the the lizard was big enough to jam a tap. Millions of microbes in the water are harder to digest than liquids and more closely related to typhoid and other diseases. A filter will eliminate the lizard, but straining won't kill the microbes.

ELECTRICAL HEAT STORAGE.

(Toronto World.)

In a recent article The New York Times refers to the remarkable results that have attended the introduction of the method of storing heat devised by G. G. Bell, a member of the British Institute of Electrical Engineers. So amazing has been its success, says The Times, that British electric light to-day is at less than a quarter of what was charged three months before and the companies consider the low priced current more profitable than were the older rates. On November 15 last, they published a half page advertisement in the London newspapers calling attention to Mr. Bell's system, a thing, remarks The Times, unheard of before, for English lighting companies have never advertised...

Realizing the difficulty attending the storage of electricity, Mr. Bell turned his attention to the storage of heat and his perfected apparatus will consume an equal amount of current during the whole 20 hours, thus more than quadrupling the efficiency of the machinery in the powerhouse. It consists of an iron block some 18 inches high and a foot in diameter, incased in magnesia so that no heat escapes. In the centre of the block is placed a removable heating unit in several sections. When current is turned into a heating unit, the iron block is raised to a temperature of 600 or 700 degrees Fahrenheit in a few hours, and will remain heated almost indefinitely, except for what is used.

The heater itself serves for a variety of purposes, but in its original form was designed for hot water alone. Its later development not only does away with tanks and kettles, but provides hot air, steam or hot water for heating with an undreamed of saving of space, and provides unlimited heat for cooking. Boiling water is instantaneously on tap day or night, even though the current may be in use at the time for lighting. This is accomplished by means of an iron coil cast inside the metal block, and with the block at normal temperature of 600 degrees, is full of superheated steam. The steam is regulated so that it may be introduced in any required quantity into the water pipe, giving instantaneously water at any desired temperature.

The World recently called attention to the fact that electric heating was now common in office and warehouse buildings in the City of London, and together with the extended use of gas and electricity for ordinary household purposes, had resulted in the practical elimination of fogs. The information quoted from The New York Times explains how this has been accomplished, and the prospect of the introduction of the system of heat storage into Canada is one which must appeal to every citizen. The Times observes that should such a system be put into use in New York and the same concessions granted as those voluntarily given by the London lighting companies, current could be supplied for about 2 cents a kilowat hour instead of 10 cents as now charged. The London conditions are well worth investigation by Toronto's electric department, and the fact that the supply of Niagara electricity is under public control should ensure that the full benefit of the new system will be made available at the minimum possible cost to the consumer.

$&C ASPECT OF ZAM-BUK

IT SAVES MOTHERS MONEY!

BY ONE WHO HAS PROVED IT.

"Zam-Buk spells saving to you! Husband, son or some member of the family sustains a cut or a bad scratch, which festers or turns to blood-poisoning. Result—off work! What does that mean at pay day? Zam-Buk prevents wounds, cuts or injuries "turning the wrong way."

If you have in the family, eczema, ringworm, ulceration, or any skin disease, try Zam-Buk FIRST—don't spend money on experimenting! You will have to get Zam-Buk eventually. Do it now; and save money.

READ THESE INTERESTING CASES.

Mr. A. M. Brooks, Wellington Street, Steelton, Ont., says:—"If only I had got Zam-Buk at first, it would have saved me scores of dollars, as well as hours of agony." Mr. Brooks has been cured of eczema. He says:—"My neck, chest and body were covered with the terrible disease. The itching, burning, and smarting I suffered, were agonizing. Doctors' lotions, salves, and prescriptions didn't do me a bit of good; and from one thing to another I passed, only to prove them useless. With Zam-Buk it was different, and, without going through a long story, I can say that a few weeks' treatment with this great healing balm healed the sores, and rid me for good of the terrible eczema, which had held me in its grip for over ten months!"

Here is another instance:—"If I had applied Zam-Buk in the first place, instead of trying the other preparations, I should have saved myself a lot of money," says Mrs. B. E. Bedwell of 337 Provencher Ave., St. Boniface, Winnipeg. Mrs. Bedwell had a cut finger, which became poisoned. She says:—"It became swollen and discolored, and my whole arm ached and throbbed violently. I called in a doctor who lanced it; but despite his treatment, the finger again festered, and got so bad that he advised me to go to the hospital. I feared, if I did, they would cut it off, so refused. One day we were advised to try Zam-Buk. We left off everything else and gave this balm a trial. Well, it only took about four days to draw out the soreness! Then, bit by bit, it began to heal, and in less than three weeks from first applying the Zam-Buk the finger was healed, and perfectly healthy."

All skin injuries and diseases are cured by Zam-Buk. Eczema, eruptions, pimples, ulcers, piles, inflamed patches, cuts, burns, scalp sores, chaps, etc., cannot resist its healing virtue. It is purely herbal and eminently suited to the delicate and tender skins of children. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse all imitations.

He called after her once or twice at the start, but she did not pause or reply, and he could not know what mood possessed her or that once in flight, in the security the horse gave her, she was for the first time afraid of him. He had declared his love for her and had offered to break down the veil of mystery that made him a strange and perplexing figure. His affairs, whatever their nature, were now at a crisis, he had said; quite possibly she should never see him again after this ride. As she waited at the gate she had known a moment of contrition and doubt as to what she had done. It was not fair to her brother thus to give away his secret to the enemy, but as the horse flew down the rough road her blood leaped with the sense of adventure and her pulse sang with the joy of flight. Her thoughts were free, wild things, and she exulted in the great starry vault and the cool heights over which she rode. Who was John Armitage? She did not know or care now that she had performed for him her last service. Quite likely he would fade away on the morrow like a mountain shadow before the sun, and the song in her heart tonight was not love or anything akin to it, but only the joy of living.

"If you are seeing that man Armitage—"

Where the road grew difficult as it dipped sharply down into the valley she suffered him perforce to ride beside her. She drew rein at the crossroads.

"We part here. How shall I return Bucephalus?"

"Let me go to your own gate, please?"

"Not at all!" she said, with decision.

"Then Oscar will pick him up. If you don't see him, turn the horse loose. But my thanks—for oh, so many things!" he pleaded.

"Tomorrow—or the day after—or never!"

She laughed and put out her hand, and when he tried to detain her she spoke to the horse and flashed away toward home. He listened, marking her flight until the shadows of the valley stole sound and sight from him. Then he turned back into the hills.

Near her father's estate Shirley came upon a man who saluted in the manner of a soldier.

It was Oscar, who had crossed the bridge and ridden down by the nearer road.

"It is my captain's horse—yes?" he said as the slim, graceful animal whinnied and pawed the ground. "I found a horse at the broken bridge and took it to your stable—yes?"

A moment later Shirley walked rapidly through the garden to the veranda of her father's house, where her brother Dick paced back and forth impatiently.

"Where have you been, Shirley?"

"Walking."

"But you went for a ride, the stablemen told me."

"I believe that is true, captain."

"And your horse was brought home half an hour ago by a strange fellow who saluted like a soldier when I spoke to him, but refused to understand my English."

"Well, they do say English isn't very well taught at West Point, captain," she replied, pulling off her gloves. "You oughtn't to blame the polite stranger for his courtesy."

"I believe you have been up to some mischief, Shirley. If you are seeing that man Armitage"—

"Captain!"

"Bah! What are you going to do now?"

"I'm going to the ball with you as soon as I can change my gown. I suppose father and mother have gone."

"They have, for which you should be grateful."

Captain Claiborne lighted a cigar and waited.

Inebriated Insanity.

Jersey City, April 13.—One of the most dramatic episodes in the history of the Hudson County Bar took place yesterday when Judge Carey, unable to repress his emotion at the confession of Alexander Simpson, his former bosom friend for a score of years, that the bitter invective and scathing criticism made against him by Mr. Simpson at the dinner to retiring County Clerk Rotherham Tuesday night were the utterances of a man disordered by wine, "due to inebriated insanity," burst into sobs at the conclusion of a reply to the apologetic counsellor before him, and with hands to his eyes withdrew to his private room.

STOMACH AGONY

Abolish the Cause, and Misery and Distress of Indigestion Will Vanish.

Can indigestion be cured? Hundreds of thousands of people who suffer from belching of gas; biliousness, sour stomach, fulness, nausea, shortness of breath, bad taste in mouth, foul breath, nervousness, and other distressing symptoms, are asking themselves that question daily.

And if these same doubting dyspeptics could only read the thousands of sincere letters from people who once suffered as badly as they do now but who have been quickly and permanently cured by the use of Mi-o-na, the mighty dyspepsia remedy that cures by removing the cause, they would go to Wm. Madill's this very day and get a large box of Mi-o-na tablets, and start themselves on the right road to health at once.

Thin or lean or scrawney people will find Mi-o-na a maker of flesh and blood, because it causes the stomach to extract more nutritious matter from the food, which quickly enriches the blood.

ARE BACKING MR. BORDEN

Opposition Members at Ottawa Discuss the Advisability of Holding the Gathering of the Clans Over Until September or November Instead of June—Young Men Had a Free Hand—Monk Meeting.

Ottawa, April 13.—While Leader Borden, Hon. John Haggart, Mr. Blain, and several others of the senior members of the Opposition sat in the Commons yesterday morning and listened to Hon. Mackenzie King explain his bill for the control of combines and mergers, the other members of the Opposition sat in caucus from 10.30 until 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and discussed party domestic affairs generally. After nearly three hours of consultation the official announcement was made at the adjournment that the caucus had decided that the reports which have been appearing for the most part in their own press during the past fortnight as to family squabbles and general disorganization were unfounded in fact, and that a unanimous resolution had been passed declaring unswerving loyalty to Mr. Borden.

The uniting of the party by resolution is, however, not regarded generally as marking by any means the end of the present dissensions within the ranks over the questions of leadership and policy. The question of the future relationship of Messrs. Foster and Monk to the party organization is left in abeyance, but it is understood that Mr. Borden is left with a free hand to carry out any reorganization he may deem desirable. His protest against lack of discipline and a united front on matters of party policy has been thus far effective.

The question of the date of holding the proposed Federal convention was also discussed. The majority of the members seem to favor holding the convention next September or November instead of in June as originally proposed.

Borden to Monk.

Montreal, April 13.—The meeting at the Lafontaine Club last night turned out to be a harmless affair. The movement was started by the Club Monk, the members of which have been wanting for years past to proclaim Mr. Monk the leader of the party in the Dominion. They were induced, however, to hold their meeting in the head-centre of the party, and their wings were clipped.

A resolution was passed authorizing a reception to Mr. Monk when he returns from the south, but no one appeared to know when that would take place.

Charles Beaubien also received a despatch from R. L. Borden, saying that although he and Mr. Monk had differed on the navy bill, they were still warm friends, and he gave an absolute denial to the stories that Monk was attempting to sap his leadership.

Callaghan Arrested In Montreal.

Montreal, April 13.—Frank Callaghan, believed to be wanted in West Virginia for murder, was arrested early yesterday morning by Chief of Provincial Detectives McCaskill and a squad of men who had been hiding in the Banque Nationale at Coteau, for the past few nights, expecting it to be plundered.

Body Found In Ruscomb River.

Windsor, April 13.—The body of Harry West, the young Englishman employed at the Canadian Bridge Works of Walkerville, who jumped from a derrick Monday night when a Wabash freight crashed into it, was found yesterday in the Ruscomb River.

Big Regina Hotel to Close.

Regina, Sask., April 13.—The City Council having declined to guarantee the bonds of the King's Hotel Co., in consideration of the hotel being enlarged, it has been decided to close the hotel after July 1. The hotel is the largest between Winnipeg and the coast.

Shot Wife; Suicides.

Monett, Mo., April 13.—Following a quarrel, Homer Todd, aged 29, shot and killed his wife, aged 18, on the street in front of their home here yesterday, and then cut her throat with a razor. He also shot himself and will die.

Classes for Feeble-Minded.

Hamilton, April 13.—The special committee of the Board of Education met yesterday afternoon and decided to open classes for some 25 feeble-minded children that are attending the public schools.

Heroic Chickens.

Brantford, April 13.—Chickens kept upstairs in the house of E. Kerby, West street, saved the owner, his wife and three small children from possible death early yesterday morning. A fire started from an overheated brooder. The chickens awoke Mrs. Kerby. The frame house was destroyed.

A MOST REMARKABLE CASE

My face was paralysed, I could not speak; five doctors failed to help me and I was in despair when hearing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I used this wonderful restorative treatment and became well and strong in every way. I would not go back to my former condition for all the gold in the country," writes Mr. Wm. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont.

"SEX AND CRIME" TOPIC OF A STIRRING ADDRESS

Rev. J. A. McCuaig Continues His Purity Campaign With a Splendid Mass Meeting in George Street Methodist Church Last Evening.

AN EFFECTIVE DISCOURSE

The second general meeting of the popular campaign being conducted this week in Peterborough in the interests of social purity, was held last night in George street Methodist church, when the Rev. J. Aspinall McCuaig, vice-president of the National Christian League of New York, delivered a strong lecture on "Sex and Crime." Magistrate Dumble occupied the chair, and introduced the speaker in eulogistic terms. Many of the clergy of the city occupied seats in the audience, which was composed of representative members of all churches.

Mr. McCuaig introduced his subject by stating that the great preponderance of crime in the world has its root in sex perversion. This he demonstrated from the Scriptures and confirmed by reference to criminal statistics of prisons and asylums. He declared that crime will never be truly estimated till we learn that crime as commonly designated, is but the outward indication of a moral deflection. It is not necessary that a man commit murder to be a murderer. He is a murderer, who has murder in his heart. "He that hateth his brother is a murderer." "He that looketh on a woman to lust after her is an adulterer." It naturally follows therefor that the chief point of moral divergence is the chief source of crime.

In regard to the sexual instinct in man it was shown that the darkness of ignorance and untruth that has prevailed in the mind of man regarding this imperial passion has resulted in it becoming the chief centre of moral deflection. With earnest emphasis the lecturer declared: "There is one problem of life upon which the home, the church, the school and the state give no information. It is the greatest problem of society—it is in every sense a fundamental problem—yet in it, the problem of sex, every man is a discoverer, and every man a discoverer of a dark continent."

In striking language it was declared that the evolution of a higher conception of home-life is the only safeguard against the evils that spring from sex passion. "The home is the true fruition of sex impulse. If homes of many children are not the fruitage of sexual instinct, the floods of sexual passion will overflow in crime with all its attendant miseries."

With unmistakable logic it was shown that not only would the evolution of a true conception of the home thus curtail crime, but that from such elevated homes would go forth crime proof men and women.

The main argument of the lecture was to establish the proper function of the home in relation to the individual and to society. Next to the instinct of self preservation the most universal instinct was shown to be the family instinct. "God setteth the solitary in families." The family ideal was defined as "the strength of all for the help of the weakest."

In the development of the home idea Mr. McCuaig said: "There is a force in all living things that tends to mateship. This force is as irresistible as the force of gravitation. A family is as instinctively in the heart of every child as it is established in the organism of every child. The coming together of a man and a woman is the institution of a human family and a home. The spirit, soul and body of home life is love. The true fruit of human love is children—that bring more love. The great function of the home is to meet the need and changing requirements of each member of the family. The perfect evolution of full and happy homes would keep men right personally, religiously and politically."

A telling picture was drawn of an ideal home—"a place of many children, of all the best things, of one law written in the heart of every member. A place of freedom, of hospitality, of broad outlook, of God, established there by bible story, prayer and song.

The central teaching of the home was proclaimed to be the preparation for home-building, for "greater than all the incidents of manhood is fatherhood, and greater than all the incidents of womanhood is to be a mother."

Announcement was made that a special course of lectures to women will be given in connection with the present movement; the first lecture of which will be given in the Young Women's Christian Association this afternoon at 4.15, on "Sexual Instinct in the Child."

Mr. McCuaig will preach to-night in St. Paul's Presbyterian church on "The Voice of God."

Mr. R. N. Jolliffe, Formerly of Peterborough, Will Sing Here on May 6.

Peterborough people will be delighted to hear that a recital is to be given in this city at early date by Mr. Norman Jolliffe, a former resident of this city, who has made a name for himself among the vocalists of the continent. Mr. Jolliffe has been studying in New York for the past two years, and has been meeting with much success. Mr. W. R. Morris has deposited in Victoria Museum the folowing historical relics:

A military uniform worn by an ancestor of Mr. Morris in 1776, the time of the great military activity in Canada, being the year of the American revolution. The tunic is of the fashion known as the "coatee" or swallow-tail, of scarlet cloth with black velvet on white cloth facings and frogged with gold lace. On the right shoulder is a gilt epaulette, the buttons are heavy gilt, they and the epaulette bearing the regimental insignia "VII B. Quebec Embodied Militia." The breeches are of plain blue-black cloth. The uniform, considering its age, 134 years, is in excellent preservation.

Mr. Morris also deposits a very fine specimen of stone axe of Indian origin, and an artillery cartridge box of antique pattern.

These articles are a valuable addition to the museum and the management beg to express their sincere thanks.

SETTLERS FROM U.S.

Large Exodus From the Land of Uncle Sam Into Canada's Wheat Fields—Lured by the Prospects Country Affords.

INTERESTING FIGURES

That 125,000 settlers will come over from the United States each one bringing an average of $1,000, is the opinion expressed by William Whyte, second vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in an interview after his return from the Southern States.

"The class of settler that is pouring into the West this year is the best we have ever received, and, numerically they are much in excess of any other season. The country is being developed properly.

"From the Motherland we are getting the better class as well, and they, too, are coming with funds to work with."

Mr. Whyte told of a talk he had with a New Yorker, where he expressed the opinion that within 15 years the Province of Saskatchewan would be growing more wheat than the whole of the United States. This was because the corn belt to the south was steadily encroaching on the wheat belt, and the latter is being forced north every year.

"By that time the United States will be importing wheat from Canada. They will have to if the big mills are to be kept milling the grade of hard wheat that they have been accustomed to in the past."

From a railway standpoint, Mr. Whyte said that they are in favour of the long haul, but that if the farmers could ship their wheat to Minneapolis and get good prices for it, they would have more money to spend on their things, and in that way there would be nothing lost to anybody.

Speaking of the company's model farms, Mr. Whyte said that they were designed purely for the needs of the British tenant farmer. In the Old Country they are the "gaffers." Though not wealthy, they have never done much work themselves, always having an overseer.

"For that reason," he continued, "this class of man would be practically helpless if set down on unbroken land, so the company is breaking up some land for them, and is building houses for them. If the innovation is a success, there will be extensions in the future."

Mr. Whyte added that the C. P. R. was going very rapidly ahead, making extensions on their road and adding to their mileage.

We buy four bottles at a time and always keep it in the house, believing there is nothing so good for coughs and colds."

Italian Navvy Who Killed Two of His Countrymen In a Drunken Brawl Is Freed on the Murder Charge—Jury Comes In Once Evenly Divided, But Is Sent Back Again by the Judge.

Cobourg, April 13.—At 1.30 this morning the jury in the case of George Manuro, an Italian railway navvy, who shot and killed two fellow-countrymen in a drunken row, returned a verdict of manslaughter.

Retiring first at 10.45 p.m., at 12.30 a.m. they reported to Justice Teetzel that they stood six for murder and six for manslaughter, and were sent back to try and agree on a verdict. Justice Teetzel's address to the jury was a strictly impartial review of the evidence, but after the verdict was given his lordship said he could not agree with it.

After the manslaughter verdict, Manuro, through his counsel, pleaded guilty to other charges of attempt to murder, shooting with intent to kill, and doing bodily harm. Sentence was deferred.

This was the first murder trial in Cobourg since Dr. King was convicted of wife murder, and hanged in 1869. The executioner wore a heavy mask and was never identified, although two or three Cobourg "characters" were one and all suspected for many years.

Manuro and his friend Frank Marano, had been drinking together. A dispute arose and Manuro in frenzied haste rushed for his rifle. One Lombardit held the door of the shack, a shot riddled his arm and struck another navvy, named Cionfione, who was behind him, in the abdomen. The latter was brought to the hospital here and died the day after the tragedy. Frank Marano fell pierced by a rifle ball, mortally wounded and expired soon after in his wife's arms.

Manuro fled from the camp and was arrested at Colborne, about eight miles east of Grafton. He was brought to the hospital here and identified by the dying Cionfione, whom he embraced and kissed.

"Whisky did it," was Manuro's only excuse. He has a wife and family in Italy.

E. E. A. DuVernet, K.C., of Toronto, was crown prosecutor, and Fred D. Boggs of Cobourg defended the prisoner. The evidence was a repetition of that given at the inquest.

Mr. Boggs' able conduct of the case for the defence won him many congratulations, for few believed that Manuro could be saved from the gallows. He pointed out that all the men in the shack had been drinking, and that in an altercation the accused and Marano, the latter had attempted to strike Marano with a shovel. Marano returned to his house while Manuro went for his rifle.

The defence hinged on the contention that it was a single shot that killed both men, and that it had been fired through the door. One man's evidence showed that Manuro had fired a shot while the gang were outside the shack, but that it did no harm. The medical evidence, he pointed out, bore out the theory that it was the one bullet that killed both men. It was admitted that the shot had been fired with intent, but not at Marano.

Farm Was Not as Represented.

St. Catharines, April 13.—Because a fruit orchard turned out so poorly that her husband hanged himself from one of its trees, Mrs. Samuel Clemens has recovered judgment of $3,205.15 and costs from Robt. Crompton, the former owner. At the trial here, prominent fruit men testified that the farm was not worth much, as the land was not adapted for fruit-growing.

Peach Crop Safe.

St. Catharines, April 12.—Monday night and last night, this district experienced several degrees of frost, but the buds are not far enough advanced to be easily damaged. Cool weather of the past week has kept them back and it is almost impossible for frost to reach the buds, which have not yet opened. It is not till the buds are open that danger is felt.

Enquiry Resumes To-day.

Edmonton, Alta., April 13.—The royal commission investigating the Great Waterways Railway deal, resumed this morning in the legislative hall of the Parliament Buildings. W. R. Clarke, representing the railway, and W. H. Cushing, ex-Minister of Public Works, are the first witnesses, completing the examination for discovery, after which the commission will settle down to real work.

Frenchman Shot Woman.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 13.—After a quarrel, in which he was ordered to leave the house, Emil Le Marre, a stockily-built Frenchman, drew a revolver and shot to death Mrs. Mary L. Teeft, proprietor of the boarding-house, 175 Ellicott street, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The dead woman was 49 years old. Her husband was murdered 25 years ago.

Charles Tupper Weds.

Edmonton, Alta., April 13.—At All Saints' Church at noon yesterday Charles Tupper, eldest son of Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper of Vancouver, and Miss Mary M. Dickey, daughter of the late Hon. A. E. Dickey of Amherst, N.S., were married, the ceremony being performed by Archbishop Gray.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of those experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and thicken the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

CITY BALL LEAGUE HAS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. H. A. Yenney Was Chosen as President---Four Teams Will be in the Race and the Prospects are Bright for a Strong League.

The indications are that the City Baseball League will be composed of the same four teams as last season—the T. A. S., Park Street A. C., West End A. C., and Stratheonas A. C.

The annual meeting of the organization was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A., and all four of last year's clubs were represented, and expressed their determination to play again this season. The prospects for a good season are bright. The teams promise to be well balanced and there is every reason to expect a good fight for the pennant and some snappy ball for the fans.

Pesident E. N. McWilliams was in the chair, and there were present Len Dobson and C. Perkins, West Ends: J. Hanrahan, J. Dorris, A. Quinlan, W. Cahill, Fred Flaherty, Gerald McFadden, E. Hickey, of the T. A. S., Jack Pilling, Herb Reid, Park St., and W. J. Metheral, C. Curtis, and F. D. Craig, Stratheonas.

Mr. Chas. Curtis was elected secretary pro tem. and the first business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

Patrons and patronesses—Dr. and Mrs. Wightman, Hon. and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Howden, Mr. J. Hanrahan.

President—Mr. H. A. Yenney.

Vice President—Dr. A. W. MacPherson.

Secretary-Treas.—Chas. Curtis.

Mr. McWilliams referred in eulogistic terms to the services of last year's secretary, Mr. Harry Theobald, and, on motion of Messrs. Dorris and Reid, a heaty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Theobald for his untiring efforts in the interests of the League. The Stratheona representatives brought forward a suggestion that was eventually adopted, to select a commission of three or four sporting authorities, independent of any of the four teams in the league, to draft a constitution to be submitted to the league. It was pointed out that such arrangement would do away with a lot of useless bickering over minor points that could be easily settled by a committee of outside men.

On motion of Messrs. Metheral and Craig, a commission, composed of Messrs. E. N. McWilliams, R. M. Glover, C. G. Graham, and Secretary Curtis was selected and these gentlemen will be asked to prepare a constitution for the League.

A committee, composed of the president and secretary, and Messrs. Quinlan, Reid, Metheral, and Dobson was appointed to wait upon the owners of Riverside Park to make arrangements for the use of the grounds for the season.

It was decided that the executive should be composed of the president, vice president and secretary, and one representative from each of the league teams.

THE BRANTFORD-HAMILTON MARATHON A BIG EVENT

Hamilton, April 13.—Great interest is being taken in athletic circles over the grand Canadian Marathon, popularly known as the Brantford to Hamilton Marathon to be held on Tuesday, May 24, under the auspices of the Hamilton Spectator. The announcement that the Spectator will send the winner of each year's race to England in the following spring to compete in the English marathon, held in May of each year, under the direction of the London Polytechnic Harriers, has created an unusual stir among the long-distance runners of Canada and the United States, and a monster entry list is assured. The first runner to finish in the big race, will receive in addition to the trip to England, a solid commemorative gold medal, and will at the same time retain possession of the $300 Marathon Challenge Trophy for one year. The second and third prize men to finish will receive smaller replicas of the Challenge trophy, which will become their own possessions, in addition to the commemorative silver medals for the second and third places. All the starters to finish within the time limit of three hours and thirty minutes will also receive silver commemorative medals. The prize list, including the trip to England, is valued at $1,000, the largest sum ever spent on amateur prizes for a long-distance race in Canada or the United States, making the Brantford to Hamilton race the long distance classic of the American continent.

This race is the only Canadian Marathon, and is held over the beautiful and fast course from the city of Brantford, over the Hamilton mountain, down through Cainsville and Ancaster to Hamilton, a distance of 26 miles, 776 yards, the same distance as the most famous of marathons, held at Athens, Greece, every fourth year. The winner of the Spectator race will be regarded as the Canadian champion long-distance runner for the following year.

Entry blanks, rules and particulars of the race, in addition to maps of the course, a chart of last year's race, etc., can be secured from M. M. Robinson, Sporting Editor, The Spectator, Hamilton, Canada. Entries close on Saturday, May 14th.

Eddie Cotter, the Burlington boy, winner of the 1909 race and holder of the record of 2.51.53, sails for England in a week, accompanied by Dick Baker, the Toronto trainer, who handled Cotter in the Brantford to Hamilton run last year. Cotter will have a month in England to prepare for the English marathon, to be held on May 21st, over the famous Olympic Stadium. Cotter is the first Canadian to start in this famous race, and as he is a grand long-distance performer, unusual interest is being taken in his appearance in the Old Country.

In addition to the Brantford to Hamilton race, which leaves Brantford sharp at 9 a.m., on May 24th, the Spectator will hold the second annual Ancaster to Hamilton race for boys, 18 and under, over the last seven miles of the marathon course. Three handsome silver trophies are the prizes for this race, which had an entry list of fifty-five youngsters last year, being won by George Richards of Hamilton, in the good time of 38 minutes, 30 seconds, which is the record for the course. Out of the fifty-five starters in this race, thirty-two finished, while in the marathon twenty-eight finished out of the forty-three starters. The arrangements for transporting the runners to the starting point and the details with which the various arrangements are looked after, make both these races the classics of their kind on the continent. Last year 50,000 people lined the course for both races, so great was the interest. Great expense has been gone to in order to make the course as perfect as possible. The course has been officially surveyed, and each mile is marked off by a big yellow and black mile post. The Brantford to Hamilton radial cars run alongside the course from start to finish, while the manner in which the starters in both races are treated has resulted in the verdict that the Brantford to Hamilton marathon and the Ancaster to Hamilton race for boys, are the two most important athletic events of the season in Canada as well as the United States.

Colds Affect The Kidneys

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Colds often settle on the kidneys and are followed by the most painful and fatal results. By quickening the action of the kidneys at this time you enable them to carry off the lurking poisons and prevent serious disease.

Keep the back warm, avoid sitting with the back in a draft and regulate the kidneys by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. These rules are worth following, particularly at this season of the year.

Mr. W. Ferguson, blacksmith, Trenton, Ont., states: "In my work I am bending over a great deal, and this, together with the constant strain on all parts of the body, and the sudden change of temperature when going and from the forge, brought on kidney disease and backache. At times I would suffer so that I would have to quit work to ease my back, and felt so miserable most of the time I did not enjoy life very much.

"At last I decided that I would have to get relief in some way, and having heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a successful cure for backache and kidney disease, I began using them. To my surprise and pleasure they helped me at once, and a few boxes entirely removed my troubles."

A BILL RE COMBINES

Major Currie Declares That Manufacturers and Business Men Should Be Asked to Present Their Case Before the Bill Is Made Law—Publicity and Investigation by Commission the Features.

Ottawa, April 13.—Hon. Mackenzie King's bill, which aims at controlling combines and mergers which unduly enhance prices, got a second reading in the Commons last night, but not much headway was made in committee because of the demand of Opposition members that the bill should be sent to a special committee, where all interests involved could be heard.

To this the Minister would not agree and just before the House rose a somewhat heated discussion arose over a remark by Mr. King to the effect that, while the Liberal members desired to improve the bill, it looked as though the Opposition was desirous of preventing it becoming law this session. This was denied by several members.

In reply to a question put by Mr. Blain, he said that no good object could be hereby served by sending the bill to a special committee, and if such a course were adopted it could not become law this session.

Hon. John Haggart asked if these combines had been injurious to the public. Mr. King replied that he had no evidence, but in some instances it was the case.

From the attitude of the public towards railways, the people were not opposed to large combinations as such, but the people were looking to the Government to do with the large combinations, as was done with the railway companies by the institution of the Railway Commission.

Mr. King reviewed efforts previously made to deal with the question of combines and mentioned that made by the late Clarke Wallace and committee which, after sitting for two and a half months, had reported on thirteen different combines. The fact that men engaged in these combines had been pursued as criminals under the criminal code had militated against an effective handling of these questions. This bill would create investigation. Better results would be obtained by publicity rather than by penalty.

Dr. Sproule (East Grey) and Uriah Wilson (Lennox) mentioned instances in which complete evidence in the leather and lumber combines had been given to the public, yet nothing was done. In the latter case Mr. Wilson said the unreasonable reply of Mr. Fielding was that he would supply the court if Mr. Wilson would supply the evidence.

Mr. King stated that the cost of the investigation would be met by the Government. The expenses of counsel for both parties would be authorized, as well as all other necessary expense. It was unfair to put the onus of an investigation on any group of people. Unfairness, for instance, had been done to the grocers' guild. Prominent men had been standing before the community for four years as defendants in a criminal prosecution.

E. N. Lewis (West Huron) argued for a permanent board of investigation.

Dr. Clark, the Liberal member for Red Deer, blamed the increased cost of living on protection. In England there was no increased cost; a man got value for his money there. Canada had an increased cost because of the moderate tariff; but the United States had a greatly increased cost because of high protection. He doubted the utility and possibility of the means suggested. The Government by its fiscal policy had made the whole country a huge trust. The Government took $50 from the consumer for every $50 it wanted to spend on the public service. Nothing much was heard of combines in England, where freedom of commerce made them impossible.

The bill was given a second reading, and in committee George Taylor, Mr. Bristol, Mr. Barker and Major Currie urged that the bill be sent to a special committee, the latter saying it had been so agreed between the chief whips. This was denied by both Mr. King and Mr. Pardee.

Major Currie argued that under the terms of the bill, third degree methods could be used on manufacturers and others and criminal proceedings subsequently instituted. As the liberty of the subject was involved, the matter should be considered by a special committee.

James Conmee supported the bill. Business men would be protected by the bill, which calls for a preliminary hearing before a judge of the higher court, he said. The bill looked to him like a timely measure.

Hon. Mackenzie King's resolution, on which the bill is based, declares it expedient that there be an investigation of combines, monopolies, trusts and mergers, which may enhance prices or restrict competition to the detriment of consumers, and to provide for the appointment of boards of investigation. If the bill goes through as drafted the investigation will be very general.

Mr. King, in introducing it, dealt with the cost of living; people had experienced a great rise in prices during the last few years, and they had observed at the same time a great increase in the formation of combines and trusts. The bill was intended to place some restraint on these trusts on behalf of the public, who have helped to make the combines possible.

There were 173 commodities which had increased 26 per cent. in price from 1890 to 1900 and 40 per cent. from 1896 onwards. The increase in grain, fodder, animals and meat had been higher than the average, being from 30 to 50 per cent.

He submitted that in the United States at present of the industrial trusts there are: 15 with a capital of over $100,000,000; 33 with a capital of over $50,000,000; 165 with a capital of over $10,000,000; 451 with a capital of over $5,000,000. Of the franchise trusts, 16 have over $100,000,000, and 150 over $5,000,000.

Turning to Canada, Mr. King pointed out that of late years many great mergers have been formed and were in course of formation, simultaneously with the increased cost of living.

Denounces Co-education.

Boston, April 13.—In a lecture to women at the Harvard Medical School Prof. C. M. Green declared that co-education is one of the wickedest features of modern schools.

"It is bad from the moral point of view," he said. "I have known some most pitiable results from it. I have also known a great number of cases of women breaking down from the strain of competition with man. It is true that women usually beat the men, but it is too much for them, just the same.

"The American home is almost a thing of the past. Women spend too much time gadding about. They are degenerating into a state of unstable nervous equilibrium. The only remedy is to learn to stay quietly at home, where they belong."

Bringing Back Briber.

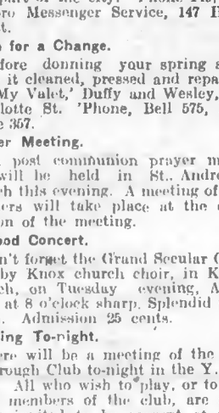
A BOY'S STRUGGLE FOR LIFE



HAROLD NEW, Toronto

Mr. S. J. New, of 154 Baldwin St., Toronto, says: I can trace my son Harold's trouble to when he had the measles five years ago, from which he never really recovered. Some of the best physicians attended him, but with months of suffering he in turn contracted whooping cough, bronchitis, and then pneumonia. Month after month went by that we shall not soon forget; months of sleepless nights, fearful coughs, weakening night sweats, left my boy a mere shadow. He had no appetite, and my heart ached to see how he was wasting away. He spent one whole summer at the Lakeside Home for Sick Children, and came home greatly improved, but the cold winds of October took him off his feet again. The doctor advised me to send him to Muskoka, but heavy doctor's bills had depleted my financial resources, and such a step seemed out of the question."

"At this point we tried PSYCHINE, and human life cannot describe the change that took place. No words can express the thankfulness of his mother and myself when we saw the crisis was over, and realized that our boy was fighting his way back to life and health. PSYCHINE had mastered that which all the doctor's prescriptions had failed to check. Day by day Harold grew stronger, and all through the winter, although continually out of doors, he failed to take cold, and he put on flesh very quickly. By the spring my son was completely cured, and developed into a strong, sturdy lad."

PSYCHINE is the Greatest Strength Restorer and System Builder known to medical science, and should be used for COUGHS, COLDS, WEAK LUNGS, LOSS OF APPETITE, WEARINESS.

TWO YEAR OLD GIRL INSTANTLY KILLED BY GRAND TRUNK TRAIN

Little Frances O'Brien Met Horrible Death Last Evening Within a Few Yards of Her Home—Was on Her Way to Meet Father

HURLED THIRTY FEET

Toddling across the G. T. R. tracks to meet her father as he came from work, Frances, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. John O'Brien, last evening was struck by the G. T. R. train which reaches Peterborough at 5.30 p.m., and instantly killed. The little body was hurled thirty feet through the air, and was picked up crushed and bleeding by the crew of the train. Her right leg was fractured and her chest crushed in. Death was instantaneous.

The accident occurred at the point where the Grand Trunk crosses the boundary road, between the city and North Monaghan. The girl's home is just southeast of the railway line, and her father was working a short distance north of the track. The little girl has been accustomed to go out and meet her father, and went, as usual, last night. Either failing to see the oncoming train, or not recognizing her danger the poor little tot stepped on to the track as the train reached the crossing, and was struck by the pilot of the engine. It was not possible for the engineer to do anything to avert the tragedy as the train was on top of the child before she was seen. He, however, threw on the emergency brakes, and brought the train to a standstill, after which it was backed down to the crossing, and the crew picked up the child and carried her to her home.

Her father was on his way home at the time and remarked to Coroner Dr. Gray afterwards that when he heard the train stop so suddenly and then come back, he had a premonition that his child had been killed. He hurried to the crossing and found that his forebodings were all too true.

Coroner Dr. Gray was notified of the occurrence, and after visiting the spot and making inquiries, came to the conclusion that the accident was due to no fault of the train crew and that there was no necessity for holding an inquest.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien will have the sympathy of the community in the bereavement which has come upon them in such a tragic manner. Only two years ago their son, Frank, was killed in an accident at Hamilton.

MR. HUMPHRIES GIVES EVIDENCE IN COMMITTEE

Special to The Examiner.

Ottawa, April 13.—In the Public Accounts committee to-day, the inquiry into the matter of compensation for drowned lands in the vicinity of Hastings, in which the names of Mr. L. F. Clarry, solicitor, and Jas. Dickson, valuator, have figured prominently, and which Mr. Haughton Lennox, of Barrie, M. P., has strenuously struggled to convert into a scandal, was continued at Ottawa. Mr. Henry Humphries, whose name came up at a previous session of the committee as a disappointed applicant for compensation, was one of the two witnesses examined by Mr. Lennox, who, by the way,, would make a first-class fisherman—he could hold his rod over the water patiently a whole day, even if he did not get a nibble.

Mr. Humphries told of his visit to Mr. Clarry, and of the bargaining over the question of retaining Mr. Clarry to act for him in regard to pushing his claim for damages. Mr. Clarry proposed a commission of 20 per cent., and Mr. Humphries thought it was too high, and a compromise was agreed upon, at 15 per cent. on any amount over $800, which was the figure of Mr. Humphries' claim—forty acres at $20 per acre. The amount of the claim was not mentioned in the retainer—it was a matter of verbal arrangement. Subsequently, Mr. Humphries visited Mr. Clarry and the bargain was mutually declared off. both copies of the retainer being destroyed. Mr. Clarry had got his (Mr. Humphries') deed, in order to see if the title was clear. Objection to validity of title was taken on the ground that 37 acres of the lot, in respect of which damages were claimed, had been sold to Mr. Humphries' son. It was claimed that eight of this 37 acres was embraced in the forty acres of land, claimed to be drowned land. but Mr. Humphries said it formed no part of it. Mr. Humphries had mentioned to Mr. Clarry about the 37 acres and he seemed to be satisfied. Mr. Humphries went with Mr. Dickson, the valuator, to examine the drowned lands; he had forty acres. and Dickson had claimed that a considerable portion of it was swamp. and no compensation was allowed for swamp lands. Mr. Humphries claimed compensation for the full forty acres; the 37 acres deeded to his son three or four years ago, was entirely and wholly distinct from the forty acres, for which damages were claimed. He had got the 37 acres back from his son, and had notified the Department to that effect. He went to Ottawa last winter to see Mr. Graham, (Minister of Railways and Canals). He was absent from the city and Mr. Humphries saw his deputy, Mr. Butler. He showed him the letter (or a copy) that Mr. Clarry had written to James Graham, and also the retainer. He also told him that he had lived in Asphodel all his life, and had knowledge of the lands of parties who had had claims settled or made. To Mr. Lennox, Mr. Humphries said there was flooding from spring freshets along the Ouse. The land was low. The raising of the water in the Trent raised the waters of the Ouse for at out a mile back from its mouth. The water thus raised about touched the south part of John Sargent's land. Did not think it would go further back. The land from which Fowlds had taken green timber was not drowned lands. The timber was cut ten years ago. The first week of May was the season of high water in the Trent; it lasted from ten days to two weeks. The flooding on the Ouse would be over before high water in the Trent. The fall in the Trent would be two or three feet below flood level. In the dry season the placing of stop logs has raised the water in the Trent 8 to 12 inches. This would affect the Ouse about a mile back from its mouth. C. M. (Mrs.) Birdsall's lot was not flooded to his knowledge. Part of lot 2 of Matthew Breckenridge's land on No. 2 lot, was drowned, but no part of No. 3 lot. To Mr. Carvell. witness said that land flooded till June would be injured for grain growing purposes; it would be only good for pasture late in the season. John Breckenridge, J. P., the witness. said owned a mill further up the stream (the Ouse) than the parties who had been compensated for drowned lands. Witness was asked as to what he thought in reference to Mr. Breckenridge's statement that Mr. Humphries, in what he had said in his declaration (obtained by Mr. Lennox), was incorrect. He said that he could not agree with Mr. Breckenridge. Mr. Clarry had personally informed Mr. Humphries that he was searching titles for the Government. Witness learned in Peterborough that these claims could be settled without a lawyer; he went to Hastings and cancelled the retainer he had given Mr. Clarry. There was no ill-feeling in the matter. Mr. Dickson came to inspect Mr. Humphries' land, after Mr. Clarry had reported the sale of the 37 acres. Mr. Dickson said that eight acres of the land under claim for damages belonged to the sold property. His claim was cut down to twenty acres, at $20 an acre. He had refused that and did not think he would ever get paid for his land. Mr. Lennox came to see witness and had dinner with him and went with him to Graham's. He did not draw the affidavit. Witness said he would not ask the government for the $240, at which his damages had been fixed. "I think I should get the $800." Fourteen years ago Mr. Aylesworth had examined his land, and placed his drowned land at forty acres. To Mr. Lennox Mr. Humphries said that there was no mention in the Clarry retainer of the amount of damages. but there was a distinct understanding that he was only to have 15 per cent. over $800.

Mr. P. C. Gillespie, son-in-law of Mr. Humphries, and living in the same house with him, testified that during Mr. Humphries' absence in the West he got a letter (addressed to Mr. Humphries) from Mr. Clarry, and went to see him. Clarry said that if Mr. Humphries had given him the fifteen per cent. (that is if he had not cancelled the retainer) he would have had his claim settled. He gave no reason for the claim not being settled, and found no fault with Mr. Humphries.

Mr. Lennox announced that he had only a little more evidence to offer in this matter and the committee adjourned till Thursday.

St. Catharines, April 14.—Thomas Purcell, a six-year-old boy, was this morning struck by an automobile in which Brig.-Gen. TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

It needs little argument to demonstrate the importance of technical education as the rounding out of our educational system necessary to equip the youth of our country for successful competition in the race for industrial supremacy, and the advancement of our national industrial standing. During the early part of this session of Parliament an interesting debate took place upon the subject. The discussion was of a purely academic character in that no definite conclusion was arrived at, and that the matter was one beyond the Dominion jurisdiction. The matter of education being continually relegated to the provincial government and parliaments. In spite of this latter fact Premier Whitney has shown a direct, if not undignified willingness to shoulder his responsibility in the premises upon the Dominion Government, and incidentally, has neglected to take any definite steps to provide for a scheme or system of technical education for the province. It is a striking commentary and condemnation of the apathy and neglect of the provincial Government that private persons have felt themselves called upon to take action in the direction of investigation into the requirement of technical and commercial education in the City of Toronto, which, by the way, is no more in need of such a movement than any of the lesser industrial centres of the province. To the end mentioned a commission of five has been formed to inquire and report upon the requirements in the way of commercial and technical education, particularly of the boys and young men of the city. The committee, which, by the way, is headed, as Chairman, by a Peterborough boy, Dr. Wm. Pakenham, is composed of gentlemen conspicuously representative of the educational, commercial and industrial interests of the provincial capital. The public spirit and self-sacrifice of these gentlemen is worthy of the warmest commendation; but there is a humiliating feature in the matter, and that is that in a progressive and educationally and intellectually advanced province like Ontario, with a buoyant revenue and a crying need for a system of technical education, private enterprise should be compelled to expend private means and unremunerated private energy to do that for which constituted authority, specially delegated officials are well paid to do.

THE MUGWUMP'S WAIL.

The Toronto News writes an article on party loyalty. Of course it makes the Liberal party, behind the Government, as the only sinner in the matter of pushing party loyalty to the extent of condoning, aiding, abetting and applauding wrong-doing. Every action of the government party is influenced by partizan considerations, according to the self-righteous logic of the News. Of course, it would not be guilty of partizanship. Here is an example of the broadly tolerant view it can take. It says:

"When ministers decline to investigate facts set forth by Mr. Lumsden, the Government shows either astounding incapacity or else utter corruption."

A little analysis of this remarkable declaration is called for. "Facts set forth by Mr. Lumsden". This, of course, refers to what is called "the Lumsden charges" against the construction engineers of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. Lumsden made what are called charges, but he "set forth no facts." He admits in the first place that he charges no wrong doing against the engineers. Only error of judgment in classification of material in respect of rock, loose rock boulders and clay, and, later, he admits that, while he made charges of over-classification of rock, on sight, he cannot sustain them without actual excavation, which means that his charges were based on mere suspicion. When the News declares that "ministers decline investigation" of the Lumsden charges, a direct and distinct departure from fact is made. The Government appointed a special committee to investigate the charges, composed of four Liberals and three Conservatives. When, at the first meeting of the committee, Mr. Lumsden stated that he did not charge the engineers with wilful wrong-doing, but only error of judgment, Mr. Lennox, one of the Conservative members of the committee, and then spokesman, seeing that the sting had thereby been drawn from the charges, and the prospects of unearthing a scandal reduced to a vanishing point, concocted another way of, like the wolf, in regard to the lamb in the fable, putting the government in the wrong any way. He conceived the brilliant idea of making a demand so preposterous that it bore rejection on its face. He demanded that the tail should wag the dog, that the minority members of the committee should name a counsel to represent "the people," something unprecedented in the history of parliamentary government. He and his Conservative colleagues kicked and left the Liberal members to continue the investigation as they are industriously doing. As it progressed the prescience of Mr. Lennox and his colleagues that forecast failure becomes justified. Not only did Mr. Lumsden, at the first meeting, practically withdraw his charges, so far as overt impropriety on the part of the engineers was concerned, but it has come about that his resignation was not so much due to the alleged intractability of his engineers as to an unsatisfied claim for ampler recognition of his services. The charges are further weakened by his statement in the course of examination that he based his charges of improper classification on superficial observation, and that he could not prove them without actual excavation in situ. There is no truth in the declaration of the News that the ministers refused investigation into the Lumsden charges; and if there is any failure of thorough investigation from lack of Opposition representation in the committee, it will be the fault of the kicking Conservative members. Messrs. Lennox, Barker and Crothers, who basely and babyishly deserted their posts and deprived the investigation of the hostile scrutiny demanded—such as they, all three lawyers, buttressed by their partizan zeal, should have been able to furnish. If, as Mr. Lennox claimed, they were professionally no match for the other members of the committee, they could have done their best, which is the highest possible type of faithful discharge of duty. All of which is respectfully submitted as pretty thorough ly neutralizing the "Mugwump" organ's hysterical chatter about "astounding incapacity" and "utter corruption."

PERMANENCY IN RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

There is a great deal of criticism directed against the Government in respect of the Grand Trunk Pacific costing more than the original estimate. For this there are two reasons incidental to such undertakings and they are both entirely justifiable and indeed creditable. It is a well-known fact that the ultimate cost of all great structural undertakings is almost invariably in excess of the architect's or engineer's estimate. But in the case of the Grand Trunk Pacific the superior character of the work is responsible for the greater cost per mile. The aim is to complete the line in the beginning and not leave for future years the costly connection of flimsy construction plus the loss in operation in the interval due to difficult gradients, and too abrupt curves. The following, bearing upon this subject, from the Canadian Collier's, is sufficiently pertinent to justify reproduction:

"Overclassification does not tell the Lumsden Committee the whole story. The price of railways has gone up since the C. P. R. was built at an average cost of $30,000 a mile. Some of the old hands in Parliament, not understanding this, may confuse high initial expenditure with worse matters. The National Transcontinental Railway will cost $60,000 a mile, but for that money it will have almost a level straight road from coast to coast. Any graft there may be will come inside the amount named.

The government engineers have gone on the principle that the best is the cheapest in the long run—and it is a long run from Halifax to Prince Rupert. The C.P.R. has spent twice $30,000 a mile lowering grades, straightening curves, and bringing the road up to the latest mark. From this lingering and expensive penance the National Transcontinental Railway hopes to be cut off by getting in right at the start.

The growth of Canada warranted another railway, but that railway, to give cheap rates, must be so constructed as to enable each engine to move the largest possible amount of traffic. This is James J. Hill's policy. It is the C. P. R. policy. It is the policy of every transcontinental railway that wants business. It has cost some of them a pretty penny to pick up their mistakes, and some of them cannot make a good job of it at that because towns have grown up along the route and local traffic makes it necessary to keep up many parts of the original line.

It used to be a saying in America that the way to do was to build the railroad first and operate it afterward. So it happened that Western railroads were located with two per cent. grades and higher, light rails were used, and the general character of the work was poor. As soon as the traffic began to develop these roads had to be improved by borrowing on the increased earnings.

If the Western Railway projectors had had the financial strength to build good roads at the outset, the total cost per mile would probably have been $60,000 instead of $30,000, but the $60,000 afterward spent on improvements would have been saved. The Grand Trunk has found it necessary to spend millions on its road-bed between Toronto and Montreal—built chiefly in the first place—in order to compete with the lower cost of transportation on other roads. For similar reasons the C. P. R. has had to double-track between Winnipeg and Fort William, and the bill for Western improvements this year will be $20,000,000. All of which is not to say that the Lumsden Committee may not discover irregularities, but it is well to remember that a suit to fit costs more than a hand-me-down.

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Peterborough People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined, Backache headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Booth's Kidney Pills, which have cured people right here in Peterborough:

Mrs. M. J. Cook of 494 Aylmer St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"I always find quick relief in Booth's Kidney Pills. They strengthen and relieve my back of a dull, heavy pain that settles in the small of it, and extends into my shoulders. For years I had suffered with these symptoms of kidney trouble, and could find no relief. I had frequent spells of dizziness and headaches. I was restless and weak and would often awake more tired than on going to bed. I never found relief for these painful and weakening symptoms of kidney trouble until I used Booth's Kidney Pills, obtained at Madill's Pharmacy. I have had little trouble since as I use Booth's Kidney Pills occasionally and they keep me in the best of health."

MAKES HAIR GROW

Mr. Wm. Madill Has an Invigorater That Makes Hair Grow In Abundantly or Money Back.

If your hair is thinning out gradually it won't be long before the bald spot appears.

The time to take care of the hair is when you have hair to take care of.

For thin falling hair the best remedy known to mankind is Parisian Sage. It is compounded on scientific principles and furnishes to the hair root a nourishment that acts quickly and promptly and causes the hair to grow.

But remember this: It kills the dandruff germ, the pest that appropriates all the natural nourishment that should go to the hair root.

Parisian Sage is sold by Wm. Madill, under a positive guarantee to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It gives to woman's hair a lustre and radiance that is most fascinating and causes it to grow abundantly.

Parisian Sage is now sold in every first-class town in Canada. A large, generous bottle costs 50 cents, and the girl with Auburn hair is on every bottle.

And Still They Come.

London, April 14.—Four hundred and fifty Salvation Army immigrants will sail for Canada to-day. Many of these immigrants possess sums up to $500 and over. With last week's batch of 300 it is estimated that the total capital represented will be $150,000. The 100,000 emigrants who are expected to go to Canada during 1910 will probably represent nearly $25,000,000 in cash. Hundreds are now paying $15 extra passage money via New York because they are unable to travel direct to Canada.

New Steamer In the East.

Kingston, Ont., April 14.—The new steamer Ottawa, which replaces the burned Islander, on the route between Clayton and Alexandria Bay, and is owned by the Thousand Islands' Steamboat Co., will go into commission on April 16, thus opening the season among the islands.

The Davis Drydock Co. has sold a 75-foot passenger steamer to Capt. Argue of Parry Sound. The steamer will be put on the route from Parry Sound to Little Current.

THE COMEDY OF A SHEEPFOLD.

OSCAR'S eye, roaming the landscape as he left Shirley Claiborne and started for the bungalow, swept the upland Claiborne acres and rested upon a moving shadow. He drew rein under a clump of wild cherry trees at the roadside and waited. Several hundred yards away lay the Claiborne sheepfold, with a broad pasture rising beyond. A shadow is not a thing to be ignored by a man trained in the niceties of scouting. Oscar, satisfying himself that substance lay behind the shadow, dismounted and tied his horse. Then he bent low over the stone wall and watched.

"It is the big fellow—yes? He is a stealer of sheep, as I might have known."

Zmai was only a dim figure against the dark meadow, which he was slowly crossing from the side farthest from the Claiborne house. He stopped several times as though uncertain of his whereabouts, and then he clambered over a stone wall that formed one side of the sheepfold, passed it and strode on toward Oscar and the road.

"It is the big fellow—yes?"

"It is mischief that brings him from the hills—yes?" Oscar reflected, glancing up and down the highway. Faintly, very softly through the night, he heard the orchestra at the hotel playing for the dance. The little soldier unbuttoned his coat, drew the revolver from his belt and thrust it into his coat pocket. Zmai was drawing nearer, advancing rapidly now that he had gained his bearings. At the wall Oscar rose suddenly and greeted him in mockingly courteous tones:

"Good evening, my friend; it's a fine evening for a walk."

Zmai drew back and growled.

"Let me pass," he said in his difficult German.

"It is a long wall; there should be no difficulty in passing. This country is much freer than Servia—yes?" and Oscar's tone was pleasantly conversational.

"A moment only, comrade. You seem to be in a hurry; it must be a business that brings you from the mountains—yes?"

"I have no time for you," snarled the Servian. "Begone!" And he shook himself impatiently and again put his hand on the wall.

"One should not be in too much haste, comrade," and Oscar thrust Zmai back with his finger tips.

The man yielded and ran a few steps out of the clump of trees and sought to escape there. It was clear to Oscar that Zmai was not anxious to penetrate closer to the Claiborne house, whose garden extended quite near. He met Zmai promptly and again thrust him back.

"It is a message—yes?" asked Oscar.

"It is my affair," blurted the big fellow. "I mean no harm to you."

"It was you that tried the knife on my body. It is much quieter than shooting. You have the knife—yes?"

The little soldier whipped out his revolver.

"In which pocket is the business carried? A letter undoubtedly. They do not trust swine to carry words. Ah!"

Oscar dropped below the wall as Zmai struck at him. When he looked up a moment later the Servian was running back over the meadow toward the sheepfold. Oscar, angry at the ease with which the Servian had evaded him, leaped the wall and set off after the big fellow. He was quite sure that the man bore a written message and equally sure that it must be of importance to his employer. He clutched his revolver tight, brought up his elbows for greater ease in running and sped after Zmai, now a blur on the starlighted sheep pasture.

The slope was gradual and a pretty feature of the landscape by day, but it afforded a toilsome path for runners. Zmai already realised that he had blundered in not forcing the wall. He was running uphill, with a group of sheds, another wall and a still steeper and rougher field beyond. His bulk told against him, and behind him he heard the quick thump of Oscar's feet on the turf. The starlight grew dimmer through tracts of white scud; the surface of the pasture was rougher to the feet than it appeared to the eye. A hound in the Claiborne stable yard bayed suddenly, and the sound echoed from the surrounding houses and drifted off toward the sheepfold. Then a noble music rose from the kennels.

"It was you that tried the knife on my body."

SLEEP WAS IMPOSSIBLE

ALMOST DRIVEN TO DESPAIR UNTIL CURED WITH USE OF

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

No symptom of nervous prostration is more to be dreaded than the inability to sleep. Man can exist for considerable time without food, but without sleep, and the restoration which it brings, he soon becomes a mental and physical wreck.

When you cannot sleep and rest look to the nervous system and remember that lasting cure can only be obtained from such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which naturally and gradually restores the exhausted nerves to health and vigour.

Mr. Wm. Graham, Atwood, Ont., writes: "My wife had been ill for some time with nervous prostration and we had two of the best doctors we could get, but neither of them did her any good. She gradually became worse and worse, could not sleep and lost energy and interest in life. She was almost giving up in despair when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"From the first box my wife used we noticed an improvement and after using six boxes she is completely cured and as well as she ever was. eats well, sleeps well and feels fully restored. I cannot say too much in praise of this valuable medicine for I believe my wife owes her life to its use."

Every dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food goes to the formation of so much rich, red blood and is therefore certain to do you good.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

For Ladies Only!

Women need Zam-Buk even more than men. For chafed places, inflamed surfaces, skin sore from friction from clothing, rough, red hands, unsightly face sores — for all these and a hundred-and-one needs that are peculiar to women, Zam-Buk is a boon.

Then there are the children! For their little cuts and burns and knocks—for skin rashes and skin sores, Zam-Buk is far the best. Why?

Best because it is pure. Best because it contains not one grain of mineral matter or poisonous coloring, not one bit of animal fat. It is antiseptic, soothing and healing.

A WIFE'S EXPERIENCE.

Mrs. Joseph Carr, who keeps a grocery store at 261 Hamburg Ave., Toronto, says:—"In all my years of housekeeping I have never yet used a preparation equal to Zam-Buk. It is nothing short of a wonder—a miracle. Indeed I cannot speak in terms too praiseworthy of its wonderful healing properties, and would not be without this remedy in my home at any cost. I have used it for sores, cuts, bruises and other skin injuries, and consider it a household necessity, especially where there are children, as it heals all wounds and bruises in almost incredibly short time. My eldest son had occasion to use Zam-Buk for a badly inflamed toe, caused by an ingrowing toe nail. A few applications were all that was necessary to draw out the soreness and inflammation, and he has had no trouble with the toe since. Every mother and every woman who has charge of a house should keep Zam-Buk handy."

Sure cure for eczema, varicose veins, bad leg, scalp sores, blood poisoning, face sores, ringworm, salt rheum, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c box, druggists and stores everywhere or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

ARROGANT OFFICERS

He Accuses Superintendent of Indian Affairs Pedley of Having Been a Party to a Bribery Deal In Which Indians Were Induced to Part With Lands at One-Third of Value—Wants Investigation.

Ottawa, April 14.—Before the orders of the day were called in the House of Commons yesterday morning Messrs. Armstrong and Ross (West Middlesex) called the attention of the Minister of the Interior to complaints which had been made during the past few days of alleged arbitrary and impudent treatment by American immigrant officials of Canadian citizens seeking entry to the United States on trains crossing the boundary at Sarnia and Windsor.

Hon. Mr. Oliver said that the arrangement of having immigrant officials inspect passengers on trains on either side of the boundary prior to crossing was a matter of convenience, so as not to delay traffic unnecessarily. There had been cases where it had been found that American officials had been overzealous, but in every case where complaint had been made the matter had been referred to the authorities at Washington and a satisfactory reply had always been received.

Mr. Claude Macdonnel of Toronto also drew the attention of the Minister to what he considered to be the hardships imposed on immigrants landing from British and European points in being turned back because they were not complying with the requirements of the new regulations necessitating each immigrant to have a minimum sum of money in his possession before landing. Many of these, said Mr. Macdonnel, had not been aware of the requirements before they sailed, and he thought greater care should be taken to have them forewarned.

Mr. Oliver said that the immigration regulations as passed by Parliament had been widely advertised in Europe a year ago and all the steamship companies were fully advised of the requirements. If the law was on the statute books the Government was bound to enforce it. There must necessarily be hardships in some cases, but he did not see how this could be avoided if the law was not to be entirely a dead letter.

George Bradbury, M.P. for Selkirk, made an extraordinary charge on Tuesday night in the House of Commons against Frank Pedley, superintendent of Indian Affairs, he accusing him of being a party to bribing the St. Peter's Indians of Manitoba to surrender their lands.

The Indians had been robbed by speculators under the very eyes of the Indian agent. They got only a third of the value of their land, which was sold by the speculators for seven or eight times what they gave for it. Whether the Minister was conscious of it or not, the whole transaction was so arranged that a magnificent area of land should fall into the hands of William Frank of Winnipeg. He met Frank on the train near Ottawa, he said, when Frank said to him: "I am going to buy these lands; you ought to come in with me."

Fred. Heep, a Selkirk lawyer; G. Tracey and an American named Funk bought the co-operation of the chief and councillors in carrying on negotiations with the rest of the Indians. Some of these Indians never saw the patents for their lands, the chief and councillors had been bribed, money was advanced to others with their patents and security, and Tracey got many of them to sign alleged receipts for hay which turned out to be powers of attorney. The fact that the surrender was asked for by S. J. Jackson, ex-M.P. for Selkirk, on the eve of a general election, showed that the favor was being obtained for certain parties.

He had asked the Minister for an investigation, Mr. Bradbury said, but Mr. Oliver refused, though sending Mr. Williams, the law clerk of the Department, to make private enquiries. He might as well have sent this innocent young man to Hong Kong to canvass Chinese.

Not one-eighth of the band knew that these men were trying to secure their homes and to this day many were unaware that their homes did not belong to them.

He accused Superintendent Pedley of having bribed the Indians at the voting place, Chief Justice Howells of Manitoba being present. Mr Bradbury alleged that Mr. Pedley said when the Indians were disinclined to surrender: "I have $5,000 in my satchel. If you vote for this surrender to-night I will divide this among you. If you don't vote, I will go away and you will get no money."

Mr. Bradbury quoted from a letter to the Minister from Mr. Pedley, in which he stated that not all of the money had been spent.

Mr. Bradbury spoke for over four hours, and at 12.55 o'clock yesterday morning Frank Oliver moved the adjournment.

It was remarked upon as significant that, in his absence, Mr. Doherty of Montreal filled his place instead of the usual old-time deputy leader, in asking for a short postponement of consideration of the navy bill, which was agreed to.

House of Refuge Committee Met

Another Meeting Called to Meet Trustees of Hall Poor Trust on Tuesday Evening Next.

The House of Refuge Committtee of the City Council met last night. There were present, Mayor Morrow, Aldermen Duffus, Hicks, Graham, Bradburn and Metheral.

Dr. Halliday and J. B. McWilliams were also in attendance, representing the trustees of the Protestant Home.

It appears that any move in the direction of building a House of Refuge will have to be a purely Protestant one. Father McColl, at the last meeting of this Committee distinctly pointed out that the Catholics are already taking care of their own poor, and his remarks led to the inference that there is no need for them to join with Protestants in a scheme for providing for the indigent.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams contended that legislation would have to be secured to permit of the city taxing the community separately for the erection and upkeep of a Protestant House of Refuge. It would be of no use submitting a by-law to the people without first getting the Provincial Government's sanction of the project. He advised that Premier Whitney be corresponded with without delay. From what he could learn the F. Hall Poor Trust Fund is not in a position to co-operate in this movement. They are held down hard and fast by regulations that would not permit of any joint action with this committee.

It was decided that it would do no harm for the committee to discuss the situation with the Hall Poor Trust members, and a meeting for this purpose will be called for next Tuesday if convenient for all parties concerned. A committee will then be arranged to go to Toronto and interview the premier on the subject.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. GLIDDON BY MADRIGAL CLUB

A fitting climax to the work of the Peterborough Conservatory Madrigal club was the very enjoyable evening tendered the members and a number of friends invited by Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon at the Conservatory last evening. There were about seventy-five in attendance and a most enjoyable time was the result. Dancing was participated in, excellent music for which was provided by some of the ladies and Mr. McIlroy. Mr. McIlroy also delighted those present with two excellently rendered solos. During the evening two presentations were made one to Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon from the Madrigal Club and the other to Miss C. Reesor from the Conservatory staff and her pupils.

While the guests were seated at luncheon, Mr. McIlroy rose and read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon, Mrs. C. McClelland presenting Mrs. Gliddon with a beautiful hand satchel and silk parasol and Mr. Gliddon with a handsome umbrella. The address was as follows:—

Peterborough, April 13th, 1910

Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon,

On behalf of the members of the Madrigal Club, I convey to you, this evening, the thanks of that body of singers, and good fellows all, for the many kindnesses shown by both of you, during recent rehearsals, concerts in Peterborough and trip to Toronto, in connection with the Earl Grey Amateur competition, where we all had such an enjoyable outing.

We all appreciate the hard work entailed in training a body of singers, got together for the first time, to an efficiency which would warrant their going to such a competition as the Earl Grey contest, but I am sure that I voice the opinion of the members of the Madrigal Club, and many others outside the club, when I say, that while the club did not capture the prize in their class in Toronto, yet their singing was a credit to the Conservatory, Mr. Gliddon and a splendid advertisement for the city of Peterborough, in a musical sense. And that is just what the City of Peterborough requires.

It is therefore, my very great pleasure, to present to you both, for the Madrigal Club, a light remembrance of our most pleasant experience, and I ask you, Mrs. Gliddon, to accept this bag and sunshade, and you, Mr. Gliddon, this umbrella.

And we hope that next fall, you will again call the Madrigal Club together and keep up the good work, which has begun under such enjoyable, enthusiastic and successful conditions.

Signed on behalf of the Madrigal Club.

Wm. McIlroy
Mrs. McClelland.

Mr. Gliddon on behalf of his wife and himself, thanked the club for their kind thoughtfulness. The work had been a pleasure to him, and it was particularly pleasing to note the good fellowship that existed. He would be pleased to again continue the work next fall.

Miss Reesor who is severing her connection with the Conservatory, and who leaves in a few days for her home in Markham, was remembered by her pupils and the staff. Mr. Gliddon in a few well chosen remarks, expressed his regret at losing Miss Reesor. By her amiable disposition and her ever readiness to give her services when ever called upon, she had endeared herself to a host of friends. Her departure from Peterborough would be a distinct loss in musical and social circles. Mr. Gliddon presented Miss Reesor with a handsome silver jewel case.

Messrs. Harold Cluxton, F. D. Kerr and John Green in neat speeches, tendered their congratulations to the Madrigal Club and to Miss Julia Choate, who brought honour to her city, by her clever violin playing in the Earl Grey competition, obtaining second place in the very large number of competitors.

Those present are exceedingly grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon for their kind hospitality so pleasantly extended.

By-law Which Was To Have Been Voted On By The People Is Withdrawn

The By-law to raise $70,000 to develop power which was to have been submitted to the people on Tuesday April 19th, has been withdrawn. At a special meeting of the council held last evening, upon motion of Ald. Phelan and Ald. Turner, it was decided not to submit the by-law. This was not necessary in view of the negotiations reached with the Canadian General Electric Co., whereby the surplus power at the waterworks dam will be developed by the company. A letter from Mr. Frederick Nicholls, General Manager of the Company was read by the Mayor, formally accepting the city terms, although asking that the agreement be submitted for the approval of the company's solicitors.

Many Complaints From Power Users About The Lowering Of The Water

At last night's council meeting Alderman Turner reported that Mr. Larmonth, manager of the Hydraulic Power Company, did lower the water at their dam, all his load would apparently permit of, but it was not sufficient to allow Mr. Conroy to proceed with the construction of Smith street bridge and the lowering of the water to even 3½ feet at Smith street bridge raised such a storm of protests from power consumers that it had to be raised again to secure any degree of peace. He (Ald. Turner), who is chairman of the Power Committee, was kept at the telephone all day answering calls from angry citizens, enquiring what the city meant by allowing such a procedure, and who was going to pay the damages. Such firms as G. Walter Green, the Peterborough Cereal Co., Central Milling Co., and the Brinton Carpet Co., complained that they could not operate with reduced power without suffering considerable loss. He explained the situation as best he could, but his explanation did not satisfy power consumers. Subsequently, in an interview with Mr. Larmonth, the latter had assured him, that Mr. Denham, manager of the Quaker Oats Co., would write to Chicago for permission from Mr. Stuart to reduce the Quaker Oats Co's. output for two weeks. If Mr. Stuart's consent to this is secured beginning next Monday, the water can be lowered sufficiently for Mr. Conroy to proceed with his contract. Then for two weeks the latter's men will work night and day, and under such conditions he will be able to have the work on the new bridge far enough advanced in the given time to avoid any further delay from high water.

On the advice of Aldermen Hicks and Bradburn, the council will not commit the city so that it will be held responsible for any possible damage.

ZAM-BUK IN 3 ACCIDENTS

It would seem that Zam-Buk, the famous healing balm we hear so highly spoken of everywhere, is particularly useful in the family circle. A report sent by Mrs. E. Davey, 786 Ellice Ave., Winnipeg, will illustrate this. She says: "My little boy, of three, while playing, fell from a high verandah to the ground, cuting his forehead badly. Instead of calling a doctor who would undoubtedly have put in a number of stitches, I bathed the wound well, and applied Zam-Buk. The little fellow, although suffering keenly, soon had relief from his pain. In the course of three weeks by applying Zam-Buk daily, the wound in his forehead was nicely healed.

"Since then I have also used Zam-Buk for a boil which came on my cheek and which proved very painful and looked unsightly. Zam-Buk soon drew the boil to a head and it then quickly banished it.

"Another time my baby was scalded on her left thigh and calf of leg with boiling water. This was a severe scald and the child suffered cruelly, screaming from pain. Directly it was done I thought to use Zam-Buk, as we had a box in the house, and spreading some on lint I wrapped up the baby's limb. Next morning she rested much easier and I applied a fresh bandage with Zam-Buk. I kept this treatment up daily and was rewarded by seeing a great improvement each time I dressed the wound. In a very short space of time the scalds were all nicely healed.

"I cannot recommend this wonderful healing preparation too highly for family use, and I have such great faith in its healing powers that my house is never without a box."

For all skin injuries and diseases, piles, eczema, salt rheum and face sores Zam-Buk is absolutely unequalled. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse all substitutes.

MANY PAID LAST TOKEN OF RESPECT

Funeral of the Late Archie Frowde Held This Afternoon.

The funeral of the late E. A. Frowde, who passed away in Edmonton on Thursday last took place from the residence of his father, Walton street to the little Lake Cemetery. It was largely attended, many sorrowing friends turning out to pay their last token of respect to the memory of the deceased. The late Mr. Frowde had been in Edmonton six weeks having gone there from Welland. He had only been ill five days. As Assistant Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. there he conducted a membership contest and through his efforts the number of members had been increased from 700 to 1136. A letter received by his relatives here from the General Secretary, stated that while his life had not been long, he had, nevertheless, accomplished more for the men and boys he had met, than many men who had lived their three score years and ten. In Edmonton, the funeral took place from the Association building to the station to be brought here. Services were conducted by Rev. R. Pearson pastor of Grace Methodist Church. Six former Peterborough young men acted as pallbearers, namely Messrs. Bradburn, H. Burnham, M. Fife, C. Armour, Ed. Roe and Elliott. Many beautiful floral tributes and letters giving testimony of the deceased's help and influence were received by the parents. The pallbearers at the funeral this afternoon were Messrs. Sanford Hall, McCann, Jas. Browne, F. Myles, W. Edmondson and Wesley Elliott. The service at the house was conducted by Rev. G. W. Henderson of the Charlotte street Methodist Church, and a sacred duet was sung by Misses Lee entitled "He shall wipe away all tears."

The following floral tributes were received: Sheaf, Ladies' Auxiliary, Welland Y. M. C. A.; Heart, Directors Edmonton Y. M. C. A.; Wreath, staff of Edmonton Y. M. C. A.; Wreath, Mrs. Charles Harmer, Edmonton; wreath, Mr. Robinson, Edmonton; Anchor, four Peterborough ladies of Edmonton, Mrs. E. W. SPRINGVILLE CHOIR GAVE CONCERT

Excellent Programme Given There on Tuesday Evening Last

A very enjoyable concert was given on Tuesday evening by the Springville Presbyterian choir at Springville. There was a large number in attendance, and the programme presented was an excellent one. The choir, under the leadership of Prof. McCann, of the George Street Methodist church, gave some splendid numbers, which were received with great applause. Encores were demanded and the soloists and choir graciously responded. The programme was as follows:

Murmur song—The Lord's Prayer.
Chorus—Choir.
Solo—Mr. Fred Myles.
Duet—Misses Chasty.
Solo—Mr. Huycke.
Reading—Miss Hill
Chorus, Students' Song—The choir.
Solo—Mr. Huycke.
Duet—Miss Simpson and Mr. Myles.
Solo—Miss Winslow.
Reading—Miss Hill.
Chorus—Choir.

At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered all those who took part in the concert.

CURED WHEN DOCTORS FAILED

Mr. Felix Villeneuve, Clarence Creek, Ont., writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney disease, inflammation of the bowels and liver troubles, and doctors could not help me much. Could not sleep, water contained sediment, had frequent desire to urinate, and often passed blood. Had dreadful headaches, one side almost paralyzed and was deaf in one year for eight years. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured me, and I am very grateful. I want to thank you.

THE CAUSES OF DIVORCE

Will be the Subject at the Last Meeting of the Purity Campaign in Park Street Baptist Church To-night.

A large congregation assembled in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last night when the Rev. J. A. McCuaig, who this week is conducting a purity campaign among the churches preached on 'The Voice of God.' Mr. McCuaig chose for his text, John,10-4, "They Know His Voice.

After briefly defining and establishing the terms of the text and setting forth the proposition that God has means of communicating and does communicate himself to his people, Mr. McCuaig declared this fact to be one of the fundamental truths of the Christian faith. The assurance of it does not rest upon any single passage of scripture but upon the great principles underlying the whole revelation of God. All the records bear testimony to it—"God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by His son." The relationship of father to child that exists between God and man by its very nature, affirms this truth. Such communication must be possible or the whole relationship is void of meaning. The principle is again affirmed in the abundant promises of God, "I will counsel thee with mine eye upon thee."

The manner of God's speaking to men was graphically discussed showing how sometimes by deep impressions on the mind, in regard to which we have no natural explanation, it was apparent that God had spoken. Philip had such an impression calling him to go into the wilderness. He could not shake it off, so went out in blind obedience with the result that "The light of God, in the heart of a black man went over the desert to Africa."

The natural everyday manner of God's communicating with man, however, was shown to be on established lines and principles, "The meek shall He guide in judgment." The condition of absolute meekness is the condition in which God can impress the mind, guide the thoughts, bring to remembrance and lead to conviction, assurance and judgment. This condition could be immediately attained and enjoyed by any man who knows God, by simply going apart and being alone with God—concentrating the mind upon him and saying, "Father! Father! Father" till the full consciousness of God's nearness and fatherly love becomes the only impression on the mind. This condition was essentially the condition of meekness and in it God could speak and make his cacierhdovw vbqkq mfwywyypupupp voice heard. In this condition he could influence the mind bringing anything "to remembrance" and taking of the things of God and showing them unto us.

The results that flow from waiting upon God and from hearing him speak were impressively emphasized. There would come into the heart of that man the very "joy of the Lord." His life and speech and very face would show the glory of it. The greatest testimony the church could give to the world was the indwelling "joy of the Lord" wrought by that same communion with God that made the face of Moses to shine. "The joy of the Lord is the strength of his people."

The last general meeting of the campaign in the interest of social purity, which has created such widespread interest this week, will be held in the Park Street Baptist church to-night, when Mr. McCuaig will lecture on "The Causes of Divorce."

Proposes To Form A Young Men's Club

In the religious life of the times, perhaps nothing is more noticeable than the change which has taken place in methods of church work. In fact, it seems no longer possible to conduct religious affairs on old-time plans with any degree of success. Altered conditions have rendered necessary altered plans of work.

While the organization of young men's clubs is not altogether a new venture, yet the use under religious auspices, of the club idea, is relatively a recent venture. It is being happily recognized that young men form quite a distinct element in the life of most communities, and to ignore this element is to miss, utterly, a powerful asset in the conduct of affairs, generally. To utilize this energy so often misspent, and to bring it into effective organization, is a problem some one ought to be responsible for. The question is, who is responsible? The young men, themselves, might as well assume the responsibility of their own interests as any one else. In some quarters, the organization of the Young Men's Club has been undertaken to meet the case. We noticed recently a striking illustration of the effectiveness of this plan of work in Dunsford, Ont. It was organized by Rev. M. E. Wilson, M.A., of that place. It is generally conceded, I believe, that this gentleman gives special attention to his pulpit work. But beyond this, he is broad and public-spirited enough to go afield to render any service he can, not only to his own church, but to the community, generally. Many a local interest has felt the force of his interest and forethought. These things might seem to be somewhat out of touch with the duties of the cloth, but the people are reaping the benefit and fully appreciate it. The interests of young men are not likely to be overlooked by a man of this stamp, nor have they been.

In the beginning of the winter season, when young men were at greater leisure, from his pulpit Mr. Wilson announced a public meeting of all interested in the welfare of young men. The response was so encouraging that a plan of organization was entered upon. Departments of work embracing athletics, moral reform, social and literary work, were arranged. The inauguration took the form of a banquet, at which prominent men in affairs religious, civil, and social, were invited to give addresses. The venture was a success. It was not long until a club numbering a membership of seventy was actively at work; meetings have been regularly held ever since, and are to be continued throughout the year. As one who has carefully watched this, and similar movements, I have been much impressed with the far-reaching results which can be exerted by organized young manhood not only in the creation of ideals of intelligent breadth for the men themselves, but in the elevation of the whole moral tone of the community. There are plenty of organizations of a sort for almost every class of people, but might not the churches and clergy make a very paying investment by placing the influence of young manhood under some organization, which would make their influence effective in moral, social and religious affairs. The Y. M. C. A. is setting a noble example in this respect. But its work is generally identified with the larger centres of population, while scores and hundreds of the finest of our youth are within only the range of the rural church organization which too often are out of touch with the sentiments of youth altogether. Let the young men be served for as they may be, and it will soon be evident that a most effective force has become active for righteousness.

HISTORY OF THE Y. W. C. A. SINCE ORGANIZATION FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Twenty-two Associations in Canada With a Membership of 7000—Sixteen Ladies Composed the First One Here—Of That Number Only Two Survive.

AN INTERESTING PAPER

The following, is the history of the Young Women's Christian Association, which was read by Mrs. (Col.) Stevenson, at the burning of the mortgage on Tuesday evening:

It is but fifty-five years since Lady Kinnaird; at a dinner party in London, expressed her desire to, in some way, provide homes for business girls. Lord Shaftesbury came to the assistance of Lady Kinnaird, nd in that year, 1855, a boarding home for business women was opened in London.

In 1865, only 45 years ago, the first central association for public work was opened in London. In 1884 these two branches of work were united, and thus was begun the great Christian sisterhood of the world, which we know as the Y. W. C. A., having a membership of over 500,000 women, and having as their motto; "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

This movement spread rapidly; associations sprang up in many parts of the world, and In 1895, the "World's Committee" was formed, which united associations in thirty different countries. It was then a question as to what language the motto of the association should be in, and the Hebrew language was chosen as being that in which the words were originally written.

In Canada at the present day, we have twenty-two city associations, with eight city branches, and a membership of 7,000. Twenty associations have boarding homes in connection with them. There are also twenty-eight college associations, reaching some 3,000 women students. Over 1,000 are enrolled in the Bible classes, and $1,200 given annually to missions.

It is fifteen years since it was first proposed that we should have a branch of the Association in Peterborough, and it will be a surprise to many when they learn that two young men, whose names are not on record, should have given the initiative to this movement. They were members of the Y. M. C. A., and they realized how equally important it was that women, as well as men, should have the advantage of such an institution within their reach. These young men each pledged themselves to contribute one dollar a month towards the expenses, so it was not by might, nor by power, but by the spirit of the Lord of Hosts that this work was begun.

Mr. Colville, who was Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at that time, called a meeting of ladies, sixteen of whom came to the meeting, and the outcome of it was that in the year following, a branch of the Y. W. C. A. was organized in Peterborough.

But two of those ladies are with us to-day, and they are Mrs. Walsh and Miss Nicholls.

A couple of rooms were secured, which served for a short time, but the work grew apace, and better accommodation was found necessary. A boarding home was opened on Brock street, and through the instrumentality of the Hon. Senator Cox, more commodious rooms were opened on George street for the public work. The demand for still better accommodation became so urgent that in January, 1904, Senator Cox offered to subscribe one quarter of any amount given by the citizens of Peterborough.

In a very short time $20,100 dollars were promised and in May, 1904, the contract for the building was let at $30,000.00. On September 7th, of the same year the corner stone was laid by the late Mrs. Cox, in whose memory the gymnasium was afterwards equipped. The building, being completed, it was dedicated on April 23, 1905, and afterwards opened for work on April 25th.

Sum required for building	$32,220.00
Paid up to date	21,581.00
Leaving a deficit of	$10,639.00

This deficit, together with some other expenses, made it necessary to place a mortgage of $12,000.00 on the building.

Since the day when this mortgage was executed Mrs. Walsh has never ceased in her untiring efforts to wipe it out, with what results we here see:

In February, 1906, it was reduced to $10,000.00; in October, 1907, to $7,500.00; by November, 1908, it had dwindled to $4,000.00, and now we have been called together to-night to witness its total extinction.

It is, as I have said, eighteen years since association work in Peterborough was first begun; and each year has found its sphere of influence larger than before. The financial report of 1892 shows receipts and expenditures amounting to only 324.00, while in 1909 they amounted to $2,137.00, and will this year be still increased. The great increase in our work, and the fact that the association building is free from debt, makes us feel that we are now the possessors of a great public trust. This fact cannot but inspire us with feelings of awe, and responsibility, as well as great thankfulness that the Lord of Hosts has deemed us worthy.

We must now turn our faces toward the great future. We see our fair city with its churches, schools and factories, and we realize that the network of this Association must embrace them all.

It must ever work for greater Christian unity, for the advancement of education, both in the home and in the working world. It must stand for good literature, and for refined and cultured entertainments. Its activities must so extend that its influence may be felt in every department of woman's work, and to influence this to such an extent that it cannot be other than a recognized "Witness for Christ."

ARE RILED AT QUEBEC

Forthcoming Prohibition of the Exportation of Pulp From Lower Canada to the United States Has Roused the Authorities at Washington—Call It Unfriendly Act —Americans Control Half.

Washington, D.C.—April 14.—The announcement that the Province of Quebec would almost immediately prohibit the exportation of pulpwood to the United States is received here with surprise and regret.

At the State Department it was said that the prospect of close commercial relations and of a trade treaty with the Dominion were thought to be sufficiently encouraging to deter any of the provinces from imposing prohibitory restrictions at this time. Such summary action as is proposed, it is felt, would interfere seriously with the realization of the suggested trade treaty, and might in a measure nullify the good that was accomplished by the closer friendly relations into which the two Governments have recently been brought.

The proposed increase of stumpage dues and license fees for the sake of insuring increased revenue is not questioned, but the action to prohibit the exportation of pulpwood is regarded in some quarters as closely approaching an unfriendly act.

During the tariff negotiations in Ottawa, and subsequently at Albany and Washington, there was some discussion of the wood pulp situation, but that matter is understood to have been left to be further discussed in connection with the proposed reciprocity treaty between the United States and the Dominion, the initial steps in which, it was believed, would be taken next month.

That the decision of the Quebec authorities is designed to benefit Canadian labor is the general belief of the Washington officials. Ultimately they think, it will result in the establishment of pulp factories in the province.

However, the amount of pulpwood coming from the Quebec crown lands is not very considerable. Last year the total importation of the U. S. from Quebec was 1,000,000 cords, of which 130,000 were cut from crown lands. The order-in-council soon to be issued will not affect the exportation of timber from private lands.

There are 6,000 quarter miles of crown lands in the Province of Quebec, of which American interests—the International Paper Co. and the Berlin Mills Co. — lease or rent more than half. An adjudication of their rights under the new order of things will be a question for the State Department to take up.

Quebec Will Stand Firm.

Montreal, April 14.—A special from Quebec says, regarding a report from Washington that President Taft may impose retaliatory duties on the Province of Quebec, because of the Government's determination to prohibit the export of unmanufactured pulp wood, that it is understood that the Government is full, prepared for any such action.

"The lumber interests of the province are being protected by us," said a prominent official of the Government, "and they must be prepared to meet a higher duty on pulp. I do not think the people of the United States would favor any increased duty on pulp and paper from Canada."

The new law prohibiting the exportation of pulp wood will apply only to pulp wood cut on and after May 1 next, so that all that has been cut during the past winter can be sent to its destination.

Premier Gouin had officially announced in the Legislature that it had been decided to prohibit the exportation of all pulpwood cut on crown lands before it was manufactured in Canada; secondly, to increase the stumpage dues by 60 per cent., and, thirdly, to increase the ground rent per square mile from $3 to $5.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

A TRIUMPH FOR LABOUR

After a Hard Fought Campaign Premier Deakin Is Reported to Have Been Defeated by Ex-Premier Fisher and the Coalition Party Made Up of Liberals and Laborites—All Are Imperialists.

Sydney, Australia, April 14.—Elections for members of Parliament were held throughout Australia yesterday. Returns already received assure a working majority for the Labor party in both Houses. The voting was heavy.

Intense interest was taken because for the first time a coalition party, headed by Premier Deakin, opposed the Labor party, under the leadership of ex-Premier Fisher.

A very noteworthy feature of the campaign in every state has been the absence of any feeling of what might be called an anti-imperial nature. This applies not only to the members of the Ministerial Fusian Party, but to the Labor party's candidates, who constitute the opposition. Such questions as preference to Great Britain, adequate naval and military defence in co-operation and co-ordination with the forces of the rest of the Empire, are accepted whole-heartedly by both parties.

The position of the Ministerialists was greatly strengthened by the adhesion of the state Ministers to the financial agreement which Mr. Deakin submitted to a plebiscite for ratification. In the ordinary course of events the state Cabinets, as such, would not interfere in the Federal election.

In his concluding election address, Mr. Deakin referred to the financial agreement as being the fusionists' main plank, and which he defended as being fair both to the states and the Commonwealth. He pointed out that it provided £1,700,000 during the current year for Federal needs, which otherwise would cause a huge deficit. He also defended the embodiment of the agreement in the constitution, contending that that was the only way in which they could make the *states secure against an arbitrary al*teration of the agreement by a casual Parliamentary majority.

He then attacked the Labor program, which he said introduced unification by starving the state finances, by seizing through the medium of the land tax the sources of state taxation, and by centralizing the control of industrial legislation throughout Australia.

The whole Commonwealth is showing the signs of abounding prosperity enjoyed by the chief producing industries. A bumper harvest has been reaped, and is now being shipped to Great Britain, the fruit and butter export industries have had a good season, and the wool clip has not only been a heavy one, but has fetched excellent prices in the auction room.

A Valuable Cargo.

Port Arthur, April 14.—The steamship Holmes expects to clear for Buffalo on Saturday. The Holmes, which has been wintering at the King elevator, last fall loaded a cargo of 250,000 bushels of flax for the States. The cargo is one of the most costly that has ever been in the harbor, as it is stated that the 250,000 bushels are worth in the neighborhood of $600,000. Since the cargo was loaded the grain has risen in price and some thousands of the above sum is included in the increased value of the material since it was loaded into the boat last fall.

Child Victims of White Slave Dealers.

New York, April 14.—With the arraignment of six men in a Brooklyn Police Court yesterday, and with warrants out for twenty others, one of the biggest raids on dealers in "white slaves" ever made in New York, is in progress. Eight girls are to testify against the prisoners. One of them is only nine years old; the oldest 15. They all had been lured to a moving picture show, and then taken to a house.

$51,000 For a Statue.

New York, April 14.—At the sale of the Yerkes art collection, Houdon's life-size bronze figure of "Diana" was knocked down to Duveen for $51,000. The statue represent Diana running, an extremely graceful pose. In her left hand she carries a bow and in her right an arrow. Only two of these bronze statues by Houdon exist, one in the Louvre.

Overtures to Unionists.

London, April 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Yesterday's Cork Constitution, the leading Unionist organ, says that some days ago informal overtures were made by the Irish leaders to ascertain what they might expect from the Unionists in case of their defeating the Government and supporting the Conservatives at the general election.

Whisky In Ginger Ale Bottle.

Owen Sound, Ont., April 14.—Forty dollars and costs Fred Ufland had to pay because Inspector Beckett found whisky in the bar of the Paterson House, the leading hotel here. A ginger ale bottle was half full of whisky. Ufland and his assistant both pleaded ignorance.

Charged With Perjury.

Belleville, April 14.—Wilbur A. McMullin of this city and Fred Clarke of Trenton are charged with perjury as an outcome of the case against ex-Chief of Police Snider of Trenton. They are out on bail, and the case is fixed for Wednesday, April 20.

Beresford's Gift to R.C.Y.C.

London, April 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Appreciating the reception of the Canadian Yacht Club, Lord Charles Beresford has given Mr. George Goodchum a model of the Condor for presentation to the club.

New Zealand's Defences.

Wellington, N.Z., April 14.—(C.A.P Cable.)—The Government has authorized the purchase of £50,000 of military equipment. The total expenditure will amount to £100,000.

The "Chemics" of Bread

LET us look a bit into the chemistry of bread.

For we want our bread not only to seem good but we want it to actually be good. And as bread is a question of flour and flour a question of wheat we see that wheat is where we have to begin.

Gluten, starch, water and phosphates, are the principal component qualities of wheat. And in proportion as these qualities are more or less present is the wheat more or less valuable so far as nutrition is concerned.

The nutritive and bread-making qualities of wheat are the things that make it more valuable than rye or oats or barley or corn as a human food.

The quality of nutrition, too, is what makes one brand of flour more valuable than another.

If it were not for nutrition and bread-making qualities any flour would be as good as any other. We wouldn't have to care whether it was made from good wheat or poor wheat, from Spring wheat or Winter, from all wheat or part other cereals.

A chemist will tell you that "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" is richer in high quality gluten than flour made from low grades of wheat. And for that reason it is better for food, hence more valuable than ordinary flour.

And actual tests in your kitchen will tell you that it produces more and larger loaves to the barrel than ordinary soft wheat or blended flour, the reason being that flour made from hard Red Fyfe wheat is more expansive and more absorbent.

Royal Household Flour

OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD

There is no mystery about the superiority of "Royal Household". It is a plain, common-sense proposition that flour made from the finest hard wheat in the world and scientifically milled must produce the finest bread in the world. And it does. Try it. Prove it. 10

Can Do Her Own Work Now.

Mrs. M. McGann, Debec Junction, N.B., writes:—"I wish to tell you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. Three years ago I was so run down I could not do my own work. I went to a doctor, and he told me I had heart trouble and that my nerves were all unstrung. I took his medicine, as he ordered me to do, but it did me no good. I then started to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and had only taken one box before I started to feel better, so I continued their use until I had taken several boxes, and I am now strong and well, and able to do my own work. When I commenced taking your pills I weighed 125 pounds, and now weigh 185 and have given birth to a lovely young daughter, which was a happy thing in the family. When I commenced taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I could not go upstairs without resting before I got to the top. I can now go up without any trouble."

CONSERVATIVES DISORGANIZED THEIR GOOD MEN KEEP SILENCE

Why They Retired.

The Conservative members of the Lumsden investigation retired ingloriously from the committee because they saw the "jig was up." The only possible way in which they could place what they fondly hoped would prove to be good campaign material on Hansard was to do it through the channel of an imaginary grievance.

Commissioners Exonerated.

Out of the mouth of the chief witness, Mr. Lumsden, they found that he made no charge against the commissioners, and that he attributed nothing worse than lack of judgment to the engineers. Subsequently Mr. Lumsden modified his view by saying that the expression "lost confidence" in his engineers was an unfortunate one.

Abuse is Not Argument.

Referring to an account of what occurred before the Lumsden committee, Mr. Lennox said in the House he had been misrepresented by "a lying pamphlet" circulated every day during the session dealing with the investigation.

This pamphlet does not go out every day during the session. Who does the lying?

What Lennox Alleged in House.

Mr. Lennox also said, Hansard, page 6166, March 31:—

"No member of the minority committee suggested that Mr. Lumsden should have counsel." Then again on the same page he said: "It is absolutely false to say that the minority of the committee ever urged that Mr. Lumsden should have counsel."

What does the printed evidence say on this point?

What Lennox Said in Committee.

Mr. Lennox: It was mentioned the other day that the two parties concerned should be represented by counsel. Mr. Smith, I understand, appears for the commissioners.

The Chairman: Yes.

Mr. Lennox: We have not yet asked whether Mr. Lumsden is represented by counsel.

The chairman: Mr. Lumsden, are you represented by counsel?

Mr. Lumsden: I am not.

Mr. Lennox: In that case, I submit to the committee that it would be quite in accordance with what we said the other day, that it would be advisable at this inquiry to have both sides represented by counsel.

The Chairman: If Mr. Lumsden so desires, he is at liberty to have counsel.

He is Self-Condemned.

Mr. Lennox is here confronted with his own statement as it appears in the printed evidence. The position assumed by Mr. Lennox was properly interpreted as "vain attempt to influence Mr. Lumsden and compel him to have counsel against his will." What other interpretation could be put on the words quoted above? The subject of Mr. Lumsden having counsel had been discussed. Mr. Lumsden, in the exercise of his undoubted right, declined to avail himself of counsel; and yet we find Mr. Lennox saying it would be advisable to have both sides represented by counsel.

What were the sides? Just Mr. Lumsden and the engineers in whom he stated he had lost confidence. There were two parties to the controversy. Mr. Lumsden, who had made the charges, and the engineers in whom he had lost confidence.

Lennox Logic.

The logic of Mr. Lennox's argument was: Here is the Transcontinental Commission, a party not charged with any wrongdoing, and only collaterally interested in the proceedings because their employees were attacked—represented by counsel and the man who makes the charges has no counsel.

Mr. Moss, K.C., Toronto, represents the engineers, so that only one party to the controversy was represented by counsel, and Mr. Lennox assuredly tried to influence the other party to the controversy (Mr. Lumsden) to have counsel, when he said that it was advisable for both sides to be represented by counsel.

Evidence Which is Conclusive.

When the matter came up in the House Mr. Lennox endeavoured to make it appear that the commissioners were on trial, although he had expressed a different opinion before the committee. The following dialogue found on page 11 of the printed evidence proves this:

Mr. MacDonald: The Commissioners are not on trial here, and there is no use in you saying so.

Mr. Lennox: I have not said so.

Double Face Attitude.

In the face of this acknowledgment Mr. Lennox stated in the House, Hansard, page 6166, March 31,

"We recognized from the first that not Mr. Lumsden but the commission, and ultimately the Government, were the people on trial."

When brought face to face with the question in committee, Mr. Lennox denied ever having said the commissioners were on trial, and yet in the House he has the effrontery to say that the "minority recognized from the first that the commissioners were on trial.

Lennox Admits His Incompetence.

The facts are very simple. Mr. Lennox as usual, assumed a front place in the deliberations of the committee and quickly realized that he was unable to cope with the able men who confronted him, and this incompetence on his part he frankly acknowledges. Hansard, page 6.166, March 31, Mr. Lennox says:

"Perhaps sometimes I am recklessly bold. I do not mean that I can fight effectively, or that I am a match for the hon. gentlemen who were on that committee. I do not think I was."

The reason Mr. Lennox and his friends retired from the committee was primarily that no blame be attached to the government and because they were outclassed at the very commencement of the inquiry. By a few subtle, apparently innocent questions, Mr. MacDonald secured from Mr. Lumsden a statement that he made no charges against the commissioners, and that no wrongdoing was suggested on the part of the engineers.

Mr. Lennox found that he was no match for the Liberal representatives on the committee, and that his presence there would lead to no results.

The people will compare the statements of Mr. Lennox while in the House, and there will be no difficulty in arriving at a conclusion as to the credibility of the several parties to this controversy.

Mr. Lennox has laboured for years in matters affecting the Transcontinental commission, and in the end the "mountain brought forth a mouse."

Waster of Public Funds.

Industry may be misapplied Mr. Lennox is industrious, but he does not get results. Last week he put the country to an expense of $200 a day to probe into affairs between a country lawyer and the justice department. There was not a point in the case, but he kept it going and the people pay the piper.

Conservatives Utterly Disorganized.

The statement made from time to time that the Conservative party is in a strange condition of mix-up, finds ample corroboration the past week in the columns of their own press. The matter is alluded to for the purpose of illustrating how accurately the situation has been depicted and forecast through Liberal resources.

It is openly stated that all the reasons and causes of dissatisfaction have not been made public. Some of them are of general interest and might be of importance to the silent voter.

In the first place Mr. Borden does not lead his party. As a leader the party could not find a better. In fact, Mr. Borden occupies a class by himself. There is a lack of loyalty in his following. Take the case of the Power Transmissions line this week Mr. Borden submitted an amendment which was satisfactory to the government. His followers should have either repudiated their leader or followed his advice. They did not follow his advice, but they avail themselves of his leadership. This makes Mr. Borden impotent in his party.

New Men Are Failures.

Then there are a number of new men in the House, who have their spurs to win, but whose actions indicate that they regard themselves as full-fledged knights. Among these there is much rivalry. It is noticeable that the ones who speak most are not among the most illustrious of Mr. Borden's party.

Some Tiresome Talkers.

Then again there are men who regard no subject brought before the House as complete until they have expressed themselves upon it. These men waste hours of time, they secure no concessions from the government, throw no new light upon the discussion, but they do irritate the more moderate men of their party by their consistent attitude of obstruction and their tiresome verbosity.

Good Men Keep Silent.

Some of the best men on the Conservative side rarely speak, when they do, the government gives the greatest consideration to their views and these men do useful public service, but they are so disgusted with the actions of those about them that their usefulness is greatly hampered.

Self-Constituted Deputy Leaders.

A source of daily irritation to many Conservatives is the assumption of deputy leadership by a few men who possess no qualification which would justify them in taking such prominent part in debate. This injures the party and annoys better men than themselves.

The blame for long sessions may be charged up to this class of men, who deliver tiresome harangues upon every subject that comes before the House

Why Liberal Party is Strong.

With knowledge of these things, so obvious to even a casual observer, is it any wonder that the Liberal party is strong in the House, and growing stronger in the country? The men on the front benches, and those near to the government, on the Liberal side, are acknowledged by all to be the best men in the party—men entitled to the prominence which their seats give them. They don't weary the House with discursive arguments upon every question which arises. When they address the House it is only after due preparation, and their contributions to debate are valuable and useful.

Absolute Unanimity.

Sir Wilfrid is the leader, no person questions his authority. When he makes a decision his party has confidence in his judgment to follow him. This is not the case upon the Opposition side, as has been pointed out. It is one of the sources of strength on the Liberal side.

Tories Don't Consult Each Other.

One-half of the Conservative party in the House does not know what the other half is engaged in politically. It is said Mr. Foster never consulted a caucus neither did he disclose what his own intentions were, before bringing any matter up in the house. The result was, he was the only man on his side ready to speak on the question, the others had to follow along as best they could.

A Flagrant Example.

Recently a document was prepared by some Conservatives on "The Two Parties and the Empire." It dealt with many matters. Several leading Conservatives spoken to, said they never heard of it before it was shown to them, and there are many statements in it of which they disapprove. Poor politics they call it.

Yet this document is being franked out of the House by the thousand. It is campaign literature, pure and simple, mostly simple, and many Conservative members see it for the first time in print. This is one example of lack of united purpose which keeps the party in a turmoil.

Helps Liberal Party.

La Canada, a French Liberal paper, has reprinted the article in French, without any comment. It will have about the same boomerang effect as did "The Duty of the Hour." It will show the French that in the English constituencies Sir Wilfrid is held up to the people as a "Separatist," while in Quebec he is held up as an Imperialist. This is only a sample of the poor politics being played by a section of the Conservative party without the knowledge of many Conservative members.

Conservatives Denounce Each Other.

One incident in the House goes further than many that have been mentioned to prove the absence of unanimity in Conservative ranks. Mr. J. E. Armstrong having stated that the Toronto World, a Conservative paper, popularly supposed to be owned by Mr. W. F. McLean, Conservative M. P., was in reality controlled by the Government, was called upon to withdraw by Mr. McLean, and did so.

In the meantime Dr. Schaffner, Conservative, audibly stated that what Mr. Armstrong said was true, whereupon Mr. McLean called upon him also to withdraw, but as the speaker had not heard Dr. Schaffner, he could not do so. Thereupon Mr. McLean said:

Billy McLean's Rebuke.

"Then that hon. gentleman (Mr. Schaffner) has heard what I have said, and if he is manly he will get up and acknowledge that the insinuations he cast upon me, in my hearing, were unfounded, and he will withdraw them. If he does less than that, I say he is not fit to sit in this House and associate with gentlemen."

This is a sample of the feeling which prevails in the Conservative ranks. Is it a party qualified to govern the country, when it cannot govern itself?

Canadian Navy Idea Popular.

The publication last week in the Liberal press of the facts as to the size of the vessels of the new Canadian navy has aroused much enthusiasm among the young men of Canada and caused a corresponding sense of chagrin that the Conservative talk of a "tin pot" navy had been exposed. If members of the Conservative party are anxious that the truth should be known let them back up the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier when he says that the Canadian navy will be a credit to the Dominion and offer an honourable career to our young men who desire to enter the service.

They Fear the Truth.

Upon this point it might be stated that Mr. Lennox and his friends would do better public service if they would devote their energies to circulating the truth as to the proposed navy, rather than characterize Liberal publications as lying pamphlets which tell the absolute, irrefutable truth, for the sole and only reason that the literal truth is not palatable to Lennox, et al.

Liberal Publications Truthful.

The publications issued under the authority of the Liberal party cannot with impunity be described as "lying pamphlets." The author of them stands ready at all times to meet Mr. Lennox or any other man who challenges their veracity.

One of the reasons why the Liberal party holds the confidence of the people is, that upon all public questions, the plain, unvarnished facts are presented, and the people are left to form their own opinion upon those facts.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup Cured Her

Mrs. W. J. Hammond, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I beg to say that I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my youngest girl who was troubled every winter with bronchitis and very severe colds. At night she would keep us all awake with her coughing until I tried your Syrup, which gave her instant relief. After the first bottle was finished I got more, and always kept a bottle in her room at night. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is certainly a wonderful thing in a case like the above mentioned and no one can praise it too highly. I have taken every opportunity to recommend it to all my friends and relatives."

There is nothing to equal "Dr. Wood's" for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Asthma, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Pain or Tightness in the Chest, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

It prevents Pneumonia and Consumption.

No. 4—W. J. Hastie, M. A. Fitzgerald, W. Flowers, A. Darling, D. Clarke, H. Outram, C. Nichols, E. Hanwell, G. Tovey, B. Gillespie.

The boys have the use of the Riverside Park, Tuesday and Thursday, from 4 o'clock till dark, also Saturday mornings.

All school boys are requested to be out on practice days after four, and the Employed Boys after supper, to get in shape, as the schedule will start on May 1st.

ABOUT PUNCHES

How much will punches be worth in the big fight?

The stake, $101,000, and the picture receipts, which have been estimated at $500,000 for each man's share, mean that the fighters will realize jointly $1,101,000, providing of course the pictures bring as much as they are expected to.

Suppose one of the men lands a knockout blow with the first punch. No man would have made money so fast as he in all the world's history.

Or suppose the fight goes the extreme distance of 45 rounds. In this event the value per punch would be greatly reduced. But the fight has been narrowed to 15 rounds by men who should be experts if experience is worth anything.

Then comes the question, how many blows will be struck per round? No one can answer this question. The fighters couldn't begin to give an estimate. Johnson has won most of his fights by putting up a defensive battle beating men as they came to him.

Jim Jeffries has made his opponents bring the fight to him, and with his peculiar crouch, adopted as the result of Tommy Ryan's teaching, he was hard to reach. Either Johnson or Jeffries will have to overcome the waiting tendency when they meet.

With his wonderful left hand, Jeffries if he recovers his judgment of distance, his sharpshooter's eye, will take the lead unless the writer is much mistaken.

Suppose for argument, Jeffries lands four solid blows per round, and Johnson, whose boxing ability no one questions, is able to counter blow for blow lands another four.

This estimate does not include the number of blows that land grazingly, or fail to get to vital points. In 15 rounds each man would land 60 punches, a total of 120. Jeffries perhaps can deliver a thousand-pound blow, if set, but in the rapid action of battle he wil have but small chance to get set, especially with a man like Johnson, who unless he changes his entire plan of campaign, will refuse to carry.

It is probable that with his right hand Johnson can punch just as hard as Jeffries can with his left. It is this right hand used for an uppercut, that has won Johnson's battles.

Let either of these men land their favorite punch on a vital spot at anything like their full strength and the money is as good as counted.

Suppose Jeffries in the course of 15 rounds lands 60 punches of varying weight, or Johnson lands the same number and the last blow brings the knockout for which this enormous sum is offered. The winner will receive for each punch $1,262.50 per punch as his share of the stake money, and on top of this must be added the estimated value of the moving picture money which will be worth $8,333.33, making the total value of each wallop $9,595.

It's worth being punched for, isn't it?

OBITUARY.

The funeral of the late William Stuart Curry took place yesterday afternoon at 1.30 from the family residence Charlotte street to the Lakefield Cemetery. The Rev. J. G. Potter pastor of St. Andrew's Church conducted the services at the house and grave. Mr. Curry was a devoted member of the Church and had encouraged his family to take an active interest in the various departments of church life and work. The esteem in which Mr. Curry and his family are held was fully shown in the large number of floral tributes sent to the home. Among the flowers sent from societies were the following—The staff of the G. T. R. Peterborough depot, L. O. L. No. 50, Saint Andrew's Young Men's Guild, Daughters of Erin, Young Ladies Mission Band, Christian Endeavour, Sabbath School Association.

Mr. Curry was born in Huntington Co., Penn., U. S. A. November 2nd, 1828, and was 81 years of age. All his faculties remained unimpaired until near the end, and he appeared to be a man well preserved. He is survived by his wife, also a sister, Mrs. Margaret Cochrane, Pittsburg, and his children, James S. Curry, Springfield, Ill., Mrs. N. T. BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

There was another Chinese Society murder in New York yesterday.

Chatham "Indian listers" are alleged to be breaking the law by procuring a patent medicine that contains alcohol.

Rev. Robt. Kerr, for over 20 years rector of St. George's, the oldest Anglican Church in St. Catharines, has tendered his resignation.

W. H. Grant of Toronto has gone to Vancouver to superintend the construction of the C.N.R.'s Portland Canal Short Line Railway.

Alfred Belton, charged with burglary at Belleville, broke away from the police there and led a ten-minute chase. Recaptured he pleaded guilty and was remanded.

Prof. Parker of Columbia University, a disbeliever in Dr. Cook, says the Fairbanks' expedition to the top of Mt. McKinley went up on the wrong side to definitely disprove Cook's claims.

In a letter to The Weekly Sun, Goldwin Smith says, concerning his recent injury: "However, Dr. Grazett at all events, may be congratulated on the triumph of his medical skill over one of the worst cases which come under the cognizance of medicine."

Two Youths Dead.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 14.—Two sons of Philip Badali, a wealthy Italian of Wilkinsburg, were found dead in bed early yesterday. The youths, one 18 and the other 16 years of age, were victims of poison, according to the coroner's office, either administered by some one or taken by mistake for medicine.

When Badali learned of the death of his two boys, he fell in a faint, declaring wildly that the deaths were due to his enemies, to whom he had refused to pay money.

Two years ago Badali's summer home was burned. For months after the incendiary blaze, police guarded the Badali home day and night. Letters have been received by the family demanding money for the past six months.

Child Killed by Train.

Peterboro, April 14.—While running to meet her father, as he came home from work yesterday evening, Frances, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien, was struck and killed by a Grand Trunk Express train, at a crossing in North Monaghan, just outside the city limits. The train was traveling at a high rate of speed, and the child was hurled nearly forty feet. The crossing is regarded as a dangerous one.

The child was the youngest of a family of eleven. The oldest brother was killed at Hamilton about two years ago by being run over by a shunting engine on which he was employed as a brakeman.

Sentenced to 25 Years.

Cobourg, April 14.—George Mancuro, who was found guilty Tuesday night on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the shooting of two Italians near Grafton, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Teetzel to a term of twenty-five years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Dog Catcher Kept the Change.

Chatham, April 14.—Alex. Jameson, city dog catcher, was fined $10 and costs, with the option of going to jail for one month, on being found guilty of stealing $4 from Mrs. Isaac McKerricker. Jameson received a $5 bill from Mrs. McKerricker to redeem her dog, which he caught, and he did not give her any change, claiming that she owed him $1.

THAW WITNESSES PAID.

Lawyer Says He Spent Lot of Money on the Case.

New York, April 14.—Clifford H. Hartridge, one of the attorneys who defended Harry Thaw in his first trial for the murder of Stanford White, failed yesterday in his effort to collect from Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, the prisoner's mother, a balance of $92,000 for counsel fees and disbursements which he claimed to be due him. He already has had $32,000.

More than that, Judge Holt made the sensational statement that an enquiry was called for regarding the professional conduct of Hartridge, and to determine whether ground existed for a perjury prosecution.

Hartridge had recounted numerous payments he claimed to have made to women of the tenderloin and others in smoothing out certain stories concerning Thaw.

Judge Holt declared that if Hartridge had paid money to women who might have been witnesses at the Thaw trial, it was a case for the grand jury.

Drank Poison at Wedding.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., April 14.—The wedding of James R. Service of Montreal and Miss Jennie E. Sloan of Lisbon, N.Y., has been indefinitely postponed to await the bridegroom's recovery from a dose of carbolic acid. The wedding guests were assembled for the ceremony, when Service staggered in and fell unconscious into the arms of the bride. The nearest physician made seven miles by automobile in 15 minutes and saved Service's life by means of a stomach pump and antidotes.

Service said he drank the poison by mistake, thinking the bottle contained a tonic. He is an engineer on the G.T.R.

Man Swept Over the Falls.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 14.—Just before dark last night, Reservation Officer Knapp saw the body of a man plunge over the American Falls. He first saw the body lodged on a rock near Willow Island, but was carried off before it could be secured with ropes. The body was that of a man, apparently about 30 years, dark hair, moustache, dark clothes and in the water only a short time.

Search is being made for a missing man up the river, who, it is thought, was in a boat and got caught in the current and capsized.

Danced Five Miles In an Hour.

New York, April 14.—The band in a Brooklyn dance hall struck up a speedy tune at an early hour yesterday and 17 couples started in a mad waltz for the "Marathon dancing championship of the world."

In 15 minutes the seconds began to revive the weary dancers by throwing sponges soaked with water. In half an hour most of the dancers had quit. The winning couple covered five miles in the hour.

Queen's University Degrees.

Kingston, April 14.—Queen's University senate has decided to confer the following honorary degrees at the convocation on April 27:

D.D.—Rev. Andrew T. Love, B.A., Quebec.

LL.D.—Dr. Parks, superintendent of the research laboratories of the health department, New York City, and Prof. T. R. Glover of St. John's College, Cambridge.

Stabs Wife; Kils Self.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 14.—Early yesterday Joseph Blount, stabbed his wife in the breast and then cut his throat, dying shortly afterwards. Blount asked his wife for a dollar. She refused to give him but fifty cents. A quarrel resulted, ending in the tragedy. Blount was formerly a policeman on the Ontario side. His first wife left him some years ago.

Divorced, But Didn't Know It.

New York, April 14.—For six years after her husband obtained a divorce Mrs. Dora Schwartz continued to live with him in happy ignorance of the fact, she says. On March 10 last her former husband, Louis Schwartz, left her and her child, and took the furniture with him. Mrs. Schwartz went to the courts to compelled him to support her. In defence Schwartz produced a certified copy of the divorce decree.

THERE IS NO WAR IN SIGHT

British General Says Canada's fleet is Just For the Purpose of Getting More Security—An Armed Peace Is the Only One Because Force Is Necessary to Punish Offenders—Food Is Peace Factor.

Chicago, April 15.—Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, was in the city for 90 minutes yesterday.

On militarism the general spoke guardedly, saying: "One must be careful when a thoughtless word might be wrongfully taken to mean something one did not intend it to.

"As to Canada's military future, I haven't visited Canada. I see no aggressiveness in the future, so far as Canada is concerned. The little navy they are building up there is only that they may sleep a little easier o' nights. One rests better with a 'bobby' walking around the square. I suppose they will some day begin to increase the army there—just for the same reason.

"I see no reason that ipternational peace should not continue from this very moment. One never knows, however, when something may stir up trouble and war does not often announce itself far in advance. It always pays to keep one's 'powder dry'."

"Is that an expression of England's military policy," Lord Kitchener was asked.

"Well, I should not put it that broadly. England is at peace with all the world, but our surest safeguard of peace is always to be ready. Until such time as some international agreement shall be reached, if such there be, England will be ready at all times to lend that influence toward peace. I think I may say that in a general way, without respect to my military position there."

Asked what he considered the chief factor tending to international peace, the general replied: "Food. I think food is one of the first. The Panama Canal has come into the list now as a new factor also. The nation whose food supply is cramped, is restless and irritable. It wants to expand. It wants what the other fellows have. It was a comfort to my heart as a peace-loving man to see broad acres of food-producing land in this country and to hear that Canada could duplicate it. The Panama Canal was the best move America ever made. It will bring the east and the west closer together and the big factor, not only in commerce, but in the country's military future.

"I wish I knew what the future would bring forth for the Pacific," he said. "It is gratifying to us that the canal is being built at Panama, for that helps to simplify matters. But only by the movement of nations in the future can we tell what part of the Pacific will then take in history.

"My idea of the army and navy of the future is that the navy must be of the first consideration. Either in defence or offence the navy must take the initiative, but a nation will have to depend upon the army before it can whip another.

"My whole view of the future is one made peaceable by force of arms. Even with an international agreement for peace, some force must exist to punish offenders."

Sixty-Fifth Regiment to Go.

Montreal, April 15.—The statement was made yesterday in military circles that Hon. Col. Rodolphe Forget, M.P., of the 65th Regiment (French-Canadian) will take the whole regiment of 500 men to London and Paris; also, that while here, en route for the old land, the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto will be the guests of the 65th.

There was some talk of a civic reception, but the colonel of the Queen's Own expressed a preference for a reception by the brother soldiers of Montreal.

Mr. Forget's offer is conditional. If Lt.-Col. Labelle's regiment can be got into perfect shape, and if the boys will attend their drill, the trip will come off. He says, however, that he does not fear a comparison of the 65th band with the best military musical organizations in the French army, that of the Guards Republico, of course, excepted.

MR. OLIVER MAKES REPLY

Minister Says Manitoba Indian Lands Sale Was a Perfectly Regular Thing and Was Ordered by Chief Justice Howell, Who Was Appointed to Adjust the Claims of Settlers —Crothers Takes a Hand In.

Ottawa, April 15.—An unprecedented "sustained tirade of unwarranted assertions," was Hon. Frank Oliver's mildest characterization of Mr. Bradbury' four hours' speech Wednesday night on alleged frauds on Manitoba Indians by Government officials.

The discussion continued all yesterday and last night. On division Mr. Oliver was sustained by 107 to 57, the largest majority of the session. The Conservative whip was caught napping.

Where lands held by Indians were not being used to their profit, it was policy to have them surrendered in exchange for money, Mr. Oliver argued.

The surrender of lands on St. Peter's Reserve arose out of attempts made to secure the title of whites and half-breeds who held the lands individually within the area occupied by the reserve. Chief Justice Howell, as commissioner to adjust the claims of the white and half-breeds, found affairs which made a surrender of the lands necessary. The terms of surrender were negotiated by him at from $4 to $17.50 per acre.

Mr. Bradbury interjected that the Minister had shown ignorance all through his speech. The members of the band had not signed the surrender, and therefore it was not legal.

Mr. Oliver insisted that the Indians knew before they voted what they were voting for. Terms had been discussed time and again.

As regards the sale, he would say, without reference to any member of the House, that anyone who said the land was sold without proper advertisement was absolutely regardless of the truth. The land was sold by auction in the open light of day. It was an extraordinary case, and extraordinary measures had to be taken.

W. S. Middlebro (North Grey) said the transaction was a blot upon the administration of the Interior Department. Part of the land which had been sold for $5 or $6 per acre was sold by the Government for $20 per acre, and other portions were assessed at $24. No public body, no provincial authority and not even the Town of Selkirk had petitioned for the sale, only S. J. Jackson, ex-M.P. for Selkirk.

T. W. Crothers (East Elgin) said it was pitiable to the Minister's friends in the House to see the feeble arguments he had advanced. He quoted from the Indian Act to show that there was no authority to make a patent of public lands to an unenfranchised Indian. The transaction, he described as one of the most contemptible schemes and swindles. He did not know Chief Justice Howell, but he did know that chief justiceships granted by this administration carried no guarantee for everyday common honesty. He was describing Mr. Oliver as guilty of the most contemptible conduct, when Mr. Fielding rose to a point of order and Mr. Crothers altered his statements and said it was the greatest breach of public trust ever brought against a Government, already on the eve of moral bankruptcy and tottering to its fall.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, the last speaker, vigorously defended Justice Howell. He felt sure that Mr. Crothers, upon reconsideration, would be inclined to retract his statements.

Mr. Boyce (Algoma) read, for the benefit of the Minister of Justice, an article in The Canadian Municipal Journal, commenting on the release of Skill and King, sentenced at Toronto to a year's imprisonment for circulating obscene literature, saying "the whole thing is a pure farce," and asking "where is the pull?"

Mr. Aylesworth desired to refer to the files first, but he desired, he said, at the earliest opportunity, "to deny and repudiate, with whatever indignation of which I am capable, the absurd and utterly untrue insinuations contained in the article which has just been read. It is untrue that Mr Robinette of Toronto or any other person has the slightest influence or pull with the Department of Justice in cases of this kind."

In the Senate yesterday Sir Richard Cartwright stated that the purpose of the revision of the immigration law was to strengthen the provision against undesirables.

Senator Gibson referred to the case of an Englishman at Hamilton, who sent for his wife and children, and when they reached Quebec the officers detained them, alleging one of the children had ringworm. A bill of $60 was run up and because the man's funds were exhausted the family would have been deported had not the St. George's Society came to the rescue.

A Palace of Justice?

Ottawa, April 15.—A palace of justice at Ottawa is contemplated. Haughton Lennox (South Simcoe) asked Hon. Wm. Pugsley if the Supreme Court was to be put in the new Government building. The Minister said no, but added that the judges liked the present site, and the idea had occurred that a building might be erected upon it to accommodate the Supreme Court, the Exchequer Court, and the Railway Commission.

RESOLUTION PROGRESSES

The Fact That the Budget Will Be Gone on With Before the Lords Have Settled With the Veto Question Seems to Indicate That Mr. Asquith and Redmond Have Reached an Understanding.

London, April 15.—The House of Commons yesterday evening passed the second reading of Premier Asquith's House of Lords veto resolution by a vote of 351 to 246.

Asquith declared that if the Lords rejected the Government's proposals, he would immediately tender advice to the crown regarding steps to be taken if the Government's policy is to be carried into effect. If the advice is rejected, Parliament then would dissolve, taking steps to ensure on the next occasion, that the will of the people, as expressed in the election, would be carried out. The only legislation prior to a decision on this question would be the budget.

It would not be right, he continued, for him to disclose the terms of the advice to the throne, but unless the Government found themselves in a position to give their policy statutory effect they would either resign office or recommend dissolution of Parliament.

The Premier's statement was interrupted by cheers and counter-cheers. There was much laughter from the Conservative benches when he said that he could not disclose the terms of his intended advice to the King.

Mr. Balfour, leader of the Opposition, rose amid a considerable uproar, and said that the Premier's important statement represented the culmination of long negotiations with the Irish party. The Nationalists had agreed to swallow the budget, their aversion to which they had never concealed, in order to get home rule.

The Speaker having adjourned the House, an uproarious scene ensued. There were hisses and cheers, and cries of "dynamitard," "traitor," and similar names. While Mr. Redmond, the Irish leader, appeared to be trying to reach a Conservative member, who had used an offensive expression, nothing serious occurred, but the demonstrations were renewed in the lobbies, where the members, especially the Nationalists, lingered in excited discussion until the lights were extinguished.

Asquith's resolution to be proposed next Monday, allocating the time for the consideration of the budget provides that all stages of the legislation must be completed on April 27.

The fact that the Premier has decided to dispose of the budget measure before a decision by the Lords on the veto resolutions will have assumed a final form, indicates that a deal has been effected between the Cabinet, and the Redmondites, and that the latter will support the budget.

The preliminary debate on the veto resolutions has been somewhat overshadowed by the interest excited by the revelation of Sir Robt. Anderson's share in the political events of 1887, and the determined efforts the Irish members are making in the House to secure a Governmental investigation of the affair, with a view of depriving Sir Robert of his pension of $4,500 yearly, on the ground that his action was a breach of official confidence.

Sir Robert Anderson has admitted the authorship of the famous "Parnellism and Crime," series of articles which appeared in The Times in 1887, and which culminated in the publication of the Pigott forgery.

The debate, however, has been notable in character, and has attracted many prominent visitors to the House, including Queen Alexandra, who made her first appearance in the House since her coronation.

In the meantime Lord Rosebery, in the House of Lords, submitted his plan for the reform of the second Chamber. It proposes that in the future the House shall consist of the Lords of Parliament, chosen in part by the peers themselves, in part by nomination by the crown, in part elective from the outside, and of others sitting by virtue of their office and qualifications, the term of tenure for all to be the same.

Hopkins University First on List.

Baltimore, Md., April 15.—Steps to develop what will probably be the greatest institution of higher education in the United States were taken yesterday, when, by the action of John D. Rockefeller and the trustees, faculty and alumni of John Hopkins University, a committee was organized to raise $2,000,000, of which Rockefeller has offered $250,000, and add school of law, teaching, engineering and preventive medicine to Johns Hopkins. These four schools will be of the same high level of the Johns Hopkins University and medical schools. The six big institutions in one will be moved to a large estate just outside of Baltimore.

Reciprocity In Natural Products.

Washington, D.C., April 15.—On leaving the White House yesterday, Senator Root was asked about the progress in getting Canada and the United States together for reciprocity.

"There is a tremendous sentiment all along the border of the two countries for reciprocity in natural products," he said. "The time has passed for reciprocity in manufactured products."

Ninety-Five Rescued at Sea.

Eureka, Cal., April 15.—Ninety-five persons were rescued from the North Pacific Steamship Co.'s steamer Santa Clara, which foundered Wednesday, arrived here yesterday on the tug Ranger. The Santa Clara sank about four miles down the coast.

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON,

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

Zmai approached the sheep sheds rapidly, with still a hundred yards to traverse beyond them before he should reach the pasture wall. His rage at thus being driven by a small man for whom he had great contempt did not help his wind or stimulate the flight of his heavy legs, and he saw now that he would lessen the narrowing margin between himself and his pursuer if he swerved to the right to clear the sheds. He suddenly slackened his pace and with a vicious tug settled his wool hat more firmly upon his small skull. He went now at a degtrot, and Oscar was closing upon him rapidly; then, quite near the sheds, Zmai wheeled about and charged his pursuer headlong. At the moment he turned Oscar's revolver bit keenly into the night. Captain Claiborne, looking toward the slope, saw the flash before the bounds at the stables answered the report.

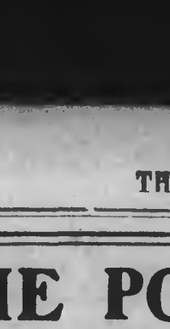
"Stop; I want the letter!" shouted Oscar in German. The man turned slowly, as though dazed, and, with a hand still clutching his head, half stumbled and half ran toward the sheds, with Oscar at his heels.



Claiborne snatched a lantern and ran.

Claiborne called to the negro stablemen to quiet the dogs, snatched a lantern and ran away through the pergola to the end of the garden and thence into the pasture beyond. Meanwhile Oscar, thinking Zmai badly hurt, did not fire again, but flung himself upon the fellow's broad shoulders, and down they crashed against the door of the nearest pen. Zmai swerved and shook himself free, while he fiercely cursed his foe. Oscar's hands slipped on the fellow's hot blood that ran from a long crease in the side of his head.

As they fell the pen door snapped free, and out into the starry pasture thronged the frightened sheep.

"The letter—give me the letter!" commanded Oscar, his face close to the Servian's. He did not know how badly the man was injured, but he was anxious to complete his business and be off. Still the sheep came huddling through the broken door, across the prostrate men and scampered away into the open. Captain Claiborne, running toward the fold with his lantern and not looking for obstacles, stumbled over their bewildered advance guard and plunged headlong into the gray fleeces. Meanwhile into the pockets of his prostrate foe went Oscar's hands with no result. Then he remembered the man's gesture in pulling the hat close upon his ears, and off came the hat and with it a blood stained envelope. The last sheep in the pen trooped out and galloped toward its comrades.

Oscar, making off with the letter, plunged into the rear guard of the sheep, fell, stumbled to his feet and confronted Captain Claiborne as that gentleman in soiled evening dress fumbled for his lantern and swore at the sheep in language unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

"It is sheep—yes?" and Oscar started to bolt.

"Halt!"

The authority of the tone rang familiarly in Oscar's ears. He had after considerable tribulation learned to stop short when an officer spoke to him, and the gentleman of the sheepfold stood straight in the starlight and spoke like an officer.

"What are you doing here, and who fired that shot?"

Oscar saluted and summoned his best English.

"It was an accident, sir."

"Why are you running and why did you fire? Understand you are a trespasser here, and I am going to turn you over to the constable."

"There was a sheep stealer—yes? He is yonder by the pens, and we had some little fighting, but he is not dead—no?"

"That is the sheep stealer," said Oscar. "We shall catch him—yes?"

Zmai peered toward them uncertainly for a moment, then turned abruptly and ran toward the road. Oscar started to cut off his retreat, but Claiborne caught the sergeant by the shoulder and flung him back.

"One of you at a time! They can turn the hounds on the other rascal. What's that you have there? Give it to me—quick!"

"It's a piece of wool"—

But Claiborne snatched the paper from Oscar's hand and commanded the man to march ahead of him to the house. So over the meadow and through the pergola they went, across the veranda and into the library. The power of army discipline was upon Oscar. If Claiborne had not been an officer he would have run for it in the garden. As it was, he was taxing his wits to find some way out of his predicament. He had not the slightest idea as to what the paper might be. He had risked his life to secure it, and now the crumpled, blood stained paper had been taken away from him by a person whom it could not interest in any way whatever.

"The letter—give me the letter!" commanded Oscar.

He blinked under Claiborne's sharp scrutiny as they faced each other in the library.

"You are the man who brought a horse back to our stable an hour ago."

"Yes, sir."

"You have been a soldier."

"In the cavalry, sir. I have my discharge at home."

"Where do you live?"

"I work as teamster in the coal mines—yes? They are by Lamar, sir."

Claiborne studied Oscar's erect figure carefully.

"Let me see your hands," he commanded, and Oscar extended his palms.

"You are lying; you do not work in the coal mines. Your clothes are not those of a miner, and a discharged soldier doesn't go to digging coal. Stand where you are, and it will be the worse for you if you try to bolt."

Claiborne turned to the table with the envelope. It was not sealed, and he took out the plain sheet of note paper on which was written:

CABLEGRAM.
Winkelried, Vienna.
Not later than Friday.
CHAUVENET.

Claiborne read and reread these eight words; then he spoke bluntly to Oscar.

"Where did you get this?"

"Who is he and where did he get it?"

"I don't know, sir. He was of Servia, and they are an ugly race—yes?"

"What were you going to do with the paper?"

Oscar grinned.

"If I could read it—yes?—I might know, but if Austria is in the paper, then it is mischief, and maybe it would be murder. Who knows?"

Claiborne looked frowningly from the paper to Oscar's tranquil eyes.

"Dick!" called Shirley from the hall, and she appeared in the doorway, drawing on her gloves, but paused at seeing Oscar.

"Shirley, I caught this man in the sheepfold. Did you ever see him before?"

"I think not, Dick."

"It was he that brought your horse home."

"To be sure it is! I hadn't recognized him. Thank you very much." And she smiled at Oscar.

Dick frowned fiercely and referred again to the paper.

"Where is M. Chauvenet—have you any idea?"

"If he isn't at the hotel or in Washington, I'm sure I don't know. If we are going to the dance"—

"Plague the dance! I heard a shot in the sheep pasture a bit ago and ran out to find this fellow in a row with another man, who got away."

"I heard the shot and the dogs from my window. You seem to have been in a fuss, too, from the looks of your clothes." And Shirley sat down and smoothed her gloves with provoking coolness.

Dick sent Oscar to the far end of the library with a gesture and held up the message for Shirley to read.

"Don't touch it!" he exclaimed, and when she nodded her head in sign that she had read it he said, speaking earnestly and rapidly:

"I suppose I have no right to hold this message; I must send the man to the hotel telegraph office with it. But where is Chauvenet? What is his business in the valley? And what is the link between Vienna and these hills?"

"Don't you know what you are doing here?" she asked, and he flushed.

"I know what, but not why!" he blurted irritably. "But that's enough!"

"You know that Baron von Marhof wants to find Mr. John Armitage, but you don't know why."

Shirley nodded and clasped her fingers together.

"I have my orders and I'm going to find him if it takes ten years."

Shirley nodded and clasped her fingers together. Her elbows resting on the high arms of her chair caused her cloak to flow sweepingly away from her shoulders. At the end of the room, with his back to the portieres, stood Oscar, immovable. Claiborne re-examined the message and extended it again to Shirley.

"There's no doubt of that being Chauvenet's writing, is there?"

"I think not, Dick. I have had notes from him now and then in that hand. He has taken pains to write this with unusual distinctness."

The color brightened in her cheeks suddenly as she looked toward Oscar. The curtains behind him swayed, but so did the curtain back of her. A May time languor had crept into the heart of April and all the windows were open. The blurred murmurs of insects stole into the house. Oscar, half forgotten by his captor, heard a sound in the window behind him and a hand touched him through the curtain.

Claiborne crumpled the paper impatiently.

"Shirley, you are against me! I believe you have seen Armitage here, and I want you to tell me what you know of him. It is not like you to shield a scamp of an adventurer, an unknown, questionable character. He has followed you to this valley and will involve you in his affairs without the slightest compunction if he can. It's most infamous, outrageous, and when I find him I'm going to thrash him within an inch of his life before I turn him over to Marhof!"

Shirley laughed for the first time in their interview and rose and placed her hands on her brother's shoulders.

"Do it, Dick! He's undoubtedly a wicked, a terribly wicked and dangerous character."

"I tell you I'll find him," he said tensely, putting up his hands to hers where they rested on his shoulders. She laughed and kissed him, and when her hands fell to her side the message was in her gloved fingers.

"I'll help you, Dick," she said, buttoning her glove.

"That's like you, Shirley."

"If you want to find Mr. Armitage"—

"Of course I want to find him!" His voice rose to a roar.

—"then turn around; Mr. Armitage is just behind you!"

"Yes: I needed my man for other business," said Armitage, folding his arms, "and as you were very much occupied I made free with the rear veranda and changed places with him."

"Then turn around; Mr. Armitage is just behind you!"

"You are worse than I thought—eavesdropper, housebreaker!"

"Yes; I am both those things, Captain Claiborne. But I am also in a great hurry. What do you want with me?"

"You are a rogue, an impostor"—

"We will grant that," said Armitage. "Where is your warrant for my arrest?"

"That will be forthcoming fast enough. I want you to understand that I have a personal grievance against you."

"It must wait until day after tomorrow, Captain Claiborne. I will come to you here or wherever you say on the day after tomorrow."

Armitage spoke with a deliberate sharp decision that was not the tone of a rogue or a fugitive. As he spoke he advanced until he faced Claiborne in the center of the room. Shirley still stood by the window, holding the rolled paper in her hand. She had witnessed the change of the men at the end of the room. It had touched her humor. It had been a joke on her brother, but she felt that the night had brought a crisis. She could not continue to shield a man of whom she knew nothing save that he was the object of a curious enmity. The coup de theatre by which Armitage had taken the place of his servant had amused her for a moment, but she was vexed and angry now that he had dared come again to the house.

"You are under arrest, Mr. Armitage. I must detain you here," said Claiborne.

"In America—in free Virginia—without legal process?" asked Armitage, laughing.

"You are a housebreaker, that is enough. Shirley, please go!"

"You were not detached from the army to find a housebreaker. But I will make your work easy for you—day after tomorrow I will present myself to you wherever you say. But now—that cable message which my man found in your sheep pasture is of importance. I must trouble you to read it to me."

"No!" shouted Claiborne.

Armitage drew a step nearer.

"You must take my word for it that matters of importance, of farreaching consequence, hang upon that message. I must know what it is."

"You certainly have magnificent cheek! I am going to take that paper to Baron von Marhof at once."

"Do so—but I must know first! Baron von Marhof and I are on the same side in this business, but he doesn't understand it, and it is clear you don't. Give me the message."

He spoke commandingly, his voice thrilling with earnestness, and jerked out his last words with angry impatience. At the same moment he and Claiborne stepped toward each other, with their hands clinched at their sides.

"I don't like your tone, Mr. Armitage!"

"I don't like to use that tone, Captain Claiborne."

Shirley walked quickly to the table and put down the message. Then, going to the door, she paused as though by an afterthought and repeated quite slowly the words:

"Winkelried—Vienna—not later than Friday—Chauvenet."

"Shirley!" roared Claiborne.

John Armitage bowed to the already vacant doorway, then bounded into the hall out upon the veranda and ran through the garden to the side gate, where Oscar waited.

Half an hour later Captain Claiborne, after an interview with Baron von Marhof, turned his horse toward the hills.

THE PRISONER AT THE BUNGALOW.

"IN Vienna, Friday!"

"There should be great deeds, my dear Jules." And M. Durand adjusted the wick of a smoking brass lamp that hung suspended from the ceiling of a room of the inn, store and postoffice at Lamar.

"Meanwhile, this being but Wednesday, we have our work to do."

Stomach Troubles

OFTEN COME FROM WEAK, EXHAUSTED NERVES — GREAT RESULTS FROM USING.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

When the nerves become exhausted the first sign of trouble often comes from the stomach. The nerves which control the flow of digestive fluids fail and the result is loss of appetite, indigestion, nervous headache and sleeplessness.

Opiates and narcotics cannot possibly do more than afford temporary relief, and aids to digestion are merely make-shifts. To get well you must get the nervous system back into condition by such treatment as Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. Here is a letter which illustrates the point.

Mr. John McLean, 316 Hunter St., W., Hamilton, states: "My trouble was principally with my stomach. As a result of weak nerves my appetite was poor and I had severe attacks of indigestion. I found that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food relieved me and since using it regularly for some time my digestion is excellent, my appetite is good, my nerves strong and vigorous and I feel an altogether different person. I feel very grateful for the benefit I have derived from this medicine."

If you are in earnest about a cure why not make it thorough by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food regularly and persistently until the whole nervous system is restored and you can know again the joys of living."

"IT SEEMED LIKE THROWING MONEY AWAY

Until I Tried Gin Pills."

Mr. P. Fitzgerald was completely disheartened. He had suffered so long with his Kidneys, and spent so much money on doctors without relief, that he had made up his mind he could not be cured.

Then, he chanced to read about the wonderful cures by Gin Pills, the great Kidney Remedy, and sent for a sample. The pills did him so much good that he immediately bought two full size boxes. And these two boxes of Gin Pills made him feel like another man.

But let Mr. Fitzgerald tell his own story of a really remarkable cure.

Provincial Asylum, Orillia
June 18th.

I have much pleasure in stating that the sample, which you sent me, led me to buy two boxes of Gin Pills from a local druggist. They are the best remedy for Uric Acid Trouble that I have ever tried. I must say that before using Gin Pills, I had undergone a long and expensive course of treatment by eminent specialists of Chicago. They did me no good—it seemed like throwing money away.

I still keep a box of Gin Pills on hand and take one occasionally. I am pleased to recommend them and bear testimony to their efficacy.

P. FITZGERALD.

After reading such a letter as this, you simply can't doubt the value of Gin Pills in cases of Kidney and Bladder Trouble. If you are a sufferer, write the National Drug & Chemical Co. Dept. B. Toronto, for a free sample of Gin Pills and try them at our expense. After you have seen for yourself just what Gin Pills will do, buy the full size box at your dealer's, and remember that Gin Pills are sold with a positive guarantee of a cure or money refunded. 17

Regular Habits

An Absolute Necessity For Good Health

You might as well expect to find a man or woman healthy with constipated bowels as to find a city healthy when its sewers are blocked with refuse.

Nature demands that the indigestible food and waste matter which collects in the lower bowels shall be got rid of at least once in twenty-four hours. If this is not done it decomposes, filling the bowels with poison, which is taken up into the blood and carried all through the body.

Literally millions of people suffer these results of constipation without realizing the cause, or doing anything to remove it. Yet it can be removed, easily and with certainty, by using Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Take, for example, the case of Mr. George Andrews, Halifax, N.S., as he himself describes it:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic constipation. This ailment never comes single handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. At last I read about these Indian Root Pills. That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed by the statements contained therein that I determined to give them a fair trial. They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation and claim they have no equal as a medicine."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were first taken to cure constipation nearly a hundred years ago, and during the last half century they have been very extensively and very successfully used throughout the world. They are entirely vegetable in composition and do not sicken, weaken or gripe like mineral purgatives.

PROFITS IN POTATOES

From Farm and Dairy.

At the convention of the Western Horticultural Society held at Winnipeg in February an address was given by S. R. Henderson of Kildonan, Man., on "Potato Growing." Mr. Henderson pointed out that even at the low yield of 192 bushels an acre, given as official returns for the average yield of the province, potatoes at 35 cents a bushel were a paying crop. He emphasized the necessity for the use of good seed, good cultivation and good land and estimated the profits on one acre as follows:

COST OF PRODUCTION

Seed, 20 bus. @ 50c	$10.00
Plowing	2.50
Harrowing	2.00
Cultivating	2.00
Hilling	1.00
Hoeing	4.00
Digging	5.00
Marketing	16.00
	$42.50

PROFIT

Yield, 250 bus. @ 35c	$87.50
Less cost of production	42.50

ECZEMA FOR NINE YEARS

Zam-Buk Works Another Great Cure

Another wonderful cure of the dread scourge, eczema, by the great herbal balm, Zam-Buk is reported from Montreal by Mr. Thos. Amesse of 600 St. Timothee St. He says:

"For about nine years my son, Emil was a great sufferer from eczema. The disease broke out on his face and arms, which were covered with sores. These would scale over for a time, but would then break open again and cause him terrible agony. At other times they would itch and burn, and it was impossible for him to refrain from scratching. Yet scratching or rubbing only caused him more pain afterwards.

"We tried salves and soaps and preparations of all kinds, but it seemed that we could get nothing to benefit him. This state of affairs went on during nine long years, and you can well imagine the agony he suffered!

"Zam-Buk was recommended to us, but we feared it would prove like all other remedies had proved—useless! We got a supply however, and it was not long before we found out its virtues. It eased the pain and removed the irritation. Then it began to heal the sores until bit by bit the patch got less and less. The skin which was cracked and sore became soft and smooth, and in the end every trace of the disease was banished. The skin to-day is clear and smooth and there is no trace of the sores and ulcers and cracks, which for nine years caused him such agony.

Not only for eczema, but for ulcers, blood poisoning, bad leg, varicose ulcers, itch, salt rheum, cold cracks, scalp sores, children's rashes and piles, Zam-Buk is a sure cure. Used as an embrocation it cures rheumatism and sciatica. All druggists and stores at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto for price. You are warned against substitutes and harmful imitations.

FEED FOR COWS UNDER OFFICIAL TEST

From Farm and Dairy.

I am about to do some official testing, and would be pleased if you would give me a well planned ration that would give good results. The cows are strong and in fairly good condition, some are two year olds and one are aged cows. Some of the tests are for seven days and some for one year.

I have good corn ensilage (rich in corn) red clover hay, not very good quality, bran oats and barley mixed equal and ground, potatoes, and can get oil-cake, and sugar beet meal.

What mixtures of grain would you recommend for summer feeding before corn is ready and what quantity per acre? We are in a cheese district and our cows freshen about this time of the year up to June.—M. C. C., Dundas Co., Ont.

As a ration for the 7 day test, I would suggest the following:—Corn silage, 40 lbs; potatoes, 15 to 20 lbs. fed alone; clover hay (cut) 5 lbs.; clover hay (long) 5 lbs.; meal mixture one lb. for each two and a half lbs. milk.

For the long or year test, I would suggest:—Corn silage 40 lbs. or more; potatoes 10 to 15 lbs.; straw (cut) 3 to 5 lbs.; clover hay (long) 5 lbs.; meal mixture, 1 lb. to 3 or 3½ lbs. milk.

Meal mixture:—Oats and barley, 200 lbs., bran, 300 lbs., oil-cake meal, 100 lbs., sugar beet meal, 100 lbs.

As soiling crops to grow for summer feeding I would suggest mixture, 100 lbs. oats., 40 lbs., peas, (small variety) 30 lbs. vetches an acre. Sow at intervals to extend feeding period. Sow a small area of an early variety of corn as North Dakota White Flint, or Longfellow and sow early.—J.H.G.

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. William Ball, Bracebridge, Ont. writes: "My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the coughs at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment."

The Girls' Guild of St. John's church gave a tea on Friday night last from six to eight in honour of their superintendent, Mrs. A. E. Barrett, who is about to leave Havelock for the west. The event was held at the residence of Miss Lancaster, and was attended by ten Guild girls, namely: Miss Frances, Carolina and Edith Scott, Mabel Donnelly, Roxie McElvenie, Stella Armstrong, Maud Sexsmith, Eva Bryans, Anna Bryans and Eva Lancaster, superintendent for the coming year. Mrs. Dr. Holdcroft, Mrs. (Rev.) Holdsworth, Miss Clara Dorricott, of Toronto, and the honoured guest, Mrs. A. E. Barrett. The table was very appropriately and artistically arranged for the occasion and was indeed pleasing to the eye.

After all had partaken of the dainties all gathered in the drawing room where a presentation of a beautiful silver fruit dish and a half dozen fruit knives in silver case were presented to Mrs. A. E. Barrett, accompanied by a very suitable address, expressing the regret of the Guild members on losing their kind and loving superintendent, and assuring her that she would not soon be forgotten.

Mrs. Barrett, although taken completely by surprise, replied in a few kind words, assuring them also that she would never forget the Guild members and their extreme kindness to her.

Mr. Will Christie, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. Christie, Toronto, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. McMaster over Sunday. On Saturday they visited Trent Bridge to look after some work in connection with their summer cottage.

Hal Weak Back.
Would Often Lie in Bed for Days Scarcely Able to Turn Herself.

Weak back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know of the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo. Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for kidney troubles.

They begin by helping the kidneys to flush of all the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages and carrying away the uric acid, the chief cause of rheumatism, from the blood.

Mrs. Arch. Sobnare, Black Point, N.B., writes:—"For years I was troubled with weak back. Oftentimes I have lain in bed for days, being scarcely able to turn myself, and I have also been a great sufferer while trying to perform my household duties. I had doctors attending me without avail and tried liniments and plasters, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was about to give up in despair when my husband induced me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after using two boxes I am now well and able to do my work. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all that you claim for them, and I would advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The MAGIC LEARNING of the WEST

By Foxcroft Davis

This story, which is excellent in its characterization of the Far East, is one of the series of "Tales of the "Chine Seas," written by Foxcroft Davis.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER HALKETT, commanding the United States despatch boat Vulture, was ordered from Manila to assist in the patrol of the Yellow Sea and its tributaries. The Boxers abounded and murder and arson were smoldering all over the great empire of the Mongols.

The small vessels were the useful vessels in those days, and some of the young commanders made great hits and valuable finds. Such was Halkett's ambition and that of every other commander of the light craft that went cunningly slipping in and out of the harbors and trotting up and down the rivers like so many beagles nosing after their game.

Halkett, like most navy men, knew how to think deeply and act quickly. He had a set of headlong young subalterns, including Ford, the little midshipman, and a clean shaven, handsome young surgeon just caught, Wardlaw by name, who burned to be cutting off arms and legs, and in default of this employment was studying with much success the language and literature of China.

Now, a Boxer was not necessarily a huge and ferocious ruffian. Some of them were mandarins of high degree, who practised the language of compliment and had one of the Hundred Names, which signify the Blessed of Heaven and the Pride of His Ancestors. It was one of these lesser mandarins, Wang-ting-fang, who particularly excited the suspicions of Halkett and also of Lieutenant Hyde, R. N., who commanded H. M. torpedo boat Number Two.

The Vulture, which was small even for a despatch boat, and Number Two were mates and hunted in couples, although the Vulture flew Uncle Sam's gridiron and Number Two wore the union jack. When the two vessels passed at sea the men hailed each other with opprobrious names and threw their caps aboard each others' ship. Likewise there was a solemn league and covenant between them that when they met, as they hoped, at Nagasaki they would start an international row, standing shoulder to shoulder, and clean out all the cheap drinking places they could find which harbored sailors other than American and British.

The great object of all was to find out where the arms and ammunition were stored with which the Boxers were well supplied. Where these came from remained a mystery. The British frankly accused the Germans. The Germans indignantly denied it and flatly laid it on the Portuguese. The Portuguese retaliated and named the Dutch as the culprits and the Dutch swore it was the Portuguese, and so it went on.

The friendship between Halkett and Hyde, however, did not prevent each from yearning for the whole glory of finding out what had become of the cargoes of a certain small Portuguese steamer which had made six mysterious voyages to the little native port of Kiang-Ho, on the Yellow River. Hyde, who had been poking in and ont about the coast near Kiang-Ho, had satisfied himself that the business of that vessel was the transportation of large quantities of fixed ammunition to some unknown point up the Kiang-Ho River.

More than that, he felt sure that Wang-ting-fang, who lived in the most beautiful house in all that province and was a mandarin as well as a chief magistrate of the town was the person whose money paid for ammunition as well as for its transportation. Hyde had boarded the Portuguese vessel twice, but had found each time that she had a perfectly regular set of papers, showing that she was engaged in transporting cotton goods from Chefoo to points on the Yellow River, and the most thorough search of the steamer had failed to discover a single cartridge adapted to small arms.

At Kiang-Ho.

The Kiang-Ho River was a narrow but deep stream with fewer windings and turnings than are usual in the rivers of China. There was a bar at the entrance to the harbor which was easily passed at high water, and Hyde believed that the visits of the Portuguese vessel were made at a time when the port was not under surveillance for a day or two, that she slipped over the bar at high water and ran up the river and did not come down until it was once more safe and practicable for her to get over the bar and lie at anchor, innocently discharging cotton goods and taking on tea and firecrackers.

Halkett pondered these things in his mind and determined to catch the Portuguese vessel if he could, and relied somewhat upon Wardlaw's knowledge of Chinese to find out things.

It was late on a September evening when the Vulture steamed into the little roadstead lying before the town of Kiang-Ho. Three days before torpedo boat Number Two had left, and it was not usual, in spite of the active patrol that was kept up, for another vessel of war to appear quite so soon. Therefore the Portuguese vessel which Halkett suspected was peacefully lying at anchor. There was no foreign shipping in the little harbor, although native craft and junks and sampans were numerous.

The Vulture chose a berth close to the Portuguese vessel, upon which a close watch was kept. September is a typhoon month and Halkett's glass indicated bad weather, although the moon shone brightly in the sky and the stars were stealing out into the blue dome of heaven.

Halkett was on the bridge with Ross, his executive officer, watching the uprising of great banks of dun-colored clouds on the horizon that marched like a destroying army steadily toward the zenith and engulfed the trembling moon and shuddering stars in the blackness of night. The land and the water changed quickly as if the furies of another world had suddenly descended upon them to lash and harry them. The wind rose and roared from all quarters at once and gusts of rain drenched and whipped the faces of the watchers.

The Vulture had to stand off shore. The Portuguese vessel, whose engines had only half the power of the Vulture's and of which the steam gauge was low, was driven hither and thither, her lights bobbing about in the gloom of the night and sometimes getting uncomfortably close to the Vulture. Presently those lights were seen no more, and when the night sky cleared and the morning, blushing at its own glory and beauty, appeared the Portuguese vessel was nowhere in sight. The Prince of Darkness had saved her once more.

Visits of ceremony are often paid in China at sunrise, and just as the river and squalid walled town and the suburban town of gardens and tea houses and orchards and villas were bathed in the sunrise glow Halkett, in full uniform and side arms, with little Ford as his aid, and Wardlaw, the surgeon, who looked as military as any of them, went ashore to pay a state visit to Wang-ting-fang, chief magistrate and mandarin.

The grounds and gardens of the mandarin's house extended to the water's edge, and Halkett landed at a pier with a summer house on it that might have come off of a piece of Canton china. He was met there by Wu-Shen, the eldest son and secretary of Wang-ting-fang. Wu, a high caste young Chinese, splendidly dressed and speaking perfect English, made many obeisances and compliments and said that his unworthy and unhappy father, Wang-ting-fang, would himself come to greet the honorable and high born Lieutenant Commander Halkett, but the spirit of evil had grievously afflicted Wang-ting-fang in the arms and legs and he moved with difficulty.

Wang-Ting-Fang.

Halkett answered that his companion, Wardlaw, was skilled in medicine and might be able to help Wang-ting-fang. This was joyfully received by Wu, American physicians being in great repute in China.

Arrived in the beautiful reception room of the house, the master of it and all the beauty of the place made a stately entrance. He was carried up a stair by four bearers, splendidly dressed, he himself wearing a robe of purple silk embroidered in gold. His face indicated a high degree of Chinese intelligence, but rheumatism after a man is sixty is no merry jest and will make a dent even in a Chinese—and Wang-ting-fang looked pale and sorrowful. His chair being placed on the floor, he explained, through Wu, who acted as interpreter, that owing to his rheumatism he was unable to rise to greet the noble representative of Heaven's favorite country, the United States of America.

It did not, however, suit Halkett, with all the retinue of a great Chinese magistrate assembled around him, to stand while Wang-ting-fang sat, and he advanced, therefore, made a profound bow, seized Wang-ting-fang's hand and gave it such a grip that it brought the old man to his feet nimbly enough.

Then after the exchange of compliments, Halkett, following the Chinese custom of plunging into the middle of things and speaking in a very loud voice, demanded to know where the ammunition was stored which had been landed by the Portuguese steamer.

It was a chance shot, but it hit the bull's eye. Wang-ting-fang, through Wu, as interpreter, immediately began a shrill protest that all he knew of the Portuguese vessel was that the sailors got drunk, beat the 'rickshaw men and bought things for which they afterward refused to pay. Of one thing only was he certain—no ammunition had been landed at Kiang-Ho.

So much, indeed, did Wang-ting-fang deny that Halkett felt the same suspicion of him that Othello expressed—he did protest too much. Halkett, in thundering tones that completely drowned Wang-ting-fang and Wu-Shen, demanded to know the place where the ammunition was concealed.

At the height of the three cornered colloquy, which was carried on in shouts, Wang-ting-fang played the card which every Chinese official has up his sleeve. Tea was brought in. Instantly all business subjects were dropped and the conversation immediately took the usual flattering tone. No Chinese will discuss a word of business after the tea has come, and it is butting one's head against a stone wall to try to break this rule of decorum and usage, established two thousand years ago.

Halkett, however, had a card up his sleeve also, and proffered the medical services of his surgeon. Wardlaw then got up and bowed profoundly and said in English, which was translated by Wu-Shen, that his humble services were at the command of the honorable and noble Wang-ting-fang. To this Wu-Shen added in Chinese, without taking the trouble to turn it into English:—

"The fellow looks sensible and these American physicians have the best learning of the West."

It was unnecessary to translate, however, as Wardlaw, without winking an eyelash, knew perfectly well what was being said. Wardlaw then began to make a medical examination of Wang-ting-fang, carried on in the presence of his sons, relatives and retainers. The surgeon's face grew solemn as he asked professional questions and then looked startled at Wing-ting-fang's answers. Few men can stand with calmness the unfavorable opinion of a physician, and a sickly pallor began to overspread Wang-ting-fang's intelligent face. The gloom communicated itself to his sons and servants and when Wardlaw promised to return within an hour, bringing a medicine which was the sole specific for Wang-ting-fang's ailment, he was implored to come back as quickly as possible.

"There is nothing the matter with the old fellow," he said, "a touch of rheumatism and a stitch in his side. He'll get over it with some rheumatism medicine and a suit of red flannel underwear. But before I give him either I think I can get the truth out of him about the ammunition."

Half an hour later he went ashore, taking with him a tiny bottle of medicine and a suit of red flannel underwear which was classified by the paymaster as seamen's slops. When he returned to the ship he sought his commander in the cabin.

The Red Flannel Cure.

"I gave the old fellow enough medicine to last him until to-morrow and made him put on the red flannels. This is a cold, damp place, and the old man sits around the fish ponds and duck lakes too much and wears cotton clothes. I told him I would return in two days and if in that time he was better there was a good chance for his life, provided the red flannel and medicine could be kept up."

"What did you put in the bottle?" asked Halkett.

"Oh, a good old mixture of colchicum and some other things that my grandfather, who was a country doctor, used to give. There's nothing better to-day. But I felt dirt cheap when I saw Wu and half a dozen other sons sitting around the old man with tears in their eyes. I tell you, we can learn something about fathers and mothers from the benighted heathen."

"That's true," answered Halkett, "but they can give us cards and spades in murder and arson and butchering babies. We have got to find that ammunition. I think, Wardlaw," continued Halkett, after a pause, "that meanwhile we had better stroll down the river a little way, so as to frighten the old gentleman into thinking that perhaps we are not coming back."

So next morning the Vulture, without holding any further communication with the shore, walked down the river toward the Yellow Sea a hundred miles or so.

Two days after this the Vulture returned to Kiang-Ho and the mandarin's boat, a sort of glorified sampan, with a lacquered figure head and a gilded stern, put off to her. In it were the six sons of Wang-ting-fang, with Wu at their head. Wu-Shen besought Wardlaw to come once more to their father. He had been relieved of all pain as long as the medicine lasted and he wore the suit of red flannel, but the medicine was out, and although red flannel suits of underwear were easy to find they could not be like the bewitched, if not bewitching, suit which Wardlaw had supplied to the mandarin. Wardlaw went off in the boat. This time he remained four hours, then came back jubilant.

"I got it all out of him," he said to Halkett on making his report. "There's rain coming, and his joints began to tune up and the medicine was out. I gave him an ultimatum—the hiding place of the ammunition or no more of my grandfather's medicine. At that Wu burst into tears and begged the old man in Chinese to tell. So did the other sons. Of course the cat was out of the bag then.

"The old man is a non-progressive; the sons are wavering in the balance. They argued and shouted and cried. Wu told him that there was life or death not only in the bottle, but in the suit of red flannel. He also said he had heard that the foreign devils could now telegraph without wires or poles, and could cut a man up and put him together again without pain to the patient. Well, I sat through it all without winking and when tea was brought and finished I rose with my ten cent bottle of colchicum in my hand, and said I wanted to know then and there the amount of the ammunition, so as to demand enough bullock carts to transport it. That laid them out flat. It never seemed to occur to them that I knew Chinese."

At that Halkett rose and clasped Wardlaw to his bosom.

"You ought to be in the line," he said. "You are thrown away on the staff. I hadn't thought of the bullock carts yet awhile."

"So then the old man admitted, through Wu, that if we go twelve miles up the Kiang-Ho River, on the right bank close to the water's edge, a small lookout tower about twenty English feet high stands, and walled up in that tower will be found an iron box containing specific directions as to where the ammunition may be found. I think they appreciate the danger of sending us on a wild goose chase. With old Wang it is a question whether to stand by the Boxers or with the foreign devils. But Wu, being a young man of learning and the biggest coward I ever saw in my life, inclines to us. The old man's rheumatism came in the nick of time."

"You shall go with us?" cried Hackett, in rapture.

"Oh, yes," answered Wardlaw, "I supposed of course you would take me along. When do we start?"

"To-morrow morning," said Halkett. "We might as well allow a day to get there and some hours to locate the ammunition. And when it is uncovered we can tell whether it will take fifty or a hundred bullock carts to transport it."

Off to the Tower.

Next morning a party of forty sailors headed by Halkett, with a couple of lieutenants, Berbage and Wood, and little Ford, the midshipman, and Wardlaw, the surgeon, went swinging through the town across the bridge to the right hand side of the stream. Behind them four bullock carts, with crowbars and picks, trundled. At the bridge a considerable addition to their forces unexpectedly awaited them. Wang-ting-fang, in a gorgeous palanquin, with eight bearers, and Wu-Shen, in a splendid 'rickshaw and a great retinue, were drawn up in the roadway. The old man's face was wreathed in smiles as he rubbed his knees and elbows. He asked, through Wu, the privilege of accompanying the party, and insisted on having Wardlaw in the palanquin with Wu also to translate. It was a tight fit for three, but Wardlaw, obeying a look from Halkett, accepted the offer and wedged himself in the palanquin. Then the procession set forth.

Sailors are not much good for marching, but the Vulture's men came in sight of the tower within three hours of leaving their ship. The tower was pyramidal in shape, being about twenty feet at the base and narrowing to four feet at the top, and was built of blocks of unglazed brick.

Halkett at once began an investigation of the tower inside and out, taking carefully those exquisite scientific measurements by which a navigator can pilot his ship by day or night without sun, moon or stars visible.

When the palanquin, with Wang-ting-fang, Wu-Shen and Wardlaw, closely packed in it, followed by its retinue, came within sight Halkett and his officers already knew more about the actual construction and situation of the tower than did Wang-ting-fang, who had, as a matter of fact, privately designed and paid for it.

By twelve o'clock the al fresco dinners of all had been served and the sailors went to work. Halkett had no mind to trust native workmen in finding a box so small that it might be concealed in the sleeve of a workman and passed from hand to hand until it landed at the bottom of the river. The sailors, with ropes cunningly knotted, swarmed all over the tower, and with picks and crowbars began the obvious way of finding the hidden box by taking off the tiers of bricks at the apex.

Tricked.

It was nightfall before the last few tiers of bricks were reached, and the men were tired with their marching and their work. As the day declined the air grew chill, and Wardlaw advised Wang-ting-fang to go to the nearest village and seek quarters for the night. The old man, however, seemed unwilling to tear himself away from the spot, and only by his son's entreaties and Wardlaw's threat of aching joints the next day could be induced to leave.

When supper was served to the officers and men, and all prepared to sleep rolled in their blankets, around a roaring fire, Halkett was wakeful and watched the stars coming out in the blue black sky. His mind was occupied in schemes of vengeance on Wang-ting-fang in case he had really sent them on a fool's errand.

Both Halkett and Wardlaw, sleeping fitfully, waked often during the night. Again, as on the night of their arrival at Kiang-Ho, great cold banks rose and marched once more toward the zenith like meeting armies. The moon and stars were obscured and the dawn came, wan and pale, with a soft, delicate white rainfall like a muslin veil.

It is hard to catch the Chinese napping, and when day was yet new the head of Wang-ting-fang's retinue, with his palanquin in the middle and Wu-Shen's 'rickshaw behind it, came trundling into the camp.

The old man wore the same mysterious smile and made the same cheerful prediction that the box would be found. Halkett's reply to this was a dark innuendo that if the box was not found Kiang-Ho would become very unhealthy for some persons in the neighborhood.

Early in the gray, wet morning the sailors went to work with their usual steady and well directed energy at the remaining tiers of brick, and soon the spot was level where the day before the tower had stood. The box had not been found, but the foundations six feet below the surface might possibly hide it. This theory was strongly advanced by Wang-ting-fang, and Halkett saw the necessity of getting every brick out of the structure in order to determine whether he had been trifled with, and it is a very dangerous thing to trifle with the commander of a war ship.

The sailors worked steadily digging and pounding, the officers watching everything that was brought up and occasionally taking a hand with a crowbar themselves. At last, when nearly the whole foundation had been excavated, Halkett, who was watching intently, caught a glimpse of a small black object. He sprawled down on his breast at the edge of the opening and drew up a small iron box about five inches square.

A shout went up from Wardlaw, and the sailors, who cheer loudly in a foreign country upon very slight provocation, threw down their picks and cheered as if every man had found a Kohinoor.

Halkett borrowed a knife from a sailor, worked out the four screws that held the top of the box, took from it a large square thin sheet of paper with Chinese writing on it. He had walked up close to the palanquin, and Wang-ting-fang was watching him with half closed, dancing eyes. So was Wu-Shen grinning broadly. The officers and sailors gathered around and Wu-Shen's hand was extended for the paper. Halkett, however, coolly handed it to Wardlaw, who read it off without difficulty, translating as he went, the following:—

"On the seventeenth of Septem...

Wardlaw looked up from the p... in surprise and glanced at Halkett. That day w... the seventeenth of September.

Wardlaw continued, "At eleven ...lock"—— Another shock of surprise went around ...ong the American officers. It was then a quarter ...eleven.

Wang-ting-fang looked at Halkett with a strange expression of admiration, fear and amazement. Here, indeed, was the magic learning of the foreign devils. Wang-ting-fang began some incoherent explanation. He had not meant to deceive, he did not know that it would be necessary to take down the tower, &c.

Halkett, for the benefit of Wu and the Chinese retinue, began to bawl at Wang-ting-fang.

"Go home and send me sixty bullock carts—sixty bullock carts, do you hear? Drawn by bullocks, not by weaning calves. And every bullock cart must have two helpers as well as a driver, and the helpers and drivers will walk the distance, so the bullocks will be fresh and able to trot with the ammunition boxes down to Kiang-Ho. Listen to me, and beare of the vengeance of my sword if my orders are not strictly obeyed!"

Wang-ting-fang accepted this meekly. Wu-Shen had begun to cry and wipe his eye with the sleeve of his embroidered robe.

"We will send the bullock carts," whimpered; "we will send a hundred bullock carts; your honorable self wishes it, only"—turning to Wardlaw—"do not call back the evil spirits into my father's bones. Only give him the healing stuff in the bottle and do as your honorable self would wish to do with me. Only spare my honorable and venerable father."

This was one of the moments when Wardlaw said, he felt dirt cheap in the presence of a heathen. Here was Wu-Shen, a polished coward, a armed poltroon, fearful of everything, but ready with an intense parental love and undying respect for his ancestors to suffer the worst that might befall him. Halkett and Wardlaw exchanged significant and unmeaning glances, and Wardlaw said in Chinese:—

"When His Honorable Excellency Lieutenant Commander Halkett finds the ammunition, he will I give you the bottle of medicine and also a wing, so that you can send to Chefoo to the English apothecary and get the same medicine yourself."

"But will it cost a great sum of money?" said the old man, as Wu translated this.

Wardlaw named a sum which was equivalent to forty cents. Then Wu-Shen dried his eyes and kneeled and kissed the bottom of Wardlaw's trousers.

Wu-Shen's tears and wiping of his eyes and prostrations on the ground melted Halkett's heart as it did Wardlaw's.

"Go," he said. "We will do nothing that a fiend will not do, provided the ammunition be found."

Then Berbage and Wood and little Ford, who had been measuring, brought their heads together at a point about ten yards away, and Berbage turned to Halkett and cried out:—

"We have located the point of departure, sir."

* * * * * * *

Halkett, not noticing whether it was sunrise or rainstorm, bade the men take their picks and blister. Seizing one began digging furiously. All the officers seeing this followed his example. Every man want... to be the first to strike the tin boxes. They dug steadily for half an hour, then a sailor smiling silently handed his pick to Halkett.

"There they are, sir," he said. "Another stroke and it will hit the top."

Halkett made that stroke and it rattled upon the... The all fell to work like mad, and in a few minutes ... big tin box was lifted out and there were tiers and tiers of other tin boxes all around it.

It requires hard work to dig and lift ammunition ... boxes and Halkett concluded that a couple of hundred coolies would do the job in an hour. Wardlaw therefore, with two sailors, went off in the fields where the coolies were laboring and shouted out that a wage equivalent to ten cents would be paid for two hundred men who would be ready the next morning to lift out the ammunition boxes and load them upon the bullock cart.

This bought four hundred in an almost inconceivably short time and from them Halkett selected two hundred of the able bodied. Not a man looked surprised; every one of them knew what was buried on that piece of ground, but they expected a different crop to spring from such a seedling.

That night Halkett and Wardlaw slept the night through without once waking.

The next morning by sunrise the tin boxes were out and lying on the level and the coolies squatted around waiting for the arrival of the bullock carts. A runner had been sent out and brought back the information that the bullocks were trotting on their way. A little after sunrise a long string of carts arrived and the loading began. Halkett distributed the equivalent of twenty American dollars in small Chinese coins to the laborers and the procession started on its return to Kiang-Ho.

It was barely twelve o'clock when the long line of bullock carts drew up on the shore and the ammunition boxes were transferred to a string of native junks which the Vulture launch towed alongside the ship.

As the sun was sinking and a great vivid moon was hung in the heavens the Vulture lifted her anchor, her engines began pulsing and she turned her nose toward the open sea. By way of a parting salutation she swept with her earthly glaring searchlight the river, the harbor, the town of Kiang-Ho, and especially the beautiful house at gardens of Wang-ting-fang.

In the state apartment of that house, lighted with two candles, sat in his great carved chair inlaid with gold and ivory Wang-ting-fang, and the old man wept and moaned, while Wu-Shen tried to comfort him.

And the commander of His Majesty's torpedo boat Number Two telegraphed back to the commander of the United States despatch boat Vulture:—

"You be damned."

THE ECG EATING HABIT

From Farm and Dairy.

C. G. Golding, Assa. East, Sask.

The oft-repeated cry, "Why do our hens eat their eggs?" is common at this time of year. Replies are given by eminent experts generally advising more activity for the hens, variety of rations, oyster shell and grit, dark nests, etc. All these things, of course, are essentials and if never lacking, the habit is seldom, if ever, required. Still, why do hens eat eggs? Let us see.

It will be noted that the habit is seldom prevalent among a flock of hens on free range during the summer, and this fact may lead to the theory that close quarters and idleness may be the cause. And indeed it is, in a sense; it is a contributing cause. But a few hens kept in a large stock will learn the habit and, getting only what feed they can dig out of the litter and manure, can hardly be called closely confined or idle, and yet it is well known that such hens are amongst the worst offenders. They may be overfat then. This is true, but overfat hens do not lay at all.

SUMMER CONDITIONS.

Let us next examine the eggshell. During the summer when the hens are on free range, the shell is quite hard and a person feels that he may handle that egg without fear of putting his finger through. But how easy one crushes the shell in the winter! Eggs are even laid without any shell.

The material that makes the shell so hard is lime. It is also one of the hardest materials to feed a hen in sufficient quantity when once she becomes short of it. She won't drink water containing lime, if you scatter it on the floor in the hope that she will pick it up; you will still get soft eggs, if you get any.

POSITIVE REMEDY.

There is one method, however, which we discovered some years ago and have never known it to fail. Feed it in boiled grain. Just about a tablespoonful to a pail of grain, boiled with the grain, and fed with it, and in one or two weeks you will get eggs with hard shells on and little specks of lime all over the shell and never an egg will be eaten unless some hardened sinner still persists, in which case boil the sinner.

An ounce of prevention is most surely better than a pound of cure, and if you keep your birds active, feed roots, animal food and a little grain and keep a hopper of oyster shells and grit always handy, there will be very little trouble with hens eating eggs. If the shells should get a little thin, a boiled feed with lime once a week is the remedy.

FERTILIZERS FOR STRAWBERRIES

From Farm and Dairy.

W. T. Macoun, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa

The best fertilizer for strawberries is well-rotted barnyard manure, which should be used in large quantities. There need be little fear of using too much—30 tons of well-rotted manure per acre being a fair application. It may be applied early in the spring before planting and thoroughly incorporated with the soil or it may be used for a previous cultivated crop so as to get the soil clean and in the best condition for the strawberry plants. Fresh manure is not as satisfactory as rotted, for it may make the soil too loose, causing it to dry out quicker and make the conditions bad for newly-set plants. On heavy soils, fresh manure may be used with better results than on lighter soils, but as there are likely to be many weeds grow if green manure is used, rotted manure is preferable even on heavier soils. If fresh manure is used it will be better mixed with the soil by planting time, if it is applied in the previous autumn.

Wood ashes are very useful for a top-dressing and from 50 to 100 bushels per acre may be applied broadcasted early in the spring when the land is being harrowed, the larger quantity being used for land which is poor in potash. An application of even twenty-five bushels per acre should give beneficial results.

If barnyard manure cannot be obtained easily, nitrogen and humus may be added to the soil by ploughing under clover, peas or some other leguminous crop; potash, by using from 200 to 300 pounds per acre of muriate of potash, if wood ashes cannot be obtained; phosphoric acid, by the use of ground bone, at the rate of from 200 to 300 pounds per acre before planting. Nitrate of soda is also useful for furnishing nitrogen unless it can be obtained in a cheaper form, by the use of barnyard manure or leguminous crops. An application of 100 to 150 pounds of nitrate of soda broadcasted just before the flowers open in the spring, is sometimes desirable if the plants are not making vigorous growth.—Extract from Bulletin No. 62.

Constipation.

No one need expect to be healthy if the bowels are allowed to become clogged up. A free motion of the bowels daily should be the rule with everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Costiveness or constipation clogs the bowels, chokes up the natural outlet of impure matter, and retains in the system the poisonous effete waste products of nature, causing bad blood, dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, foul humors, pimples, boils, blotches, piles, etc. Burdock Blood Bitters has built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for constipation and all the diseases which arise from it.

Constipation Cured.

Mr. Burns Woodcock, Nashwaak Bridge, N.B., writes: "For over two years my wife was troubled with constipation. "She tried several physicians, but could get no relief, but after taking three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters she was completely cured and is to-day in good health. My wife and I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters."

Toronto, April 15.—Toronto is to have two physicians, one a lady doctor, and three nurses to inaugurate medical inspection in the public schools. This move was decided at the meeting of the management committee of the Board of Education yesterday, after a great deal of discussion.

Philadelphia Strike Over.

Philadelphia, April 15.—The strike of the employes of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., which began Feb. 19, was settled last night.

The terms of the settlement have not yet been made public, but it is said they include many of the features of the proposal made through Mayor Reyburn on March 20, when the company agreed to take back all the strikers and to guarantee them $2 a day until regular runs could be secured for them. The cases of the 174 men whose discharge precipitated the strike on Feb. 19, will be submitted to arbitration.

Compromise Is Made.

Ottawa, April 15.—After a conference last night between supporters of the Miller anti-racetrack gambling bill, and representatives of the horse racing associations, a compromise was effected, and it is exceedingly probable that the bill, as proposed to be amended, will go through this session.

The chief terms of the proposed legislation are that race meetings of seven days' duration will be allowed twice each year, and bookmakers will be allowed to attend during the time the meetings are in progress.

The negative provisions of the bill are that no new race tracks will be permitted, no hand book men will be allowed to operate, and there must be no tipsters, no poolrooms, no newspaper advertisements of tips, and no transmission of news for handbook purposes by wire.

Except arrangements regarding the length of meetings, and the presence of bookmakers, the bill will be identical with the Miller bill.

Quakes In Costa Rica.

San Jose, April 15.—A series of earthquakes, varying in intensity, has swept over Costa Rica during the past 24 hours, doing vast damage, the extent of which can only now be estimated at more than $1,000,000.

So far, there has been no report of loss of life, but the people in the cities are panic-stricken, and are abandoning their homes for the hillsides.

In all there have been more than thirty shocks, ten of these occurring between 12 o'clock Wednesday night and three o'clock yesterday morning. Property in San Jose to the value of several hundred thousand dollars has been destroyed, but it is feared that it will total far more than this, as the vibrations of the earth have not yet ceased.

Yesterday the Government ordered a suspension of general business until such time as safety is assured. The banks and public institutions have been closed, and trade and commerce are at a standstill.

The first shocks Wednesday evening were of slight intensity and caused little alarm, but later they became much more violent and even the staunchest buildings were shaken to their very foundations.

In several instances weaker buildings were partially wrecked and many persons were slightly injured.

Communication between the various towns has been interrupted, and details of the damage done at these places are lacking.

CONTRACT WAS LET

Hamilton Bridge Company Will Construct the New Little Bob Bridge to be Built at Bobcaygeon—Begin Work at Once.

REPRESENTATIVES MET

Lindsay, April 14.—A joint meeting of representatives from Victoria and Peterborough county councils was held this morning for the purpose of awarding the contract for the erection of the Little Bob bridge at Bobcaygeon. The Hamilton Bridge Manufacturing Co. secured the contract, and it is expected the structure will be undertaken at once.

Those present were Warden Tiers, of Dunsford, Reeve Byng, of Bobcaygeon and Reeve Corneill of Emily, representing Victoria county, and Warden F. Moher, Reeve C. J. Darling, of Dummer, Reeve C. Coben, Galway representing Peterborough county.

The new level bridge will be constructed across the Little Bob just out of Bobcaygeon in the township of Verulam. It will be remembered this is a boundary bridge in law, if not in fact, a legislative enactment having so settled a long-standing source of trouble between the two counties in the proportion of three quarters and one quarter respectively. The bridge, having become dilapitated ,it is found necessary to build a new structure, and it is proposed to build a level bridge, reducing it to two spans, and further filling in the approaches at either ends.

The government was asked to contribute a portion of the cost on the grounds that the raising of the waters for canal navigation purposes, has increased the length and deepened the necessary fill and consequently increased the cost of the structure.

BETTER SERVICE

Highly Satisfactory Results From Meeting in Fenelon Falls.

Fenelon Falls, April 14.—On Wednesday, April 13, a deputation of leading citizens, comprising the members of the council, the Board of Trade, Dr. Mason, M.P.P., Mr. J. R. Hand and others interviewed the railway commission represented by Mr. Nixon, Mr. Tiffin, of the G. T. R., and other gentlemen, who arrived in a special car. The result of the interview was highly satisfactory, the request for several much-needed improvements required in the railway service being acceded to, which long hoped for improvements may be considered as already in sight.

BROUGHT RESULTS

Two Watches Recovered by Examiner Lost Ads.

It has time after time been proven that it pays to advertise in the Examiner. Another evidence of this was the recovery of two gold watches that had been lost. One insertion of an advertisement for each one was sufficient to bring them back to their respective owners. Also this week, a man advertised a Jersey cow for sale, and as a result several buyers were at the place on the following day. It turned out that he sold two cows instead of one.

The public hereby are informed not to give Charlie Leahy of Auburn, anything on his father's or mother's name, ither borrowing or otherwise. 2d85

TWENTY MEN BURIED UNDER PILE OF ROCK

Men Working Battery Did Not Give Them Time to Get Away ---Shocking Accident on Ha Ha Bay Railway Near St. Alphonse, Quebec.

Special to The Examiner:

Quebec, April 14.—News was received this evening from St. Alphonse, Saguenay county, of a horrible accident which occurred this afternoon about 5 o'clock on the line of the Ha Ha Bay Railway, about three miles from St. Alphonse. It appears that while blasting in an earth dump, the man working the battery did not give hte workmen sufficient time to get out of the way. The mine exploded with terrific force, burying some twenty men under a huge piles ow earth and rocks.

Up to a late hour to-night ten men have been taken out, two of them dead, and three seriously injured. The work of rescue is being pushed with much vigor.

The chief engineer, Mr. Ladistis Gagne, had just arrived on the spot when the explosion occurred, and he is buried in the debris.

It is impossible to get the names of the men killed and injured or those buried at the present writing, but it is said that there were only nine French-Canadians working in the gang at the time of the explosion, the remainder of the men being foreigners.

SPLENDID TRIBUTE TO NEW Y.M.C.A. SECRETARY FROM QUEBEC MINISTERS

The "Quebec Chronicle" in a recent issue makes reference to the following resolution of the Ministerial Association of Quebec City, which was carried unanimously at a largely attended session of that body by members and others.

"Resolved, that the members of the Quebec Ministerial Association place on record their appreciation of life and work of Mr. H. M. Gilchrist during his three years' residence in Quebec City as secretary of the Y.M.C.A. As a member of the Association Mr. Gilchrist has given a number of valuable papers which were practical and helpful. He has faithfully assumed all the duties which were apportioned to him, giving able service by song and speech at special meetings and public gatherings, and willingly doing anything to aid the ministers of the different churches. In his own work, as secretary of the Y.M.C.A. he has laboured with untiring zeal, and with sincere Christian devotion to bring the men and boys to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ, and to enlist them to yield a life service to the Kingdom. In his bible classes among men and boys, and his lectures on "Teaching" to the Sunday school teachers, Mr. Gilchrist has sown much good seed, which in due time will yield a rich harvest. The members of the Association regret the loss of Mr. Gilchrist to our city, but humbly pray that in his new field of labour he shall be sustained and owned of God with much work."

Mr. Gilchrist has been appointed general secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., and will arrive from Quebec to take charge on or before the first of May.

Lawyer's Efforts To Collect Large Sum For Counsel Fees Failed

New York, April 13.—Clifford W. Hartridge, one of the attorneys who defended Harry Thaw in his first trial for the murder of Stanford White, failed to-day in his effort to collect from Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, the prisoner's mother, a balance of $92,000 for counsel fees and disbursements, which he claimed to be due him.

More than that Judge Holt, of the United States Circuit Court, in denying a motion to set aside the sealed verdict of the jury which had heard Hartridge's suit against Mrs. Thaw, made the sensational statement that an inquiry was called for regarding the professional conduct of Hartridge and to determine whether ground existed for a perjury prosecution.

Hartridge had already been paid $32,000. His suit for $92,000 and interest, which, he claimed to be due as a balance, has been on trial for several days.

The verdict was in favour of the defendant, Mrs. Thaw.

Counsel for Hartridge immediately moved to set it aside. The court denied the motion.

Judge Holt ordered the papers in the case left with the court and that the district attorney be notified. The bar association will also be notified. During the trial, Mrs. Thaw and Harry Thaw testified. Hartridge recounted numerous payments he claimed to have made to women of the tenderloin and others in smoothing out certain stories concerning Thaw.

Judge Holt declared that if Hartridge had paid money to women who might have been witnesses at the Thaw trial it was a case for the Grand Jury.

Lakefield Old Boys Talking Of Holding A Re-union This Summer

(Lakefield News.)

It has been suggested that an attempt be made to have a gathering of Lakefield Old Boys. The idea is a thoughtful one for there are hundreds who have left Lakefield and vicinity that would visit the scenes of their boyhood days; and, as it were, renew their life by reviewing the past with their schoolmates and other friends. It is a pleasure that one cannot express to go over the ground that one has trod as barefoot boy or girl. To mark the changes here and there and now and again, to note the same old stone, tree or building, creates in one a feeling of kindness and fellowship. If all would become interested a successful gathering could be arranged. It would require a resourceful secretary, one willing to use every endeavour to interest those at home and abroad.

17 Year Old Boy Shoots Himself In Head

Toronto, April 15.—Unable to stand the jokes of his shopmates Fred Jewell, 17 years old, of 157 Berkerley St., shot himself in the temple with a revolver in the barn yard, near Newmarket, last night, and is not likely to recover. The young man learned the baking trade with Thos. Chisholm, on Queen street. He was a boy of good health, but not very bright.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Evelyn Foy, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foy, who departed this life April 14, 1909:

This lovely blossom, so young and so fair,
Called home by early doom;
Just came to show how sweet a flower
In Paradise could bloom.
Ere sin could harm, or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care,
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
And bade it blossom there.

ON WAY TO ENGLAND

Eddie Cotter, Marathon Runner, in Company With Dick Baker, Formerly of Peterboro, Passed Through the City This Morning.

IS IN FINE SHAPE

"Cotter is in great shape and I hope will carry it off," remarked Trainer Dick Baker to the Examiner this morning discussing the chances of the Toronto long distance man in the English Marathon to be held in London under te auspices of te Polytechnic Harriers on May 21st. Baker and his charge, Cotter, with Murphy, of Hamilton, who is going over with them, passed through Peterborough this morning on their way to Montreal, from which port they will sail for England to-morrow morning.

An Examiner representative was at the station when the 11.28 C. P. R. train pulled in and had a five minutes 'chat with Cotter and his trainer. Cotter who is the boy who won the Brantford to Hamilton Marathon last May 24th and as a result is being sent to England ata the expense of the Hamilton Spectator ,is a clean cut, likely looking little fellow. He is very reticent about talking about himself and only smiled and murmured "I hope so," when the newspaperman expressed the hope that he would win the big Marathon and bring fresh fame to the land of the maple leaf.

"We will ave a month in England for Ed. to get acclimatized, and he should be in grand shape by that time," was all that Baker would say.

WALTZED FIVE MILES

Marathon Dancing Contest Held in Brooklyn.

New York, April 13.—The band in a Brooklyn dance hall struck up a speedy tune at an early hour to-day and seventeen couples started in a mad waltz, which it was announced, was for the Marathon dancing championship of the world. Time-keepers, scorers and seconds were stationed along the road.

Joseph Morrissey and Alice Dunn took the lead at the start. Some of the dancers went down at the corners early in the contest. In 15 minutes the seconds began to revive the weary dancers by throwing sponges soaked in water. In half an hour most of the dancers had quit the floor, bedraggled, wet and very tired.

The last five minutes of the hour's race was very close, but Morrissey and Miss Dunn passed under the wire half a lap ahead. They had covered five miles in the hour.

ANTI-GAMBLING LEGISLATION.

Mr. H. H. Miller's anti-gambling bill which was thought to have received its quietus, being practically beaten by a nose in the House a few nights ago, will come to the surface again in a modified form. It is stated at Ottawa that a compromise has been aimed at, with the certainty that a bill will be passed at the present session which will go far to meet the views of those who have been demanding legislation that will lead to a diminution of the evils incident to race track gambling. It is understood that the substitute bill will provide for limiting the duration of race meetings on incorporated tracks to seven days, twice a year, will make legislative provisions more stringent against hand book men and tipsters, will make illegal the publication of tipsters' advertisements in the press provide for regulating the transmission of news of racing events from one track to another, prevent the establishment of new race tracks except within three miles of a Canadian city of 15,000 inhabitants, and contain provisions aimed at generally restricting the evils associated with gambling. In fact the new bill will be the Miller bill over again excepting the section regarding book-making and by the new bill handbook making will be restricted to seven days each meet on incorporated tracks. It is said that the compromise is acceptable to both parties to the controversy that has occupied the attention of our lawmakers for the past five months, both having accepted the principle of the compromise bill. The arrangement has no doubt been assisted by the fact that the course of the attempted legislation through parliament has developed an overwhelming public sentiment, in favour of dealing with the universally admitted evils of race track gambling in a way to substantially limit if not entirely remove them.

LESS DRINK CONSUMPTION.

There is evidence that the consumption of beer and strong drink in Great Britain is on the wane, and that this is due to the Lloyd-George budget, which imposes a greatly increased tax upon beer and spirits. Through this budget the retail price of the strong drink consumed in the United Kingdom was increased $22,500,000, and the increase in the price of beer was $3,750,000, making a total of $26,250,000. This increase, however, is a matter of price, not of quantity; for, while the price of the drink consumed amounted to $26,250,000, the quantity decreased by seven million gallons of spirits, and 645,396 barrels of beer. Therefore, since the people of Great Britain did not drink as much in 1909 as in 1908, they are actually money in pocket. The drink bill in 1908 was $805,000,000, while in 1909, it was $775,000,000, a decrease of nearly $30,000,000. If there had been no increase in price the acutal reduction would have been more than $55,000,000. Even $775,000,000 a year seems an awful sum to drown in drink, but the London Times points out that such an expenditure is quite "compatible with the complete sobriety of every single person in the community, who consumes alcohol at all. It is estimated that 55 per cent. of the total population of the United Kingdom drink liquor, spending therefor about $31 per year, or 9 cents per day. Now, a man at all seasoned to drink or even unseasoned, could not achieve a very elaborate state of intoxication or be wildly intemperate on nine cents per day. The British reputation for drunkenness must be contributed by those who drink to excess. It is interesting to be informed that the national temperance habits of the people of the British Isles are growing: and though improvement is slow, as must necessarily be the case where the drink habit is so strongly entrenched, there is encouragement for those thousands who are working so earnestly for British temperance reform. If there should continue a reduction of the national drink bill, like that of last year—$30,000,000—in, between twenty-five and thirty years it would be wiped out entirely, which, unfortunately, is too much to expect.

PULPWOOD POLICY OF QUEBEC.

Sir Lomer Gouin, premier of Quebec, has at last put into effect his long-contemplated pulp wood policy, involving the prohibition of the export of pulpwood in an unmanufactured condition, an increase of 60 per cent. in the stumpage dues, and an increase in ground rent of from $3.00 to $5.00 per acre. Quebec has taken a good and a patriotic course in imitation of that adopted by the Liberal Government of Ontario years ago, and, in this respect, it has, no doubt, arrived at benefitting itself by encouraging the home manufacture of the great timber staple of Quebec, and Ontario also, and thereby giving employment to home labour, and encouraging capital expended at home. Quebec and Ontario have a practical monopoly of the pulpwood stand on this continent, and in justice to themselves and their people should have the full benefits that will accrue from its manufacture to its ultimate condition, in the form of either pulp or paper. To this end the simpler policy of Ontario, the prohibition of the export of raw pulp wood, is better calculated, than the Quebec policy. In the first place the present Ontario situation has been accepted by the United States, which is inevitably our largest customer for pulpwood products; but the pulp and paper products of Quebec will be penalized by the Payne-Aldrich tariff, which provides for increasing the United States duties on pulp and paper. This would not be so serious, if the other items of Premier Gouin's pulp wood policy did not complicate the matter. Referring to the conditions beyond the embargo the Mail and Empire says:

> Thus the changes will affect not merely the interests concerned in the trade of exporting pulp wood from the Crown lands, but all license holders whose Quebec limits there is pulp wood timber. Mr Gouin need not, of course, be told that the United States will increase its duties on pulp and paper coming from Quebec. Its new tariff provides for such countervailing duties. He, no doubt, takes the view that his province can better afford to incur these additional imposts than it can to let the raw pulpwood be taken from its Crown lands to feed mills in the United States. Quite evidently his aims are to conserve the pulpwood resources of the province, to build up the province's pulp and paper industries, and to increase the revenue from the Crown lands. He will probably find that to grasp the last-named object he has reached too far. By increasing the stumpage dues and the ground rent he has added heavily to the cost of production, and he may discover that this effect goes far to neutralize the tendency of the embargo—to draw pulp and paper manufacturers from the United States to Quebec.
>
> The legitimate effect of the embargo on the export of raw pulp wood, would be to compel the erection of mills in Quebec by United States paper makers, to manufacture paper in Canada for the United States market, which is dependent upon this country for a constant supply of paper, or material for paper. But if manufacturers should be deterred by the onerous conditions involved in the increase of stumpage dues and ground rents, plus the inevitable increase of the United States tariff, from the establishment of manufactories, the advantages which would have resulted by the simple embargo are susceptible of no inconsiderable diminution.
>
> However, the chief object of Premier Gouin's policy, the conservation and protection from wasteful exploitation of Quebec's pulp wood resources will be gained. Though it is said that such a proceeding will prejudice the negotiations for reciprocal trade with the United States, "so much the worse for reciprocity," as the Mail once said in answer to the claim that the "national policy" would imperil British connection. The taking of measures by Quebec—and Ontario—to conserve our pulp wool resources is the natural exercise of a legitimate right, and which in the abstract, is no concern of anybody else, and will not be resented by the United States any further than by the imposition of the increase of tariff against Quebec pulp and paper, thus leaving reciprocity to stand or fall on its merits.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Lloyd George, chancellor of the Exchequer, may pull off his budget after all. It is stated that the Irish party will give it their support.

Public opinion will for once be in sympathy with the Thaw family, which is contesting a claim for $93,000 for counsel's services. The family very properly insists that this is too much for saving Mr. H. K. Thaw from condemnation for murder. And the family is right.

The Toronto News of Wednesday makes an elaborate front-page "splash" in which it announces that Premier Gouin, of Quebec, in placing an embargo on the export of raw pulp wood, is following the policy adopted by Sir James Whitney. This is entirely apart from the fact. The embargo was placed by a Liberal Government of Ontario on pulp wood years ago, as was the embargo on saw-log exportation years ago. One would imagine that Sir James' admirers would be satisfied with placing on his modest brow the Hydro-Electric halo, or accepting for him the revision of Oom Paul Kruger's autocratic prerogatives, without claiming for him credit for an act of statesmanship with which he had nothing to do.

'ROUND THE STORES

That Peterborough business and professional men appreciate the value of the automobile from an economic standpoint is evidenced by the fact that so many handsome cars now appear on our streets. The saving of time in these days of hustle and bustle for business is an important feature and when you take into consideration the distances travelled with the conveniences added, this mode of travel is cheaper than by any other means. Of the cars prominent in Peterborough the Ford and the Russell appear to be the favourites. The popularity of their representatives, Messrs. Drummond and Duffus may have considerable to do with the placing of so many here but these cars commend themselves to probable purchasers so much so that they practically sell on sight.

The fine spring we are enjoying has created a demand for spring clothing that is almost unprecedented. The manager of the Knickerbocker Company at 422 George St., stated a few few days ago that Peterborough was never as prosperous as it is to-day, and he made this assertion, knowing credit conditions in Peterborough pretty thoroughly during the past four years. This season he has increased his business so decidedly and found purchasers demanding a much higher standard of goods, that he could without effort, make the above statement. This week the Company has a special line of both ladies' and gentlemen's spring suits which is attracting attention of shoppers.

Although some consider it too early for the annual spring house cleaning, yet so many have taken advantage of the good spell of weather, as well as of the special wall paper offerings at Routley's as to make this store a busy one the past four weeks. The sale now on of wall papers, window shades and curtain poles is giving the public an opportunity of procuring these lines at after season prices, with the additional advantage of having the widest selection to pick from.

In running over a list of specials for Saturday a very noticeable sale of ladies' spring coats is being held by Harry Adams to-day and to-morrow. Spring coats in value as high as $7.50 are to be had at this sale for only $4.98.

The disastrous fire that took place in the Canadian warehouse of the Ferry Seed Co., at Windsor a short time ago, it might have been expected would result in the serious demoralization of their Canadian business, but such is not the case and the man with the garden can procure his favourite seeds, found to be so valuable without even a hint that anything had transpired that might have made it impossible to use Ferry's seeds as usual. The Examiner is indebted to this firm for their annual parcel in liberal quantities of their seeds and if the usual results are obtained excellent returns in all lines will be realized.

The Roy Studio has secured a photographic gem in the portrait recently taken of Sheriff Hall. The accuracy and clearness of every detail enhances the life-like expression of the picture. No better results could be wished for, either in pose or finish.

"Starve your troubles to death by neglecting them" may be good enough advice to the fellow who hasn't to get up at five o'clock in the morning and beat carpets for his wife. Of course, the only way to avoid a spring trouble like this is to interview The Collier Co., regarding their vacuum cleaners—the new and tried device for "merging" the dust in carpets and other household chattels.

The Australian Elections.

Melbourne, Australia, April 15.—Ex-Premier Deakins' own majority was reduced from 6,000 to 360 in Wednesday's labor triumph, which has produced a profound sensation. While apparently there was no great difference between the programs of the parties, there was a big divergence in principle. Laborites are strong for concentration of power in the Federal Government, while the Fusionists desired to strengthen the authority of the states. A graduated land tax and industrial legislation on advanced lines is inevitable. The first session of the Parliament with "new protection" as the policy, giving the benefits of the tariff to those manufacturers only who pay higher wages, will be watched with interest.

A Queer Kidnapping Case.

Ottawa, April 15.—R. Paquette of Hull was arrested on a warrant sworn out by "Dr." Pelletier, charging him with kidnapping his two children, Lily and Irene, aged four and seven years respectively, from his home in Ottawa, whilst he was away on a visit. Pelletier alleges that the accused, together with a woman named Flynn, in April, 1909, entered his house during his absence, and took the two children, together with some of his furniture, and removed to Hull, hiding the children in the garret of the house. When he obtained a search warrant, he alleges, the couple left for the Soo, where he lost all trace of them.

I have a few lots unsold which you can buy this month, $20 under present value. Also a house with garden at low price and on special terms. It will pay you well to come and see me at once.

Boston Marathon Honour Roll Adorned With Four Thousand Names

Four illustrious names from a Canadian athletic viewpoint adorn the honour roll of the Boston Marathon and if quality counts a fifth will be marked on the slate next Tuesday. Caffrey of Hamilton has twice carried of the famous race, while Sherring and Tom Longboat have each one victory to their credit, the Indian having the added distinction of making a record for the fixture of 2.24.50. Nine runners from this part of the country will compete in the 25 mile journey, Toronto supplying six of the lot. The entrants are:

J. Corkery and G. Begley, I.A.A.C.
Jack Roe, West End.
Jack Near, Centrals
B. Buxton and R. McCormick, Tecumseh A. C.
Jimmy George, Beaverton.
R. Cook, Hamilton.

Every man Jack of them has achieved fame above the ordinary at long-distance running, and on form all have a chance to win the big race.

Great faith is placed in Jim Corkery of the I.C.A.C. who has all the qualities of a good Marathoner. He stands 5 feet 10 inches, weighs 145 and is only 20 years old. He has shown that he is game, and though he has never won any races over ten miles, is credited with wonderful trials over the Ward Marathon course, his best being 1.51. He first made his mark in the Burlington ten-mile championship when he beat all the best men hereabouts. That it was no fluke he demonstrated later by repeating the trick at St. Catharines. If Corkery can carry his speed to the finish he will be the one to beat. He will have the increased advantage over the other Canadian competitors by having a week's full preparation over the ground before they arrive there. He will be looked after by the veteran Claude Pierce.

Tom Flanagan considers that Jimmy George, the Indian, has a superlative chance, but his opinion is not shared by "Billy" Cummings. George ran a fine race when he captured the Hamilton Herald classic, in 151:25 over poor roads but otherwise has done nothing of much note. Longboat in his palmy days went over the same course in 1.49.27. Jack Near, who won the Ward Marathon last year in 1.59.12, nearly eight minutes slower than Longboat's time in the same race should be well in the neighbourhood at the finish. He has youth on his side and likes a long route. Jack Roe has been going great guns of late, and the Torontonians have a wholesome respect of his ability. He ran second to Near in the Ward event. Roe is somewhat of an in-and-outer, but when right can make them all hustle.

Dan Sheridan, the Irishman, cannot be overlooked, although he has never done much around here to entitle him to respect. He has essayed short distances with poor results, and this spring has been going the route in good style. His remarkable race in the Yonkers Marathon last year, when he started in the event an hour after he arrived after travelling all night in a day car gives him a claim for distinction. Out of a field of 125 he finished second, and at twelve miles was leading by four minutes. He weakened in the last four miles and in the race track and was beaten out. McCormick, the winner of the Boston Marathon and runner-up to George in the Hamilton race, has got the real Marathon stride and in action resembles St. Yves greatly. He is a classy performer, and it would not be surprising if he finished well up in the list.

George Begley's chief claim to fame is his record-breaking trip from Hamilton to Toronto. He is a sturdy runner and is sure to finish barring accidents. Cook of Hamilton, has shown fair form in general Marathons and ran second to Cotter last spring in the Brantford-to-Hamilton race.

The capabilities of B. Buxton of the Tecumsehs are little known. He has won at distances under ten miles and has finished second twice in fifteen mile races. Buxton is employed at the King Edward Hotel and has little chance to train.

DOINGS IN BIG LEAGUES

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Cincinnati, April 14.—Cincinnati defeated Chicago 1 to 0 in the opening game of the season to-day. Only two players reached third base for each team. Mitchell came home with the only run in the tenth on Downey's single. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	0	4	2
Cincinnati	1	5	1

Batteries—Overall and Archer, Beebe and Clark. Umpires—O'Day and Brennan.

St. Louis, April 14.—Pittsburg's world's champions defeated St. Louis to-day by 5 to 1 in the first game of the season. Hans Wagner made a three-base hit in the third inning, bringing in the first two runs for his team. Because of the crowd, ground rules prevailed. Umpire Johnstone ejected newspaper photographeers from the field. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Pittsburg	5	7	1
St. Louis	1	8	5

Batteries — Camnitz and Gibson; Willis and Bresnahan. Umpires—Johnstone and Moran.

Philadelphia, April 14. — Brooklyn won the opening game of the National League season to-day 2 to 0. The contest was a pitchers' duel between Rucker and McQuillan. The latter kept Brooklyn's hits scattered, except in the third inning, when Bergen scored on his triple and Burch's single, and in the ninth inning when Wheat scored on doubles by himself and Lennox. Score:

Brooklyn	2	7	1
Philadelphia	0	2	0

Batteries—Rucker and Bergen; McQuillan and Jacklitsche. Umpires—Rigler and Emslie.

Boston, April 14.—Apparently doomed to defeat, the local National League team rallied in the ninth inning, tying the score, and finally won out from New York in the eleventh inning by a score of 3 to 2 in the opening game of the season to-day. The contest was characterized by sensational fielding, daring base-running and the work of the pitchers. Score:

Boston	3	4	0

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Detroit, April 14.—Cleveland and Detroit see-sawed their way through a ten-inning game that finally was won by the visitors by 9 to 7. The home team got away in the lead, but Cleveland went by them in the seventh. Detroit tied it in the ninth, but four doubles and a single in the next, gave Cleveland a four-run lead that Detroit's two-run rally could not meet. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Cleveland	9	14	2
Detroit	7	10	1

Batteries—Mullin and Stanage; Joss and Clark. Umpires—Sheridan and Kerin.

New York, April 14.—The New York and Boston Americans battled for fourteen innings to-day until darkness stopped the game with the score 4 to 4. In the early part of the game the Highlanders played poorly and errors by Foster and Austin gave the Red Sox what looked to be a safe lead. The locals started to hit Cicotte in the third inning and drove him from the rubber in the eighth, when Wood took his place with men on third and first and one out. Wood made a wild pitch on his first serve to Chase; Hemphill scored and Wolter went to third. Chase's sacrifice fly registered Wolter and tied the score. After this Wood held the locals at his mercy. Score:

Batteries—Cicotte, Wood and Carrigan; Vaughn and Sweeney. Umpires—Colleily and Dineen.

Washington, April 14.—The opening of the American League season in Washington to-day between the local and Philadelphia Clubs was a most auspicious one. President and Mrs. Taft, Vice-President Sherman and many other notables being present. The home team won 3 to 0. For the first time on record a President of the United States threw out the first ball, and, what was more, he sat through the entire nine innings and seemed greatly to enjoy the contest. The attendance broke all records.

The game itself was stubbornly contested on both sides, Walter Johnson being the particular star. He held the visitors down to one lone hit, and as a result the locals were never in danger. Plank on the other hand was hit hard, thirteen hits for a total of 19 bases being the Washington's batting record. Back of the pitchers the fielding was exceptionally clean and sensational. Score:

Washington	3	13	1
Philadelphia	0	1	0

Batteries — Johnson and Street; Plank and Thomas; Umpires—Evans and Egan.

Chicago, April 14—Chicago defeated St. Louis 3 to 0 to-day in the opening game of the season. Smith pitched a great game, holding the visitors to one hit, and only one St. Louis man reached second base. The winners played well in the field. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	0	1	2
Chicago	3	5	0

Batteries—Graham, Lake and Stephens; Smith and Payne. Umpires—O'Loughlin and Perrine.

WILL "COME BACK"

Honus Wagner picks Jim Jeffries to beat Jack Johnson.

"Can he come back?" answered Wagner to a query about Jeffries' probable condition next July.

"Well, didn't we come back and win the world's title? I should say he can."

The Pittsburg regulars to a man pick Jeffries, Barney Dreyfuss, the president, intimated that he would like to be in a ringside seat when the gong sounds. No one but the colored rubber with the team picked Johnson.

The opinions of the star Pirates follow:

Barney Dreyfuss—Hope the white man will win and believe he will. Class generally tells in every business or sport.

Fred Clarke—Not an expert, but I've seen Jeffries, and I believe he will come back to himself and give Johnson a good beating.

Honus Wagner—Why shouldn't Jeff come back? Pittsburg nearly won the world's series with Boston in 1903. Then they said we were dead ones. We came back all right, and I'm saying Jeff will also come back.

George Gibson—If Jeff is 50 per cent. as good as he was he'll win in a canter.

Babe Adams—Believe Jeff will finish the job inside of ten rounds. When he gets in the ring he'll forget all about picture machines and will win as quickly as he can.

Tommy Leach—Ball players stay up in the big show for a long period, playing all summer long and manage to keep their speed even after they are out of the game for a season or so. My opinion is that Jeff will be pretty near himself July 4, and that it will be curtains for Lil Artha.

John Miller—From the newspapers Jeffries isn't taking any chances about being in shape. The three months he puts in will fix him O. K.

IN THE BALANCE

(A Short Story.)

"This, then is my final answer—no."

Dick Wesburn looked hopelessly toward the girl in the archway. Alice Marston's refusal was plain and to the point, as was his defeat in this the greatest effort of his life.

His eyes rested on her a moment steadily, even grimly, and the vision of the tall, queenly girl, in whose quiet features was evident the even sureness of her will, etched itself in his brain with lines of despair.

"Alice, you know I love you; everything I could do I have done to show that I am worthy of you. Even if you do not care for me in a deep sense, why not for the little? I offer all I have—the best that a man—"

"Dick," she broke in gently, watching him carefully, as if afraid of the effect of her words, "that is just it—you are not yet a man."

Wesburn shot to his full height; he towered over her a head! Anger flamed in his face.

"What? Alice—that is an insult!"—his handsome face was flushed—"you presume too much."

"Dick," she said, swiftly, laying one detaining hand on his sleeve and smiling a bit wistfully into his eyes—"Dick, as I said, you are not a man the way I mean; this very moment proves it—angry through and through. You know you have never faced a crisis courageously, involving sacrifice of yourself for others; you have never even shown a desire to do for others.

"My people," she said, smiling a little shyly at the reference, "were men of courage, fighters for principles and other men, and the man I promise to love and obey must be of that kind. Why don't you do something for which a girl may love and respect you—why not?" Her eyes were large with earnestness.

He smoothed the lines in his forehead, but his voice was even and motionless. "If I should, would you say 'I love you?'"

"I—might," she wavered, backing away from him. "Good-by."

Alone, he pondered the meaning of her words. She had spoken truly. Courage and a woman's brave heart had led her to take up and become an expert in surgical nursing, although a life of ease and luxury was hers by inheritance. She had been called in to assist some of the great surgeons of the country. To the man who had proved himself she would give herself unreservedly. But as for himself—

Shaking himself, as if trying to throw off the burden of his thought by physical action, he rose and glanced at his dance card.

Suddenly he heard the hoofbeats of a horse, hard-ridden, throb up the great driveway. Some one spoke; the music stopped; everything grew still. Then he heard the sharp, confused murmur of many voices. He heard his name called and repeated and repeated again, anxiously. He answered sharply and she came, the look on her face arresting his attention.

"Dick," she said, and her voice was thrilling, "a call has been sent to Dr. Wells to come to Mountain Ridge. There has been a terrible accident in the mine and he must go. The messenger says a horse can never do it in time; it's a question of life and and—your automobile—you're the best driver—"

Wellen, the host of the evening, crowded in with the doctor, and Westburn saw excited faces behind him; among them all only the surgeon's face was quiet and hers.

"Dick, it's up to you—in half an hour," the surgeon said.

Wesburn's eyes flamed, but his face was grave. "In half an hour, over these roads in the mountains—" He paused.

"I know, sonny," the doctor said, smiling, "but don't think of me."

As Wesburn ran upstairs for his equipment he caught a glimpse of Alice in her room, drawing tight the veil of her hood. He stopped short. "Alice, you're not—going," he demanded incredulously.

A shiver shot over him; he knew not why.

"Alice, it's one chance out of a hundred that we get over these mountains—one single chance—and if we fall—"

"Dick, I am going—with you." Her words were full of an indefinable meaning.

"Under the glare of the driveway lamp a little later, the gay throng at the house party were gathered, the sheen of white shoulders and dresses glimmering against the black ground of the night, and the imposing dark gray of the twilight-tinged granite.

Only once did Wellen attempt to persuade Alice not to risk her life in the wild ride, but she silenced him with a few even words that left a blur of admiration in his eyes.

The great machine with its lights glaring like the yellow eyes of some mythical monster rolled up the driveway and soon all were stowed snugly in the big machine. Alice has slipped into the front seat beside him. The farewells, tinged with hope, tears and gloomy presentments, followed them as they rolled down the road. The game was one the stake which was human life, and he was playing the cards for life.

He swung from the driveway into the road and they were off. The white glare of the big lamps cut a wide swath into the surrounding darkness. For a little way the road was smooth and level, where Wellen's money had removed the rocks that he might build this mountain home.

He felt Alice draw herself deep down in her seat and grip the arms, as, under the impulse of his finger, the big machine leaped ahead. He caught, too, the swift searching glance she gave him as it rested on his face and hovered about his chin. He understood. The gods in their mercy had given him the opportunity. Would he fail?

With a swirl that brought a little cry from her, the machine shot around the curve, and they were off on the mountain road.

While every bit of his brain and will and nerve was bending to his work, yet some part of him seemed to be following her. She shrank back as they seemed to shoot straight into a great black wall that rose out of the night to smite them to death; it faded softly, silently, like a mist of the night. There was a sudden sinking plunge, a wrench, a tear, a moment of agonizing suspense, a quick turn of his hands and they were racing on, but the sweat started over his body. The wind whistled in high pitched keys, and the echoes from the rocks around seemed to whistle in glee, like imps of the night, rejoicing in the wild ride.

A black, bottomless pit yawned to meet them. With a rush they went down; a sharp cry of alarm left her lips and she covered her face. The air grew damp and cool, and he heard the rush of plunging water, then slowly they mounted the opposite pitch. On the ridge he rested, ostensibly to cool the heated engines, but in reality that he might calm his weary nerves Three times had a plunge down the mountain side been so near that a bare tremble of his hand would have hurled them to destruction.

He looked back where the doctor had fixed himself in the bottom of the car with the precious cases.

"Pretty wild riding, sonny—the worst yet." The doctor rolled a much-chewed unlit cigar between his lips.

Wesburn felt Alice touch his arm. To her unasked question he pointed in an answer to lights far down to the southward. "Sweetheart," he said softly, "if we don't get there to-night let me say for the last time—I love you—Good-by."

"Good-by," she answered in a whisper.

Then once more they were off. All he could do now was to let the machine go and guide. The night crashed in their faces, and the smiting rush of the wind seemed pregnant with disaster. Plunge, sweep, whirl, the machine scurried like a live thing over the graceful road, the great lights smashing a way through the gloom, lifting gray, jagged rocks sharply into view that passed like wraiths or figures dancing in a dream. With poise of body and all the skill he could muster he held to the road.

With a sudden rush they left the gorge and shot around the curve of the mountain. Far below them twinkled the lights of the mining village where men were dying. He wondered even as he drove whether the miners could see far up on the mountain's side the bits of light that marked the automobile's flight, bringing aid and succdown, they plunged, swaying with the down, theyp lunged, swaying with the curves. The lights dropped from sight. With a sidelong swirl they swept into the open land among the huts of the miners. Before a lighted structure where men were gathered he shot his brakes and heard their spiteful squeal. Shifting figures streamed toward them and cheers rasped hoarsely. Wesburn smiled foolishly, tried to catch himself and dropped unconscious over his wheel. The strained nerves had asked for rest.

The dawn found the wounded and injured attended, the last moments of the dying filled with peace, confronted and claimed by a voice and a presence that seemed verily of another world.

Wesburn stood on the back porch, watching the sun rise over the mountains when he heard a light step behind him. She came up to him quietly and so close that he could look down and see the little tired light in her eyes—a light that made them more beautiful than ever in his sight.

"Dick," she said a little shyly, "up on the mountain side you looked at me with a question asking something in your eyes—"

His eyes looked on the spot she had in mind. Only he knew what he had felt in that little while. He believed himself a coward at heart, but he had done simply what another man under the circumstances could have done. And besides, had he proved himself?

"Well, Alice—" he was ready for whatever she might say.

Her meaning was written on her face as she turned squarely to him. He stood a moment silent. Then he opened his arms to her.

"Alice, you brave sweetheart of mine. I'm not worthy of you—I have not proved myself."

She looked up swiftly with a tender glance from dark, happy eyes.

"I hold the balance, Dick, and in it you are not wanting," she whispered.

THE CHOOSING OF A HUSBAND

Not one woman in twenty marries the man, whom, at the age of eighteen she feels she could die for. It is a fortunate thing that ideals change, otherwise many couples would be sadly mismated.

We are easily pleased at eighteen; a handsome face and figure and good clothes go a long way toward the making of our ideal.

At twenty-five, something more than good looks is required.

I know one woman who, had she married her ideal at eighteen, would have been, by now, a most thoroughly unhappy woman.

As it is, she has been for several years blissfully happy as the wife of a man whom, at eighteen, she would have scorned. She would have thought him not half stylish enough, being too young to see the real man under the simple manner and somewhat dowdy clothes.

I wish girls would learn to appreciate how unimportant the cut of a man's coat is.

It is of the utmost importance that his linen be immaculate, but a "stylish man" is an abomination. It is bad enough for a woman to spend most of her time thinking about dress but for a man to do so is dreadful.

The girl over twenty demands, first of all, that a man be manly.

If his face is honest and healthy, she does not care whether he is handsome or plain.

The best-looking man I know would not appeal to a girl of eighteen. She would not understand the wonderful strength and power of his face.

Look for a man you won't grow tired of, girls—a man who will hold you by his strength of character, one who won't let you grow tired of him.

If you are but eighteen, and feel that you have found your ideal, be very sure of yourself before you marry him.

Use your head as well as your heart, try to look ahead; try to imagine him ten years from now.

Marriage, you know, is the most important thing in life, the best and most natural life for all men and women.

Every woman has the chance to marry, even if she never has a proposal. By that, I mean that no woman goes through life without some man loving her and wishing to marry her.

If he never reaches the proposing point it is the woman's fault, not his.

Marry a man who has not stopped growing yet, one who is developing his brain every day.

If you marry a man whose mind is all on clothes and style and sport, he won't have much time to spend on you.

Also remember that the man with a very handsome face is often exceedingly vain, a fact for which he can thank all the foolish little girls who have laid their hearts at his feet.

It is far more important that he be a man's man than a ladies' man.

When other men like a man, it means that he is "square."

Women may not like him, because he is not very good looking, nor very ready with compliments.

But that need not concern you.

If you like him and he likes you, no one else need count.

If you were buying a house that you expected to occupy all the rest of your life, you would spend endless thought and care on the selection, wouldn't you?

Can you afford to spend less care on the selection of a life partner?

Bright intelligent boy wanted to work after school and on Saturdays. Good profits for easy work, besides cash prizes, and a bank, for specially good work. Will not interfere with school duties. Apply McDermid & Jury. 1d-85

A GREAT SPEAKER

Prof. Osborne of Wesley College, Winnipeg, Author of "The Faith of a Layman."

Profesor Osborne, author of The Faith of a Layman, who is a graduate in Arts of Victoria and Toronto Universities, has since his graduation been Professor of English and French literature at Wesley College, Winnipeg, an institution which shares the arts work of the University of Manitoba. Professor Osborne has been and is, a most successful teacher. He is known, however, much more widely as a public speaker, probably the most brilliant in the Canadian West.

For some years his addresses on literature and on questions of interest have been in great demand. He has also taken an active part in politics. His deepest sympathies, however, have been in the moral and religious realms. His essays are not irresponsible, dilettante comments of one who stands aloof, but of one who has taken a deep and active interest in the higher life of the community, and whose advocacy of good causes has been highly appreciated. So far as the essays are critical they are criticisms from within not from without, and from one who seeks the perfecting of the thing criticised.

The moral and literary quality of these essays will find recognition where Professor Osborne is now unknown, but in the Canada west of the lakes there is no Canadian essayist whose work will find a readier or more cordial welcome. There is a young Canada, both east and west, which will feel that it has found literary expression in the pages of this column. Professor Osborne has always peculiarly had the ear of thoughtful young men.

LOOKING FOR COMET

Peterborough Astronomers Out Every Morning, But Sky Was Clouded.

For a fortnight the Peterborough astronomers have been looking for the comet, but every morning, when the comet was due, the sky was clouded or something else was in the way. It was a case of hard luck, especially when astronomers of other parts were seeing it.

Mr. H. B. Collier, president of the Peterborough Astronomical Society, said when asked:

"It's much brighter than when we saw it before."

"Is it visible to the naked eye?"

"No, I am positive it is not."

"What are all the people seeing, then?" was asked.

"They must be seeing Venus, which rises just before the comet," was the reply.

And so a lot of people who have claimed to see the comet are told where they are at. A lot of other people who have been getting up early in the morning of late have been putting forth a lot of effort for nothing.

CAUSES OF DIVORCE

Subject of Last of Series of Lectures on Social Purity.

The last general meeting of the series of meetings conducted this week in the city in the interests of social purity was held last night in Park St. Baptist church. A large and representative audience was present and many strong expressions of the good accomplished by the campaign were voiced by the ministers who have heartily cooperated throughout. Rev. Mr. Riddiford, pastor of the Park St. church, presided and Rev. Mr. Henderson and the Rev. Mr. Pogue took part in the exercises.

The subject discussed by Mr. McCuaig was "The Causes of Divorce." Passing from the immediate cause of the great increase in the number of divorces granted in the United States during the last twenty years, which was shown to be lax laws which tend to facilitate divorce, the lecturer dealt with the unquestionable demand for divorce on the part of the community. This demand had its rise out o fthree generations rahth rise out of three conditions—"Unfit marriages," "Un-wife-able women" and "sexually abnormal men." These conditions in their turn were shown to prevail on account of false education touching the relationship of the sexes, through failure of parents in the home to impart true ideals to their children.

Mr. McCuaig addressed a special meeting of the Ministerial Association at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. and at 3 o'clock delivered the last of the course of lectures on eugenics in the parlors of the Young Women's Christian Association.

WHY GREAT PLAYS LIVE

"The Holy City," Clarence Bennett's powerful dramatic story of Old Jerusalem, is a play that has outlasted all rivals and all imitators, and holds a firmer place in public favour, and a wider popularity than ever before. There is a reason for this. First, it tells a powerful and beautiful story, fraught with the deepest heart interest.

It tells it in such a vivid and lifelike manner that it holds every auditor, from the most educated and profound thinker, to the little boy in the gallery—entranced, spell-bound.

It tells it so well and so dramatically that the auditor, who is not interested in Bible times and Scriptural themes, still is held breathless by the thrilling interest of the dramatic story, the fine acting and the beautiful romance that runs through the play.

It tells it through the medium of a splendid acting company, with an environment of the most elaborate and gorgeous costumes and the most beautiful scenery, reproducing the barbaric splendour of an Eastern Monarch's royal court.

The plays to-day that are making the great successes, are those that are fraught with the most intense human interest.

Such plays live and touch the hearts of men and women because they are genuine, truthful, natural and speak directly to the intelligence and the emotions. They are convincing, real, tangible.

This is the answer:

The company that appears here, is headed by Clarence Bennett, the author, who created the great dual role of John the Baptist and Judas, during the successful metropolitan run of the play.

Miss Edith Marshall has been specially engaged for the great part of Salome, being a perfect type of the Oriental Princess. Her acting is superb and her dance before the King is chaste, refined, graceful and devoid of anything calculated to offend the most sensitive and refined taste. It is the oldest and most beautiful of all the historic classic dances, which are so popular just now, in New York city. This is the Persian dance of the Dawn, a descriptive dramatic dance over three thousand years old.

The Holy City will appear here on Wednesday, April 20th, at the Grand Opera House, and is an attraction that no lover of the best drama can afford to miss.

WEDDING BELLS

CONROY—DOYLE.

Flint (Mich.) Daily Journal: David Edward Conroy, of Peterborough, Ont., and Miss Ambrosia Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doyle, of this city were united in marriage at 10.30 o'clock this morning at St. Michael's Catholic church in the presence of a large company of guests. Rev. Fr. T. J. Murphy officiated with nuptial high mass.

The church was artistically decorated with palms and pink roses, and as Mrs. Kate Bradley, organist, and Miss Ethel Lee and Mrs. Carey, violinists, played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" the wedding party entered the church and passed down the centre aisle to the altar. The ushers were Frank N. Pelter, of Flint, and Frederick Conroy, of Peterborough. Francis Conroy assisted as best man.

The bride was attired in a handsome gown of white satin with trimmings of Brussels lace and carried bride's roses. She wore a long tulle veil. Miss Helen Doyle, maid of honour, wore a gown of white lace with a pink and white picture hat and carried pink roses. Miss Josephine Conroy, the bridesmaid, wore pink satin and carried pink roses. She also wore a cream-coloured picture hat.

Following the ceremony at the church a wedding repast was served to relatives at the home of the bride, 608 Garland street. The appointments were in pink and green.

Mr. and Mrs. Conroy were the recipients of a number of beautiful gifts from their friends. They left later in the afternoon on an extended wedding trip which will take them to Edmonton, Alberta province, where they will make their home. The groom is a contractor and was engaged in that business in Peterborough.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. D. Conroy and Mrs. Edward Conroy, of Peterborough; Mrs. D. Ryan, Miss Theressa Ryan and Miss Mabel Doherty, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hendricks, of Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. George Waite, Toledo.

AN IMPORTER REVIEWS THE CHEESE QUESTION

From Farm and Dairy.

Herbertson & Hamilton, Glasgow.

The past season has not been a favorable one to the importers in the Canadian cheese trade, prices having been uniformly too high compared with those ruling for Home produce.

The condition both of the cheese and boxes on arival here has been satisfactory, and shows that proper care has been taken in the handling during transit. We have, however, had some complaints of quality, the most serious being regarding the keeping properties of the June make. In many cases, these cheese showed a tendency to mite badly, and go damp both on top and bottom. This is not an isolated experience, and has caused loss not only in Glasgow, but shipments both to Leith and Hull have developed similar faults.

MAKERS EVIDENTLY WERE TEMPTED

In the summer made goods, we had complaints of openness of texture and brittleness in cutting, and the September and October makes in not a few cases, showed a pastiness and lack of flavor which compared unfavorably with the previous season's make. Possibly climatic conditions in Canada had something to do with the irregularities we complain of, but we are afraid that at least in some cases, the blame must be laid on the shoulders of the factorymen. The keen competition for patronage, and the effort to take as large a quantity of cheese as possible out of a given amount of milk, have we are afraid, in some cases at least, tempted makers to put quantity before quality.

We are pleased to note an improvement in the marking of the weights on the boxes, and hope by another season the old pencil method will have been entirely superseded by the stencil.

We desire again to urge very strongly that every cheese should be legibly dated when made, and until this is done, the business will never be on a satisfactory footing.

ILLEGITIMATE BUSINESS

This past season, dealers who do only a legitimate week to week trade, have been very considerably handicapped by speculators selling in April and May, June made cheese for July shipment; and again in July, selling September made for October shipment, at prices shillings below what legitimate traders could possibly offer at. The result has been seriously to interfere with business, and while we are not in a position to absolutely prove the statement, we have not the slightest doubt that many of the cheese shipped on these speculative contracts, were neither June's nor September's. If each cheese was correctly and legibly dated when [illegible] this illegitimate system of business would be rendered so dangerous that the game would not be worth the candle.

This matter closely concerns the factorymen and farmers, because if the firms on this side who take the weekly output of factories at market prices, are to be brought into regular and long continued losses through the speculative manipulation of the market, it is clear that the trade will ultimately fall into the hands of the speculative interests, and the makers in Canada will be placed at a very serious disadvantage in consequence.

POTATOES AS FEED FOR SWINE

From Farm and Dairy.

Our salesmen coming in during the week report that potatoes are very plentiful and selling at extremely low prices throughout the country. We know that in Ireland a considerable amount of these are fed, cooked, to the pigs, and we fancy with good result. Will you kindly advise us of any data of experiments made with potatoes as a food for pigs, and if so, we shall be very glad if you will let us have the figures.—F. W. F., Limited, Wentworth Co., Ont.

Prof. W. A. Henry in his book "Feeds and Feeding," makes the following comparison of grain vs. boiled potatoes: (These figures are taken from Danish pig feeding experiments.)

"Three series of experiments were made to test the comparative value of cooked potatoes with grain, when both were fed in connection with skim milk or whey. Four pounds of potatoes were fed against one pound of grain, and the gains made were practically the same. Four pounds of boiled potatoes should thus be considered equal to one pound of grain in pig feeding. The quality of the pork produced from potato feeding was good and did not differ appreciably from that of lots differently fed."

At the Wisconsin station, Professor Henry himself conducted trials with cooked potatoes mixed with uncooked corn meal fed in opposition to uncooked corn meal only in fattening pigs. The potatoes were cooked in as little water as possible, it being found that they were relished when so prepared. After cooking, the potatoes were mashed in the kettle and corn meal added, the whole forming a thick mush. In the first trial, there were three pigs in each lot, there were two in the second, the trials lasting 42 days. Combining the first and second trials, the results are summarized as follows: 440 pounds of corn meal produced 100 pounds of gain; 262 pounds of corn meal with 786 pounds of cooked potatoes produced 100 pounds of gain. From this we find that 786 pounds of cooked potatoes when fed with corn meal effected a saving of 178 pounds of corn meal; to save 100 pounds of corn meal would therefore require 441 pounds of potatoes.

HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION

From Farm and Dairy.

The annual meeting of the officers of Ontario Horticultural Exhibition was held in Toronto on March 30. The treasurer, Mr. J. H. Dunlop of Toronto reported that the last exhibition had been a success financially and that there was a balance of $90 on hand. It was decided to hold the next exhibition in the St. Lawrence Arena, Toronto, during the week of November 14, 1910.

The prize list will include $1,225 in prizes for fruit, $1,500 for flowers and $425 for vegetables and $300 for honey, a total of $3,450.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, H. R. Frankland, Toronto; 1st vice-pres., Mr. W. Couse of Streetsville; 2nd vice-pres., Mr. Thos. Manton of Eglinton; sec., P. W. Hodgetts, of Toronto; and treas., J. H. Dunlop of Toronto.

The executive committee consists of the officers and Messrs. R. W. King, E. F. Collins, H. G. Sibbald, W. Jay and T. Delworth. The chairman and secretary for the various committees were appointed as follows: Floral, chairman, W. Jay; sec., E. F. Collins; Honey, chairman, H. G. Sibbald, sec., P. W. Hodgetts; Fruit, chairman, W. H. Bunting; sec., P. W. Hodgetts; Vegetables, chairman; T. Delworth and sec., F. F. Reeves. The chairmen of the sub-committees will be members of the executive committee.

The Ontario Horticultural Association and the Niagara Peninsula Fruit Growers' Association were given the right to elect two representatives each as directors of the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition. It is expected the annual convention of the Ontario Womens' Institute will be held in Toronto next fall at the time of the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition. The secretary was instructed to write to Mr. G. A. Putnam, Supt. of Women's Institutes and invite the Women's Institute to arrange for an exhibition of preserved fruit, vegetables and other similar exhibits at the exhibition.

The Cookbook.

Stuffed potatoes are made by mixing cheese and breadcrumbs in with the contents.

For a delicate garlic sauce such as Frenchwomen are known for, boil garlic in at least five waters, draining it each time and then chop it and add it to a white sauce.

The objectionable spattering and flying of the hot fat when eggs, hominy, apples and like things are dropped into it to fry may be prevented if a little flour is sifted into the fat just before they are added.

A simple and quick method to make French dressing is simply to put the salt, pepper, a dash of sugar and the vinegar into a pint jar and then add the olive oil. Now put on the cover to the jar and shake hard. The dressing will be mixed splendidly without the interminable stirring.

MISSIONARIES IN PERIL.

Canadians at Scene of Riots In Hunan District, China.

Shanghai, April 15.—The Wesleyan-China Inland Mission at Changsha, the capital of the Province of Hunan, was destroyed by rioters yesterday.

The missionaries took refuge in the Yamen, which the rioters subsequently attacked. There was no loss of life.

Toronto, April 15.—J. S. Helmer, secretary of the China Inland Mission, has had no intimation of the disturbance up to last night. The Wesleyan and China Inland Mission, he stated, were two distinct missions. The Mission of Yale University also labored in Changsha. The Wesleyan Mission had five or six workers, while the China Inland had eleven missionaries distributed in several stations, including Dr. and Mrs. Keller (Toronto), R. K. Veryard (England), Miss Tilley (Toronto), and seven German workers.

Changsha, the capital of the Province of Hunan, is situated on the Siang-Kiang, 50 miles south of its embouchure in Lake Tong-Ting-Hu. It is a seat of silk industry and is the home of the famous College of Yolo. The population is estimated at 300,000.

Masters Inquest.

Tweed, April 15.—The inquest into the death of William Masters last Friday forenoon was resumed yesterday, when Crown Attorney Anderson of Belleville examined witnesses. Provincial Detective Miller brought Masters' clothing and the bullet that killed him, together with the 44-calibre rifle and revolver that belong to the aged suspect, Parker, who has retained Mr. Stewart of Madoc as his counsel. Members of the family told of Masters going for a load of wood and of the finding of the body on a side road. They also told of threats that Parker had made, while neighbors told of seeing Parker on the main road a little while before the shooting. He was also seen running away toward Tweed by a Miss Way. Mr. and Mrs. Palmatter, where he was Friday afternoon, had told him of the affair, and he appeared greatly surprised. He stayed at the home of James Tucker all Friday night, something he had never done before, and left before breakfast. He told them their announcement was the first he had heard of the shooting. On Saturday he went to a brother-in-law's, William Ferguson, who lives many miles away, who also told him of the tragedy. Again he seemed surprised. Ferguson told him a warrant had been issued for his arrest and he readily assented to give himself up.

The inquest resumes next Thursday.

An Off Shore Chantey.

Ho! Yo! Heave with sheet an' bowlin',
Flatten braces in a bit, she's leanin' to-starboard now.
Hi! Yi! Sweetheearts, we're a-strollin',
Well kiss you when we come back 19—you ain't forgotten how!
Yi! Hi! Bend your backs, you rubber!
Hi'st your wheel a spoke or two an' give her a good full—
Yo! Ho! Higgin's made o' rubber;
You can stretch it if you try, so—pull, pull, pull!

Ho! Yo! Leavin' wine an' women—
Never seen mouth wine to-raise, but rum's the stuff to burn—
Hi! Hi! Sweethearts, well-come-sudden-ruin',
And if you have forgotten, why, there's others we can learn!
Yi! Hi! Put your backs hard over—
Thank-her once, then coffee, kids, an' no more-rather for me—
Yo! Ho! Poltzin' out by Dover,
No more dowsed, jammed hard for us; we're makin' out to sea.

—Rowland Thomas in American Magazine.

No Difference.

Ethel (calling on her friend)—I didn't know you were one of those athletic girls.

Madge—What do you mean, dear?

Ethel—Look at those falls over your bureau.

Madge—Falls! Why, those are my bustles.—Boston Transcript.

The bluejay is a practical joker. It is his habit to conceal himself in a mass of leaves near the spot where small birds are accustomed to gather and when they are enjoying themselves in their own fashion to suddenly frighten them almost to death by screaming out like a hawk. Of course they scatter in every direction, and when they do so the mischievous rascal gives vent to a cackle that sounds very much like a laugh.

Another Kind of Walk.

Ethel did not rush into his arms and cry "Oh, Cuthbert!" as usual. When he was ushered into the drawing room she gave him the frigid eye, and the gas was kept on at full pressure.

"I've been studying pedomancy, Cuthbert," she announced.

"Pedomancy, pet?"

"Divination by the feet," she explained. "Feet that incline to flatness are a sign of meanness, Cuthbert."

Cuthbert looked down at his No. 10 tans and sighed.

"A hurried yet silent walk," she continued, "is indicative of criminal instincts. Your walk is so hurried, so noiseless, Cuthbert."

"You are speaking of only one of my styles of walking, Ethel," he answered brightly. "I have another. I used it this afternoon to walk into a jeweler's shop and buy a $150 engagement ring that I had hoped"—

"Oh, Cuthbert!" she cried, and the next minute the pedomancy expert and a splay footed youth were crowded into one saddlebag chair, and the gas was turned down into a little blue bubble.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Dumas' Wealth and Poverty.

Alexandre Dumas' rise to wealth and luxury was almost as marvelous as that of his most celebrated hero. He built a magnificent chateau, which he named Monte Christo. There he entertained all comers, friend and stranger alike, with more than oriental magnificence and sometimes with oriental mystery. His purse was open to all who sought it, and the day came when he experienced Timon's fate without acquiring Timon's disposition. He could not become a misanthrope, though his fortune disappeared almost as suddenly as it came, and then he learned the ingratitude of men. His last days were passed not in poverty, but in narrow circumstances. He left Paris in the fall of 1870 just as the German army was closing in to besiege it and when France was feeling its deepest woe. To the last he preserved his gayety and youthful spirit. "I had but one napoleon in my pocket when I first came here," he said. "I go away with two, and yet they call me a spendthrift."

Very Devout.

A new parson was presented to a living in a remote agricultural district and was anxious to make himself at home with his flock as soon as possible. He therefore began his pastoral calls at once. Among the first recipients of these attentions was Farmer Jones, whose family the new parson had noticed to be very regular and apparently very devout attendants at church. Farmer Jones was out, but his wife received the parson, when the following dialogue took place: "I am your new rector, Mrs. Jones. I have noticed with great pleasure your regular attendance at church and have lost as little time as possible, you see, in calling and improving our acquaintance." "Yes, sir," replied Mrs. Jones; "we're 'bliged to be reg'lar at church, for if we didn't, go Farmer Smith claims that pew, and we're not goin' to give it up for the likes o' him. So my son Peter stands at the door half an hour before service begins to keep 'im out."—Liverpool Mercury.

Big Hats in Colonial Days.

The question of high hats at public places was of some moment, even in colonial days. In 1769 the church at Andover, Mass., put it to vote whether "the parish disapprove of the female sex sitting with their hats on in the meeting house in time of divine service as being indecent." In the town of Abington in 1775 it was voted that it was "an indecent way with the feminine sex to sit with their hats and bonnets on in worshiping God." Still another town voted that it was the "town's mind" that the women should take their bonnets off in meeting and hang them on the pegs.

Too Costly.

King George II. once wished to add the Green park, in London, to his palace grounds, whether the people liked it or not. He inquired of his minister as to the cost.

His lordship, mindful of the general discontent then prevalent, answered: "The cost, sir? Oh, it would be a matter of three crowns!"

The king took the hint. The people kept their park and the sovereign his triple crowns.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF KNOX CHURCH WHICH WAS INAUGURATED IN AN AYLMER ST. STABLE

Suggestion of Two Ladies in 1872 Developed Into Knox Congregation January 1st, 1907—Corner Stone of New Edifice Being Laid To-day by Lieutenant-Governor Gibson.

THE FIRST MEMBERSHIP

For speedy growth in towns and churches we usually turn to the West. We do not look for it in the East, since so many are flocking from East to West, depleting country and towns and likewise churches. There is one striking case at least where in spite of the trek Westward a small city has made rapid strides, and its churches no less than its stores illustrate it. The City of Peterborough is now one of the best known in Canada, known for its alertness, aggressiveness and progress. It will soon be known also as a City of Churches. These reflect the growth of the City, and its aggressiveness. One of the first to be established to meet the growing need is the one now known as Knox Presbyterian Church. When the two ladies who suggested the commencement of the undertaking first had the vision of the growth of the City towards the South and saw the need of work in that section of the city, there was no Church south of Charlotte street. Now, there are five other Churches, most of them in new buildings.

In 1872 an interdenominational Ladies' District Visiting Association was formed in Peterborough at the suggestion of Mrs. Renaud. Two ladies, the late Mrs. James A. Hall and Miss Charlotte Dickson, were appointed to the district South of Charlotte street. In the faithful discharge of their work they found that many children in that section were not attending any Sabbath School. The parents were anxious that provision should be made to meet the need. Accordingly these ladies sought for assistance and invited two young men of the Bank of Commerce, Mr. James A. Hall and Mr. T. W. Nisbet, to help them in their new undertaking. The young men consented.

The next thing was to find a building suitable for a Sabbath School. After a diligent search, the only unoccupied building they could find was a stable on the East side of Aylmer street between Charlotte and King streets. They had to use this or do without. Much to their surprise and gratification, they were informed by the owner that this very building was originally the first Presbyterian Church in Peterborough, and it had been used as such during the early ministry of the late Rev. Mr. Roger. The owner allowed the use of this very interesting building for a Sabbath School. It was cleaned up and papered and benches were provided by the Committee. This school was opened in May 1872, with Mr. T. W. Nisbet as its first Superintendent and a roll of nine scholars. Mr. Nisbet had the idea that the Y. M. C. A. might become responsible for the work but this was found impossible. Unfortunately that same year Mr. Nisbet was removed to Montreal. Mr. W. W. Johnston succeeded him, and continued as Superintendent until 1892. Under his leadership the school grew until its average attendance reached one hundred. In the meantime new quarters had to be found, for in 1873, one year after its foundation the school had outgrown the place of its birth.

A vacant lot was found on Dalhousie street between Stewart and Rubidge streets, and the owner, Mr. Walter Patterson, granted the trustees a lease of the property for twenty years at the nominal rental of one dollar a year. A building was erected for Sabbath School purposes on the property. Mr. T. W. Nisbet showed his continued interest in the work by sending a donation of $100. The balance, $500 was raised by local subscriptions, not more than $50 being given outside of St. Paul's Church. The building has now lost its original appearance. The school made great strides in its new and more suitable quarters, under the leadership of Mr. W. W. Johnston. It was the intention of the founders to keep it undenominational, but with the exception of one or two, Baptists, it was conducted by Presbyterians. Some of the ladies who assisted in the work as teachers at that early period of the School's history were Miss Baptie, Miss Grundy Miss Gilmour, Miss Veals, Miss Patterson. The infant class was taught by Miss Moffat. The late Mr. Wm. Fairweather, Mr. Alex. Gillespie, and Mr. J. W. Bennet showed a deep interest in the work and assisted as teachers. Mother's Meetings were started by Miss Veals, which were well attended and proved a means of great helpfulness. After Miss Veals left this work was carried on by Miss Gilmour. Later on St. John's Church made a request for the use of the building, which was granted, and as a result of their work in that section of the City, All Saints' sprang up. Park Street Baptist Church also made use of the building for its earliest efforts.

Mr. W. W. Johnston continued as Superintendent of the Sabbath School until 1892. At that time the workers were informed that the lease had run out and that the owner of the property

Bad Blaze Did $3000 Damage At Fraserville

General Store Near the Station Was Completely Destroyed by Fire at 2 o'clock This Morning---Twelve Year Old Boy Showed Remarkable Presence of Mind.

From our Own Correspondent.

Fraserville, April 16.—One of the most disastrous fires in the history of this village occurred about 1.30 o'clock this morning, when the old hotel building was burned to the ground. It was a large, frame building, and the first erected in the village. It has been standing for forty years, and has been nearly burned several times.

The building has been occupied for the past few years by Mr. W. J. Timlin, who lived in one-half of it, and had a general store in the other. The cause of the fire is unknown. Indications go to show that it started in the eastern part of the south wing. and Mr. Timlin states that there has been no fire in this part of the building for three or four months.

No effort was made to save the building, as the roof of the eastern wing was falling in before the inmates were aware of the fire.

Mr. Timlin states that his daughter had a very narrow escape from being burned. The rooms upstairs were full of smoke, and she was nearly overcome before her father succeeded in getting her to the open air. Mr. Timlin's twelve-year-old son showed great presence of mind by carrying out a purse, in which the silver money had been deposited. He escaped with a slight burn about the knee.

The entire stock in the store was burned and practically none of the household goods were saved, except a few articles of clothing.

The total loss is estimated at $3,000.00, which is partially covered by insurance.

Those of the villagers who came to the fire deserve the greatest praise, especially the women, and even the young ladies turned out and helped to carry water to save the surrounding buildings.

The old building is now gone, but its history will be repeated in many a home in this village for years to come. It used to serve as the G. T. R. station, and also one of the many hotels which were built along the gravel road between Peterborough and Port Hope during the period when this part of the country was covered by forest. Only a few days ago Mr. Timlin was contemplating some repairs and today it is a mass of smouldering ruins, looked on with regret by all the old residents.

Mr. Wadely Will Address Women's Art Association

As announced in another column of our paper, the Women's Art Association of Peterborough has arranged with Mr. Harold Wadely, manager of the Brinton Carpet Company, to give a lecture on "Decorative Art," on Thursday evening next, at the Y. W. C. A. The lecture, which, by the way, is the last to be given this season, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, bids fair to be one of the most popular and generally appreciated lectures ever given in Peterborough. The reason is not far to seek as the subject treated of is certainly one which appeals to every householder, and in securing the services of Mr. Wadely, the W.A.A. realize that this important branch of art is being brought more closely to the notice of Peterborough people by a gentleman whose experience and taste in such matters is second to none.

The lecturer will demonstrate in a thoroughly practical way by means of examples in the way of wall-papers. friezes, draperies, floor coverings, pictures ,ornaments, etc., how good and bad effects in decoration are obtained.

At the conclusion of the lecture a short, but exceedingly bright and interesting programme will be given to which Miss Hallihan, Miss Choate and Mrs. Wadely will contribute. Miss Hallihan's and Miss Choate's names are so well known and also, we may say, so deservedly popular in Peterborough, that no comment need be made upon their appearance, other than to congratulate the W. A. A. upon securing the assistance of these two ladies and to mention that they will render the same selections for which they were given so much praise recently in the Earl Grey contest in Toronto.

Mrs. Wadely's name as a public performer has hitherto been unknown to Peterborough, but it is safe to say there is a treat in store as her elocutionary powers are considerable. Before her marriage, when she was appearing in London, Eng., her interpretation in leading roles in Shakespeare and other plays was very much appreciated.

Much praise is to be given to the Women's Art Association for organizing this affair and we hope that their efforts will be accorded the appreciation which they deserve.

The seating capacity of the gymnasium at the Y. W. C. A. is to some extent limited, and the public are advised to secure seats as soon as possible so as to avoid disappointment.

Impressed With Fine Appearance Of Peterborough's Streets And Residences

Mr. H. A. Frowde, of Sydney, N.S., who has been in the city for the past week, called here by the death of his brother, Mr. E. A. Frowde, has during his thirteen years' absence from Peterborough, only been home twice, and that was nine years ago. In conversation with The Examiner, Mr. Frowde stated that he noted a large number of changes, a great deal of progress having been made. The fine new residences and the good appearance of the streets indicated a live civic interest.

Mr. Frowde is connected with the firm of J. E. Buchell, L't'd, underwriters and real estate dealers. Sydney has the large Dominion Iron and Steel Co., and several other big industries. The population has, during the past few years increased from 3,000 to 7,000 and the firm with which Mr. Frowde is associated, is one of the largest of its kind in that city. At present, Mr. Frowde states, Sydney is experiencing a revival of business prosperity and the Century Club of that place is planning to so advertise the city, that great things are expected. Owing to its geographical situation, the shipping facilities are of the best, which is a big inducement to capitalists.

Mr. Frowde, after spending a few days here and in Toronto, will return to his home at Sydney.

New Stock Company Capitalized At $25,000 Organized Here

A new joint stock company, capitalized at $25,000 has been organized in this city and will be known as the Ontario Marble Table Advertising Co. L't'd. with factory and offices in Peterborough. The charter for the company was received to-day. Mr. E. D. Wilde, of St Paul, Minn., has been in the city for some weeks and has largely been instrumental in the organization of the company He hold the patent for the manufacture of these writing tables in this country and the United States. The new company will control the sale of them in Canada. Several orders for the installation of these new writing tables have already been received and it is the intention to put a number of agents on the road to solicit business. Mr. Jas. D. Drain, who for many years was the secretary of the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Co., has been made secretary-treasurer of this new enterprise and has already commenced his duties. Two writing tables will be installed in the new T. A. S. Hall.

BUILDINGS WERE DESTROYED BY AN EARLY BLAZE

House and Barn at Auburn Were completely Demolished by Blaze at Three O'clock This Morning.

DUE TO INCENDIARISM

As the result of a fire which broke out about three o'clock this morning a house and barn belonging to Alexander Grieve, at Auburn, were totally destroyed. The blaze was a picturesque one, the sky being vividly illuminated to such an extent that many citizens were awakened by the glare.

A telephone message from the Nicholls' Hospital, and a call from Box 59 were received simultaneously at the fire station, and the brigade quickly responded. They had a long run before them, however, and found, upon their arrival that the flames had secured such a start that it was impossible to do anything to save the building. They did what they could. but it was seen that the place was doomed, the result being the complete loss of the property. Fortunately the buildings were unoccupied. It is thought that the fire was of incendiary origin. No other cause that would fit the situation can be assigned.

NATIVE RIOTS

British Gunboats Have Been Ordered to Quell the Disturbance.

Special to The Examiner.

Shanghai, April 16.—Advices received to -day say that British gunboats ordered to Changsha to quell native riots against the missionaries, arrived there this morning, and immediately sent out landing parties. The natives made no effectual resistance, it is reported. Some of the Europeans have gone to Hankow. The Commander in Chief of the little fleet immediately demanded an explanation from the Mandarin of the district.

HANDSOME NEW QUARTERS OF ST. PETER'S T.A.S. CANNOT BE EXCELLED

Building on Simcoe Street Will be One of the Finest of its Kind in the Province---Will be Formally Opened on April 27th---Assembly Hall Will Seat Five Hundred People---Modern Ideas Carried Out in all Departments

The Total Abstinence Society of St. Peter's church, with its membership past the twelve hundred mark, will in the course of a week or so have splendid new quarters. Since February seventh workmen have been busily engaged renovating the property on Simcoe St., and when an Examiner reporter visited there yesterday, he was surprised at the complete change that had been effected. More ideal rooms could not have been secured. The situation, central as it is, is most convenient and can be easily reached from all parts of the city. With the changes that have taken place, the building has been divided into most spacious apartments for all branches of the work carried on by the society. The efforts of those who have been directly interested in the acquiring and fitting out of these quarters, will best be appreciated on the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh of this month, when the building will be open to the public, on the occasion of the visit here of Australia's greatest singer, Miss Margaret McCann, who will appear in concert at the hall on the above two evenings. The new building is second to none of its kind in the Province.

The Assembly Hall.

The front of the new structure is a very attractive one. It is built in red pressed brick, with large plate glass windows. There are two entrances, one into the main Assembly Hall, and the other into the hall leading to the various apartments. The concert or Assembly Hall is seventy by forty-eight feet. It has a splendid stage twenty by fifteen, with footlights and a large dressing room to the west side. This room is finished in white. It will accommodate between four hundred and fifty to five hundred people. The building will be heated throughout by a new system of steam heating, and the electrical fixtures will be of the latest and most modern styles.

Ascending the stairs to the second floor, one finds a fine suite of spacious and well laid out rooms. At the head of the stairs, one enters the reception room. Here the Society's banking office will be placed for the benefit of its customers, and a cabinet telephone will be at the disposal of the members. Off this to the north end is the ladies' room and on the opposite side, is the library In the latter there will be two six foot writing tables with marble tops. To the east there will be two six foot writing tables with marble tops. To the east end is the pool room, a great large one, fifty-three by twenty-one feet. It will be done in a cheery finish, and it will be bright and attractive, three large windows in the front, giving plenty of light. There will be six tables in it. Off it are situated a splendid committee room and bathroom with two showers. These are on the north end.

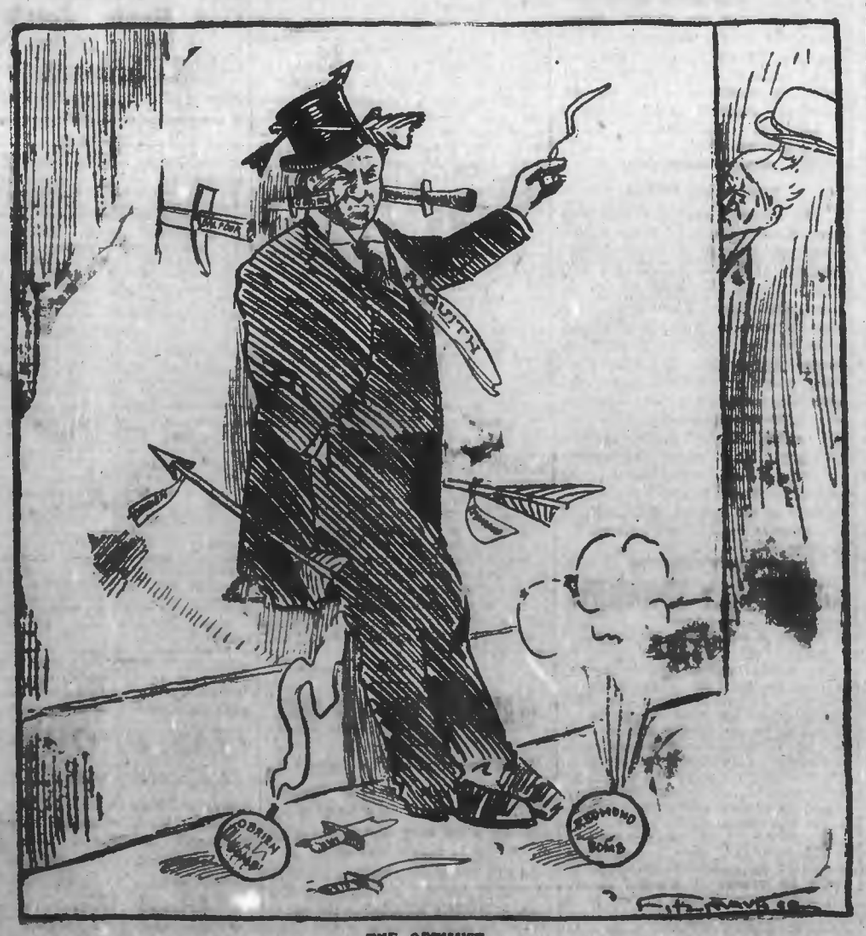
The Gymnasium.

On the third floor one finds the gymnasium, recreation and card room, the kitchen and bath room. The gymnasium will be one of the best that is to be found and will contain all the latest appliances for the development of the physical side of the members. It is seventy by twenty-one feet, occupying the entire length of the building. It has a fifteen foot ceiling, and it, too, is very bright and attractive. Its floor, as in all the floors, is of hardwood and the walls are done in a burlap finish. The recreation room is fifty by twenty-one feet. The kitchen will a great convenience in holding socials and "At Homes". It is fitted with a gas range. In the bath rooms on the third floor there are also two additional showers.

The entire building is a great credit to the society and to the men who carried out the work. Mr. J. E. Belcher was the architect and Mr. D. LaPlante superintended the work. Mr. Fred Cook had charge of the painting and decorating and Mr. Duranceau of the heating and plumbing. The building committee of the society was composed of Messrs. Bibby Cushing and Ald. Duffus.

C. P. R. Prepare To Make Beautiful Their Station

The Canadian Pacific Railway is likely to become a veritable Road of Roses. Its lines are now being made into flowery paths by the floral department, which is sending out this Spring over 60,000 packages of the best flower seeds that can be procured in Great Britain, China, Japan, Holland. Italy, India, South America, Iceland. Russia, Bermuda, California and Germany. These are distributed amongst the station agents, section foremen. and other employees, with the result that many a station ground that was formerly unsightly and uninteresting is now both interesting and attractive. Mr. Dunlop, the head of the floral department, is continuing with unabated zeal the great work he undertook 14 years ago, and it will not be many years before every one of the Company's 2,000 stations will have its pretty garden and neatly kept lawn.



THE OPTIMIST.

Nervous Bystander—"I say, aren't you afraid?"

Mr. Asquith—"Oh, No; One gets used to anything. Besides, if they get too thick I shall just walk away."

The party was welcomed at the station by Mayor Morrow and the members of the City Council, after which they went to the wharf nearby, where the Government steamer "Bob Hall" was in waiting to take them up the canal and over the Lift Lock. Here they were met with carriages and taken for a drive around the city, visiting the various places of interest. At one o'clock they drove to the beautiful home of the Misses Dickson, Dickson St., where luncheon was served, the entire party going at half past two to Knox church for the ceremony of laying the corner stone. WHEEL DAMAGED

One Belonging to Mr. Frank MacPherson was Dragged two Blocks Behind a Street Car.

Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson had considerable damage done to his bicycle this morning. It appears Mr. MacPherson placed his wheel between the back vestibule and fender of the Edison car, and as the car moved the bicycle was dislodged from its place, dragging two blocks. As soon as the position of the wheel was noticed the car was brought to a standstill.

TORCHY LANDS ON A SIDE STREET

A Short Story.

It was a little matter between me and Mother Sykes that starts me off to hunt a new boardin' place. Lovely old girl, Mother Sykes is, one of the kind that calls everybody "Deary" and collects in advance every Saturday night. She's got one of them inquisitive landlady noses that looks like it was made for pryin' up trunk covers and pokin' into bureau drawers.

That don't bother me any, though. It's only when I missed my swell outfit, the one Benny had built for me to wear at his weddin', that I gets sore. Course, she'd only borrowed it for Pa Sykes to wear on a Sunday afternoon call, him bein' a little runt of a gent, with watery eyes and a red nose, that never does anything on his own hook. And if he hadn't denied it so brassy I shouldn't have called him down so hard, right in the front hall with half the roomers listenin'.

"Dreamed it, eh, did I. "Well, listen here, Sykesy! Next time I has an optical illusion of your paradin' out in any of my uniform, there'll be doin's before the Sergeant!"

Then Mother Sykes rushes up from the kitchen and saves the fam'ly honour by throwin' an indignation fit. I don't know how long it lasted; but she was gettin' purple clear up under her false front when I slid out the door and left her at it. Next day I noticed the sign hung up; but I didn't know which sky parlour was vacant until I strolls in at five-fifteen Friday night and finds my things out in the hall and a new lodger in my room.

"Oh, well," says I, "what's a sudden move now and then to a free lance like me?"

And as there ain't anybody in sight to register my fond farewells with, I gathers up my suitcase and laundry bag, chucks the latchkey on the stand in the front hall, and beats it. Not until I'm three blocks away does I remember that all the cash I've got in my clothes is three quarters and a dime, which comes of my listenin' to Mallorq's advice about soakin' my rol laway in a bloomin' savings bank.

"Looks like I'd spent the night in a Mills hotel," says I, "unless I find Mallory and make a touch."

It was chasin' him up that fetches me over on the West side and through one of them nice, respectable, private house blocks just below 14th St. You know the kind, that begins at Fifth-ave. with a double breasted old brownstone, and end at Sixth with a delicatessen shop.

Well, I was moseyin' along quiet and peaceful, wonderin' how long since anything ever really happened in that partic'lar section, when all of a sudden I feels about a cupful of cold water strike me in the back of the neck.

"Wow!" says I. "Who's playin me for a goat now?"

With that I turns and inspects the windows of the house I'd just passed, knowin' it must be some kid gettin' gay with the passer-by. There's no signs of any cut-up concealed behind the lace curtains, though, and none of the sashes was raised. If it hadn't been for the way things had been comin' criss-cross at me, I suppose I'd wiped off my collar and gone along ,lettin' it pass as a joke, but I wa'an't feelin' very mirthful just then. I'm ready to follow up anything in the trouble line; so I steps into the area, drops my baggage, shins up over the side of the front steps, and flattens myself against the off side of the vestibule door. Then I waits.

It ain't more'n a minute before I hears the door openin' cautious, and all I has to do is shove my foot out and throw my weight against the knob. Somebody lets out a howl of surprise and in another minute I'm inside, facin' a twelve-year old kid armed with a green tin squirt gun. He's one of these aristocratic lookin' youngsters, with silky light hair, big dark eyes, and a sulky mouth. Also he's had somethin' of a scare thrown into him by being caught so unexpected ;but some of his nerve is still left.

"You—you get out of here!" he snarls.

"Not until you've had a dose of what you handed me, sonny," says I "Give it now, Reggie boy!"

"I won't!" says he. "I—I'll have you thrown out!"

"You will, eh?" says I, makin' a rush for him.

"O-o-o-oh, Aunty, Aunty!" he squeals, dashin' down the hall.

Now, say, the way I was feelin' then, I'd have gone up against a whole fam'ly, big brothers included; so a little thing like a call for Aunty don't stop me at all. As he turns into the room on the left I'm only a jump behind, and all that fetches me up is when he does a dive behind an old lady in a big leather chair. She's a wide, heavy old party, with a dinky white cap on her white hair, and a kind of resigned, patient look on her face. Someway, she acts like she was more or less used to surprises like this; for she doesn't seem much excited.

"Why, Hadley!" she remarks. "Whatever is the mater now?"

"He—he chased me into the house!" whines Master Hadley from behind the chair.

"Did," says I. "He's too blamed fresh!"

"There, there!" says she. "You mustn't speak that way of Hadley. He is only a little boy, you know."

"Yes'm," says I.

"And he was only indulging in innocent play," she goes on. "Come, Hadley, untie me, now, please, Hadley!"

Say, I hadn't noticed it before, but the old girl is roped solid, feet and arms, to the chair legs, and it's clear that when nobody was goin' by for little Hadley to shoot at he'd been usin' Anty for a target. The damp spots on the wall behind the chair and one or two on her dress, showed that.

"I won't, unless you'll call Maggie and have her throw him out!" growls Hadley.

"Oh, come, Hadley, be a good boy!" coaxes Aunty.

"Sha'n't!" says Hadley. "And next time I'll shoot ink at you."

"Now, Hadley!" protests Aunty.

"Excuse me, lady," says I, "but it looks to me like there was something comin' to Hadley that I ought to tend to. This ain't on my account, either, but yours. Now watch. Hi, freshy!" and I makes another dash for him.

Well, he knows the lay of the land better'n I do, and he's quick on the dodge, so we has a lively time of it for a couple of minutes, him throwin' chairs in my way and hurdlin' sofas. Aunty beggin' us to quit and callin' for Maggie, and me keepin' right on the job. But at last I got him cornered. He makes a desp'rate duck and tries to butt me; but I catches his head under my arm and down he goes on the rug. I'd just yanked the squirt gun out of his hand and was emptyin' it down the back of his neck, with him hollerin' blue murder, and Aunty strugglin' to get loose, when the front door opens and in walks a couple of ladies, one old and the other young.

And, say, you talk about your excitin 'tableaux! In about two shakes there's all kinds of excitement; for it seems one of the new arrivals is Hadley's mother, and she proceeds to join in the riot.

"Oh, my darling boy! My darling!" she sings out. "What is happening. He is being killed! Oh, he is being killed!"

"G'wan!" says I, gettin' up and exhibitin' the squirt gun. "I was only handin' him some of the same sport he's been dealin' out to others. It'll do him good."

"You—you young scoundrel!" says mommer. Then, turnin' to the old lady who came in with her, she gasps out, "Zenobia, telephone for the police!"

It's the real thing, too, and no flossy bluff about the lady's grouch. She's a swell, haughty lookin' party and she acts like she was used to havin' her own way about things. So the prospects begin to look squally. Not that I'm one to curl up and shiver at sight of a cop. Give me plenty of room to do the hotfoot act, and I don't mind guyin 'any of them pavement pounders; but with me shut up in a house where I hadn't been invited in, and a bunch of excited females as witnesses against me, it's a diff'rent proposition. This was no time to weaken though.

"Go ahead," says I. "Double six-O-four-two Gramercy; that's the green light number for this district. And Uncle Patrick'll be glad to see you. Tell him you got charges to make on his nephew. That'll tickle him to death. Maybe I'll have something to say when we all get ther, too."

"What do you mean?" says Hadley's mother.

"Counter complaint, that's all," says I. "Your little darling soaked me first."

"It—it isn't true!" says she. "I don't believe it!"

And here Zenobia comes in with the soothin' advice. She's another white haired old lady, lookin' something like the one in the chair, only not so bulky and with more ginger about her. "Now, Sally," says she, "let's not talk of calling in the police over a trifle Hadley doesn't appear to be hurt, and possibly he was somewhat at fault."

"The idea!" says Sallie. "Why, I saw this young ruffian pummeling him. And look! Martha is bound in her chair. He's a burglar!"

Oh, they had a great debate amongst 'em, Aunt Martha fin'lly admittin' it was just a little prank of Hadley's, her being roped down; but she was sure I had tried to murder him, just for nothing at all. Hadley says so too. In fact, he tells even diff'rent yarns in as many minutes, each one makin' me out worse than the last.

"There!" says his mother. "Now, Zenobia, will you send for an officer?"

Nope, Zenobia wouldn't; anyway, not until she had more facts to go on. She don't deny that maybe I'm kind of a suspicious lookin' character, and says it ain't been explained what I was doin' in there holdin' little Hadley on the rug; but she don't want to ring up the cops unless it's a clear case.

"You know, my dear," she winds up with, "Hadley is quite apt to get into trouble."

"Zenobia Preble!" snorts Sallie; her eyes blazin'. "And he your own flesh and blood! Come, precious, mother will take you home, and you shall never, never come to this house again!"

"There, Sally," begins Zenobia, "don't fly into a —"

"When my husband's mother chooses to insult me in her own home," says Sallie. "I hope I have spirit enough to resent it!"

Say, she had that and some left over. Inside of two minutes she's hustled little Hadley into his own things ,and out they sails to her carriage, leavin' the makin's of a first class fam'ly row all prepared.

In the meantime Zenobia is tyin' Aunt Martha loose, and I'm standin' around waitin' to see what's goin' to happen to me next. Course, I expects the third degree; but she begins with Martha.

"Now what mischief was Hadley up to this time?" she asks.

And Martha sticks to it that it was nothing at all. He merely found that old plant sprayer and discovered that by unscrewing the nozzle it

The Port of Missing Men.

"Which is not so simple, after all, as one studies the situation. Mr. Armitage is here, quite within reach. We suspect him of being a person of distinction. He evinced unusual interest in a certain document that was once in your hands"—

"Our own hands, if you would be accurate."

"You are captious. But, granted so, we must get them back. The gentleman is dwelling in a bungalow on the mountain side for greater convenience in watching events and wooing the lady of his heart's desire. We employed a clumsy clown to put him out of the world, but he dies hard, and now we have got to get rid of him. But if he hasn't the papers on his clothes then you have this pleasant scheme for kidnaping him, getting him down to your steamer at Baltimore and cruising with him until he is ready to come to terms. The American air has done much for your imagination, my dear Jules, or possibly the altitude of the hills has overstimulated it."

"You are not the fool you look, my dear Durand. You have actually taken a fair grasp of the situation."

"But the adorable young lady, the fair Mlle. Claiborne—what becomes of her in these transactions?"

"That is none of your affair," replied Chauvenet, frowning. "I am quite content with my progress. I have not finished in that matter."

"Neither, it would seem, has Mr. John Armitage. But I am quite well satisfied to leave it to you. In a few days we shall know much more than we do now. I should be happier if you were in charge in Vienna. A false step there—ugh! I hesitate to think of the wretched mess there would be."

"Trust Winkelried to do his full duty. You must not forget that the acute Stroebel now sleeps the long sleep and that many masses have already been said for the repose of his intrepid soul."

"The splendor of our undertaking is enough to draw his ghost from the grave. Ugh! By this time Zmai should have filed our cablegram at the Springs and got your mail at the hotel. I hope you have not misplaced your confidence in the operator there. Coming back our giant must pass Armitage's house."

"Trust him to pass it. His encounters with Armitage have not been to his credit."

The two men were dressed in rough clothes, as for an outing, and in spite of the habitual trifling tone of their talk they wore a serious air. Durand's eyes danced with excitement, and he twisted his mustache nervously. Chauvenet had gone to Washington to meet Durand, to get from him news of the progress of the conspiracy in Vienna and, not least, to berate him for crossing the Atlantic. "I do not require watching, my dear Durand," he had said.

"A man in love, dearest Jules, sometimes forgets." But they had gone into the Virginia hills amicably and were quartered with the postmaster. They waited now for Zmai, whom they had sent to the Springs with a message and to get Chauvenet's mail. Armitage, they had learned, used the Lamar telegraph office, and they had decided to carry their business elsewhere.

While they waited in the bare upper room of the inn for Zmai the big Servian tramped up the mountain side with an aching head and a heart heavy with dread. The horse he had left tied in a thicket when he plunged down through the Claiborne place had broken free and run away, so that he must now trudge back afoot to report to his masters. He had made a mess of his errands and nearly lost his life besides. The bullet from Oscar's revolver had cut a neat furrow in his scalp, which was growing sore and stiff as it ceased bleeding. He would undoubtedly be dealt with harshly by Chauvenet and Durand, but he knew that the sooner he reported his calamities the better, so he stumbled toward Lamar, pausing at times to clasp his small head in his great hands. When he passed the wild tangle that hid Armitage's bungalow he paused and cursed the two occupants in his own dialect with a fierce, vile tongue. It was near midnight when he reached the tavern and climbed the rickety stairway to the room where the two men waited.

Chauvenet opened the door at his approach, and they cried aloud as the great figure appeared before them and the lamp light fell upon his dark, blood smeared face.

"The letters!" snapped Chauvenet.

"Is the message safe?" demanded Durand.

"Lost! Lost! They are lost! I lost my way, and he nearly killed me—the little soldier—as I crossed a strange field."

When they had jerked the truth from Zmai, Chauvenet flung open the door and bawled through the house for the innkeeper.

"Horses! Saddle our two horses quick, and get another if you have to steal it!" he screamed. Then he turned into the room to curse Zmai, while Durand with a towel and water sought to ease the ache in the big fellow's head and cleanse his face.

"So that beggarly little servant did it, did he? He stole that paper I had given you, did he? What do you imagine I brought you to this country for if you are to let two stupid fools play with you as though you were a clown?"

The Servian, on his knees before Durand, suffered the torrent of abuse meekly. He was a scoundrel, hired to do murder, and his vilification by an angered employer did not greatly trouble him, particularly since he understood little of Chauvenet's rapid German.

In half an hour Chauvenet was again in a fury, learning at Lamar that the operator had gone down the road twenty miles to a dance and would not be back until morning.

"We have no time to lose. That message must go tonight. You may be sure M. Armitage will not send it for us. Come, we've got to go down to Storm Springs."

They rode away in the starlight, leaving the postmaster alarmed and wondering. Chauvenet and Durand were well mounted on horses that Chauvenet had sent into the hills in advance of his own coming. Zmai rode grim and silent on a clumsy plow horse, which was the best the publican could find for him. The knife was not the only weapon he had known in Servia. He carried a potato sack across his saddle bow. Chauvenet and Durand sent him ahead to set the pace with his inferior mount. They talked together in low tones as they followed.

"He is not so big a fool, this Armitage," remarked Durand. "He is quite deep, in fact. I wish it were he we are trying to establish on a throne and not that pitiful scapegrace in Vienna."

"I gave him his chance down there in the valley, and he laughed at me. It is quite possible that he is not a fool and quite certain that he is not a coward."

"Then he would not be a safe king. Our young friend in Vienna is a good deal of a fool and altogether a coward. We shall have to provide him with a spine at his coronation."

"If we fail"— began Chauvenet.

"You suggest a fruitful but unpleasant topic. If we fail we shall be fortunate if we reach the hospitable shores of the Argentine for future residence. Paris and Vienna would not know us again. If Winkelried succeeds in Vienna and we lose here, where do we arrive?"

"We arrive quite where Mr. Armitage chooses to land us. He is a gentleman of resources; he has money; he laughs cheerfully at misadventures; he has had you watched by the shrewdest eyes in Europe, and you are considered a hard man to keep track of, my dear Durand. And not least important, he has tonight snatched away that little cablegram that was the signal to Winkelried to go ahead. He is a very annoying and vexatious person, this Armitage. Even Zmai, whose knife made him a terror in Servia, seems unable to cope with him."

"And the fair daughter of the valley"—

"Fish! We are not discussing the young lady."

"I can understand how unpleasant the subject must be to you, my dear Jules. What do you imagine she knows of M. Armitage? If he is the man we think he is, and a possible heir to a great throne, it would be impossible for her to marry him."

"His tastes are democratic. In Montana he is quite popular."

Durand flung away his cigarette and laughed suddenly.

"Has it occurred to you that this whole affair is decidedly amusing? Here we are in one of the free American states about to turn a card that will dethrone a king if we are lucky. And here is a man we are trying to get out of the way—a man we might make king if he were not a fool! In America! It touches my sense of humor, my dear Jules!"

An exclamation from Zmai arrested them. The Servian jerked up his horse, and they were instantly at his side. They had reached a point near the hunting preserve in the main highway. It was about half past 1 o'clock, an hour at which Virginia mountain roads are usually free of travelers, and they had been sending their horses along as briskly as the uneven roads and the pace of Zmai's laggard beast permitted.

The beat of a horse's hoofs could be heard quite distinctly in the road ahead of them. The road tended downward, and the strain of the ascent was marked in the approaching animal's walk. In a moment the three men heard the horse's quick snort of satisfaction as it reached leveler ground. Then, scenting the other animals, it threw up its head and neighed shrilly.

In the dusk of starlight Durand saw Zmai dismount and felt the Servian's big, rough hand touch his in passing the bridle of his horse.

"Wait!" said the Servian.

The horse of the unknown paused, neighed again and refused to go farther. A man's deep voice encouraged him in low tones. The horses of Chauvenet's party danced about restlessly, responsive to the nervousness of the strange beast before them.

"Who goes there?"

The stranger's horse was quiet for an instant, and the rider had forced him so near that the beast's upreined head and the erect shoulders of the horseman were quite clearly defined.

"Who goes there?" shouted the rider, while Chauvenet and Durand bent their eyes toward him, their hands tight on their bridles, and listened, waiting for Zmai. They heard a sudden rush of steps, the impact of his giant body as he flung himself upon the shrinking horse, and then a cry of alarm and rage. Chauvenet slipped down and ran forward with the quick, soft glide of a cat and caught the bridle of the stranger's horse. The horseman struggled in Zmai's great arms, and his beast plunged wildly. No words passed. The rider had kicked his feet out of the stirrups and gripped the horse hard with his legs. His arms were flung up to protect his head, over which Zmai tried to force the sack.

"The knife?" bawled the Servian.

"No!" answered Chauvenet.

"The devil!" yelled the rider, and dug his spurs into the rearing beast's flanks.

Chauvenet held on valiantly with both hands to the horse's head. Once the frightened beast swung him clear of the ground. A few yards distant Durand sat on his own horse and held the bridles of the others. He soothed the restless animals in low tones, the light of his cigarette shaking oddly in the dark with the movement of his lips.

The horse ceased to plunge. Zmai held its rider erect with his left arm while the right drew the sack down over the head and shoulders of the prisoner.

"Tie him," said Chauvenet, and Zmai buckled a strap about the man's arms and bound them tight.

The dust in the bag caused the man inside to cough, but save for the one exclamation he had not spoken. Chauvenet and Durand conferred in low tones while Zmai drew out a tether strap and snapped it to the curb bit of the captive's horse.

"The fellow takes it pretty coolly," remarked Durand, lighting a fresh cigarette. "What are you going to do with him?"

"We will take him to his own place—it is near—and coax the papers out of him. Then we'll find a precipice and toss him over. It is a simple matter."

Zmai handed Chauvenet the revolver he had taken from the silent man on the horse.

"I am ready," he reported.

"Go ahead; we follow." And they started toward the bungalow, Zmai riding beside the captive and holding fast to the led horse. Where the road was smooth they sent the horses forward at a smart trot. But the captive accepted the gait. He found the stirrups again and sat his saddle straight. He coughed now and then, but the hemp sack was sufficiently porous to give him a little air. As they rode off his silent submission caused Durand to ask:

"Are you sure of the man, my dear Jules?"

"Undoubtedly. I didn't get a square look at him, but he's a gentleman by the quality of his clothes. He is the same build. It is not a plow horse, but a thoroughbred he's riding. The gentlemen of the valley are in their beds long ago."

"Would that we were in ours! The spring nights are cold in these hills!"

"The work is nearly done. The little soldier is yet to reckon with. But we are three, and Zmai did quite well with the potato sack."

Chauvenet rode ahead and addressed a few words to Zmai.

"The little man must be found before we finish. There must be no mistake about it."

They exercised greater caution as they drew nearer the wood that concealed the bungalow, and Chauvenet dismounted, opened the gate and set a stone against it to insure a ready egress. Then they walked their horses up the driveway.

WONDERFUL CURATIVE QUALITIES OF FRUIT

Demonstrated by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Physicians puzzled over the strange case of Kingston girl. Nothing did her any good until the Famous Fruit Medicine completely restored her to health.

The people are awakening to the marvellous powers of fruit juice as a preventative and cure of disease. "Fruit-a-tives,"—the only medicine in the world actually made of fruit juice—has demonstrated the extraordinary value of fruit juice even in cases that were apparently hopeless. The strange case of Miss Mable Todd, of Kingston, Ontario, well illustrates the wonderful properties of "Fruit-a-tives."

From a happy, rosy cheeked girl, she had become pale and thin and so weak that she could hardly stand. Her many friends knew that something serious was the matter. The best medical attention was sought but the ordinary resources of the physician failed to do any good.

As a last resort, "Fruit-a-tives" was tried. Read the result.

MISS MABLE TODD.

91 CLERGY ST.
KINGSTON, ONT.

November 4th, 1909

"I suffered for some years with a dangerous form of Heart Trouble. There was severe pain over the heart and down the arms, severe Palpitation, Headaches, Constipation and Indigestion. I became so weak that I could hardly stand and my friends were greatly alarmed. I was treated by physicians and took many remedies but none did me any good. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this medicine completely cured me of all Heart Disease, Constipation and Stomach Trouble and gave me back perfect health."

MISS MABLE TODD.

"Fruit-a-tives" made this wonderful cure because "Fruit-a-tives" is a magnificent heart tonic and nerve tonic. "Fruit-a-tives" soothes the stomach and stimulates the liver, kidneys and skin, thus purifying the blood and restoring the heart action. "Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c., or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Proving by Actual Experiment

This experiment will always interest the children, and will provoke a good deal of thinking. The explanation, of course, is, that the lighted piece of paper which is inserted into the inverted glass drives out most of the air, so that when the mouth of the glass is quickly put down into the water there is very little air, and, consequently, very little pressure above the water within the glass. Hence, the weight or pressure of the air on the water outside the glass drives the water up into the glass to occupy the space from whence the air was driven by the burning paper.

A practical demonstration of this kind is always more convincing than any mere statement. This is particularly true of medical remedies.

The effect of the anti-toxin treatment for diphtheria is noticeable within a few hours, so that everyone must believe in its virtue. In a similar way, the treatment known as ORANGE LILY gives a practical proof of the progress it is making in curing women's disorders, and that, too, within a few days after commencing its use.

All authorities agree that in every case of women's disorders there exists a congested condition of the womanly organs. The circulation in these parts is sluggish or stagnant, and the result is that the broken-down tissue or waste matter which should be carried off if the blood was circulating freely, remains in these parts, causing inflammation, irritation, oppression of the nerves, etc. ORANGE LILY is not taken internally, but is applied direct to the suffering organs. It is absorbed into the circulation, and its antiseptic properties at once act on the waste matter referred to above. The consequence is that this waste matter, which is causing the inflammation, ulcers, nervous troubles, etc., begins to be discharged, and it continues to be discharged until all the foreign matter is removed from the circulation. At the same time the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened, the nervous trouble disappears, the circulation is restored and good health follows.

Toronto, Ont., June 2, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah.—I wish to tell you that Orange Lily is doing me a great deal of good. Those ulcers come away one or two every week, and I have less pain and fewer headaches. I feel sure I will be perfectly cured in a little longer time.
MRS. D. S. T.

The explanation of the wonderful cures performed by ORANGE LILY is very simple. It is a scientific remedy, based on the discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. The conditions existing in all female troubles are alike in character, differing in degree and development only, so that a positive remedy, as ORANGE LILY is, acts with all the certainty of a chemical experiment. In order to convince every suffering woman that ORANGE LILY will cure her. I make the following

Free Trial Offer

I will send to every reader of this notice who suffers in any way from any of the troubles peculiar to women, if she will send me her address, enough of the ORANGE LILY treatment to last her 10 days. In many cases this trial treatment is all that is necessary to effect a complete cure, and in every instance it will give very noticeable relief. If you are a sufferer you owe it to yourself, to your family and to your friends to take advantage of this offer, and get cured in the privacy of your home, without doctor's bills or expense of any kind.

Her Daughter Took Very Sick As Result Of Catching Cold.

Mrs. Dennis Delaney, Friar's Head, N.S., writes: "At the close of the year 1907, our youngest daughter, five years old, took very sick as the result of catching cold. She became very weak and could not move around at all. We consulted doctors and gave her various kinds of medicine but they did not seem to relieve her any. On the advice of a friend I procured a bottle of your valuable remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using the first bottle noticeable improvement was the result and after using three bottles she was entirely cured. I can certify that it was through your valuable remedy that she regained her strength and would advise every mother having young ones similarly afflicted to obtain your valuable remedy. For myself I would not be without a bottle in the house."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree combined with Wild Cherry bark and other pectoral remedies. It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. Price 25 cents at all dealers. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

ANNIVERSARY OF PAARDEBERG.

It Recalls Story of How Globe Man Beat His Rivals.

The tenth anniversary of Paardeberg Day, which occurred on Feb. 27, must have sad memories for many a Canadian household, for while the battle with the spectacular charge of the Royal Canadians brought fame and prestige to Canada throughout and beyond the limits of the Empire, it was attended by a heavy toll of death and injury. At the present juncture, it may be interesting to relate a little story, never before published, of how the list of dead and wounded reached Canada. The first publication of this list, more than a full day before the names reached Canada from any other source, was probably the most important "scoop" obtained by The Toronto Globe in its long history. It was accomplished by Charles Frederick Hamilton, now of Ottawa.

Mr. Hamilton, who was then a reporter on The Globe staff, has always made a hobby of military matters, and has a vast knowledge of the subject. When the South African war broke out he was the man detailed by The Globe to go with the regiment. Once on the sands of South Africa, this knowledge gave him an advantage over the other Canadian newspaper men. He understood the various movements better than the others, and was able to smell an engagement when the future seemed to hold nothing for his associates. Thus, when the turning point of the war came, and the British got warm on Cronje's trail, he foresaw a bloody battle and made his preparations to forward a death list. He had with him a Kaffir "boy" of rare reliability, and a pony of fine endurance. He had also taken precautions to carry with him when the final movement commenced sufficient funds for any ordinary emergency. After the battle the majority of the correspondents attached to Lord Roberts' army were concerned only in sending picturesque accounts of the battle, but to the Canadian newspaper men the names of the Canadian casualties were the most important. The Montreal Star was represented by William R. Smith, now of The New York Tribune, and he had an arrangement with the Canadian commandant that he would forward for him any official report to Ottawa at the same time as he sent his despatch to Montreal. This arrangement looked good enough to beat all the other fellows, but it didn't pan out. Hamilton's superior preparedness enabled him to despatch his Kaffir with more despatch and better mounted; moreover, he entrusted him with enough cash to send the despatch through as a private message. This was the most fortunate move of all.

When the Kaffir "boy" arrived at the telegraph office after nearly a day in the saddle, he found that the company was not accepting for the time being despatches at press rates. And promptly paid the whole enormous sum demanded for a cablegram from the Orange Free State to Toronto at the private rate per word. When Smith's "boy" arrived with the official despatch and The Montreal Star's report some hours later than Hamilton's "boy," he found himself without funds to meet the emergency, and a long delay ensued while he rode back for more money.

Thus The Globe was on the streets of Toronto with the death list, and it had been copied and telegraphed all over Canada before the other list left the lone telegraph office on the veldt. It was good organization and a good Kaffir "boy" that turned the trick.

Railways Saves Millions of Dollars.

The light snowfall this winter has saved the great railway systems of the country millions of dollars.

The Grand Trunk and C.P.R. were in the habit of estimating expenditures in connection with the normal snowfall at from half a million to one million dollars each.

During the very severe winter of four years ago, the Grand Trunk calculated the loss through wages, through delays, through the demoralization of business, at a million and a quarter.

The C.P.R. was not quite so bad as this, but suffered heavily.

This year, so far, the expenditure by reason of the snowfall, has been almost nil.

Except for a slight trouble during one big snowstorm, the traffic has not been delayed. Travel has been well maintained owing to the mild weather, and only once have the plows been out.

In heavy storms the men are overworked, and accidents are liable to happen. The cuttings here and there on the systems are filled up, and progress is impossible.

If intense cold accompanies or follows the snow, the engines get frozen, and damage to them ensues.

He Gave It.

SOFT WHITE HANDS On Rising

Fully Grown.

The old lady had a son who intended to emigrate to Canada as soon as possible, and, as he was temporarily confined to his room, she had promised to find out as much as she could from the information office.

Accordingly she entered the building the next morning, and was particularly struck by the stuffed head of a Canadian moose that graced one of the walls.

"Young man," she said to the clerk, "what kind of an animile is that? A hipperpottymus?"

"No, ma'am," was the answer "it's a Canadian moose."

"What!" she cried. "You beast a Canadian mouse! Well, that beats anything I ever heard! I wonder what the rats out there is like?"

The Real Test.

"But did the baby ever get hold of one of his pipes? That's the real test."—Buffalo Express.

The Work of Time.

Odd Signs.

A tinman in the south of England has a sign which reads, "Quart Measures of All Shapes and Sizes Sold Here."

At a market town in the midlands the following placard was affixed to the shutters of a watchmaker who had decamped, leaving his confiding creditors mourning: "Wound Up and the Mainspring Broke."

In one of the principal streets of another small town the same shop was occupied by a doctor and a shoemaker, the man of medicine having the front and he of the leather working in the rear. Over the door hung the sign, "We Repair Both Body and Sole."

On the window of a coffee room there one day appeared the notice, "This Coffee Room Removed Upstairs Till Repaired."

Playful Monkeys.

Apes and gorillas are usually vicious and resentful and less addicted to playful tricks than the common monkey. Indeed, the monkey, as we all know, is a trickster both in his wild and domestic state. In their native forests monkeys spend hours in swinging from the branches of trees, suspended by their tails, and chattering and grimacing with evident signs of delight. Humboldt mentions seeing over a hundred so employed in a South American forest.

Nothing Miraculous.

"You had rheumatism in your right leg for years and were cured of it in an instant? How?"

"By being accidentally mixed up in a train wreck. My right leg is a cork leg now."—Chicago Tribune.

A Versatile Garden.

The dwellers in a seaport town of Massachusetts are justly proud of their gardens. It remained for a visitor from a tiny village "way round the Cape" to say the first slightly disparaging word of these gardens. "Isn't this beautiful?" his hostess asked as she paused under a rose arbor and looked back over the stately ranks of larkspur, monk's hood, hollyhocks and many other favorites.

"It's a handsome gardin—of its kind," said the visitor dispassionately, "but it ain't quite up to the mark when you consider our gardins."

"Indeed!" and the lady looked at him, too amazed to be angry. "What sort of gardens have you, please?"

"Well," said her Cape visitor calmly, "what we call a good gardin is one where you can start out with two big baskets and a hoe, step through the flower gardin part, past the vegetables, down to the water; dig your clams fust, pick your sweet corn, lay your posies on top o' that and hand the whole lot over at the kitchen door. There's your shore dinner and trimmin's all from one gardin."—Youth's Companion.

The Wise Woodpecker.

In California the woodpecker stores acorns away, although he never eats them. He bores several holes, differing slightly in size, at the fall of the year invariably in a pine tree. Then he finds an acorn, which he adjusts to one of the holes prepared for its reception. But he does not eat the acorn, for, as a rule, he is not a vegetarian. His object in storing away the acorns exhibits foresight and a knowledge of results more akin to reason than to instinct. The succeeding winter the acorns remain intact, but, becoming saturated, are predisposed to decay, when they are attacked by maggots, which seem to delight in this special food. It is then that the woodpecker reaps the harvest his wisdom has provided at a time when, the ground being covered with snow, he would experience difficulty otherwise in obtaining suitable or palatable food.—Cleveland Leader.

Not Tending to Business.

A country doctor was recently called upon to visit a patient some way from his office. Driving to where the sick man lived, he tied his horse to a tree in front of the house and started to walk across the ground. It happened that work was in progress on a new well, of which the doctor knew nothing until he found himself sinking into the earth. He fell just far enough to be unable to get out of the hole unassisted and lustily yelled for help.

When he was finally pulled up the hired man remarked to him:

"I say, doc, you had no business down there."

"No; I don't think I had," replied the doctor.

"Don't you know," continued the hired man, "you ought leave the well alone and take care of the sick?"—Lippincott's.

Inherited Dreams.

A medical scientist claims that many dreams are really hereditary—that is to say, they come down to us from ancestors. Many persons have a dream which they dream over and over again. This and some others that are frequent, according to the authority referred to, are inherited. The doctor observed, for instance, that a child of six years after an attack of typhoid fever saw in its slumber a figure clad in black, which advanced to the foot of the bed and fixed upon him its shining eyes. It was found that the father of the child had frequently dreamed that dream, although he had never mentioned it to his child. The grandfather dreamed the same dream, although he had told no one about it. Evidently there is more than our philosophy can fathom in "the stuff that dreams are made of."

Pensions From Napoleon.

Paris has a dozen old soldiers who draw pensions that come to them from the great Emperor Napoleon I. These are not heroes of his epoch, for the last of those died long years ago. But Napoleon by his will devised several millions of francs to his companions in arms, and this capital in default of heirs of the grand army was deposited in the public treasury. Today the revenue this fund produces is paid out in the form of pensions of 200 francs each to old soldiers in French territory, and Paris has twelve of these beneficiaries to whom at the first of the year these little pensions are remitted.—Paris Figaro.

A Wise Woman.

Mr. Snaggle (snappishly)—Don't be correcting that boy always, Sarah. Let nature take its course, won't you? Mrs. Snaggle (laying aside the shingle)—I'll do nothing of the sort, Mr. Snaggle. I don't intend that any woman shall have such a husband as I've got if I can prevent it.

A Paradoxical Reply.

"Doctor, do you think eyeglasses will alter my appearance?" inquired Mrs. Gunson anxiously.

"I shall at least expect them to improve your looks," replied the physician.—Lippincott's.

The Air We Breathe.

A person requires twenty cubic inches of fresh air each respiration, or an average of 400 per minute. In ten hours' sleep he consumes 180 cubic feet of air. The air of a bedroom ten feet square, having its doors and windows closed and occupied by one person, would become unfit for respiration in four hours.

Toilet and Medicinal Preparations Are Compounded by Expert Chemists

Who Compounds Your Medicines?

When your physician gives you a prescription you would scarcely risk having it compounded by a grocer or a baker, even if you were sure they had the right drugs. You insist on your druggist's skilful dispensing.

If you did not protect yourself in this way the laws of the country would protect you, for they demand that physicians' prescriptions be dispensed by physicians or qualified druggists only.

Is it not equally important to know that the household remedies, such as laxatives, cough syrups and tonics, and the toilet preparations such as tooth paste, which you use so frequently, are also compounded by expert chemists?

When you use NA-DRU-CO medicinal or toilet preparations you have the positive guarantee of one of the largest wholesale drug firms in the world, the National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, that each one has been compounded by expert chemists only.

This is just where NA-DRU-CO Cascara Laxatives, NA-DRU-CO Liquorice, Linseed, and Chlorodyne Cough Syrup, NA-DRU-CO Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound and everything else on the NA-DRU-CO list are pre-eminently better than mixtures at present flooding the market. They are compounded by men who know.

NA-DRU-CO Formulae, Ingredients and Compounding Are Best

Your own druggist could not be more careful or more accurate in compounding one of your physician's prescriptions than are our chemists in compounding every NA-DRU-CO preparation. Add to this the facts that only the best and purest materials that money can buy are used in NA-DRU-CO articles, and that each NA-DRU-CO formula has been thoroughly tested in actual use, and you have the solid grounds for the implicit confidence we want you to feel in NA-DRU-CO preparations.

We are prepared to furnish to any physician or druggist in Canada, on request, a full list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO article. Ask these men, who are men of standing in your community, and best qualified to tell you, all about NA-DRU-CO preparations.

If any NA-DRU-CO article you buy does not prove entirely satisfactory return it to your druggist. He has our authority to refund the full purchase price and charge it to us.

You can get any NA-DRU-CO preparation anywhere in Canada, for if your druggist should not have it in stock he can get it within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

BAR MERE MAN FROM THIS BANK

New London Institution Has Only Women Depositors and Clerks.

WIDE BUSINESS RANGE

Handling of Accounts, Insurance, Even Stock and Bond Selling, Will Be Taken Care Of.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

WOMEN in England were much interested when the cables reported that Mrs. E. H. Harriman had taken over a controlling interest in the Night and Day Bank in New York city. But now they proudly affirm that London has gone a step further through the opening of a bank for women exclusively. This new financial institution, though really a branch of Farrow's Bank, Limited, is conducted solely by women and, to all intents and purposes, will maintain its individual unity as an establishment in which mere man will not be a factor. Hence, even the most militant suffragette is elated and has chalked this up as another victory over the sex which is privileged, in existing circumstances, to officiate at the ballot box.

At this anti-Adamite institution a woman may open an account with only $25, and thus become the possessor of a check book from which slips of properly inscribed paper may be distributed on shopping tours. There is a safety deposit vault annex, while an insurance business also is handled, and the bank will buy or sell stocks or bonds for those members of the fair sex who may care to risk a "flyer" in the realms of speculation. If mysterious kinks are suddenly tied in market conditions, Wall street now may have a hint as to the source of the influence.

Miss May Bateman, author of a number of poems and a handful of novels, who has had journalistic experience extending from London to South Africa, has been deluged with congratulatory telegrams on assuming her position as pioneer woman bank manager in the United Kingdom.

"How does one qualify to be a bank manager?" repeated this recruit to the banking world, as her two chief cashiers, Miss H. Dunstan and Miss E. Stocker, stood near by as if preparing to lend assistance in repelling interviewers. "Well, that's difficult to answer. You see I just applied for this post, and I am happy to say that I was chosen from among several hundred other applicants. So, apparently, there is plenty of confident feminine material for bank presidencies. But I always have dabbled with figures. When I was eighteen years of age I was private secretary to Sir Douglas Gordon, of the Board of Trade. He was interested in innumerable affairs; he was treasurer, for one thing, of a big hospital. I handled all the accounts, too, of his private farm. Then, also, I kept all my mother's accounts, those of our own estate, for years.

"One must remember certain things, though, as a bank manager. I admit that I have been keenly interested in the progress of woman's advancement. But when you take up the management of a bank you have to bury all your personal views about politics, the ballot and similar controversial subjects. You must preserve a detached, or, at any rate, an absolutely impartial attitude. I am hugely enthusiastic, however. Think of it. This is the first woman's bank in this country. That means a new profession for women, and who knows what may come of it? The whole staff is composed exclusively of women, and I want to say, too, that their salaries compare well with the wages paid male employes in any bank, so there will be no talk about women ousting men from professions by taking lower wages.

SMALL DEPOSITS.

"We hope to provide many special advantages for women. In the first place, they can open a checking account with a deposit of only five pounds. Heretofore, the large deposits required by nearly all other banks have barred that privilege to women of limited means. Interest will be paid at the rate of two and one-half per cent a year on the amount standing to the credit of the account when a minimum balance of ten pounds has been maintained for six months.

"There will be no fees exacted, either, for handling small accounts. That will be a convenience for the girl with a small dress allowance who wants a check book, and I think it is only when a girl possesses a check book that she really understands the use and value of [illegible]

LONDON, Saturday.

THE engagements, within only a fortnight of each other, of two of the most prominent Anglo-American society girls to the heirs of two Earldoms has caused quite a wave of excitement in London. Both prospective brides are intimate friends. Miss Drexel and Miss Carter have always seen much of each other, have lunched and shopped together, and at bazaars have shared the same stalls. They had mutually agreed that whichever married first should have the other for chief bridesmaid.

MRS. DREXEL IN DARK.

Now the question arises, which of the two will first be a bride? Both are to be married in June, one before, one after Ascot. Miss Mildred Carter's marriage may be celebrated first, as Mrs. Ridgely Carter's presence is required at Bucharest, her husband having only just taken up his Ministerial duties there. The date for Miss Margaretta Drexel's wedding will somewhat depend upon the after marriage arrangements her brother, Mr. Anthony Drexel, Jr., and his bride may make. At present the family do not even know whether they will be able to come over for their honeymoon or not, for Mr. Drexel is leaving the banking firm of Drexel & Sons on his marriage to enter business which may require his presence in America. The rumor has reached here that his wedding will take place about the middle of April.

Mrs. Drexel, who leaves early next month for New York, is somewhat in the dark as to the detailed arrangements made by her son and his fiancée and laughingly tells her friends that when she wants information she looks for it in the papers, as her son is far too absorbed to find time for letters or even cables. Miss Margaretta Drexel is very anxious that her brother should be present at her wedding. There is a difference of only seventeen months between their ages, and they have been as devoted and almost as inseparable as twins since childhood.

A few of the bridesmaids already have been selected. They include Lady Theo Acheson, only unmarried sister of Miss Mildred Carter's fiancé; Lady Constance Combe, and Miss Rhoda Astley, the Dowager Lady Hastings' daughter. The German Emperor, who, as already has been reported in America, sent a personal telegram of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Drexel, has not yet seen Miss Drexel, but it is certain she will be presented as his Court after her marriage to Lord Maidstone.

Lord and Lady Deerhurst are in future to make their country residence near Croome Court, in order that Lord Deerhurst may be near his father, Lord Coventry, to help him in the management of the estate, as Lord Coventry is now in his seventy-third year. Lady Deerhurst is at present staying at Croome Court until the house on the estate which Lord Coventry is building for them shall be completed.

SHAKESPEARE PAGEANT.

Mrs. George Cornwallis West, who has just gone to Cannes as the guest of Lord and Lady Savile, is still planning her Shakespeare pageant, but has now decided to give it in June, when every one is in town. Quadrilles, in which each set represents characters from one of the plays, are to be a leading feature, and various society leaders are being pressed into service to undertake to obtain the necessary number of dramatis personæ for each play.

Another part of the entertainment is, I understand, to take the form of a procession. Lady Paget, Lady Savile, Lady Gwendolen Churchill and Mrs. Hwfa Williams are of those who will take part in arranging the various parts, and the entertainment will be given in Covent Garden Opera House in aid of the proposed National Shakespeare Theatre.

Mrs. John J. Astor is still living very quietly, although she is giving a series of quiet little dinners at her house in Hill street to her daily increasing circle of friends. Mrs. Astor is a great favorite in English society.

Lady Cunard, who attended the first Court of this season, will take a trip to American during the month of April, but will be back in town for the season. Sir Bache Cunard will this year take a house here, though he was prevented from doing so last season owing to a severe attack of erysipelas which Lady Cunard contracted in Rome.

Northern Africa seems at present to be the favorite touring ground of Americans and English. Lord and Lady Greville are travelling in Tunis and Algiers, Mr. Ernest Cunard is also over there, and Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard Ronalds will soon be on their way there.

Lord and Lady Barrymore are still in South Africa and will not return until the first week in May. Miss Nellie Post is in town, and rumor foretells the announcement of her engagement ere long to a young Englishman well known at Court.

BRITISH NOBILITY IN AUTHORS' LIST

Dukes, Lords and Earls Among Those Who Have New Books in the Publishers' Hands.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE Earl of March, the Duke of Richmond's eldest son and heir, is about to publish a book on hunting, which will be of great interest to all "old sports," containing, as it does, a number of fine old sporting songs gathered from unpublished documents found at Goodwood House, where they have lain neglected for many years.

Lord March will one day have a great inheritance. Goodwood House, where he has been writing his book, has become a household word, owing to the splendid race parties which the Duke of Richmond gives there annually. Lady March, who is a niece of Lord Brassey, is a noted hostess and very popular.

Other highly placed authors are the Duke of Argyll, who also has a new book in the press; Lord Iddesleigh and Lord Ellesmere, who have each published a number of capital novels; the Earl of Ronaldshay, whose travel books are delightful reading; Lord Avebury, the most prolific writer of them all; the Earl of Rosebery, the Earl of Plymouth, the Earl of Wemyss and Lord Dunsany.

LONDON WOMEN FIGHT SOCIALISM

The Nobility Taking Active Part in Battle to Combat the Spreading of the Propaganda.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

A MOVEMENT has been started among social leaders in London to combat the socialist propaganda. It is run in connection with the Woman's Anti-Socialist Union of Great Britain, and it is said that the propaganda will be one of the great things of the season. The society leaders will in turn organize meetings in their drawing rooms. Indeed, two of these have already been held.

A large gathering of society women, nearly all of whom bear well known names in the peerage, assembled in the Countess of Halsbury's drawing room and listened to an address by the organizing secretary of the women's branch of the Anti-Socialist Union. Duchesses, marchionesses and countesses are not only joining the union but are taking out cards with a view to inducing their friends to become members. Several hundred cards have already been issued, and before the season is over it is reported that the society's fighting fund against socialism will have reached many thousands of pounds.

TO SEE SKELETON OF KING'S HORSE

Bones of Persimmon, Famous as a Derby Winner, To Be Placed on Exhibition at Vienna.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

King Edward has given his permission for the skeleton of his famous Derby winner, Persimmon, to be exhibited at the International Field Sports and Shooting Exhibition to be held at Vienna this summer. The skeleton was recently sent from Sandringham to the South Kensington Museum, but it will not be formally handed over to the museum authorities until its return from Vienna at the close of the exhibition. This relic of the English thoroughbred will undoubtedly prove a great attraction in the Austrian capital, where so many people are interested in horses and the turf.

WOMEN DRAW UP CHARTER.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

WHILE the Royal Commission on Divorce, as the official phrase somewhat ambiguously has it, continues to sit on the divorce laws of the United Kingdom and the possible need of their sweeping revision, the harvest of conflicting opinions gathered from the testimony of prominent lawyers and other experts on this subject has raised a storm of discussion, chiefly from argumentative women, that threatens to bring about a revolution in the marriage contract, the system of handling the family exchequer and the marital relationship. The Women's Charter of Rights and Liberty has been drafted, and many women's clubs are prepared to contend that that document will be the means of writing some history in the next few years.

Lady McLaren, who has been prominently identified with the authorship of this new declaration of independence, has promulgated the proposal that the bishops of the English Church shall be called upon by the House of Commons to draw up a new marriage service "in accordance with womanly dignity and legal truth." Sir Charles McLaren, M. P., has undertaken the sponsorship of several bills which will have to do with the newly drafted roster of the rights and liberties of women.

"Why, just think of it!" asserted Lady McLaren, in discussing this particular subject. "One section of the present marriage service recites, Wives, submit yourselves unto your husbands as unto the Lord, for the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the Church.' I mean no irreverence, but this compares the husband to a god. I do not deny their many godlike qualities, but I do not think a man can claim to have the authority of God.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR KING OF ENGLAND

British Sovereign Not Troubled with Selecting Ruling Power Now, as Was the Custom.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

KING EDWARD'S absence from England on his annual holiday and "cure" at Biarritz recalls the time when, on the Sovereign leaving his country, His Majesty had to appoint a body to whom the affairs of the Kingdom might be intrusted during his absence. Even down to the last reign this custom was still a matter of controversy. But in the nineteenth century the sovereign was much less frequently abroad than now, which is a change for the better, seeing how feeble diplomacy is to avert strife by comparison with the friendship of the monarchs.

In 1845, when Queen Victoria went to Antwerp, Her Majesty's trip occasioned a solemn debate in the House of Lords upon the necessity placed upon Her Majesty of appointing Lords Justices for the administration of the royal functions during her absence abroad.

Before skirting out on the royal progress of 1572, which included the famous visit to Kenilworth, Queen Elizabeth wrote to the Lord Mayor of London appointing for his assistance "during the time of our progress and absence in remote parts"—even one hundred miles from the capital was a "remote part" in those days—the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London and others. But these were times of difficult travelling, and Lord Campbell's precedents failed in 1845 to convince the Lords that the Queen was under any necessity or obligation to appoint anybody to administer the royal functions while she was abroad, so long as Her Majesty was accompanied by a Secretary of State, so that any act done by her on the Continent as a sovereign would have as much validity as if done within her own dominions.

ANCIENT CASLON HOUSE MUST GO

London Home of the Famous Typefounder, built in 1730, Soon to Fall Into Hands of Demolisher.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

STILL another old London house with its history is being delivered into the hands of the housebreaker. It is a building in Finsbury, within the old London wall, which for years has been the home of the famous Caslon family of typefounders.

Tradition has it that William Caslon, styled by Rowe Mores the "Coryphæus of letter founders," started the business in 1716. A contemporary publication now in the possession of the firm proves that the old typefounder's business was flourishing in 1720, and in order to be above criticism on the point the present representatives of the firm have adopted that year as the date of their establishment.

The building now to be demolished, an old fashioned structure with low ceilinged rooms and windows flush with the walls, was built in 1730. They were the days when City men lived over their shops, and No. 22 served the original Caslon as mansion house as well as business premises.

He was in his day an enthusiastic patron of music, and the long front room on the ground floor, used during later years as a board room, was famous in those days for its concerts, and is worthy of remembrance from the fact that Handel was one of the performers at some of the little private functions.

Sir John Hawkins in his "History of Music" says:—"William Caslon had frequent concerts at his house, which were resorted to by many eminent masters." The record continues:—"He had an organ in his concert room, where he had started monthly concerts for the convenience of his friends. And that they might walk home in safety after the concert was over, the concerts were on that Thursday in the month which was nearest the full moon, from which circumstance the guests were wont humorously to call themselves 'the Lunatics.'"

NEW LINER TO CARRY ROYALTY

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THROUGH chartering the Union Castle liner Balmoral Castle for the Prince and Princess of Wales' trip to South Africa to open the first parliament of the Union the Admiralty selected a perfectly new vessel for their Royal Highnesses. The Balmoral Castle has not yet had her baptism of blue water, but will have made two voyages before the royal party start out on board her. She is so luxuriously fitted that it is not expected the Admiralty will make any extensive internal alterations to fit her for the accommodation of the Prince and Princess and the others of their party.

The decorations of the salons and lounges are in the Louis XVI. and Sheraton styles, and they are magnificently furnished and upholstered in keeping with these designs. The catering arrangements are superb. There are steam carving tables in the pantries, patent automatic egg boilers and an electrically driven dough mixer, while the refrigerating plant will take 60,000 pounds of fresh meat, 6,000 head of poultry and 10,000 pounds of fresh and dried fish.

WOMAN ORGANIST FOR FIFTY YEARS

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

ONE really remarkable aged woman is Miss Ellen Day. It is just seventy-four years since she, one of England's oldest organists, the pupil of Balfe and the friend of Mendelssohn, Liszt and Chopin, made her first appearance in public as an eight-year-old prodigy at the Drury Lane Theatre.

The other day, on the occasion of her eighty-second birthday, she was quite hale and hearty. She has been an organist for nearly fifty years, and her appointment at Christchurch, Westminster, where she is still regular in the performance of her duties, dates from 1858.

London Women Would Improve Court Dress

Fashionable Hairdressers Also Are Frantically Seeking for Some New Fashion in Coiffures Which Shall Not Be Merely an Imitation of an Already Established Paris Style.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

SOCIETY women, especially those who have the entrée, have been much exercised lately, and are still for that matter, how to improve their manner of dressing at court and at other big social functions which are to come later in the season. Not only are the court dressmakers busy trying to evolve something to satisfy the demands of the grand dame of society for a new creation, but so are the court hairdressers worrying themselves to invent something fresh in the way of coiffures which shall not be a mere imitation or adaptation of the work of Parisian artists.

For dress, materials of the most supple texture, with one notable exception, are being used. The exception is the new satin, which is really old, a splendid fabric, capable of standing alone, revived from far away times. It is used for the petticoats of some gowns as a background for magnificent embroideries, but mainly for the regulation court train.

But the gauzes are many and novel, and a characteristic which numbers of them share is a shot appearance, according to a leading court dressmaker. Blended colors of a chameleon like effect are the novelty of the moment, and of paramount beauty are medleys of guinea gold, all tints of rose—with special emphasis given to Chantecler, a cock's comb red—many brilliant blues and lively greens, inclusive of apple and lime for the youthful and the more stately olive for those of maturer years.

A mysterious dusting of some other surface color gives the shot effect to the fabric, for which purpose pearl, mauve, island gray, and even a curious bronze brown are frequently chosen. Refinement of effect is more than ever the study of dress designers. Even the very embroideries are veiled. Lace, the most fashionable being Venise and mallines, is a great feature in the full dress schemes, and dressmakers are dyeing it to match the frocks it adorns.

DECLARES ENGLISH COIFFURE LEADS

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

HITHERTO all the fashions in coiffures have come from Paris, but, of course, what suited the features of the Parisian woman did not often sit well above the English face, and had to be modified to suit, not always with success. And so a scheme has been set on foot by the court hairdressers and other leading members of the profession to establish an all British fashion. To that end they are working hard to make the exhibition at the Prince's Skating Club, which will last from May 9 to May 14, a big success, and English milliners are co-operating in the scheme.

Meantime hairdressers are pussling their brains sketching out plans of new coiffures and building them on the heads of their models in anticipation of the coming competitions.

"We are convinced," said one court hairdresser, "that English women are only too anxious to adopt an all British fashion. Once we can form a kind of working agreement with the leading milliners our task will be easy, for nowhere in the world will you find more exact and excellent hairdressers than in England. Paris might be credited with the inspiration in the first instance, and in the present circumstances we are bound to follow. But the main you will find that our variation is much more artistic, and executed with much greater regard to detail and finish. It is a well known fact that the position has been gradually changing for some years. Paris and Vienna are sometimes dependent upon our fashions for ideas; America would rather follow us than accept extreme modes of either.

QUEEN LOVES SIMPLE LIFE.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

"NOTHING," said a London hairdresser recently, "could equal the simple grace of the style in which Queen Alexandra dresses her hair. For years Her Majesty has never changed it, and yet there are few who try to copy it. They may dare, but they fail; but, then, where are the women with such beautiful and regular features as the Queen?"

Queen Alexandra, by the way, who does enjoy a short spell of the simple life, when she can escape to it, is just off to Sandringham, where Her Majesty can indulge in it to her heart's content. It is not very generally known that when there she spends a good deal of her time at her quaint little seaside bungalow about four miles away from the house.

This bungalow is a churchlike house of rugged stone, overlooking the Wash, of which it commands a splendid view. It has a porch shaped entrance and a very low roof, surmounted along its entire length by a raised inscription in Latin, meaning "Unless God be with us all is in vain."

The Queen is expected to use this bungalow a good deal this coming summer as a tea house and a place of afternoon rest. There are only two rooms in this curious little retreat, one for Her Majesty and her guests and the other for the servants.

ENGLAND'S QUEEN CAN BE STUBBORN

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA, with all her gracious womanly charms, is quite capable, on suitable occasion, of standing upon her dignity and showing that she expects proper regard for her exalted station. The promoters of the recent review of territorial nurses experienced one of these occasions. When they were organising the review they were most anxious for an early date, and Her Majesty, while regarding the summer far more suitable, graciously gave way. Just the other day some of the women on the committee wished to postpone the event until the weather became a little warmer, and went to Buckingham Palace in the full expectation of being able to arrange the matter. But the Queen had already subordinated her private views to those of the promoters and saw no good reason for repeating the process. So the women were informed that, as they had asked for and obtained an early date, it must either be that date or not at all.

AN EASY VICTORY.

How an Obstinate English Lord Was Outwitted in Naples.

Lord Charles Hamilton used to go about Naples attended by a large, ferocious bulldog. Having decided upon going to Rome, he proceeded to the station and took his place in a first class carriage, the "dawg" taking up a position on a seat opposite his master. The platform inspector, with many gesticulations, declared that the bulldog should not travel in a passenger carriage.

"Very well, then; take him out," was Lord Charles' rejoinder.

The official expostulated. He merely reiterated his former reply, a piece of advice it is needless to say which was not followed, and Lord Charles, apparently master of the situation, threw himself back in his seat and calmly lighted a cigar.

But the Italians were not to be outdone, and, quietly detaching the carriage in which the English "milor" was seated, they made up the train with another compartment and started it off.

Lord Charles sat quietly smoking for about a quarter of an hour and then, surprised at the delay, thrust his head out of the window and demanded when the train was going to start. His feelings when the situation was described to him may be imagined.—London Tit-Bits.

A WONDERFUL DREAM.

The Poor Cobbler Who Found Himself Upon a Throne.

It was in the days of Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, that a cobbler mounted a royal throne. As the duke was traveling one night to Bruges he came upon a man stretched upon the ground sound asleep and bade his attendants carry him to the palace, strip off his rags and place him, robed in fine linen, in his own bed.

When the man awoke next morning he was addressed as "your highness" and astounded to find himself among such rich surroundings. In vain he protested that he was no prince, but a poor cobbler. They asked him what clothing he would wear and at last conducted him, splendidly dressed, to mass in the ducal chapel. Every ceremony was observed throughout the day. The cobbler appeared in public in his new role, was received on all sides by command of the duke with deep respect and ended his brief reign in the palace with a grand supper and ball.

When presently he fell asleep he was reclothed in his rags and taken to the spot where he had been found when this practical joke was conceived. Waking in due time, he returned home and related to his wife what he took to be his wonderful dream.

Sacred Nuts of Japan.

Although well known to travelers and collectors of curiosities, the horn nut, or "sacred nut," of Japan was almost wholly unknown to fruit and nut dealers in this country prior to 1888, when a New York commission merchant received the first large consignment. They are called "sacred nuts" because used in certain forms of Japanese worship, where they are placed on the altar and ignited. Being very rich in oil, they burn with a hot, bluish flame and give off a peculiar odor, the fumes being supposed to rise as an acceptable incense to the gods. They grow under water and have a leaf like an American lily, the form of the nut itself being an almost exact counterpart of an Asian buffalo's head, drooping horns and all. In the raw state they are hard and tasteless, but when cooked the flavor resembles that of boiled chestnuts. They are said to retain their edible qualities for upward of twenty years.

Vanished Mountains.

It has been observed that in the neighborhood of great ranges of mountains the force of gravity is slighter than elsewhere, and the explanation is that the earth's crust is less dense beneath the places where it has been heaved up. Assuming this to be a general law, one authority points out that it is possible to discover where ancient mountains now worn away and leveled by the action of the elements once existed, because the density of the underlying rocks has not changed. France, it is thought, possessed one of these vanished ranges, running along the parallel of Bordeaux, for on that line there is a lessening of the force of gravity. A similar phenomenon occurs on the plains of southern Russia.

Unconscious Self Criticism.

SOCIETY WOMEN'S HAIR

A Simple Treatment That Will Make It Truly Fascinating—Wm. Madill Guarantees It.

Nowadays every up-to-date woman has radiant hair.

What a foolish creature a woman would be if she lost the opportunity to add to her attractions.

Yet in Canada to-day there are hundreds of thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair who do not make any attempt to improve it.

In Paris most women have beautiful hair, and in Canada all women who use Parisian Sage have lustrous and luxuriant hair.

And any woman reader of the Examiner can have attractive and lustrous hair in a few days' time by using this great hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage.

Wm. Madill sells a large bottle for 50 cents and he guarantees it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Pinched Plums.

The mistress of the mathematical class was mathematizing for her mathematical pupils, while her mathematical pupils were inwardly mathematizing mathematics.

"Now, suppose," said the mistress, "I had a pound of plums"—

At which point it occurred to her how much better she could illustrate her example to her youthful charges if she really had a pound of plums. So—

"Mary," she said to a girl of eight, "here's sixpence. Go out and get me a pound of plums. And as I'm going to give them in the end to the girl who gets the sum right first be sure before you buy them you pinch one or two just to see that they are wholesome."

A few minutes and Mary had returned. With flushed face and triumphant eyes she approached the teacher's desk as one worthy of commendation and plumped down a bag of plums and the sixpence.

"There, mum!" she said. "I pinched one or two, as you told me, and when the man wasn't looking I pinched the blessed lot!"—London Answers.

Music Writing Made Easy.

Mlle. Salle was in the eighteenth century the most accomplished and fascinating balletense at the famous French Opera. In addition to her other qualifications, she played and sang with extraordinary artistic skill and depth of expression. She once confided to Rameau, the noter musician, that her ardent wish was to be able to compose and asked him to give her a few lessons in the art. "Nothing easier in the world," Rameau gallantly replied. He handed her a sheet of paper ruled for music and asked her to take her valuable breastpin and prick holes in the lines wherever she thought proper. After the lady had completed her task Rameau took the sheet of paper, turned each puncture into a note, determined its length, selected a suitable key, and the thing was done. This remarkable composition turned out a lively piece of dance music, which was afterward entitled "Les Sauvages Dans les Indes Galantes" and was popular in France for a great number of years.

SQUARING THE CIRCLE.

An Ancient Problem That Has Turned Many Brains Dizzy.

The oldest of problems is that of squaring the circle—i. e., of telling the precise length of the side of a square whose area will equal the area of a given circle.

The first attempt we know of was made 500 years before the exodus of the Jews. Since at least 1300 B. C. Chinese brains have turned dizzy over it. The oldest mathematical book in the world—written about 2000 B. C., by Ahmes, scribe to an Egyptian king, and now resting in the British museum—pretends to solve it, but it doesn't. Our old friend Euclid prudently avoids the subject.

Books have been written to prove that it is impossible, others to prove the impossibility of proving its impossibility, others again to prove the impossibility of proving its possibility.

One scientist, a professor of Zurich, adopted some fifty years ago a rather original method of tackling the problem. He divided the floor of a great loft into thousands of small squares and spent his days in solemnly throwing needles about and noting the number of times they fell clear of the chalk lines, but it did not help him much.

The important ratio which would settle the question has been carried to 500 places of decimals. And still it is not exact. If you have a taste for sums you can start and carry it to 600 and see what happens.

At any rate, you will soon find your hair getting grayer.—London Answers.

A HUMILIATED MONKEY.

The Crippled Old Despot Was Made to Feel His Mighty Fall.

The following amusing story is told by J. L. Kipling in his "Man and Beast in India" of the humiliation of a monkey whom physical disablement prevented from maintaining his despotic position as leading male of the troop:

"One morning there came a monkey chieftain, weak and limping, having evidently been worsted in a severe fight with another of his own kind. One hand hung powerless, his face and eyes bore terrible traces of battle, and he hirpled slowly along with a pathetic air of suffering, supporting himself on the shoulder of a female—a wife, the only member of his clan that had remained faithful to him after his defeat.

"We threw them bread and raisins, and the wounded warrior carefully stowed the greater part away in his cheek pouch. The faithful wife, seeing her opportunity, holding fast his one sound hand and opening his mouth, deftly scooped out the store of raisins. Then she sat and ate them very calmly at a safe distance, while he mowed and chattered in impotent rage.

"He knew that without her help he could not reach home and was fain to wait with what patience he might till the raisins were finished. This was probably her first chance of disobedience or of self assertion in her whole life, and I am afraid she thoroughly enjoyed it."

How Long Your Nails Grow.

The growth of an average finger nail is about one thirty-second of an inch a week, or nearly one and one-half inches in a year, so those aristocratic Chinese who proudly exhibit nails six to eight inches in length must have refrained from cutting them at least four to six years. Finger nails grow faster in the summer than in winter. The nail on the middle finger grows faster than any of the others, and that of the thumb is slowest in growth. The nails of the right hand grow faster than those of the left. A nail is supposed to reach its full growth in about four and a half months, and at this rate a man seventy years old would have renewed his nails 262 times. On each finger he would have grown nine feet of nail, or on all his fingers and thumbs no less than ninety feet of nail.

And It's a Mighty Useful Barrel, Madam

In the spring, you know, once the young man's fancy "has lightly turned" and he thinks a solitaire would be most becoming on her third left-hand finger—

He bestirs himself—counts the "hard-earned"—hies him to the gem shop—insists on a golden quality setting.

For, says Charles: Hang expense. Let the setting match in worth the stone lest both remain on my hands, not hers.

Just so, Madam, because FIVE ROSES flour is so very good, the FIVE ROSES barrel is likewise the best made, admittedly.

Because the flour demands a perfect package.

And we make it ourselves. Very few millers make their own barrels—very few can.

Now, we have our own lumber camps out in the Keewatin district, expert rangers, well-paid to know the best Western Poplar when they see it, to select the trees having both perfect grain and growth.

• • • •

And the choice logs float across the Lake of the Woods hauled down to the big mills by the busy little puffer called—"FIVE ROSES."

In big shop and dry-kiln the wood is cut and seasoned, and in our own good factory expert coopers can daily turn out 1200 of the only barrels fit to hold FIVE ROSES flour.

Not only barrel specialists, you know, but also flour barrel specialists, knowing the big mills requirements, devoted exclusively to the production of that unique package—the FIVE ROSES barrel.

Which explains why it is the most durable, most sanitary, strongest; proof against bilge sifting, lost, wasted flour, free from knot-holes or ventilators.

• • • •

A mighty handy article. Mistress Housewife, is this same FIVE ROSES barrel a useful receptacle when empty, adopted to a thousand varied purposes? A long and useful career is before it: and when it has far outlived all other barrels and old age creeps in, the broken-down remains will supply the fuel for many a glorious batch of loaves such as only FIVE ROSES flour can give you.

Don't YOU really want good flour packed in just such a barrel as this? Then INSIST on FIVE ROSES—always.

VALERIA AND THE SPICE MAN.

The Romance That Was Woven Into a Rag Carpet.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

When Valeria Bird was thirty-five years old she emptied all her closets and wardrobes and spread the contents about her room—over the chairs and on the bed or wherever space afforded.

Like all the Birds, Valeria was fond of dress, and "the summer I had the pink organdie," "the winter I wore the green cloak" and other instances were fixed dates in Valeria's memory. Valeria's clothes formed the calendar of her years.

"It's all they're good for," she said decisively. "I'll cut them into carpet rags and make me a handsome carpet. There won't be another like it in Littleville."

And there wasn't another one that compared with Valeria Bird's rag carpet when it was woven and in place on the sitting room floor. Out in the woodshed was an old loom—Uncle Joshua Bird had been a famous weaver in his day—and Valeria had learned how to operate it in the face of Aunt Susanna's strong disapproval.

"You'll spread your feet all out of shape working that treadle. Your Uncle Joshua had flat foot to the end of his days from that old loom! You better take it over to the blind weaver. He can do it first rate so long as it's hit or miss"—

"'Tisn't going to be hit or miss," said Valeria stubbornly. "No one could make it this way but me."

When it was completed and the breadths sewed together it made a large carpet, for Valeria had had many garments. Aunt Susanna peered curiously at the intricate pattern.

"I never see a rag carpet like that. What's that little white square in the middle breadth, and how did you fix it so's all those different colored stripes would make squares outside each other? And the outside border is black! That's real tasty!"

"HAVE YOU LOST ANYTHING?" SHE ASKED SHARPLY.

Valeria smiled proudly. "The white square in the middle is made out of my little frocks, and each stripe outside of it is a year of clothes."

"And every year the stripes are wider, showing how extravagant you are getting. But don't tell Tom, Dick and Harry all about those stripes, because any fool could figure out how old you be." Aunt Susanna's voice dropped to a secretive hiss.

"Humph! I don't care who knows how old I am," replied Valeria contemptuously.

Mrs. Bird pursed her lips mysteriously. "There ain't a soul in Littleville that knows how old I be," she muttered. "If you want to be stamped as an old maid, Valery, just run around and tell how old you be."

"I want to be an old maid," said Valeria calmly as she placed the walnut center table exactly over the white square in the new carpet. "I'd rather be Valeria Bird and die unmarried than to change my name to any other. Think I'd change my name to Jones or Gibbie or Riddle or Smith? Humph!"

Just as Valeria Bird sniffed contemptuously some one rapped smartly at the side door, and Aunt Susanna creaked across the floor to admit a tall, broad shouldered man with thick hair plentifully sprinkled with gray. He was indeed very handsome, and perhaps his good looks found expression in his kindly eyes and firm mouth as well as in the physical beauty of these features. He removed his hat with a friendly smile at Aunt Susanna.

"I'm selling spices, ma'am. Perhaps you would like to give me an order. I bought out William Riddle's business, and I've got a perfectly fresh stock."

"Come right in," said Mrs. Bird cordially. "I've got to go down to the missionary society, but Valery will give you an order. She had it all made out for Billy Riddle. Where's Billy gone?"

"Billy got the gold fever. He's gone out to the Klondike," replied the spice man, wiping his feet carefully on the doormat and then tiptoeing across Valeria's new carpet to a vacant chair. His eyes followed Valeria's disapproving glance to the floor, where his shoes had left dusty footprints on three years of her life. "I'm very sorry," he said calmly, taking an order book out of one pocket and a fountain pen from another. He looked expectantly at Valeria, and his eyes lingered on her soft masses of brown hair and her tender blue eyes.

The tender blue eyes changed to steel gray when they encountered the gaze of the spice man, and a flood of color invaded the cool cheeks to her little ears. Valeria Bird had met that same glance in the eyes of many men, but never before had she lost her composure.

Overhead Aunt Susanna's heavy bulk shook the ceiling as she hurried to and fro in her preparation for the missionary society. Outside in the grapevines late robins were feasting on the luscious clusters, and their sweet songs were reminiscent of earlier springs when Valeria had worn pale blue gowns and held her proud little head aloof from all suitors, reserving herself for some ideal being, one who was handsome and gifted and whose name might be "Montfort." "Valeria Montfort" sounded even a little better than Valeria Bird.

"I want some cinnamon and mace," she said at last, "and a bottle of vanilla and some nutmegs."

The spice man closed his book and arose to go. "Thank you, ma'am," he said, with hat in hand. "I'll deliver the goods day after tomorrow. Good afternoon."

"Wait a minute and I'll pay you," said Valeria, leaving the room.

When she returned the spice man was crawling about the floor on his hands and knees, examining the stripes with strange intentness.

"Have you lost something?" she asked.

He scrambled to his feet, looking very much ashamed of himself.

Valeria watched him climb into the shining wagon at the gate, and when it had disappeared in a cloud of dust she turned and looked at the carpet. For what had the spice man been seeking? Save for additional traces of sand on the carpet she could see nothing. Her housewifely soul declaimed against the untidy floor, but she did not brush the sand away.

At tea time Aunt Susanna rustled home from her society meeting. She untied her bonnet strings with impatient fingers as Valeria brought in the teapot.

"I heard all about the new spice man, Valeria," she said breezily. "He's from Comcomupus way, and he's a distant relation of yours too. His mother was own cousin to your mother. He ain't never married. He's always lived on the home place and farmed it till last year his mother died, and he's been looking to buy a good business. He"—

Mrs. Bird hesitated with spoon poised above the sugar basin. Her little dark eyes fell before Valeria's inquiring gaze.

"John Smith—John James Smith—and it's a very good name, too," said Aunt Susanna defiantly.

Valeria said nothing.

The next time the spice man called Valeria was alone. When he had set the small packages on the table he said:

"I guess you think I ought to explain what I was looking for that day when you found me on the floor. I was wondering if there was a stripe of pink that had some cloth in it—pink with little white stars on it." He paused and flushed slightly.

Valeria nodded. "There is a piece like that. I used to have a dress like that when I was fourteen years old. All this carpet is made out of my clothes."

Mr. Smith's face was eager and glowing now. "I met you once years ago. You was wearing it. I never forgot your face. I was driving a young colt, and you was scared when the colt shied, and you ran to the side of the road and dropped a basket of eggs, and"—

"And you got down and picked up the whole mess and gave me 50 cents. I've got the 50 cents now," exclaimed Valeria animatedly. Like an instantaneous photograph she saw the tall, handsome young man who had come to her assistance that long ago day, whose appearance had taken her girlish fancy and had forever after remained her ideal. And in her dreams she had named him "Montfort."

"Why did you keep the 50 cents, Miss Valeria?" asked the spice man curiously.

"I thought your name was Montfort," said Valeria impulsively.

He laughed heartily. "It's just plain John James Smith," he said, with a certain sturdy pride in his tone. "Now, I wonder if you wouldn't just give me a little piece of that pink calico. I want it for something," he added slowly.

Valeria flushed and then knelt down on the floor and sought the pink stripe with the white stars. Recklessly she pulled it out, and the spice man's pocket knife severed a generous sample, which he stowed carefully away in his pocket.

"Shall I come every week?" he asked, pausing in the doorway.

"Yes, do," said Valeria, with a flush.

When Aunt Susanna came home Valeria was sitting with idle hands beside the window.

"For the land's sake! Somebody has tracked fresh mud all over your floor, Valery. This carpet won't last no while if you ain't more careful."

Valeria Bird looked down at the thin pink stripe at her feet. "I don't care," she said, with a dreamy smile.

"For the land"— began Aunt Susanna again; then she looked at Valeria and did not finish the sentence.

EVERY DAY BRINGS A FRESH PROOF

That Dodd's Kidney Pills are a Boon to Suffering Women.

Mrs. Rousseau tell how they cured her after three years of almost ceaseless pain.

Hintonburg, Ont., April 16 (Special)—Every day furnishes proof that the women of Canada can be cured of ailments which have hitherto seemed to be a part of the inheritance of the sex by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. And this place has a living proof in the person of Mrs. William Rousseau, 37 Merton Street.

"For over three year," Mrs. Rousseau states, "I was very ill. My troubles were painful. I suffered very much with my back. My head ached almost continuously and I scarcely knew what it was to be free from pain. I was very weak and run down. Occasionally my hands would swell up, and this, too, gave me a great deal of annoyance and discomfort. I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and very soon commenced to improve. Three boxes cured me completely.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $10,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

The Diagnosis.

The disastrous results of interference by relatives in the course of courtships was well exemplified in the case of a young Baltimore couple not long ago. They had been engaged for some time when it became generally known that the affair was at an end.

"What was the trouble, Jack?" an intimate friend asked the youth, who, by the way, is a recent medical graduate.

"Well, as it was nothing relating to Nan personally, I don't know why I shouldn't tell you," he replied, with a sigh.

"I suppose it was some outside influence—you seemed to fairly dote on her," the friend commented.

"I did," the dejected lover replied. "She is the sweetest little girl in the world, but terribly fond of her relatives. Her old maid aunt from Kansas came along the other day and announced that she was going to live with us after we were married, and—well she proved an antidote."—Detroit Free Press.

The Chinese Way.

In its wars with England and France in 1859-60 China was easily conquered and forced to a humiliating peace. The Pekin Gazette, the official organ of the government, however, reported the following concerning that treaty of peace:

"As the western barbarians have admitted their wrongs and humbly solicited for peace, the emperor in his infinite goodness has granted their prayer and, moreover, has made them a present of a large sum of money (indemnity of war) to enable them to begin an honest life, so that they may not again be driven to murder and rapine."

Missionary—Do you ever contribute money for the heathen in foreign lands, sir? Millionaire—Oh, yes. Both my daughters married foreign noblemen.

PARLIAMENTARY PETS.

Certain British Schoolboys Are Favorites of Law-makers.

At a time when so much public attention is being directed to the British Houses of Parliament it is interesting to note how much the boys of Westminster School have always been favored by the two Houses and given privileges accorded to no other school in the land. Doubtless this has arisen from many things, one being the close intimacy which has always existed between the abbey, the Parliament, and the school itself.

It is not widely known that the scholars of Westminster School have the privilege of using the terrace of the Houses of Parliament on Sunday afternoons as practically their own. They sit and stroll there, watch the river craft, and enjoy the cool breezes in summer as if legislators to the manner born. This special privilege is believed to come from the Speaker for the time being, and was probably first given by a Speaker who was an old boy.

Then it is better known, though not universally, that the House of Commons reserves six special seats every day for the Westminster boys. These seats are in the gallery, and a list is filled in at the school each day and sent to the House giving the names of the boys who intend to avail themselves of the right. This privilege is highly prized by the scholars, and there is much competition for the seats when any striking debate is under way.

The House of Lords, too, though it does not retain special seats in this way for St. Peter's scholars, always gives the boys every opportunity when they wish to attend its debates, as they very often do. When the Sovereign goes to open Parliament in state there is a place regularly kept for the Westminster boys on the pavement outside Henry VII.'s chapel right opposite to the entrance of the House of Lords. Thus the boys get the very best view of the procession to be had anywhere, and they have it practically to themselves as the general public are usually excluded from that portion of the route. Even at coronations, when special galleries are kept in the abbey for the peers and members of Parliament, seats near the peers are always reserved for at least the forty royal scholars of the famous school, and these boys are given the first privilege of saluting the Sovereign by their acclaims as "King of England" both when he enters the nave of the abbey and when the crown is put on his head by the Archbishop of Canterbury, for the peers wait until the captain and scholars have shouted "Long live the King" ere they themselves join in the cry, and thus give the signal for all the world to salute the new monarch of the British Empire.

"Grace."

Tall, fair as a lily, with a cloud of golden hair, the Countess of Londesborough is one of the most beautiful blondes in society. Her ladyship, who was Lady Grace Fane, has always been noted for her love of horses and outdoor amusements. She rides well to hounds, and plays with equal cleverness at golf, tennis, croquet, and cricket. The countess seems as fond of her old-world name, Grace, as Lady Brougham is of her more exotic Zoe, and she has "Grace" embroidered on many things—her bookcovers, handkerchiefs, and even on her white muslin sofa cushions. While in London the countess gives brilliant balls and dinners, and, like Lady Iveagh, prefers the soft light of wax candles to the more vivid lustre of electricity. In the evening her ladyship nearly always wears white or pale green. Lord Londesborough takes a keen interest in the amateur fire brigade which he has organized at Blankney. The brigade is composed of footmen, gardeners, stablemen, and farm hands. When a fire occurs Lord Londesborough starts off at once at the head of his brigade, and the engine is drawn by the best horses in his stable.

A Capable Soldier.

There is probably not a more capable soldier in the army than Sir William Manning, who has been appointed Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief of Somaliland. He is credited with having a most intimate knowledge of the interior of Africa, and his promotion in the army has been remarkably quick, as it is little over twenty years since he joined the South Wales Borderers. Sir William makes a most entertaining companion, and is passionately fond of travel. It was his fondness of adventure that led him to join the Indian Army after two years' service. He was at once sent on active service in Burmah, and since that time has been almost constantly fighting either in India or Africa. In fact, when once asked what his favorite recreation was, he is reported to have replied "Fighting niggers."

A Temperance Funeral.

Unusual directions were carried out at Preston in connection with the funeral of William Livesey, aged 93, the son of Joseph Livesey, a founder of the teetotal pledge. Temperance advocates were present from every part of the kingdom. In accordance with the final wishes of Mr. Livesey, there were no flowers, no plumed hearse, no hatbands, nor any kind of funeral display, the hearse selected being without glass sides, so that the coffin would not be exposed to view and hats were not removed at the graveside.

Some Measures.

Herbert Spencer scorned the metric system because it rests solely on the fact that man has but ten fingers. However, a mile is but a "mille passuum," or a thousand paces. The length of the foot was used for distances long before it was fixed at twelve inches. A "furlong" is only a furrowlong. The breadth of the band became the standard because the easiest way of measuring the height of the horse. The length of the arm gave the length of the "ell," and from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger was the "cubit." By stretching out both arms as if on a cross man invented the measure of the "fathom." Cloth measure still decrees that two and one-half inches make a "nail," and this is the width of four fingers held together and measured across the nails. The apothecary's "dram" originally signified "only as much raw spirit as can be held in the mouth."

Ought to Have Known Him.

"About the limit of nerve that ever came under my observation," said an ex-prosecutor, "happened a few days ago when a man walked into my office and solicited a small loan. That he was drunk and had been for several days was evident at a glance. Dirty, blear eyed, unshaved and with hands that shook like those of a professional roman candle shooter, he saluted me with easy familiarity, calling me by my first name. His face was vaguely familiar to me, but I could not recall where I had seen him. He asked for a quarter. I compromised with a dime. He took it with profuse thanks.

"'Let's see,' I called to him as he turned to go, 'I can't quite place you. Who are you?'

"He wheeled and looked at me with an expression of pained surprise. 'What! Don't know me! Why, good Lord, John! You put me in jail three times for wife beating!'"—Kansas City Star.

made a fine squirt gun. To be sure, she has asked him not to use the water from the goldfish globe; but he just would. Also he'd insisted on locking all the servants down stairs, and when she tried to amuse him in other ways he'd tied her to the chair.

But it was just Hadley's innocent fun. He hadn't harmed anyone, even if it did squirt a little water on the postman and delivery boy. She had not minded it herself, and no one had been rude to him until I'd come chasing in and handled him so rough. That was an outrage, and Martha thought I ought to get a life sentence for it.

"Humph!" says Zenobia, turnin' to me. "Now, young man, what have you got to say?"

"Ah, what's the use?" says I. "You've got the whole story now. I'd do the same again."

"Relying on the fact that your uncle is a police captain?" says she.

"Nah," says I. "That was hot air."

"There, Zenobia!" says Martha. "I told you he was a bad boy."

"Are you?" says Zenobia.

"Well," says I, "that all depends on how you size me up. I ain't in the crook class, nor I don't wear any Sunday school medals, either."

"Who are you?" says she.

"Why, just Torchy," says I. "See—torch, Torchy," and I points to my sunset coiffure.

"But who are your parents?" she goes on.

"Don't own any," says I. "I'm a double orphan and rustlin' for myself."

"Where do you live?" says she.

"Why," says I, "I don't live anywhere just now. I'm movin'; but I don't know where to."

"I suppose that is either impudence or epigram," says she; "but never mind. Perhaps you will tell me where you work?"

"I don't work at all," says I. "I'm head office boy for the Corrugated Trust, and it's a cinch job."

"Indeed!" says she. "The Corrugated Trust? Let me see, who is at the head of that concern?"

"Say," says I, "you don't mean you never heard of Old Hickory Ellins or Mr. Robert, do you?"

She kind of smiles at that; but dodges makin' any answer.

"Well," says I, "do I get pinched, or just given the run? Either way, I've got some baggage down by the area door that ought to be looked after."

"Why, certainly, I will have it—" then she stops and looks me over sort of shrewd. "Suppose," she starts in again, "you go and get it yourself?"

"Sure!" says I, and it ain't until I'm outside that I sees that this is just her way of tryin' me out; for I has a fine chance to beat it. "Nix!" thinks I. "I might as well see this thing through and get a decision." So back I goes with the suitcase and laundry bag. She hadn't even followed me to the door.

"Ah!" says she, lookin' up. "You weren't afraid to come back, then. Why?"

"Oh, I guess it was because I banked on your givin' me a square deal," says I.

That gets a grin out of her. "Thank you very much for the compliment," says she. "I may say that the inquisition is over. However, I should like to have you remain a little longer, if you care to. Won't you leave your things in the hall there? Your hat and overcoat, too."

"Zenobia," says Martha, wakin' up, "surely you are not going to—"

"Precisely," says Zenobia. "I am going to ask him to stay for dinner with us. Will you?"

"Yep!" says I. "I never let any free eats get by me."

"But," gasps Martha, "you don't know who he is?"

"Neither does he know us," says Zenobia. "Torchy, I am Mrs. Zenobia Preble. This is my sister, Miss Martha Hadley. She is very good, I am very wicked, and we are both women of mature years. You will probably find our society rather dull; but the dinner is likely to be fairly good. Besides, I am feeling somewhat indebted to you."

"It's a go," says I, "if I can have a chance to wash up first."

"Of course," says she. Then she gives me a key and directions how to find a certain door on the third floor. "My son's quarters," she goes on, "that I have kept just as he left them twenty years ago. I shall expect you to make yourself quite at home there."

Do I? Why, say, it's a bach joint such as you might dream about; two rooms and bath across the front of the house, guns and swords and such knickknacks on the walls, a desk, a lot of books, and even a bathrobe and slippers laid out. Say, while I was scrubbin' off some of the ink stains and smoothin' down my hair with the silver backed brushes I felt like a young blood gettin' ready for a party.

Then after awhile I strolls down to the lib'ry and makes myself to home some more. It's a comf'table place, with lots of big easy chairs, nice pictures on the wall, and no end of bookshelves. The old ladies has cleared out, not even lookin' up any of the curios or sendin' a maid to watch me.

And when it comes to the feed—why, say, it's a reg'lar course dinner, such as you'd put up a dollar for at any high class take dotty ranche. Funny old china they had too, and a big silver coffee pot right on the table. The only bad break I makes is just at the start, when I dives into the soup without noticin' that Aunt Martha has her head down and is mumblin' something about bein' thankful.

"Never mind," says Mrs. Preble. "We aren't included in this, anyway."

That begins the talk. I ain't put through the wringer, you understand, but just follows Zenobia while she goes from one thing to another, givin' her opinions of 'em and now and then callin' for me. We got real chatty too, and once in a while she stops to laugh real hearty, though I couldn't see where I'd got off any crack at all.

Near as I can make ouat, Zenobia is a lively old girl for her age. She's seen all the best Broadway shows, knows what's goin' on in town, and reads the papers reg'lar. Also it comes out that she don't follow the kind of program you generally look antiques to stick to. She ain't got any use for churches, charity institutions, society, or the suffragettes. All of which seems to shock Sister Martha, who don't say much, but only shudders now and then.

"You, see, Torchy," says Zenobia, droppin' two lumps into her demitasse "I am an unbeliever. I don't even believe in growing old. When I hear of other persons who have come to disbelieve in established things, no matter what, I send for them and find out all about it across the dinner table. We discuss art, religion, politics, goodness knows what. We denounce things, from the existing social order, to the tariff on stockings. My sister, who believes in everything as it is, usually takes a nap and snores."

"Zenobia!" says Martha.

"Oh, not in a disturbing way,' says Zenobia. "And I'm sure I almost do the same whenever your friend the rector is here. Torchy, have you ever been talked to about your soul?"

"Once when I drifted into a mission a guy sprung that on me," says I.

"Yes?" says Zenobia. "What then?"

"I told him to chase himself," says I.

Next thing I know I'm tallin' Mrs. Preble about by fallin' out with Mother Sykes, and how I guess I'd better be pikin' up to engage a thirty-cent room until I can draw on my reserve and locate a new boardin' house.

And, say, what do you guess that conversation leads up to? Well, it struck me all in a heap at the time, though I didn't let on; but I couldn't figure out the answer until I'd had a talk with Mr. Robert next day.

"Say, Mr. Robert," says I, "You don't happen to know an old party by the name of Zenobia Preble, do you?"

"I do," says he. "It isn't exactly an accident, either. She is a cousin my father."

"Gee!" says I. "Cousin to the old—to the boss! Whe-e-ew!"

"Rather an original old lady, Zenobia," says Mr. Robert. "And I understand, from a talk I had with her over the 'phone early last evening, that she was arbitrating the case of a young man who was in some danger of arrest in her home. How did it come out, Torchy?"

"Ah, say, you're on, ain't you?" says I. "Well, it was a verdict for the defence, because I promised to do it again if I ever got the chance."

Mr. Robert grins. "That grandson of hers is certainly a holy terror," says he. "You and Zenobia parted friends, then?"

"Not yet," says I. "We ain't parted at all. I'm stayin' as a trial boarder."

"What!" says he, sittin' up. "Oh, I see. An experiment in practical sociology, eh?"

"Maybe that's it," says I. "Anyway, it depends on whether or not I can stand Aunt Martha."

And when I leaves Mr. Robert he still has his mouth open.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The question of John the Baptist. Matt. 11: 1-19.

Golden Text. But the witness which I have is greater than that of John—for the works which the Father hath given to me to accomplish, the very works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me, John 5-36. (R. V.)

Verse 1.—Jesus appears to have taken great pains to instruct his twelve disciples, but why did he not leave them to be instructed wholly by God's Spirit?

In the case of preaching, or prayer, or testimony, does God propose for us just to "open our mouths and He will fill them," or that we should be as thoroughly and humanly prepared, as if there were no God?

Does thorough preparation for Christian work, show lack of faith, or strong faith in God? Why?

Verse 2, 3—Why did John ask this question as to whether Jesus was the Christ?

What if any reason is there to believe that John was now wrestling with doubt, as to the truth of what he had been preaching concerning Jesus?

What would you say concerning a man of God teaching spiritual truth, in one period, which he knew to be true, and subsequently having grave doubts of the very truth of which he had been so sure?

Does any kind of doubt on the part of a holy man, necessarily imply sin, or show weakness?

Is doubt a necessary part of God's training or not, for men of strong character and important work?

Verse 4.—Why is a man bowed down with sorrow and crushed with disappointment, not in a condition to properly weigh evidence of spiritual truth?

Jesus said "Go and show John again those things, etc"; is evidence of spiritual truth made more forceful through being repeated on different occasions, and whether or not, why was it necessary to repeat to John who he had already heard?

Why should it not be a blessing to the people if a minister repeated his most effectual sermons?

Verses 5, 6.—Jesus laid stress in that day upon his miracles, coupled with the fact that he preached the Gospel to the poor as the proof of his Messiaship, but what is the Supreme or chief proof to-day?

(This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Even suppose the miracles of Jesus should prove to be historical myths, would that detract in any measure from the grandeur of His character, or the greatness of His work?

Verses 7, 8.—Whatinfluences caused John to live such a plain, or rigorous life? (See Matt. 3:4, et seq.)

Take for example two men, one devout, the other Godless, one living in a richly furnished home and dressing in good clothes, the other living in a plain home and wearing coarse apparel, which of the two is more likely to be the godless man, and why?

What was the difference in the mode of the life of Jesus, and that of John the Baptist?

Verses 9-11—What were the minimum qualities essential to being a prophet, and in what particulars did John exceed these?

In what did the greatness of John the Baptist consist, from the standpoint of Jesus?

If Jesus had in mind a "greater" and a "greater," then in what two senses is this word used by him here?

Verses 12-15.—What is religious "violence" and what is the nature of the "force" which captures the kingdom of heaven?

Verses 16-19.—What caused them to denounce John for qualities, the absence of which in Jesus they also denounced?

Lesson for Sunday, April 24th, 1910:

Warning and Invitation. Matt. 11. 20-30.

LA GRIPPE

Arrested, and Consumption Cured

Mr. G. D. Colwell, of Walkerville, Ontario, was stricken down with La Grippe in 1906 and it left him in very bad condition. He says: I was all run down and bordering on Consumption. I could not sleep at nights, had awful sweats, and coughed nearly the whole time. This is how I was when I began to take Psychine, in a low nervous state; but from the first bottle I began to improve. It did marvels for me and brought me back to health in no time, making a new man of me. It fortifies the body against the attacks of La Grippe and is a sure preventative. HISTORICAL SKETCH OF KNOX CHURCH WHICH WAS INAUGURATED IN AN AYLMER ST. STABLE

Suggestion of Two Ladies in 1872 Developed into Knox Congregation January 1st, 1907—Corner Stone of New Edifice Being Laid To-day by Lieutenant-Governor Gibson.

THE FIRST MEMBERSHIP

For speedy growth in towns and churches we usually turn to the West. We do not look for it in the East, since so many are flocking from East to West, depleting country and towns and likewise churches. There is one striking case at least where in spite of the trek Westward a small city has made rapid strides, and its churches no less than its stores illustrate it. The City of Peterborough is now one of the best known in Canada, known for its alertness, aggressiveness and progress. It will soon be known also as a City of Churches. These reflect the growth of the City, and its aggressiveness. One of the first to be established to meet the growing need is the one now known as Knox Presbyterian Church. When the two ladies who suggested the commencement of the undertaking first had the vision of the growth of the City towards the South and saw the need of work in that section of the city, there was no Church south of Charlotte street. Now, there are five other Churches, most of them in new buildings.

In 1872 an interdenominational Ladies' District Visiting Association was formed in Peterborough at the suggestion of Mrs. Renaud. Two ladies, the late Mrs. James A. Hall and Miss Charlotte Dickson, were appointed to the district South of Charlotte street. In the faithful discharge of their work they found that many children in that section were not attending any Sabbath School. The parents were anxious that provision should be made to meet the need. Accordingly these ladies sought for assistance and invited two young men of the Bank of Commerce, Mr. James A. Hall and Mr. T. W. Nisbet, to help them in their new undertaking. The young men consented.

The next thing was to find a building suitable for a Sabbath School. After a diligent search, the only unoccupied building they could find was a stable on the East side of Aylmer street between Charlotte and King streets. They had to use this or do without. Much to their surprise and gratification, they were informed by the owner that this very building was originally the first Presbyterian Church in Peterborough, and it had been used as such during the early ministry of the late Rev. Mr. Roger. The owner allowed the use of this very interesting building for a Sabbath School. It was cleaned up and papered and benches were provided by the Committee. This school was opened in May 1872, with Mr. T. W. Nisbet as its first Superintendent and a roll of nine scholars. Mr. Nisbet had the idea that the Y. M. C. A. might become responsible for the work but this was found impossible. Unfortunately that same year Mr. Nisbet was removed to Montreal. Mr. W. W. Johnston succeeded him, and continued as Superintendent until 1892. Under his leadership the school grew until its average attendance reached one hundred. In the meantime new quarters had to be found, for in 1873, one year after its foundation the school had outgrown the place of its birth.

A vacant lot was found on Dalhousie street between Stewart and Rubidge streets, and the owner, Mr. Walter Patterson, granted the trustees a lease of the property for twenty years at the nominal rental of one dollar a year. A building was erected for Sabbath School purposes on the property. Mr. T. W. Nisbet showed his continued interest in the work by sending a donation of $100. The balance, $300 was raised by local subscriptions, not more than $50 being given outside of St. Paul's Church. The building has now lost its original appearance. The school made great strides in its new and more suitable quarters, under the leadership of Mr. W. W Johnston. It was the intention of the founders to keep it undenominational, but with the exception of one or two Baptists, it was conducted by Presbyterians. Some of the ladies who assisted in the work as teachers at that early period of the School's history were Miss Baptie, Miss Grundy Miss Gilmour, Miss Veals, Miss Patterson. The infant class was taught by Miss Moffat. The late Mr. Wm. Fairweather, Mr. Alex. Gillespie, and Mr. J. W. Bennet showed a deep interest in the work and assisted as teachers. Mother's Meetings were started by Miss Veals, which were well attended and proved a means of great helpfulness. After Miss Veals left this work was carried on by Miss Gilmour. Later on St. John's Church made a request for the use of the building, which was granted, and as a result of their work in that section of the City, All Saints' sprang up. Park Street Baptist Church also made use of the building for its earliest efforts.

Mr. W. W. Johnston continued as Superintendent of the Sabbath School until 1892. At that time the workers were informed that the lease had run out and that the owner of the property

Bad Blaze Did $3000 Damage At Fraserville

General Store Near the Station Was Completely Destroyed by Fire at 2 o'clock This Morning---Twelve Year Old Boy Showed Remarkable Presence of Mind.

From our Own Correspondent.

Fraserville, April 16.—One of the most disastrous fires in the history of this village occurred about 1.30 o'clock this morning, when the old hotel building was burned to the ground. It was a large, frame building, and the first erected in the village. It has been standing for forty years, and has been nearly burned several times.

The building has been occupied for the past few years by Mr. W. J. Timlin, who lived in one-half of it, and had a general store in the other. The cause of the fire is unknown. Indications go to show that it started in the eastern part of the south wing, and Mr. Timlin states that there has been no fire in this part of the building for three or four months.

No effort was made to save the building, as the roof of the eastern wing was falling in before the inmates were aware of the fire.

Mr. Timlin states that his daughter had a very narrow escape from being burned. The rooms upstairs were full of smoke, and she was nearly overcome before her father succeeded in getting her to the open air. Mr. Timlin's twelve-year-old son showed great presence of mind by carrying out a purse, in which the silver money had been deposited. He escaped with a slight burn about the knee.

The entire stock in the store was burned and practically none of the household goods were saved, except a few articles of clothing.

The total loss is estimated at $3,000.00, which is partially covered by insurance.

Those of the villagers who came to the fire deserve the greatest praise, especially the women, and even the young ladies turned out and helped to carry water to save the surrounding buildings.

The old building is now gone, but its history will be repeated in many a home in this village for years to come. It used to serve as the G. T. R. station, and also one of the many hotels which were built along the gravel road between Peterborough and Port Hope during the period when this part of the country was covered by forest. Only a few days ago Mr. Timlin was contemplating some repairs and today it is a mass of smouldering ruins, looked on with regret by all the old residents.

Mr. Wadely Will Address Women's Art Association

As announced in another column of our paper, the Women's Art Association of Peterborough has arranged with Mr. Harold Wadely, manager of the Brinton Carpet Company, to give a lecture on "Decorative Art," on Thursday evening next, at the Y. W. C. A. The lecture, which, by the way, is the last to be given this season, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, bids fair to be one of the most popular and generally appreciated lectures ever given in Peterborough. The reason is not far to seek as the subject treated of is certainly one which appeals to every householder, and in securing the services of Mr. Wadely, the W.A.A. realize that this important branch of art is being brought more closely to the notice of Peterborough people by a gentleman whose experience and taste in such matters is second to none.

The lecturer will demonstrate in a thoroughly practical way by means of examples in the way of wall-papers, friezes, draperies, floor coverings, pictures, ornaments, etc., how good and bad effects in decoration are obtained.

At the conclusion of the lecture a interesting programme will be given to which Miss Hallihan, Miss Choate and Mrs. Wadely will contribute. Miss Hallihan's and Miss Choate's names are so well known and also, we may say, so deservedly popular in Peterborough that no comment need be made upon their appearance, other than to congratulate the W. A. A. upon securing the assistance of these two ladies and to mention that they will render the same selections for which they were given so much praise recently in the Earl Grey contest in Toronto.

Mrs. Wadely's name as a public performer has hitherto been unknown to Peterborough, but it is safe to say there is a treat in store as her elocutionary powers are considerable. Before her marriage, when she was appearing in London, Eng., her interpretation in leading roles in Shakespeare and other plays was very much appreciated.

Much praise is to be given to the Women's Art Association for organizing this affair and we hope that their efforts will be accorded the appreciation which they deserve.

The seating capacity of the gymnasium at the Y. W. C. A. is to some extent limited, and the public are advised to secure seats as soon as possible so as to avoid disappointment.

Impressed With Fine Appearance Of Peterborough's Streets And Residences

Mr. H. A. Frowde, of Sydney, N.S., who has been in the city for the past week, called here by the death of his brother, Mr. E. A. Frowde, has during his thirteen years' absence from Peterborough, only been home twice, and that was nine years ago. In conversation with The Examiner, Mr. Frowde stated that he noted a large number of changes, a great deal of progress having been made. The fine new residences and the good appearance of the streets indicated a live civic interest.

Mr. Frowde is connected with the firm of J. E. Buchell, L't'd, underwriters and real estate dealers. Sydney has the large Dominion Iron and Steel Co., and several other big industries. The population has, during the past few years increased from 3,000 to 7,000 and the firm with which Mr. Frowde is associated, is one of the largest of its kind in that city. At present, Mr. Frowde states, Sydney is experiencing a revival of business prosperity and the Century Club of that place is planning to so advertise the city, that great things are expected. Owing to its geographical situation, the shipping facilities are of the best, which is a big inducement to capitalists.

Mr. Frowde, after spending a few days here and in Toronto, will return to his home at Sydney.

New Stock Company Capitalized At $25,000 Organized Here

A new joint stock company, capitalized at $25,000 has been organized in this city and will be known as the Ontario Marble Table Advertising Co. L't'd. with factory and offices in Peterborough. The charter for the company was received to-day. Mr. E. D. Wilde, of St Paul, Minn., has been in the city for some weeks and has largely been instrumental in the organization of the company. He held the patent for the manufacture of these writing tables in this country and the United States. The new company will control the sale of them in Canada. Several orders for the installation of these new writing tables have already been received and it is the intention to put a number of agents on the road to solicit business. Mr. Jas. D. Drain, who for many years was the secretary of the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Co., has been made secretary-treasurer of this new enterprise and has already commenced his duties. Two writing tables will be installed in the new T. A. S. Hall.

BUILDINGS WERE DESTROYED BY AN EARLY BLAZE

House and Barn at Auburn Were completely Demolished by Blaze at Three O'clock This Morning.

DUE TO INCENDIARISM

As the result of a fire which broke out about three o'clock this morning a house and barn belonging to Alexander Griéve, at Auburn, were totally destroyed. The blaze was a picturesque one, the sky being vividly illuminated to such an extent that many citizens were awakened by the glare.

A telephone message from the Nicholls' Hospital, and a call from Box 59 were received simultaneously at the fire station, and the brigade quickly responded. They had a long run before them, however, and found, upon their arrival that the flames had secured such a start that it was impossible to do anything to save the building. They did what they could, but it was seen that the place was doomed, the result being the complete loss of the property. Fortunately the buildings were unoccupied. It is thought that the fire was of incendiary origin. No other cause that would fit the situation can be assigned.

NATIVE RIOTS

British Gunboats Have Been Ordered to Quell the Disturbance.

Special to The Examiner.

Shanghai, April 16.—Advices received to-day say that British gunboats ordered to Changsha to quell native riots against the missionaries, arrived there this morning, and immediately sent out landing parties. The natives made no effectual resistance, it is reported. Some of the Europeans have gone to Hankow. The Commander in Chief of the little fleet immediately demanded an explanation from the Mandarin of the district.

HANDSOME NEW QUARTERS OF ST. PETER'S T.A.S. CANNOT BE EXCELLED

Building on Simcoe Street Will be One of the Finest of its Kind in the Province---Will be Formally Opened on April 27th---Assembly Hall Will Seat Five Hundred People---Modern Ideas Carried Out in all Departments

The Total Abstinence Society of St. Peter's church, with its membership past the twelve hundred mark, will in the course of a week or so have splendid new quarters. Since February seventh workmen have been busily engaged renovating the property on Simcoe St., and when an Examiner reporter visited there yesterday, he was surprised at the complete change that had been effected. More ideal rooms could not have been secured. The situation, central as it is, is most convenient and can be easily reached from all parts of the city. With the changes that have taken place, the building has been divided into most spacious apartments for all branches of the work carried on by the society. The efforts of those who have been directly interested in the acquiring and fitting out of these quarters, will best be appreciated on the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh of this month, when the building will be open to the public, on the occasion of the visit here of Australia's greatest singer, Miss Margaret McCann, who will appear in concert at the hall on the above two evenings. The new building is second to none of its kind in the Province.

The Assembly Hall.

The front of the new structure is a very attractive one. It is built in red pressed brick, with large plate glass windows. There are two entrances, one into the main Assembly Hall, and the other into the hall leading to the various apartments. The concert or Assembly Hall is seventy by forty-eight feet. It has a splendid stage twenty by fifteen, with footlights and a large dressing room to the west side. This room is finished in white. It will accommodate between four hundred and fifty to five hundred people. The building will be heated throughout by a new system of steam heating, and the electrical fixtures will be of the latest and most modern styles.

Ascending the stairs to the second floor, one finds a fine suite of spacious and well laid out rooms. At the head of the stairs, one enters the reception room. Here the Society's banking office will be placed for the benefit of its customers, and a cabinet telephone will be at the disposal of the members. Off this to the north end is the ladies' room and on the opposite side, is the library In the latter there will be two six foot writing tables with marble tops. To the east there will be two six foot writing tables with marble tops. To the east end is the pool room, a great large one, fifty-three by twenty-one feet. It will be done in a cheery finish, and it will be bright and attractive, three large windows in the front, giving plenty of light. There will be six tables in it. Off it are situated a splendid committee room and bathroom with two showers. These are on the north end.

The Gymnasium.

On the third floor one finds the gymnasium, recreation and card room, the kitchen and bath room. The gymnasium will be one of the best that is to be found and will contain all the latest appliances for the development of the physical side of the members. It is seventy by twenty-one feet, occupying the entire length of the building. It has a fifteen foot ceiling, and it, too, is very bright and attractive. Its floor, as in all the floors, is of hardwood and the walls are done in a burlap finish. The recreation room is fifty by twenty-one feet. The kitchen will a great convenience in holding socials and "At Homes". It is fitted with a gas range. In the bath rooms on the third floor there are also two additional showers.

The entire building is a great credit to the society and to the men who carried out the work. Mr. J. E. Belcher was the architect and Mr. D. LaPlante superintended the work. Mr. Fred Cook had charge of the painting and decorating and Mr. Duranceau of the heating and plumbing. The building committee of the society was composed of Messrs. Bibby Cushing and Ald. Duffus.

C. P. R. Prepare To Make Beautiful Their Station

The Canadian Pacific Railway is likely to become a veritable Road of Roses. Its lines are now being made into flowery paths by the floral department, which is sending out this Spring over 60,000 packages of the best flower seeds that can be procured in Great Britain, China, Japan, Holland, Italy, India, South America, Iceland, Russia, Bermuda, California and Germany. These are distributed amongst the station agents, section foremen, and other employees, with the result that many a station ground that was formerly unsightly and uninteresting is now both interesting and attractive. Mr. Dunlop, the head of the floral department, is continuing with unabated zeal the great work he undertook 14 years ago, and it will not be many years before every one of the Company's 2,000 stations will have its pretty garden and neatly kept lawn.

IS GUEST AT LUNCHEON

His Honour Lieut. Governor J. M. Gibson and Mrs. Gibson, and Capt. Young, A.D.C., arrived in the city at noon to-day. The Lieut-Governor is laying the corner stone this afternoon of a new $23,000 church, being built by the congregation of Knox Presbyterian church. The party was welcomed at the station by Mayor Morrow and the members of the City Council, after which they went to the wharf nearby, where the Government steamer "Bob Hall" was in waiting to take them up the canal and over the Lift Lock. Here they were met with carriages and taken for a drive around the city, visiting the various places of interest. At one o'clock they drove to the beautiful home of the Misses Dickson, Dickson St., where luncheon was served, the entire party going at half past two to Knox church for the ceremony of laying the corner stone. At the ceremony the Lieut.-Governor was presented with an address and a handsome silver trowel. Addresses were also made by Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mayor Morrow.

WHEEL DAMAGED

One Belonging to Mr. Frank MacPherson was Dragged two Blocks Behind a Street Car.

Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson had considerable damage done to his bicycle this morning. It appears Mr. MacPherson placed his wheel between the back vestibule and fender of the Edison car, and as the car moved the bicycle was dislodged from its place, dragging two blocks. As soon as the position of the wheel was noticed the car was brought to a standstill.

Toronto, the Queen City of Canada, has much of the beautiful. It is found in many handsome churches, artistic business buildings, imposing offices, public drives, parks and gardens. Its government buildings are fine. Of hotels there are many; none, however, approaching the Queen's for perfect service, quiet comfort, and homelike surroundings, and the peculiar excellence of its cuisine. Its fame is far-reaching, and many remember with pleasure the hours spent within its hospitable walls. The charges are based on the American and European plan, and are as follows:

EXTENSIONS ASSURED.

It is a fortunate thing for Peterborough that the acceptance by the Canadian General Electric Company of the terms of the Water Works Commissioners and the city council has taken place. The arrangement, barring the legal formalities to give it effect, may be regarded as an accomplished fact. The results will be of important advantage to Peterborough. The object of the company in securing motive power in the way provided for, was to justify the making of extensive additions to its buildings, plant, and manufacturing facilities in Peterborough, instead of in Toronto. The Examiner was informed by an authority connected with the works that there was urgency in the settlement of the power question for the disgusting necessity of having to turn away orders, from sheer lack of facilities to fill them, demanded immediate extension of existing facilities. It is, therefore, practically certain that the work of power house construction and building extension will be carried on simultaneously and energetically. Thus we shall benefit this summer from the local distribution of $70,000 and $250,000—or as much as can be expended in one season—in employment of labour, purchase of material, machinery, etc.; to be followed by increased manufacturing operations and increased payment of wages, to be spent among our merchants and business men. And this is not all. The same authority, connected with the works, informed the Examiner that the plans prepared for the extension of the works, to equip them for meeting the constantly increasing volume of orders, involved the expenditure of $600,000, or $700,000. The extensions being begun in Peterborough, will be continued and completed in Peterborough. So that instead of the Company carrying out the mere letter of the contract with the city spending $250,000 in extensions it will in its own interests, and incidentally, in the interests of Peterborough, expend nearly three times as much in necessary extensions. There does not seem to be anything wrong with the arrangement between Peterborough and the Canadian General Electric Company. It is one of very great mutual advantage, and one in which the city, so far as beneficial results are concerned, seems to have got the bigger end of the bargain. The advantages the city gets do not cost it a dollar of actual outlay, while the company, to get the full advantages following from the agreement of power, will spend first and last, nearly three-quarters of a million of dollars. This, of course, will be a productive expenditure on the part of the Company, and on selfish grounds alone our citizens will hope that its largest expectations will be realized; the more the Electric Works prosper the more we prosper with them.

ANOTHER ABORTIVE SCANDAL.

The scandal campaign of the Conservative Opposition at Ottawa, which was as industriously as ineffectively prosecuted in the sessions from 1905 to 1908, was only spasmodically revived the present session. The sawdust wharf scandal was not made good; the Clarry-Dickson scandal has proved a very tame attempt; and the Lumsden charges have so little in them that the Conservative members of the special committee of investigation, backed down and refused to serve, feeling no doubt that they could make less political capital by assisting to probe matters to the bottom, than by withdrawing and thus, to their mind, investing the investigation with a partisan character. The attempt of Mr. Bradbury, of Selkirk, to exploit a scandal in connection with the surrender of St. Peter's Indian Reserve, adjoining the town of Selkirk, Manitoba, though he took four hours and five minutes of the valuable time of the House, proved to be a "frost" from a party point of view. Mr. Bradbury was prolific in assertion but short on proof. Hon. Frank Oliver, who followed him effectively, said that he believed that "never since this chamber was erected has there been delivered in its walls such a persistent and sustained trade of unwarranted assertion, a tirade that in its gratuitous inexactitude is an offence against the privilege of parliament and an insult to its intelligence." It became necessary as a prudent matter of administration, to procure the surrender of St. Peter's Reserve in the interests of both the Indians themselves and of the productive settlement and cultivation of the land, of the reserve. Mr. Bradbury's charge was that this surrender was planned deliberately by the government for the purpose of unduly advantaging party friends of the government and that it had been carried out in this spirit; that the Indians had been hoodwinked; that 90 per cent. of the signature of the Indians to the surrender were forgeries. The minister was able to produce 338 original signatures of the Indians proving the falsity of the charge. The charge of bribery which Mr. Bradbury founded upon gossip—"it is alleged" was also disposed of by proof that the Indians had voted authority, to the Chief, to make the surrender, whose signing was witnessed, amongst others, by the Conservative M.P.P. for the district. The lands were sold by public auction(liberally advertised and there were no middlemen, as asserted by Mr. Bradbury. The minister showed conclusively that the value of the land surrendered had appreciated and that the interests of settlement and of the town of Selkirk had been promoted.. As to the policy of procuring the surrender of Indian reserves one Conservative member privately declared himself in favour of procuring the surrender of all of these reserves in the public interests and his name did not appear in the diverse list in favour of Mr. Bradbury's motion of censure or in the list of pairs. In a word Hon. Mr. Oliver showed that the whole transaction had been carried out in the light of day; the government had nothing to conceal, and he asked the endorsement of the House, and he got it too. The minister was sustained by a majority of 50, the largest given the government this session. Among those who were brought into the voting line by the Conservatives, was Mr. Borden, the leader, who was too ill to discuss the naval bill, but able to come out and vote for the establishment of a scandal, which had not a leg to stand upon.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In entering upon the consideration of the estimates of his department yesterday, Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, gave a wide review of the past work of his department. He went into detail of the various increases, which in every case were justified, that had brought an annual expenditure of $192,000 in 1899 to one of $807,000 at present. Fourteen years ago the total land under cultivation was seventeen million acres. To-day it has advanced to thirty million acres, and improved forms of agriculture and dairying operations have had their effect in adding to the output and profit of these two of our cardinal national industries.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

Fences Along Public Highways.

Possibly the idea has occurred to other people, besides myself that the present custom of allowing snake fences to be erected along our chief highways is one that ought to be abolished in the public interest. It is one thing to countenance such structures in newly-settled sections, but a totally different one to permit their erection in districts that have been long settled, and where the traffic is continuous and heavy. The past winter has been one of exceptional mildness, and there has been no complaint in regard to stoppage of traffic by reason of blocked roads. But the records of most winters have been very much the reverse, and places of importance have been over and over again cut off from the outside world for three or four days at a time on account of heavy snowstorms having filled in large portions of the roadways.

There is a very easy and effectual remedy available in the shape of the erection of wire fences in place of the unsightly snake structures, which now do duty as boundaries along the roads.

If such a change were rendered imperative throughout the country, not only would the landscape be vastly improved in appearance, but pleasure and convenience to the travelling public would be immeasurably enhanced.

Gems of Thought.

Anyone who has a love for poetry has, hidden away in his memory, some stray piece, that, in spite of passing years, and corroding cares, sticks like a limpet to a rock, and refuses to be washed out into the ocean of oblivion. It would be interesting to learn from readers of the Examiner what piece, or pieces, particularly appeal to them. The one that appeals most strongly to the writer, as showing the cheerfulness and simple faith of a true Christian, is a short poem by Mrs. Barbauld, a poetess of the late Georgian era. It runs as follows:

Life, we've been long together,
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather;
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh—a tear;
Then steal away—give little warning.
Choose thine own time;
Say not good-night, but in some brighter clime
Bid me good-morning.

It is about the only piece of hers that has survived the stress of time. Tennyson was wont to say that it was his favourite piece, and with such distinguished backing there is not much fear of its passing into the limbo of forgetfulness.

There is another short piece of four lines, certainly not poetry, but call it what you may, it embodies a whole sermon in its compass. It often comes to my mind, when I have been in an acrid humour with men and things. It is here produced for the benefit of those who may be inclined to think or speak evil of their fellow men:

"There is so much good in the worst of us,
And so much bad in the best of us,
That it ill becomes the most of us,
To say anything bad of the rest of us."

Asks For Remedy.

Dear Sir,—While marketing this morning I noticed that it was not an unusual sight to see (in the hall upstairs) onions in quantities, in close touch with butter. This, I should think, could be remedied greatly to the satisfaction of the housewife, who likes to have her butter as free as possible from foreign taints. Perhaps a word in your column might remedy matters. READER.

A Letter.

Dear Sir,—Did you ever so far unbend from the dignified deportment that so well becomes you and perpetrate a joke? If so, perhaps you have felt the thrill of elation that electrifies one's whole being when one sets the table in a roar. But, whisper it gently, have you ever had the misfortune to make what you thought was a joke, and experienced the extreme chagrin of having it received in chilling silence by an assembled company? If you have, I condole with you, for I, too, have suffered the same misfortune. Listen to my tale of woe: Twice lately I have made jokes, both of them, in my humble estimation, were good ones. I retailed them to two or three cronies, and they saw the points at once and laughed mercily. The trouble arose when one of them, in the good-natured attempt to lionise me in a large company, strove to recount them as specimens of my nimble humour.

Joke No. 1.—In a far off eastern city I know a girl called Annie B——. She is a fascinating maiden, and in merry mood I one day said to her: 'I can easily see that if you were wedded you would be a consistently lively person." "Why?" she enquired. "Because," I replied, "you would naturally be always Annie-mated."

Joke No. 2.—A dyspeptic being was one day bewailing his bad health, and, thinking it courteous to agree with him, I said: "Yes, dyspepsia's a bad thing, old chap, and the trouble is that sooner or later, if you can't digest, you'll jest die." Now, Mr. Editor, listen to the finale. My friend went to work in this way: Calling the company to silence he said, "By the bye, I've got two splendid jokes of C—'s, to tell you. The other day he asked Miss B— a riddle; you know her name's Annie —. Well, he said, Miss B— if you were wedded why would you always be lively? 'I don't know,' says Miss B—. 'Why,' says C—, 'because you would always be Annie-married.'" They didn't laugh and my friend seemed pained. So was I. But he tried with the second one. He said: "The other day poor old Jones, a dyspeptic beggar, was expatiating to C—— on his miseries, and quick as a flash C——, turned on him and said: "Well, old man, if you can't digest, by Jingo, you'll die, you know, you'll die." There was not so much as a flicker of a smile from the whole crowd, but I feel a certain measure of comfort in the thought that whatever the members of that company may think of me as a humorist their opinion of my friend's opinion of me as a humorist must be equally forceful and emphatic."

PUBLIC ISSUES OF THE DAY DISCUSSED AT SPLENDID MEETING HELD AT NORWOOD

Addresses Given by Mr. F. B. Carvell, M.P., of Woodstock, N.B.; Mr. Fred T. Congdon of the Yukon, and Messrs. R. R. Hall and Daniel O'Connell of Peterborough---Enthusiastic Tributes Paid by the Speakers to Sir Wilfrid Laurier---Mr. Carvell Shows How Ill Founded Were the Lennox Charges and Fully Explains the Matter.

Another successful meeting in the series under the auspices of the Liberal Associations of East and West Peterborough was held Friday evening in the Town Hall, Norwood, when addresses were given by Mr. F. B Carvell, M.P., Woodstock, N.B., Mr Fred T. Congdon, M.P., Yukon, Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., and Mr Daniel O'Connell, of Peterborough. The attendance was large, the commodious hall being well filled and the speakers were given a most flattering reception, their speeches being punctuated at frequent intervals by rounds of applause, while the close attention paid all through showed the interest the people of the district take in the issues of the day. A feature was the presence of a large number of ladies.

Mr. Wm. Buck, president of the East Peterborough Liberal Association, made a most efficient chairman.

Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P. of Peterborough, was the first speaker of the evening, and in an effective twenty-minute address, dealt with the trade relationship between Canada and the United States. Mr. Hall commenced his address by expressing his pleasure at being present, and went on to introduce to the audience the visiting members of parliament, who, he said, had come direct from the seat of war. Mr. Hall referred to the distance Mr. Congdon had to travel to attend his parliamentary duties, further than from Norwood to Liverpool. The extent of Canada was clearly indicated by the consideration of that point.

Mr. Hall referred to the necessity for better trade relations between Canada and the United States. The United States had proposed to raise the tax on Canadian goods twenty-five per cent., which would have cut off the Canadian trade into the States, Canada could have, no doubt, retaliated, but that would have had the effect of killing all trade between the two countries. The condition had been brought about by the Payne-Aldrich bill, passed by the United States government. Mr. Fielding, in a conference with the United States president, had, however, been able to avert the tariff war by mutual concessions. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's first step almost on going into power, was to go to the United States government to ask for a reciprocity treaty. His reception was so chilly then that he had taken the stand that never would he or any of his government go, hat in hand, to the United States and ask for such a treaty. Sir Wilfrid had then adopted the British preference policy. As a result Canada had been able to take care of her trade without assistance.

The United States had come to find that Canada was one of her best customers. A study of the figures showed that Great Britain was the United States' best customer, with Germany second, and Canada third, ahead, even, of France. Mr. Hall could not understand why better trade conditions had not been established between the two countries long before.

They had so many things in common—language, religion and customs, and there seemed no reason why they should not deal with each other on a mutual basis. Despite the resources of Canada, and her opportunities to assist the United States, the great trend of legislation in the United States, had been to drive trade from east to west, and from west to east, and Canada had been forced to adopt the same policy. Much of the trade could be more economically carried from north to south. That was the basis upon which it was proposed that new trade relations should be adopted between the United States and Canada.

Mr. Hall quoted figures to show the high tariff charges upon agricultural products sent into the United States from Canada. It was an absolutely prohibitive tariff. It would almost pay a person better to burn his produce than to send it to the United States under such a tariff.

In 1882 Canada sent $18,000,000 of agricultural products into the States. In 1896, in spite of the increase in population and the growth of Canada the trade in agricultural products was only a little over $3,000,000. In 1899 Canada's trade to the United States in that time only amounted to $1,135,000, or a decrease from $18,000,000 to $1,135,000. The trade to Great Britain in 1882 was $11,000,000, and in 1908 it was $58,000,000. These latter figures showed that Canada had taken her place among the nations, and was capable of taking care of herself. This condition had brought the President of the United States to realize the necessity of coming to an amicable agreement in trade relations between the United States and Canada. No person could go to any large city in the United States without hearing people complain of the cost of living. They must have the farm products of Canada to alleviate their distress. Mr Hall pictured the high tariff as an evil genius rising from the bottom of the Niagara River, as 100 bushels of wheat were being sent across and claiming 25 bushels, saying as it sank back with that amount: "We are doing this for your protection."

"How can it be overcome?" asked Mr. Hall. By the United States and Canadian representatives meeting together and discussing the matter in a businesslike way and establishing free trade, as far as possible, especially in the matter of farm products.

The trade would grow by leaps and bounds. Ontario farms would take on a new lease of life, and the growth of the North West, great as it is now, would be still greater by reason of such a trade arrangement between the two countries. Canada, in the last few years, had grown as no other country in the world had grown, with the exception of the United States. Great, however, as had been the development, the growth in the next ten years would be surprising to every one, if such an arrangement was brought about.

Mr. Carvell's Address.

Mr. F. B. Carvell, M.P. for Woodstock, N.B., was the next speaker. He commenced by congratulating the people of Norwood upon all the evidences of thrift, industry and cleanliness he had noticed during his visit.

He had no hesitation in claiming for the present Government a very large measure of credit for the success and prosperity of Canada. He did not mean to say that the Government was immaculate or that they could not have done better if they had to do it over again with their fourteen years' experience. However, he wished to claim that they had far exceeded their predecessors. It would not, perhaps, be a fair comparison to compare conditions as they are now to what they were fourteen years ago. Canada had grown; it was natural that she should grow, but it was to the wise policy and earnest efforts of the Liberal Government in looking after the immigration that a great deal of the credit for the growth was due. There were two great factors, upon which depended the success of Canada, as well as any other country, population and transportation. The Liberal party had early recognized that fact, and the Government were entitled to the thanks of the people for the way in which they had handled these two things. In the east, Ontario was rightly considered as the garden of Canada, but without people it would never have been in a position to claim that title. When the Liberal party came into power they found the great north west with an almost stationary population. There had been no changes to amount to anything in a number of years. The Conservatives had argued that they had not had the facilities to accomplish anything, but there had been a railway there for eleven years. They had, however, done nothing to bring in any people. The Liberal party had been blamed for many years for its immigration policy. They had had to listen to long tirades of abuse upon the subject. There was no one who had not heard tirades on the North Atlantic Trading Company. Little was heard of that now, and there was not the same complaint about immigration. Mr. Carvell did not want to deny that the Liberal Government had been willing to spend money in large quantities to bring people in. They had thirty or forty immigrant agents in the United States, and a similar number in Great Britain, while there are others in other European countries. As a result of their efforts there would be an immigration of 300,000 into Canada this year, and there should be from that number to half a million every year hereafter. The result of such an invasion would be remarkable in its effect upon Canada, and upon the manufacturers. The revenue was raised almost altogether on customs' tariff. Every farmer in the North West became a consumer of manufactured articles, and therefore this meant an increase in the revenue. The benefit of 100,000 immigrants in the North West upon the revenue could readily be seen.

The Government was entitled to a great amount of credit for its immigration policy. The Government had made mistakes; it was a great mistake, one of the biggest they had made, in bringing the Doukhobors. They thought at the time that they were doing right, but time had proved the contrary. There were only 8,000 of them, and was the whole immigration policy of the Government to be condemned for that slight error of judgment?

Transportation.

The people of Ontario perhaps did not realize the necessity of adequate transportation facilities. The Government had, however, recognized the necessity early to have proper facilities, and had spent hundreds of millions of dollars in building the necessary transportation facilities. Millions of dollars had been spent on wharves and docks and breakwaters. The country could never grow as it ought to grow until the Government was willing to spend money where it was needed. By transportation facilities he did not mean merely railways, but canals, docks, everything, in fact, that provided for a quick and cheap method of carrying goods. Twelve or fourteen years ago there was only one railway in the North West, which did not go through the best portion of the country. The Government had conceived the advisability of constructing the Grand Trunk Pacific. There was not such a railway in the world, at its length, which compared to this line—from the Pacific Ocean to Quebec there is only about twenty-five miles that is greater than a four-tenth grade. The line crossed the continent with much lower grades than on the railways in Ontario. It was possible to haul more tons of freight with the same engine than on any other line in the country. Such roads could not be built without the expenditure of much money. The criticism was being made that the line was costing more that it was thought it would. So it would, but Mr. Carvell asked if any anybody in the audience had ever built anything that hadn't cost more than he thought it would. The road was being honestly built, and would be the greatest line on the continent.

Mr. Carvell passed on to discuss the expenditure upon the canal system. As a result last year many millions bushels of wheat were diverted from the American ports to Montreal. The next great problem for the people of Canada was to further develop the canal system. It would be necessary to spend millions of dollars upon such purposes, but it would have to be done. Immense saving to the people of Canada would be made. Mr. Carvell believed that in ten years five hundred million bushels of grain would be sent out from the North West. A well developed canal system was necessary, and whichever government was in power would have to spend an enormous sum of money upon upon such a work. There had been lots of fault found with the Government. It had been said that the Liberals were running the country into debt, and yet this year there was a surplus of over $20,000,000. It had been said that the money was not being spent honestly. Mr. Carvell was not going to re-hash all the old stories about scandal. One scandal after another had been brought up, but the people did not believe them when it came to an election.

Mr. Carvell instanced the Lennox charges which had already cost the country $500 for investigation in the Public Accounts committee. "What does it all amount to?" asked the speaker. "The whole story is that a solicitor who happened to have taken retainers from a number of people whose lands had been damaged by flooding, to file claims for them, was afterwards appointed to investigate such claims. He did his work as honestly as ever a lawyer did for a client; if there was one taint of a flaw he would not report favourably. Because he acted so honestly one man whose title was not perfect was dissatisfied. Mr. Lennox heard of the matter and travelled all over, getting affidavits and had charged that there was collusion between Mr. Clarry and Mr. Dickson, the valuator. The charges had been investigated. Witnesses were brought down and stated that Mr. Dickson had repeatedly told them there was no need of going to a lawyer, that they could see the Superintendent at Peterborough and get their pay just the same. Mr. Lennox had therefore agreed that everything was all right as regards Mr. Dickson. He then claimed that the government was paying for lands that were not flooded, but after hearing the witnesses he had to admit that this, too, was all right. The next question was that they were paying too much, but witnesses had sworn to the value of the lands and again he found he was wrong. Finally it got down to a pure question of professional etiquette as to whether a solicitor who had retained and accepted a commission, should then search the titles. Mr. Lennox was using this in an attempt to besmirch the character of Mr. Clarry. That was all that was in the charge and that was about all there had been in any of the scandals of which they had heard so much. These were some of the things the government had to contend with.

The only question was as to whether or not the moneys expended by the government had been spent honestly and judiciously or not. If the Opposition could show that the expenditure had not been honest then they would be justified in asking the people to turn them out. Mr. Carvell, in conclusion, paid an eloquent tribute to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. "I have the greatest faith," he remarked, "in the great man who stands at the head of affairs in Canada to-day and whom I regard as the greatest man who ever stood in Canada." Canada possessed two nationalities, the people of one having just the same rights as those of the other and the person or the party between the two was the greatest enemy that Canada could have.

The Conservative party sometimes claimed that Sir Wilfrid was not loyal. The speaker pointed out the fallacy of such a statement by pointing out what he had done, the passing of the British preference, the sending of troops to South Africa and the part he had taken in the colonial conference which he had practically led and in which his opinions had been adopted by the British empire.

"I hope it will be a very long time before anything happens to remove him from the head of our affairs," concluded Mr. Carvell. "So long as he wishes he may continue premier, and so long as he continues in that position will Canada prosper."

Mr. D. O'Connell.

Mr. D. O'Connell, K.C. of Peterborough, said that it was always a pleasure to him to visit Norwood and renew old acquaintances there. He thought the audience owed a debt of gratitude to the Liberal Association for favouring them with so excellent an opportunity of hearing about their country and its government. The very fact that of the two members of parliament present, one was from the maritime provinces and the other from the Pacific coast, drove into the minds of people the wonderful extent of Canada and made them realize that in territorial extent Canada is the greatest on this side of the Atlantic, if not in the world. Such meetings served to educate the people in regard to certain facts about the country and the government that otherwise they would not have the opportunity to learn. Nothing could be more instructive than Mr. Carvell's address to which they had just listened.

There was, too, no better opportunity for the electorate of the county forming an opinion than when the heat of a political campaign was removed from the arena, people could sit down calmly and quietly and form an opinion.

The principles of a responsible government made it necessary that one or other of the two great parties should be in power. The question was what great principles divided the two parties. There was, he stated, a line of demarcation between the two. The one distinguishing feature characteristic of the Liberal party not only in Canada, but in England, was the fundamental principle of an unlimited, abiding confidence in the people, a wish to try and meet and find out the wants of the people, a confidence in the country and its resources. It was that principle that animated the Liberal party in England, when Burke and Fox and Gladstone had fought for the rights of the common people, that the common man, the man who depended on labour would be a man in whose hands might be placed the destiny of the nation. So it was in Canada. In 1837 at a time when Canada was little thought of, she was controlled, not by the people of the country, but by the parliament of Great Britain. The forefathers of the Liberal party recognized the wonderful possibilities of this country, and so Mackenzie and the others had fought for and succeeded in establishing responsible government. This principle had grown steadily. The Liberals were not responsible alone; the Conservatives had done their share, and step by step, year by year, it has developed, until Canada is in the position of almost national autonomy.

In the destinies of any country, there was developed at one period or another in its history a great man who comes up to take charge of public affairs and who by his great genius, his brilliancy, his integrity and sincerity of purpose, his integrity and self upon the affairs of his country. During the fourteen years that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been at the head of affairs in Canada, the country had made marvellous progress. Sir Wilfrid had done a great deal for Canada. He had urged and succeeded in gaining for Canada a recognition of its right to have something to say about foreign treaties that concerned her. As a result Canada was able to take upon herself the protection of its trade. The wisdom of such a policy was shown by Germany's sending her ambassador to Canada to plead that the surtax on German goods be removed. A short time ago the United States with its one hundred million population, a country that had succeeded in bluffing almost every nation in the world, which sought in every bargain to further its own interests, had threatened that if Canada did not give them the same special conditions of trade as it had France, the United States would pass legislation that would destroy the trade relationship between the two countries. However, the great American people had come to the Canadian government, in spite of their threats and acceded to her wishes almost absolutely.

A great act of national autonomy was the navy bill, in which by Canada's building and controlling her own navy, the principle of her having the right to control her own affairs, was endorsed. There were differences of opinion as to how the money should be spent. Some of the Conservatives had suggested money contributions with perhaps a few ships. The Liberal party's plan, however, was to have ships built by Canadian people, kept here under the control of the Canadian parliament and ready, if needful, to fight for the Empire when danger threatened.

Mr. Congdon, M.P.

Mr. Fred T. Congdon, M.P., the member for the Yukon, closed the meeting with a witty, eloquent, twenty-five minute address. He remarked, in opening, that he was there as an attraction because he hailed from the far north, over 4,000 miles from Norwood. Some people seemed to imagine that he would look like and act like an Esquimaux because he came from a land that was laved by the balmy waters of the Arctic seas. It was important that people should take a broad view of public affairs to look at things not from the viewpoint of what is best for a district or for a province, but from a broad, national standpoint. Therefore, it was well that such political meetings should be held, especially at a time when the warmth of an election campaign was not an influence to bias the judgment and prevent a clear, judicial decision on the points at issue.

Mr. Congdon dealt for a few minutes with the Lumsden inquiry. From the Conservative press one would think that the government had refused to make a proper investigation. The facts of the case were that Mr. Lumsden, who was the chief engineer of the Transcontinental railway, and as such was superior to all the other engineers on the work, had passed the age when he was able to take charge of such a work with the call which it made for energy and enterprise. Mr. Lumsden resigned his position and gave as his reason that he was dissatisfied with certain engineers, and the classification that they had made. The cry had been raised by the Conservatives that the government was responsible and indirectly perhaps they were. Their responsibility was to select what they thought good honest men. That was the test and if some of these men had not turned out as expected, it would be absurd to say that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal government were responsible in a direct way for this wrong doing. To investigate the matter a committee of the House was appointed and the Opposition proposed that the committee should be entrusted with the whole investigation in regard to classification, etc., all along the line. The government had regarded it as more sane and business like to appoint a board of engineers and this was what was done. The Conservatives evidently desired that minority rule should govern in the committee. The three Conservative members on the Lumsden committee had stated that they represented the people and that they should have the right to appoint the counsel. They refused even to name a counsel, when it had been promised them that he would be appointed if he was a man of repute and standing. Instead, however, of naming anyone, the three members had shown the white feather and had quit the committee because they could not have their own way.

Mr. Congdon agreed with Mr. O'Connell in the views he had advanced in regard to democracy. He himself had imbibed his political ideas from the late Joseph Howe, and in listening to him had been firmly imbued with the principles of democracy. He quoted from a speech from the eminent Nova Scotian statesman to indicate to the audience the views Joseph Howe had on the subject.

Mr. Congdon referred briefly to the naval question. While he did not like very much a display of militarism, he realized that a nation must make preparations to defend her people and her trade from the attack of a possible enemy. It was necessary to protect our liberty. He was a strong advocate of liberty and had voted against the Miller Bill in the House of Commons because he did not believe in infringing upon the liberties of others unless they were becoming a nuisance or a menace to the community.

Mr. Borden's attitude on the naval bill had been remarkable. The speaker had heard him in the House in March, 1909, and had read his Halifax speech in both of which he had said there could be no such thing as a cash contribution from the Canadian people to England. Then he changed his front suddenly and now proposed to send twenty-five millions to Great Britain. Not only that, but he wanted the money to be sent without submitting the question to the people while on the other hand he urged that the matter of building a navy here should be left to the popular vote.

Mr. Congdon expressed his admiration for the English people because of their love for liberty and the manner in which they would fight for it. They were strong up-holders of the eleventh commandment, "Thou shalt not allow thyself to be imposed upon," and he was proud of the way in which they stood up for that principle.

The speaker regretted that time did not permit of his going into the naval bill at as great a length as he would have liked. It was a favourite subject of his, he explained in conclusion.

The meeting was brought to a close with cheers for the King and for Messrs. Carvell and Congdon.

If there isn't a fire in the fire-box of the Champion Interchangeable Steel Range you don't have to wait until you build one before cooking breakfast or any other meal. Just light the gas burners under the two pot holes over the oven door. Over these two pot holes you can make porridge and coffee. Then light the broiler burner. Broil a steak and toast bread. And while you are cooking breakfast with gas you can build a coal or wood fire in the fire-box. You cannot do this with any other range in the world.

Champion INTERCHANGEABLE GAS, COAL & WOOD Range

There is no other range like the Champion Steel Range. No other range one-half so convenient. Cooks and bakes perfectly with coal, wood, natural or artificial gas. Can be changed from a gas range to a coal range in three seconds. If desirable you can use coal or wood and gas at same time. Costs about the same price as a high-grade steel range, and equally durable. Ask our agent to show you this remarkable steel range, or write our nearest office for Champion booklet. 38

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine.

If you want new health and new strength in the spring you must build up your blood with a tonic medicine. Following the long indoor winter months most people feel depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood is impure and watery. It is this state of the blood that causes pimples and unsightly eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetitite, frequent headaches and a desire to avoid exertion. You can't cure these troubles by the use of purgatives; you need a tonic and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving nerve restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood, which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ, and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired out, ailing men, women and children. If you are feeling out of sorts give this medicine a trial, it will not disappoint you. Mr. Paul Charbonneau, a young man well known in the town of St. Jerome, Que., is one of the host who bear testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says: "When I left school I became a bookkeeper in an important office. Probably due to confinement I began to suffer from indigestion and loss of strength. I became pale and seemingly bloodless and was often seized with palpitation of the heart and violent headaches. I tried several remedies, but they did not do me a bit of good. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and did so, and the use of eight boxes brought me back to perfect health and strength. I have since enjoyed the best of health and cannot say too much in praise of this valuable medicine."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE LADIES' AID SOCIETY.

It's just the latest kilter with a gallery and dome,
It seats a thousand people — finest church in all the town!
And when 'twas dedicated, why we planked ten thousand down,
That is, we paid five thousand — every deacon did his best—
And the Ladies Aid Society it promised all the rest.

We've got an organ in the church—very finest in the land;
It's got a thousand pipes or more; it's melody is grand!
And we sit on cushioned pews and hear the master play,
It carries us to realms of bliss, unnumbered miles away,
It cost a cool three thousand, and it's stood the hardest test;
We'll pay a thousand on it—the Ladies' Aid the rest.

They'll give a thousand sociables, cantatas, too, and teas.
They'll bake a thousand angel cakes and tons of cream they'll freeze.
They'll beg and scrape and toil and work for seven years or more.
And then they'll start all o'er again for a carpet for the floor.
No, it isn't just like digging out the money from your vest,
When the Ladies' Aid gets busy and says, "We'll pay the rest."

Of course we're proud of our big church from pulpit up to spire;
It is the darling of our eyes, the crown of our desire!
But when I see the sisters work to raise the cash that lacks,
I sometimes feel the church is built on women's tired backs,
I sometimes can't help thinking, when we reach the regions blest,
The men will get the toil and work and the Ladies' Aid the rest.

—Margaret Bishop.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

SOME NEW RECIPES.

Stuffed Veal Heart—That the veal heart may be as savory as possible, prepare a very highly seasoned stuffing. For a cupful and a half of bread crumbs add as much salt and pepper as the family palate can stand, three tablespoonfuls of finely chopped suet, a third of a tablespoonful of powdered thyme and one small onion finely chopped and slowly cooked in a little dripping until yellowed. This makes a crumbly mixture which, when shortened with the suit, will be light and when served sufficiently moist. Fill the heart with this, fasten the top with a stitch, place in a small saucepan with boiling water an inch deep, cover and simmer for an hour and three-quarters. Transfer to a dripping pan, lay over it several very thin slices of larding pork and bake in a quick oven until well browned, turning once or twice.

Caramel Custards—Put in a clean frying pan one cupful of granulated sugar and place over a moderate fire without adding any water. Stir often with a metal spoon. The sugar will first lump like tapioca, then slowly melt to a paler amber colored liquid. When the melting begins watch and if the color is at all dark, draw well to one side; when too deeply colored it has a bitter taste. When reduced to a clear liquid pour a portion into a mould and turn round quickly that the caramel may be well distributed. It will harden at once. To the remainder add carefully an dquickly a cupful of boiling water, and stir until a thick syrup. To each pint of the of caramel and one spoonful of vanilla. raw custard, add three tablespoonfuls Strain into moulds to harden, bake in a moderate oven until firm, and when firm take out carefully.

Mustard Pickles—Gather cucumbers, wash and wipe dry. Put into glass fruit jars and cover with the following: For one gallon of cold cider vinegar add one teaspoonful of salt and one of ground mustard. They keep perfectly and are easily made. People who wish them sweet add one-half cup of sugar to the above recipe. —M. W. (Illinois).

To my taste all pickles are better for the addition of a little sugar. My mother made the most delicious pickles I ever ate. She stirred into each gallon a tablespoonful of vinegar each month of the year. It kept them mellow of flavor and counteracted the sharpening of the vinegar that comes with age.

Preserved Rose Leaves—As the petals are gathered pack them down in a jar with layers of salt. Every two days turn out the petals and salt and toss and mix well, then return to the jar. Leave for two weeks after the last lot of petals is added. Turn out and toss and mix again, adding as you do so the following ingredients: One-half ounce each of violet, rose and heliotrope powder; one ounce of powdered orris root, one-half teasponful each of powdered mace and cloves, one-quarter teasponful of pulverized cinnamon, 20 drops each of oil of melissne and oil of eucalyptus, 10 drops of oil of shiris and of bergamot, four drops of oil of roses and two drams of alcohol. Mix throughly and pack in jars to "ripen."

Bran Muffins—Mix a cupful of bran with one of flour, add two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two tablespoonfuls of syrup, one well-beaten egg, a little salt and milk enough to make a soft batter. Bake to a good brown.

SOME SUGGESTIONS.

White muslin curtains with ruffles of colored muslin are among the pretty room furnishings being shown this spring.

Veilings of marquisette, or silk voile, will wash infinitely better than those of chiffon and will be very becoming.

The Norfolk coat is one of the prominent revivals this spring that has returned as a coat for girls and suit for boys.

Children wear patent leather belts or those of the dress fabric; in the latter case a buckle is made of the same goods.

The Dresden patterns in ribbons are not confined to ribbons of taffeta and moire, but may be found in velvet as well.

Many a foulard which did duty last season may be furbished to look decidedly up-to-date by the addition of a tunic of silk voile.

A great deal of time and trouble is saved and the lives of stockings doubled if the toes and heels are run with mending silk, or even with cotton, before they are worn.

Silk will not shrink as mending wool does, and it is not nearly so bulky.

Washing, too, has a great deal to do with the wear of stockings. They should first of all be well shaken in order to remove any dust and then soaked for fifteen minutes in a lather of warm water and soap to which a little ammonia has been added.

Next make a fresh lather of soap and water and squeeze the stockings in this.

Rinse in two lots of warm water, dry and press with a moderately hot iron before they are quite dry.

Never use soda for socks or stockings: it injures the colour.

COLD KILLS THE GERM.

Lieut. Perry Says There are no Bald Heads in the Arctic Region.

The people who come back form Klondike testify to the fact that no native bald heads are heads. The evidence is that the cold climate kills the germs that eat the hair off at the root. Lieut. Perry, who went to the Arctic Regions, gives the same evidence. Newbro's Herpicide has the same effect as the cold climate. It kills the germ that eats the hair off at the roots, and the hair grows again. Herpicide is the first hair remedy built upon the principle of destroying the germ that eats the hair off. Its phenomenal sale demonstrates the correctness of the scalp germ theory. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE NINETEENTH ANNIVERSARY WAS FITTINGLY CELEBRATED

Court Bridgenorth C. O. F. Held Delightful Concert Last Evening With a Splendid Crowd in Attendance.

CHOICE PROGRAMME

The nineteenth anniversary of Court Bridgenorth, Canadian Order of Foresters, was fittingly celebrated on Friday evening of this week, when a most successful and enjoyable concert was held in the lodgeroom at Bridgenorth. The spacious hall was crowded with an appreciative audience, and the evening was one of thorough enjoyment, the addresses and musical programme being evidently greatly appreciated, if the hearty applause is to be taken as a criterion. The different speakers were given an attentive hearing, while the artists who took part in the musical programme were most heartily received.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., occupied the chair and gave a short explanation of the aims and objects of Forestry.

Mr. W. G. Strong, of Brantford, the Superintendent of the Canadian Order of Foresters, was present, and delivered an address on the history of the progress of the Order in Canada.

Dr. Holloway, of Peterborough, and Rev. Mr. Crookshanks, also addressed the gathering.

Mr. Andrew Jobe, Chief Ranger of Court Bridgenorth, introduced the chairman, and at the conclusion of the programme moved a vote of thanks to all those who had assisted in the enjoyment of the evening. This was seconded by Mr. John Telford, and was heartily passed.

The programme was as follows:

Selection—The Ennismore orchestra.
Piano duet—Mr. R. J. Devey and Master Cyril Devey, Peterborough.
Solo—Miss Pringle, Peterborough.
Vocal solo—Mr. W. McLaren, Peterborough.
Selection—The Ennismore orchestra.
Vocal solo—Mr. Geo. Chandler, Peterborough.
Vocal solo—Mrs. Young.
Musical selection—The Telford family.
Vocal solo—Mr. Jas. O'Brien.
Vocal duet—Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devey, Peterborough.
Piano duet—Miss Mack and Mr. Barkwell.
Selection—Ennismore Orchestra.
Comic song—Mr. W. McLaren.
Vocal solo—Miss Pringle.
Vocal solo—Mr. Chandler.

Mr. R. J. Devey was the accompanist for the evening and added much to the enjoyment of the occasion by his finished work at the piano.

THERE'S A WONDERFUL DIFFERENCE BETWEEN GRADED AND DRAFTED PATTERNS

WE WILL SHOW YOU

If you come and consult us about your Spring Sewing we will give you some very valuable information that will aid you in making correct fitting clothes. You will then be able to attempt what you never thought was possible before with your limited knowledge of the dressmaking art.

There are only two kinds of patterns; the one kind is the "graded" pattern (otherwise, every known make except the Ladies' Home Journal Patterns), and the other kind is the "drafted".

The Ladies' Home Journal Pattern is made from a drafted pattern, cut after a careful study of the average proportions of a figure. Each size is drafted and cut from the true proportions of the average figure of a corresponding size, thus with very slight variation from the size 36 pattern any size 36 figure can have a perfect fitting garment and likewise with any other size. Every sized pattern is drafted irrespective of any other size that has been drafted; not so with other patterns, they're graded from the 36 size in exactly the same proportions which results in only one thing—a misfit for almost all figures other than the 36 and sometimes it is imperfect, not being on average proportions.

Do You Wish To Learn More About Home Dress-making

The average woman who does her own sewing tries to learn more adout her work and takes advantage of any opportunity to become more proficient in the art. Are you anxious to learn? Arrangements have been made with Miss Minnie L. Richardson of the Home Pattern Co. New York for her to wait over until after to-night to give our many pattern customers a chance to come and consult her on any point not quite clear to them in the using of the Ladies Home Journal Patterns, also in the fitting of any garment. If you have any difficulty at all, you are welcome to come and ask questions—If you are a user of other patterns you're doubly welcome. Our patterns are superior and we wish to prove it. Let Miss Richardson demonstrate a few of the points in which Ladies' Home Journal Patterns excel all others.

PRESENTED WITH CHAIR

Clarina Friends Honour Mrs. Wm. Crowe With Presentation and Address.

A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mrs. Wm. Crowe, Clarina, on Thursday evening, when a large number of friends and neighbours assembled to bid her farewell.

During the evening Mrs. Crowe was presented with a beautiful chair. The following address was read by Miss Dewart and the chair was presented by Mrs. Wm. Miles and Mrs. Geo. Little:

Clarina, April 7, 1910.

Mrs. Wm. Crowe:—

Dear Friend,—We your friends and neighbours, hearing of your intended departure from this neighbourhood, have assembled here to-night to spend a social evening with you in your old home and also to leave with you a little remembrance, by means of which you may recall the time spent amongst us.

You cannot recall the time when you first became a resident of this community, and from earliest childhood you can also remember the faces of nearly all who are with you to-night.

We have always found you a person of superior character, a good neighbour in every sense that the word implies; sympathetic in sorrow, and a ready helper in time of trouble and in every way upright and honest.

We may also say that your family who have proven themselves ready and willing workers in the neighbourhood will be sadly missed socially and in other ways.

We now ask you to kindly accept this chair as a slight token of our esteem and friendship for you.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours—

MRS. WM. MILES,
Mrs. GEORGE LITTLE,
MR. WM. MILES.

Mrs. Crowe made a very suitable reply, thanking all for their kindness and extending to each a hearty invitation to visit her when settled in her new home.

THE APRIL ROD AND GUN.

The manifold delights of the days with the rod and line, the season for which is now so near at hand, find some able exponents in the April number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont. The immense advantages of Algonquin Park for fishing vacations, and descriptions of some of its many wonderful lakes, is given prominence in a beautifully illustrated article, the writer having had the privilege of accompanying the hardy Rangers on some of their rounds. The veteran angler, Mr. C. W. Young, gives an account of some new waters along the line of the new Transcontinental in Northern Quebec and many a fisherman will hope that during the coming summer he may possibly repeat Mr. Young's delightful experiences. The wanderings of a fishing party lost in the Rockies are well told by Mr. E. M. Allworth, the story illustrating the difference between fishing in the north and in the west. Mr. Allworth and his party had to walk home from the mountains to their prairie town. A defence of the catfish will be read with interest. Two good bear stories, one of duck hunting, a tale of a good dog and game bird hunting by motor car add variety and give increased interest to an excellent number. Not merely no fisherman but no sportsman should be without its bright, informative companionship.

OBITUARY.

MRS. MARY T. FOY.

The remains of the late Mrs. Mary T. Foy arrived at the C.P.R. station Thursday afternoon, accompanied by her son, Dr. Tindle of Flinton, and were conveyed to the residence of Mr. D. Belleghem, from where the funeral service was conducted on Friday, at 2 p.m.

A very large crowd gathered and a very solemn and impressive service was conducted by Rev. J. C. Wilson of Toronto, brother-in-law of deceased, and Rev. Thos. Wallace, of the Montcagle Expositor, and friend of the family. They were assisted by Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church. Mr. Wilson bore testimony to her excellent worth and Christian character. He had known her for forty-six years. He had seen her as a dutiful daughter in her father's home, as gold yet untried. He had been with her twice as bride, and twice as a widow, and throughout the course of those years he found her still gold, but refined as by fire. She had been well engaged in every department of the church's work, from beginning to end; had made manifest her devotedness to the work of the church that she loved. Mr. Wallace said he had been privileged to be with her during her last illness for seven days, and rejoiced to bear testimony to her dying triumph, and, after speaking of her patience and unselfishness in suffering, narrated her Christian experience as given by her just before she departed this life, and exhorted the crowd to covet such a testimony.

Then all that was mortal was conveyed to the Little Lake cemetery to await the voice of Him that shall bid the sleeping dust awake on the morning of the resurrection.

There are left to mourn her loss one son and one daughter and four sisters, Dr. T. J. C. Tindle, May J. V. Jory, both of Flinton; Mrs. Alex. Edmison, Peterborough; Mrs. (Rev.) J. C. Wilson, Toronto; Mrs. Joseph Stephenson and Miss Elizabeth Ivison, Morecambe, England.

"Gone but not forgotten".

JOHN POWERS.

The death occurred this morning, at the House of Providence, of John Powers at the advanced age of 60 years.

The funeral will take place at 9 o'clock from the above address to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Catholic cemetery for interment.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend, of Toronto, is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Oriental Hotel on Friday, April 22nd.

St. Kitt's Licenses Reduced.

St. Catharines, April 16.—There will be but ten hotels in St. Catharines holding liquor licenses after Aug. 1, the license commissioners having cut off six of the sixteen now holding licenses and refused the application for a new one, the Power Glen House. Two of the licenses granted go to the house only, William Cordis having to find a suitable man for the International, and Norris Stevens one for the St. Catharines House.

Will Apologize to Taft.

Washington, D.C., April 16.—The National American Woman Suffrage Association will express its regret to President Taft, because of the hissing of certain remarks which he addressed to them Thursday night, by a letter from the executive board. This action was approved by the convention with only one dissenting voice.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF KNOX CHURCH

wanted it for other purposes. In the summer of that year the property now occupied by Knox Church was purchased for $1250. The cost was provided for by a donation of $600 from Mrs. Nicholls, the proceeds of the old building and funds given by the managers of St. Paul's Church.

Arrangements were at once made for the erection of a School on the new property, and tenders were asked for. At this stage Presbytery was approached with a view to stay proceedings. The Presbytery thought the objections raised were reasonable and the scheme was abandoned. The result was that the School disbanded and the scholars became scattered among other denominations.

Ten years later, in 1902, after a previous investigation by a Committe representing the Session, Board of Managers and Sabbath School of St. Paul's Church, the subject was brought up in Presbytery again. This time no opposition was manifested, and permission was given to proceed. The building now in use was erected in the fall of the year by Rutherford Brothers at a cost of $4,037. The work was under the direction of a committee appointed by St. Paul's at the annual meeting of the congretation on the 5th of February, 1902. The Committee was as follows: Messrs. R. E. Wood, chairman; W. G. Ferguson; T. A. S. Hay; Wm. Madill; J. W. Bennet; Robert Harrison; AdamHall; James Gillespie; G. M. Roger and J. H. Connal. Fixtures were added at a cost of $681. The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church bore the expense of furnishings, providing chairs, carpets, railing and piano. The funds were provided for as follows: Subscriptions, $1,646.30; Century Fund, $815.22; St. Paul's Sabbath Schol, $428.88; St. Paul's Church, $1,817.77; Ladies' Aid $289.

It was now St. Paul's Mission. On the first of February, 1903, it was opened as such. Rev. J. A. Wilson, Assistant Minister of St. Paul's Church, preached in the morning on the text, "What mean ye by these stones?" The Rev. E. F. Torrance, D.D., preached in the evening. On Monday evening there was a social gathering provided by the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Church. To this event the resident ministers were invited. From this time on, services were conducted twice each Sabbath, the Minister and Assistant of St. Paul's conducting them. In addition to Dr. Torrance, Rev. J. A. Wilson, now of Hamilton; Rev. H. B. Ketchen, also of Hamilton; Rev. W. J. Mackay of Harriston, and Rev. A. Wright, now of Ingersoll, had a prominent share in the work.

The Sabbath School, under the leadership of Mr. Jas. A. Hall, made rapid progress, increasing at the rate of 40 per cent. a year, until it has now an average of 220.

The first communion service was held in the new building in March, 1904. Rev. Dr. Torrance conducted the service. Those who sat down at the first communion were as follows: Mr. Louden, Mrs. Louden, Mrs. Pogue, Miss Bennet, Mrs. Mettman, Mrs. George Scott, Mrs. Preston, Mrs. F. W. Davidson, Mrs. Thomas Scully, Mrs. Stewart, D. Downey, Rob. Logan, Mrs. Logan, Miss Jennie Hamilton, Miss Kate Hamilton, Mr. W. E. Laing, Mrs. Laing, Robt. Mulligan, Mrs. Mulligan, James Brownlee, Thos. Brownlee, Miss Margaret Brownlee, Mr. George Campbell, Miss Winnifred Anderson.

The next step in the progress of the Mission was in November, 1904. At that time the Session of St. Paul's Church applied to Presbytery to have "The Mission" set apart as a Mission Station, St. Paul's undertaking to supply services and guarantee expenses. Presbytery directed that the session of St. Paul's should confer with St. Andrew's Church. As a result of these steps a meeting was held in the Mission on the 6th June, 1905, for the purpose of organization. Rev. Geo. Yule, who had been appointed Moderator, was in the chair.

Certificates of 44 were presented by those who were to become members of the new congregation.

It was decided to call the new congregation Knox Presbyterian Church.

A Session of five was elected, consisting of two representatives from St. Paul's, Mr. Sheriff Hall and Mr. Wm. Madill, and three from the new congregation, Mr. J. F. Morrison, Mr. J. W. Bennet and Mr. Wm. Shaw.

At a meeting held in the Church on the 25th October, 1906, the recommendation from Presbytery to become independent was considered. After full discussion a unanimous resolution was carried in favor of becoming an independent congregation. The resolution read as follows: "That this congregation heartily comply with the expressed wish of the Presbytery of Peterborough to become an independent congregation, so that more effective work may be accomplished in the neighborhood, provided the necessary funds for the support of a minister and payment of current expenses can be obtained." It was expected at this time that assistance to the extent of $300 could be obtained from the Augmentation Committee.

At a meeting held in the Church officers of the Church appointed to settle the question, the financial outlook appeared so bright that it was decided to recommend that the congregation become independent on January 1st, 1907.

In November, 1906, a joint meeting of the Sessions of St. Paul's and Knox Churches was held in conformity with the direction of Presbytery, and at that meeting a unanimous resolution was adopted to the effect that the Session of St. Paul's Church acquiesce in the proposed separation of Knox Church from St. Paul's, to take effect on January 1st, 1907, and earnest wishes for the success of this child of St. Paul's were expressed.

The step was made easier by the announcement that the Trustees of the Nicholls Estate had donated $5,000 to the new congregation, the interest of which was to be used until a new church should be erected. In such event the $5,000 was to assist in the building of the church.

After the first of January, 1907, candidates were heard, and at a meeting of the congregation held on March 3rd, 1907, Rev. Henry J. Keith, B.D., M.A., was called as the first Minister of the new congregation. He was inducted on April 11th of that year.

The two Elders from St. Paul's Church, Mr. Wm. Madill and Mr. J. A. Hall, continued to act until the fall of 1907, when other Elders were elected from Knox congregation. The number has since increased to nine. Mr. Hall continued to act as Superintendent of the Sabbath School until September, 1909. He won a warm place in the affections of teachers and scholars, and showed deep satisfaction at the great growth of the school. It was only the desire of St. Paul's to have him in his own Sabbath School, and his humble desire to give place to others, that induced teachers and officers of the school to allow him to give up active service. He is now Hon. Superintendent of the school, an office the school desires him to retain for the rest of his life.

The congregation has made rapid progress, and is now thoroughly organized in every department. The membership is nearly 400. The quarters provided soon became too small to accommodate school or church, and at the congregational meeting held January, 1909, encouraged by a bequest, and promises of several large donations from generous friends of the work, it was decided to erect a new building.

Miller Bill Goes Through In Its Amended Form

Compromise Reached Between the Promoters of the Bill and its Opponents is all Incorporated in the Draft Which is Given the Third Reading in the Commons

Ottawa, April 16.—The Miller anti-race track gambling bill was given its third reading in the Commons last evening after amendment on the lines of the compromise announced.

Mr. Miller said that in accepting the modified bill a good deal was being gained. He was afraid that if a compromise had not been accepted people would have thought that the advocates of the bill were more anxious to win a fight than to place good legislation on the statute books. The compromise would do away with handbook making, pool rooms and the dissemination of racing tips, and would reduce the length of meetings to seven days, allowing associations to hold not more than two such meetings within twelve months.

Many of those who had opposed the bill were actuated by a sincere desire to make racing clean, and this had been a consideration in inclining him to accept the compromise. He did not accept the compromise offered previously because he did not like it. Much had been gained by not accepting it. The length of meetings had been cut down by one day. Then a clause in the first proposed compromise which permitted betting between individuals was drafted in such a way that the bookmaker might have been exempted. The advocates of the bill did not yet concede that it is right to allow the business of betting.

Mr. Miller denied that another bill would be introduced next year for more restrictions. There should be a reasonable time allowed to see how the new bill would work out in practice. Another bill would be introduced only when public opinion demanded it, and that would to a large extent depend on how the racing associations conducted their tracks.

Seconded by Mr. McColl, he then moved amendments to the original bill. R. L. Borden enquired if the amendments had been approved by the Minister of Justice, and Mr. Pardee, chief Liberal whip, said that they had.

Major Currie asked if the clause would prevent newspapers in Canada and elsewhere from publishing betting odds. Even The London Times published betting odds and came into Canada and was sold by newsdealers.

Hon. Jacques Bureau, Solicitor-General, said it was not his business to advise the House.

G. H. Cowan (Vancouver) thought some inducement ought to be held out to racing associations to limit the number of meetings. One meeting of ten days' duration once a year would be better than two meetings of seven days. David Henderson (Halton) favored the original bill.

Mr. Miller deprecated any further amendments. If the bill was not passed to-night it might not go through the Senate this session, and he was anxious that it should become law.

"I recommended that they be summarily released because, in my humble judgment, they were not guilty of the offence of which they were charged."

The Minister of Justice in the House yesterday morning thus completed his promised explanation of the release from prison of T. J. Skill and J. C. King of the Toronto Antiquarian Book Co., sentenced for circulating obscene literature calculated to corrupt morals.

"The prisoners," said the Minister, "were defended by two gentlemen, each of whom is a personal friend, quite as much so as Mr. Robinette. The gentlemen are George Tate Blackstock, K.C., of Toronto, and his partner, Hugh Rose."

Mr. Aylesworth said that he believed the men had been engaged in "the ordinary legitimate business of respectable book-selling, though in some of the translated French and Latin classics were passages which, if they were singled out, or collected and published together, might properly be described by the word indecent."

The Minister had been informed that the firm's stenographer had not, as was stated at the trial, resigned because of the improper character of work she was called upon to do. He had received letters asking for clemency from over 25 people, one of whom was a bank manager in Toronto, one a bishop of a Protestant church, three other prominent clergymen, one a leader in the Methodist church, and the others members of business concerns in Toronto.

He had also had the advantage of a personal discussion of the case with Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General for Ontario,

HOW TO MAKE BABY SLEEP

The baby that cries half the night does not cry for nothing. It cries because it is not well, and has no other means of saying so. The chances are the trouble is due to some upsetting of the stomach or bowels, which would be speedily removed if the child were given a dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets make children sleep soundly and naturally because they remove the cause of the crossness and wakefulness. They are a blessing to children and a relief to worried mothers. Mrs. John Sickles, Doughstown, N.B., says: "If anything ails my little ones the first thing I give them is a dose of Baby's Own Tablets and they are soon well again." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

There are times in the life of nearly every child when Dr. Chase's Ointment proves itself a blessing. The tender skin chafes and is irritated by the clothing. Oftentimes baby eczema developes from this very cause. In a dozen ways Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used to sooth and heal the skin and prevent suffering of the little one. No treatment is so well suited for this purpose and none is so entirely satisfactory.

German Political Upheaval.

Berlin, April 16.—The National Liberals won a remarkable victory in the election of a successor to the late Count Udao Von Stolberg-Wernigerode who was president of the Reichstag at the time of his death on Feb. 19 last. This country district of East Prussia has been carried by the Conservatives practically without opposition in every election for forty years. In the election just held, Herr Kochan, the candidate for the National Liberals, was chosen with a majority of nearly 3,000.

The overturn is attributed to popular dissatisfaction over the Government's measure for finance reform and the Prussian election reform legislation.

May Be Trouble at Fort William.

Fort William, Ont., April 16.—Monday will probably be a critical day in the situation at the C.P.R. freight docks, as the expected boats will begin to arrive and unload. There was considerable unrest Thursday when the Canadian Pacific took on 120 men, mostly English-speaking people.

A number of men have arrived from outside points and these are being housed in the Marine Hotel under the protection of C.P.R. police, and outside the danger zone. The Longshoremen's Union may take exception to some of the men thus brought in, as they have no cards.

A Calgary Tragedy.

Calgary, Alta., April 16.—The dead bodies of a man and woman were found in a house in the red light district yesterday afternoon. There were bullet wounds in the head of each, and it is thought that the woman was shot by the man, who then committed suicide. Both were Italians.

THE TIMBER LICENSES

Licensees Are Called Upon to Pay the Cost of Fire-Ranging — Hon. Mr. Cochrane Makes a New Arrangement Which Will Stand For the Next Ten Years—The Province Is to Share In the Profits.

Toronto, April 16.—An announcement of great importance was made last evening by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Crown Lands, in an official statement of an increase in timber dues.

Taken in conjunction with the announcement early this week by Premier Gouin of a protectionist policy in pulpwood, it is thought that the "cat is out of the bag" as to the real meaning of the conference some weeks ago in Toronto between the members of the two provincial Cabinets.

The province has decided, in view of the fact that there has been no increase in the dues on "old limits" for 23 years, to raise the dues on pine saw logs from $1 to $1.50 per thousand feet (board measure); square timber, from $20 to $50 per thousand cubic feet, and hemlock by 25 cents per thousand feet, board measure. Ground rent, which was raised from $2 to $3 per mile, twenty-three years ago, is now to be advanced to $5. The transfer fee will be raised from $1 to $5 a mile.

These rates are fixed for ten years. The licensees will also have to pay the whole cost of fire ranging, instead of half, though the Government retains an authority over the men engaged.

The statement begins: "The Government has had under consideration the question of sharing in the increment of value that has taken place in the stumpage value of timber on lands which have been under license for long periods.

"We have recognized that any increases made should be considered in all their bearings—that is their effect upon the trade as well as upon the revenues of the province—and after getting all the information and listening to the representations of those interested, we have determined upon certain increases which, while they will bring in a substantial increase in timber revenue, will not, in our opinion, prove injurious to or embarass the interests of the lumber trade."

According to the last annual report of the Department of Crown Lands for the last fiscal year, the total revenue from woods and forests for ten months was $885,892.44, consisting of bonus, $285,671.41; timber dues, $529,422.50; ground rent, $68,528.53; transfer fees, $2,370. The revenue from timber dues, being for ten months only (ending Oct. 31, 1909), is small as compared with amounts appearing in previous reports. The explanation is that the accounts for the previous season's cutting were not collected, as they do not accrue due until the 1st December following the winter in which the cutting took place. The bonus consists of deposits made on account of the sale held last September.

The fire-ranging on licensed territory as heretofore has been conducted by men selected by the timber licensees. The number of rangers on licensed lands was 450, costing $66,114.71, the licensees paying the expense of fire ranging on their limits.

The report concluded: "The lumber trade is in a better condition because there is an increased demand and an advance in prices. What effect the tariff legislation of the United States will have when applied remains to be seen. The output for the season of 1909-10 is estimated to be from sixty to one hundred millions in excess of last year."

Start on H. B. Railway.

Saskatoon, Sask., April 16.—A well-authenticated report says engineers left Prince Albert at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and commenced work fifteen miles from that city on Hudson Bay Railway. It is determined that the southern terminus will be Saskatoon, and that the construction is to commence in six weeks. The Earl of Essex and Lord Tenderden, representing English capital, are behind the scheme, and are expected here within ten days.

Special Notice.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 93, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

SEVERAL ARE KILLED

Stanislaus Gange, David Gange, Cummings and O'Brien, All of Toronto, Are Among the Dead In the Landslide on the Ha Ha Railway at Bagotville — Six Men Taken Out of the Wreckage Alive.

Bagotville, Que., April 16.—A premature explosion caused a landslide of 75,000 cubic feet of earth and rock here Thursday afternoon, which crashed down upon the camp of the Ha Ha Railway, and buried twenty men. Seven have been taken from the ruins, six were found alive, and it is feared the remaining seven are dead.

The dead are Stanislaus Gange and David Gagne, of Toronto, the former being the chief engineer of the work; Cummings and O'Brien, his partners, also from Toronto; an unknown Swede and two unknown laborers. Four of those rescued are believed to be injured fatally, Mr. Peterson, a Dane and two Swedes.

The accident occurred in a cut that was being made on the farm of Simeon Larouche, three miles from here. A gang was busy blasting while the night gang was in camp. Fifty barrels of dynamite and 200 of powder had been prepared for the explosion. So far as can be learned the man who worked the battery did not give any warning before setting the blast, and the mass of earth swept down the cliff without warning upon the men asleep in the camp.

Stanislaus Gagne, was a member of the firm of Gagne & Jennings. He has two brothers in Toronto, Henry Gagne and Paucide Gagne. He was only 31 years of age, and graduated from the School of Practical Science in 1901. He was engineer for a time for the Toronto and Niagara Power Company.

A FREE TRIAL THAT MEANS SOMETHING

Most of the "Free Offers" that appear in advertisements do not pan out very well. There is usually some string attached or some conditions to be complied with that amount to a good price for all you get. A notable exception, however, is the offer made by Mrs. F. E. Currah, of Windsor, Ont., as stated on page in her ad. entitled, "Proving by Actual Experiment." She sends, absolutely free, a box of Orange Lily, an expensive concentrated remedy, put up in pure gelatine capsules, which is sufficient for ten days' treatment, and which is worth 35 cents. Mrs. Currah finds it pays to do this, for the reason that being a strictly scientific preparation, its good effects are noticeable from the start, and almost all who give it a trial continue its use until completely cured.

NEW FOOD POLICY.

Balfour Would Admit Imperial Wheat Duty Free.

London, April 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Replying to a letter from a Unionist M.P., Mr. Balfour says: "Wheat grown within the limits of the Empire should be imported free. This policy will, I believe, commend itself to the judgment of the British community and will certainly be received with favor by the colonies."

Mr. Balfour's announcement is regarded as likely to have an effect on the industrial constituencies in the next elections. The free trade view, however, is not to tax colonial corn and is not to affect the price of bread, as three-fifths of the corn is imported from foreign exporters, who would raise the price to pay the duty. Colonial and British farmers would do likewise to make extra profits, so the statement will not prevent the cry of the "little loaf."

The morning Post, the organ of advanced tariff reforms, determinedly disagrees with the Unionist leader's new policy, and hopes the agricultural members and candidates will stick to their guns in the matter of pledging themselves to fight when the time comes for fair play to home agriculture.

Winston Churchill has received a large sum for the purpose of a free trade campaign and is arranging 2,500 special lectures in the next twelve months by distinguished men, including Lords Avebury and Brassey.

Government Must Keep Control.

Toronto, April 16.—The International Waterways Commission yesterday heard further argument in respect to the application of the St. Lawrence Power Co. for permission to dam the Long Sault for the development of electrical energy.

G. Lynch-Staunton, K.C., of Hamilton presented the objections of the Ontario Government, while representatives from the Town of Morrisburg and the Townships of Williamsburg and Matilda were also present.

"We say," said Mr. Staunton, "that while private companies may be allowed to take power from the river, no private company should be allowed to have one dollar of proprietary interest in any dam of any work constructed in the river."

Commissioners Haskell and Clinton of the American section nodded their agreement with Mr. Staunton's plea, which was made in answer to Chairman Gibbons' statement that the commission is dealing with no definite plan but with the abstract question of allowing the construction of the dam.

Mr. Staunton pointed out that in the Niagara River last year eminent engineers thought it would be quite safe to allow the Ontario Power Co. to construct a dam in that river, but that the construction of such a dam resulted in an ice jam, which seriously endangered valuable property and almost wiped out the property of the power company along the river.

Two Hundred Dollars in Gold

Results of the Competition in Which This Money is Given for the Best Diaries Kept in

Dr. Chase's Almanac for 1909.

This competition was started in 1905. That year there were one hundred diaries entered. In 1906 there were 225, and the number has been increasing until in 1909 we find 700 well kept and interesting diaries sent in to be judged. It is quite a task to look over this number of diaries, and award the prizes properly.

The committee of judges, Mr. Geo. E. Scroggie, Adv. Mgr. Mail and Empire; Mr. C. S. Furness, Adv. Mgr. News, and Mr. Peter Rutherford, Adv. Mgr. The World, were unable to decide as to the merit of the first nine diaries, and so in justice to all parties the 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes were divided as follows:—

1st	James Arthur, North Rustico, P. E. I.	$50.00
	John Jacob, Brodhagen, Ont	25.00
	Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Hoar, Petitcodiac, N. B.	25.00
2nd	Capt. Alfred McNutt, De Bert Stn., N. S.	25.00
	Ed. Poole, Aitkins Ferry, P.E.I	15.00
	Mrs. James Poole, Aitkins Ferry, P.E.I.	10.00
3rd	Mrs. Catharine Kirk, Ingersoll, Ont.	10.00
	John P. Marnell, St. John, Nfld.	10.00
	Mrs. J. T. Fisher, Nesbitt, Man	5.00
4th	Marie Estelle Truchon, Mantane, Que.	5.00
5th	Mrs. F. A. Johnston, Bulliver, Que	5.00
6th	Chas. J. Miller, Canora, Sask.	5.00
7th	Miss Lucy A. Cauley, Lombardy, Ont.	5.00
8th	Mrs. W. H. Burns, Mimimegash, P. E. I.	5.00
9th	Mrs. Lucy A. B. Smith, Smith's Landing, Howe Sound, B. C.	5.00
10th	Robert Hazelton, Todmorden, Ont. Dr. Chase's Receipt Book, Leather.
11th	Mrs. James Cook, Beachville, Ont. Dr. Chase's Receipt Book, Oilcloth.
12th	Henry M. Johnston, Sorrel Ridge, N. B., Dr. Chase's Medicines	2.50
13th	Mrs. I. A. Myall, Mather, Man, Dr. Chase's Medicines	2.25
14th	Mrs. David Patterson, Thompson Stn., N.S., Dr. Chase's Medicines	2.00
15th	Mrs. J. A. M. Colpitts, Pleasant Vale, N. B., Dr. Chase's Medicines	1.75

Many who did not obtain a prize deserve special commendation for well kept diaries, while others made the mistake of putting in items from newspapers, etc., instead of entering up the everyday events of home life which make a diary both useful and valuable for future reference.

The 1910 edition of Dr. Chase's Calendar Almanac contains full particulars of the competition now going on, and if it has not reached you we shall be pleased to send a copy to your address. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Ohio Distillers In Price War.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 16.—Reductions in the prices of whisky took effect yesterday and a bitter price war is declared.

The cause is said to be overproduction, though it is claimed that none of the distilleries is operating at more than 60 per cent. of capacity. The distillers have been at peace for five years.

Can Be Evicted for Wearing Big Hat.

London, April 16.—Henry Curtis Bennett, a Bow street magistrate yesterday rendered judgment that the management of a theatre has the right to eject women patrons who refused to remove their large hats.

The action had been instituted by Mrs. Blanche Eardley, authoress.

Governor Frees 152 Murderers.

DULUTH-SUPERIOR TRACTION COMPANY.

It is predicted that the common stock of this Company will be forced to much higher levels by the continued heavy increases in earnings. The gross for the first week of April showed a gain of 17.4% over the same week last year, while the gain for the year to the end of the first week of April was 15%. The net for the first two months of the year showed a gain of 25.32% over the same period last year, and it is expected that the net gain for March will be very large.

Quite an interest is reported in the Common stock of New York, where transactions have taken place during the last few days, at prices generally consistent with prices on the Canadian Stock Exchanges. There is reported, also, a good demand in New York for the preferred stock, which, while it has been distributed for years (during which its 4% dividend has been regularly paid) yet had no special market place until recently listed in New York. The Preferred sold a month or two ago, prior to the New York listing, at 60, with sales later at 64 but sold there Thursday at 70 and Friday at 71, at which price it is still in demand.

A Niagara Swimming Feat.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 16.—By successfully executing a series of remarkable daring swimming dashes, Everett Mason, aged 30, yesterday succeeded in reaching the farthest midstream point in Niagara River ever attained by a human being, excepting in case of suicide or accident. He went over a scow.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

TORONTOS BEAT NEW BEDFORD TRIMMED NEW ENGLANDERS 5-0

New Bedford, Mass., April 15.—Toronto defeated New Bedford to-day by 5 to 0, in a snappy and quietly played game. The Eastern Leaguers outclassed the New Englanders and always had the better of the play.

McGinley and Smith, who pitched for Toronto, were much too good for the New Bedford batters. Smith was especially effective, though he did not have as good control as his team mate. Deal again showed himself a good run-getter, turning both of his hits into runs, and stealing third base as well. Vaughn led with the bat with two singles and a smashing triple that hit the right field fence. Grimshaw was ill, and after hitting safely to centre in the third was replaced by Andy Kyle. Grimshaw has a bad cold, which he contracted the day of the wind and rain storm at Roanoke, and which has worried him ever since.

Bill Pearson, whose home is in Toronto, started in to pitch for New Bedford and was hit for seven safeties in four innings. The Toronto misplays were excusable. A runner slid into Mullen and knocked the ball out of his hand after a perfect throw by the catcher, while Fitzpatrick lost a slow-rolling grounder on the newly-laid smooth diamond.

CUBS AND TIGERS WERE BOTH BUMPED AGAIN

"Speed Boys" Won Again.

New York, April 15.—The Highlanders played poorly in the field to-day, their errors enabling Boston to win 3 to 2. The Red Sox played a fast game behind Smith, Wagner and Speaker doing some particularly telling work. Chase and Sweeney of the New York, made phenomenal catches. Score:—

Boston .. ..200100000—3	5	1
New York.. .. .. ..010010000—2	7	4

Batteries:—Smith and Carrigan; Quinn, Ford and Sweeney and Criger. Umpires—Dineen and Connelly.

Athletics Got Even.

Washington, April 15.—Philadelphia turned the tables on Washington to-day, winning by the score of 8 to 2. Bender was a puzzle with runners on the bases, while Reisling was driven from the rubber in the second inning, and Groom was hit hard. A double play by Milan and Elberfield was the feature. Score:—

Batteries: — Reisling, Groom and Street; Bender and Livingstone. Umpires—Egan and Evans.

Champions Outbatted.

Detroit, April 15.—To-day's game was almost a repetition of the opener. Detroit making it a tie in the ninth and Cleveland batting out four runs and winning in the tenth. Score:

Waddell Bumped Badly.

Chicago, April 15.—St. Louis defeated Chicago 5 to 4 in a loosely played game to-day. Score:—

Cubs Lost Another.

Cincinnati, April 15. — Opportune hitting combined with costly errors by Tinker, allowed Cincinnati to win the second game of the series with Chicago 5 to 3, Cincinnati hit Brown freely after the third inning. Score:—

Phillies Released Four.

Philadelphia, April 15. — Philadelphia won to-day's game from Brooklyn by 7 to 4 by bunching hits off Scanlan in the second inning and profiting by the visitors' errors in other innings. Brooklyn hit the ball hard, but could not bunch the safe drives. The Philadelphia Club to-day released Pitcher McBride, Outfielder Welchdonce and Infielder Mecherly and Claughterty to the Albany Club of the New York State League. Score:—

Beat the Champions.

St. Louis, April 15.—St. Louis today defeated Pittsburg by 6 to 5 in a game marked by heavy hitting and ragged fielding. A muddy field prevented fast play and the pitching was none of the best. A batting rally in the seventh inning gave St. Louis five runs and the game. Score:—

Graham the Whole Works.

Boston, April 15.—Graham's batting four hits out of four times at bat, was the deciding factor in the games which Boston won from New York to-day by 5 to 4. The sturdy catcher knocked in three of the runs, including the winning one. The last put out was a most spectacular catch of a low liner by Moran. William Sweeney was to-day appointed captain of the Boston team. Score:—

SCHEDULE FOR DISTRICT IS NOT SETTLED YET

The schedule for this district of the Midland Football League is by no means settled definitely yet. At the schedule meeting of the League a week ago a provisional schedule was adopted with the three Peterborough teams grouped and Havelock in a district by itself with power to get another team to meet for the honours. However, this team did not materialize and at a meeting of the representatives of the three local teams held in the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday night, Havelock was admitted into the district and the following schedule adopted.

C.G.E. at Brintons, April 30th.
Havelock at P.F.C., April 30th.
Brintons at P. F. C., May 7th.
C.G.E. at Havelock, May 7th.
Havelock at Brintons, May 14th.
P.F.C. at C.G.E., May 14th.
Brintons at C.G.E., May 21st.
P.F.C. at Havelock, May 21st.
Brintons at Havelock, May 28th
C.G.E. at P.F.C., May 28th.
C.G.E. at P.F.C., June 1st.
Havelock at C.G.E., June 1st.
P.F.C. at Brintons, June 4th.

Unfortunately, however, Havelock was not consulted as to this arrangement, nor was the secretary of the League, Ernest Brumwell, notified. The result is that Havelock to whom a copy of the schedule was sent after Wednesday's meeting, have expressed themselves as being dissatisfied with the arrangement and it is likely that the matter will have to be gone into again.

"TRENTIC" REFERS TO THE TRENT VALLEY SCHOOL OF WRITERS

Interesting Letter in Which Archie Lampman, Isabel Valanc Crawford and Others are Spoken Of.

APPRECIATIVE REFERENCE

The following letter in the Mail and Empire will be read with interest here:

When I first came a few weeks ago asking admission to your Corner I introduced myself as one coming from the Rice Lake country, in which Archibald Lampman spent part of his boyhood. Your reception of me was so cordial that I am accepting your invitation to come again and tell you something of the other notable people who belong to what I should like to call "The Trent Valley School of Writers," and who are well known in Canadian literature.

In my last letter I made a mistake in saying that Mr. Barron had named Gore's Landing, and realized it almost immediately after my letter had gone. I am very sorry that it happened and should have regretted it more had it not called forth corrections from Mr. Barron's son, John A. Barron (or am I not right in saying Judge Barron?), and Nell Gwynne, since both of them added much more interesting and personal information than any I had been able to give.

Both spoke particularly of him as a delicate boy and yet has this not been the case with many of our most noted poets and writers? One has only to think of Shelley, Byron, Keats, Scott. R. L. Stevenson and many others who were "in bodily presence weak," but mentally giants, to see that health and wealth do not usually go hand in hand with fame.

Shelley himself has said: "Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought," and it would seem as though the poems that have the greatest power to touch us might have been written in times of greatest bodily weakness.

In thinking of poets and writers one is often apt to overlook the men and women themselves in studying their poetry, and imagine that they are gifted beings, very different from ordinary mortals, and their poems were "flights of fancy." However, if we know a little of their lives, we find that these poems were often written as the result of some crisis of feeling or some experience that had left its mark. Many of our best known hymns prove this.

And then how many poets have been forced by circumstances into uncongenial work. How Lampman longed for a care-free open air life is shown almost pathetically in his sonnet on "knowledge," when he says:

"Oh for a life of leisure and broad hours.
To think, to dream, to put away small things,
This world's perpetual leaguer of dull naughts.
To wander like a bee among the flowers,
Till old age finds us weary, feet and wings
Grown heavy with the gold of many thoughts."

The question now seems to be "Have people time and patience nowadays for thoughts in rhyme?" People seem to say that there is not nearly so much poetry read at present as there was fifty years ago, and that it is because the practice of reading aloud has been almost discontinued. Whatever may be the cause I think the least we ordinary "prose folk" can do is to admire and rouse interest in what is being written in our own country. In so many cases our most gifted poets lived obscure lives, and full recognition of greatness came too late to cheer and encourage—then it was that we "rush in to peer and praise when all is vain."

It was unfortunately that way with Lampman to a great extent and with another of "The Trent Valley School." to whom I should like to draw your attention, Isabella Valancy Crawford. Personally I know nothing of Miss Crawford except from reading the short sketch in the introduction to her poems, written by Ethelwyn Wetherald. She lived for many years in Lakefield, on the Otonabee River, which empties into Rice Lake, so I think we can claim her as one of our "notables." Miss Wetherald says of her: "To be interested is to be in an earthly heaven, and Miss Crawford was prodigiously interested in existence as she saw and felt it. Rather should we say that to be a poet is to find in life the ecstacy of living, and in obscurity not a featherweight of cause for beating the breast. So it is not with pity that we should approach Isabella Valancy Crawford. In her lifetime she would not allow herself to be compassionated. . .Are we justified in taking advantage of her absence to talk over her private affairs, as it were, behind her back? . . . If the big, crude, gossip-loving public could only realize that a poet's hardships and bereavements are entirely a poet's own affair, and that all it has to concern itself with is the value of the poetic work put forth — but the age of miracles is past."

I do not feel curious myself, as to Miss Crawford's private affairs, but I think there are surely some interesting facts that those who know her could tell us, that we might become better acquainted with her. I think we will all read Archibald Lampman's poems now with deeper interest than ever and so surely we can approach Miss Crawford in the same way.

Browning gives us a method of testing a poet's greatness, and finished with "End the Strife" by asking "which one led a happy life?" Surely then Archibald Lampman and Isabella Valancy Crawford are truly great. I hope that someone will add something of interest.

IMPUDENT POLICE.

What the New Head of the Force in Berlin Discovered.

Herr von Jagow, Berlin's new police president, spent the first weeks of his official career in making the round of the local offices disguised as a civilian. Some episodes in his Al Raschid experiences deserve to be recorded.

One evening a civilian in the ordinary Berlin dress entered a police station in the west of the city and requested to see the lieutenant in charge. The sergeant strolled out of the inner room and said: "Lieutenant isn't here. Better tell me what you've got to say." The civilian said he would prefer to see the lieutenant himself and he would return shortly.

About a quarter of an hour later the civilian again appeared and asked for the lieutenant. The sergeant said police lieutenants had something better to do than hang about half the evening in case some civilian had some silly story to tell. The civilian went away, but returned half an hour later and again asked for the lieutenant. "Isn't here, confound you!" said the sergeant, or words to that effect.

"Well, but the lieutenant must be somewhere about. Cannot you find him? He is on duty, isn't he?"

"That's got nothing to do with you The lieutenant comes and goes when he chooses, do you understand?"

"Oh, yes. I understand, but I insist on speaking to the lieutenant at once."

"Here, of all the beastly cheek"—

"That'll do. I happen to be the police president!"

The sergeant silently called on the earth to cover him, and the president coolly sat down to wait the return of the defaulting lieutenant.

When the latter at last appeared, some hours later, the president had a particularly intimate conversation with him for about half an hour, and the lieutenant reported himself very, very sick the next day.

A few days afterward a quiet looking little man strolled into the big public hall of the police headquarters and caught sight of a swaggering young police officer strolling down the room with a cigar in his mouth.

"I beg your pardon," said the quiet looking little man, "but isn't smoking forbidden here?"

"Confound your infernal impudence," was the reply. "You keep your questions to yourself or get out of here." The president smiled, strolled across to his private offices, produced the requisite key and invited the horrified officer to come and have a chat about insolence in general.

It is needless to say that all civilian Berlin is chuckling over these stories, which one can but hope may turn out to be well founded.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Steered Him to Chess.

In a lecture on aerial navigation Major Baden Powell told an Edinburgh audience that he had paid Count Zeppelin two visits. On the first occasion the count gave him every information and allowed him to take photographs, but by the second time the German government was in treaty with the count. Nevertheless he was received very pleasantly.

"I have come," said Major Powell to him, "to see how you are now getting on with your balloon."

"Do you play chess?" was the count's reply.

"Yes," said Major Powell, "I do."

"Well," said the count, "we had better have a game."

"And," added Major Powell, "we played chess all the afternoon, and I neither heard nor saw more of the balloon."

Taxicab Tickets.

A taximeter which at the end of the journey delivers to passengers a ticket on which is stamped the amount of the fare due, the number of the cab and the company to which it belongs will shortly be seen on the London streets. Apart from acting as a "taxicab conductor," the instrument also plays the part of a traveling clerk. The history of the day's work is recorded on a tape. The machinery is similar, indeed, to a tape machine and is operated by clockwork. The number of miles traveled, the time taken on each mile and the time the cab has been on duty are all marked on the tape by a series of dots.—London Express.

Driven by Hunger to Desperation.

Mrs. Mode had just returned home from the country to discover her previously well stocked wardrobe empty. "Good gracious, Herbert," she cried to her husband, "where are all my clothes? And what in the world is that big black patch out on the lawn?"

"Nelly," he replied mournfully, "after I had starved for two whole days you wrote me that the key of the pantry was in the pocket of your bolero. Well, I don't know a bolero from a box plaited ruffle, and I was desperate, so I took all the things out on the lawn and burned them. Then I found the key among the ashes."—Success Magazine.

The One Thing Wanting.

In the spring the keen nor'easter
Urges on its wild career.
In the spring the vegetarian
Finds his food extremely dear.
In the spring housecleaning does not
Add much to our happiness.
In the spring those awful painters
Kick up a confounded mess.
In the spring the poets always
Pour out idiotic lays.
In the spring the public curses
Everything the poets praise.
In the spring there ever happens
Year by year the usual thing,
But invariably these's wanting
Spring!

A Veteran's Approval.

"Allow me to compliment you on your splendid speech," said Senator Sorghum.

Stone walls do not a prison make,
Such is the poet's dream,
And I for one shall never take
Exception to the same.

This much I bid you mark:
Stone walls are awful things to put
Around a baseball park.

Electric Railway Co.'s new plant and 230-foot chimney stack in Vancouver, for violation of the Dominion of Canada Lord's Day Act.

Died From Hydrophobia.

New York, April 16.—C. E. Pierce, veterinary surgeon, of Wellsville, N.Y., who applied for admission at Bellevue Hospital yesterday, saying that he feared he was about to be attacked by hydrophobia, died a few hours after his admission, with all the symptoms of rabies.

Pierce, early last winter, removed a bone from the throat of a dog that afterwards died of hydrophobia. His hand was badly scratched during the operation.

He had enjoyed his usual health until Thursday, when, noting alarming symptoms, he consulted his physician, who advised him to hurry here and consult specialists. He was near a collapse on his arrival here yesterday.

He was taken to Bellevue, where the first paroxysms of hydrophobia attacked him within a few minutes after his arrival.

Incorporated at Last.

Ottawa, April 16.—The St. Lawrence Power Transmission Co. Bill was given its third reading last night, after a division upon an amendment by Major Sharpe (North Ontario) that it be referred back to committee to insert a clause that nothing in the bill should revive any powers which may have lapsed under the St. Lawrence Power Co. Act of 1901.

Major Currie rose to move the six months' hoist, but the Speaker ruled that the bill had been given a third reading. The bill has been amended almost beyond recognition.

Did Anti-Suffragists Hiss?

Washington, D.C., April 16.—Suffragists, anti-suffragists and disinterested persons yesterday agreed that the hissing of the president of the United States at Thursday night's convention here, will prove one of the hardest blows that suffrage has ever suffered. The leaders of the National Association are to-day doing their utmost to minimize the incident, and several of them contend that the president's limited endorsement of the movement was not engineered by suffrage delegates, but by outsiders.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, national president, yesterday said: "It was not our people who hissed. The demonstration was made by people whom I recognized as outsiders. All the leading suffragists recognize that the occurrence was very regretable, especially as the president officially recognized the disturbance, both at the meeting and in the official copy of his speech, filed at the White House to-day."

The general idea prevalent to-day is that the convention are responsible for the disturbance.

Gave Kitchener Cheap Room.

New York, April 16.—Lord Kitchener was welcomed on his arrival yesterday by a committee of fifty from the Pilgrims' Society and by W. Butler Duncan, jr. Scores of persons at the station recognized him and he received an impromptu reception which surprised him.

Lord Kitchener and Mr. Duncan went to the Plaza Hotel, where a small apartment, opening on an inside court, giving a fine view of a brick wall, was assigned to the visitor. Mr. Duncan hurried back downstairs. The clerk said he never had heard of Lord Kitchener.

"He isn't looking for a cheap room," said Mr. Duncan.

Eventually Lord Kitchener was assigned to a large suite overlooking the park. He will go to West Point to-day.

Suicides With His Family.

When the dynamite was exploded, the man, woman and boy were blown to atoms. The girl had a miraculous escape, being found practically unhurt. The family had been here only two weeks.

Not So Badly Off.

Montreal, April 16.—When the bill was passed at Ottawa creating the Quebec Battlefield Commission, there was no Parliamentary authority to expropriate. Something had to be done, however, as there were over $600,000 in the Bank of Montreal, to the credit of the commission, and the members wanted to go ahead with their work. Appeal after appeal was made to the Government at Ottawa, yet, like other large bodies, they declined to move. Finally Sir George Garneau, Byron Walker and Col. Denison, threatened to resign en bloc. This had the desired effect, and the bill was rushed through at Ottawa.

When spoken to last night, Byron E. Walker, said: "There was no friction whatever at any time between the commission and the Government. The commission always had power to expropriate, but a technical amendment was necessary. Certainly no member ever thought of resigning."

THE QUAKER OATS COMPANY TO ERECT NEW ELEVATOR WITH CAPACITY OF 600,000 BUS.

Still Another May Have to be Built While a Large Flour Mill is Beng Contemplated by the Company.

WANT STREETS CLOSED

The Quaker Oats Company is arranging for the construction of a new elevator of 600,000 bushels capacity, in addition to the $80,000 warehouse, upon which work has commenced. The elevator will cost in the neighbourhood of $125,000, or $130,000. That is not all, however, for, in the near future, still another elevator will have to be built, or else the one which is to be erected now, will have to be enlarged, so as to provide for 500,000 more bushels.

Mr. W. H. Denham, the local superintendent, had, in fact, asked for an elevator with a million bushels capacity now, but secured permission only for the 600,000 bushel one at the present time. These additions to the plant will mean a big thing for the city, but still more enlargements are contemplated, including a large flour mill and other buildings.

The operations at the local plant are increasing so rapidly that the Company is compelled to take steps to see that their expansion here is not handicapped. They have, therefore, made application to the Council to close Murray street, along their westerly property line, and also the roadway from the southerly line of Murray street to London street, the thoroughfare known as Mill street. Neither streets, at the points mentioned, are used by the public, and the request of the Company will, no doubt, be granted by the Council, as it can easily be seen what such additions to the plant of the Company will mean to the city.

The Company is anxious to commence building the proposed new elevator in two weeks' time. They also require a re-arrangement of their tracks across Hunter street, and a new spur line. Their requirements are embodied in the following letter received by the city fathers Saturday night:

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—Enclosed find blue print showing re-arrangements of our tracks across Hunter street. Also a proposed spur line to connect with the C.P.R. at Simcoe street and with our tracks at the north of Murray St. We find it necessary to install this new siding as shown on the blue print in order to make way for a proposed new elevator of approximately 600,000 bushels' capacity.

In order to do this it will necessitate the grading down of the end of Murray street, filling in part of the raceway, and the occupation of the roadway along the raceway for some distance. Inasmuch as this roadway is only used by ourselves, and is not used by the public, or in fact by any one, we would ask that the Council close Murray street, along our westerly property line, and also close the roadway from the southerly line of Murray street to London street.

We have now before the Railway Commission the plans of the re-arrangement of tracks, and before they can approve of them they desire a resolution from the City Council, permitting them to cross Simcoe St., if such permission is necessary (as we believe the junction of the spur line with the C. P. R.'s main spur line will, no doubt, be on their right of way of 66 feet); also permission to cross Murray street at the north end of the property. We would be pleased, therefore, if you would grant us this permission by resolution, so that we can forward same to the Railway Commission immediately. Also favour us with copies of all by-laws, so far passed, regarding the crossings on Hunter street, and a certified copy of your resolution permitting the crossing of Simcoe street and Murray St. This will allow us to give the Railway Commission the necessary information at once, and in the meantime we will be pleased to have you grant the concession regarding the closing of Murray street and the roadway as above noted.

Yours truly,
THE QUAKER OATS CO.
W. H. Denham, Superintendent.

Alderman Morgan and Graham did not like the idea of closing Murray street.

Ald. Morgan thought the people should have access to the river via Murray street, but the majority present could not see any virtue in that point, and it was contended that no person would wish to drive over the steep grade of Murray street on to old Mill street, and northward, to reach London street.

Mr. Denham suggested that Murray street ends at the Quaker Oats property.

Ald. Morgan—"O, it does not; it continues on in East Peterborough."

Mr. Denham replied that it may do so, but it is not shown on the map. Besides, no one uses the street beyond the company's westerly property line, or the roadway north of London St., and he thought the Council might grant the small concession asked in order to facilitate the erection of another big elevator, to say nothing of extensions in the near future.

Ald. Hicks was not quite sure of existing conditions in the locality in question and would like time for investigation before committing himself as to the closing of Murray street.

The council generally were anxious to grant the concessions asked, providing no public or private interests are prejudiced, and passed the following resolution:

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that the C.P.R. be granted permission to cross Simcoe and Murray streets with tracks to the Quaker Oats mills, and that the request to close Murray street and Mill street be referred to the Board of Works to report.—Carried.

This answered Mr. Denham's pressing requirements as far as the crossings are concerned, and he will await the report of the Board of Works re closing of the streets in question.

EARL GREY IS TO VISIT PETERBOROUGH ON SATURDAY

His Excellency Will be Given a Civic Reception on His Arrival---Council Met Saturday Evening to Make the Necessary Arrangements for His Welcome.

His Excellency, Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada will pay Peterborough a visit on Saturday next, April 23rd, and arrangements are being made for a fitting reception on the part of civic and military authorities.

His Excellency will arrive on the 11.28 C.P.R. train and will, it is expected, remain until evening before leaving for Toronto, where on Sunday he will unveil a monument erected in memory of the Canadians who perished in the South African war.

A meeting of the City Council was held on Saturday night to discuss a programme for the occasion. Those present were Mayor Morrow, Ald. Gillespie, Buller, Phelan, Morgan, Graham, Duncan, Hicks, Bradburn and Duffus Hon. J. R. Stratton, member for West Peterborough and Lieut. Col. A. Stevenson of the 57th Regiment.

It was decided that a guard of honour should be formed from the 57th Regiment and an escort from the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. Earl Grey will be given a reception at the station and then taken to the armouries where the freedom of the city will be tendered him.

This ceremony will take place in the park in front of the building, if the weather is suitable, if not the armouries will be used for the purpose.

The vice-regal party will then be entertained on a trip over the lift-lock on the steamer "Bessie Butler," after which they will be driven around the city viewing the principal industries and places of interest.

The details of the programme have, of course, not been definitely arranged, but Saturday night's meeting was unanimous that a reception should be given worthy of the prominence of the visitor. The Reception committee will not be stinted in any way as regards finances, and the day will be a red letter one in the history of Peterborough. It is not too early in the week to urge upon the merchants in particular and the citizens generally to decorate in honour of the vice-regal visit.

MRS. BEST'S BODY WAS FOUND IN DETROIT RIVER

Special to The Examiner:

Detroit, Mich., April 18.—The body of Mrs. Arthur J. Best, who disappeared from her home in Detroit, March 13th, was found in the lower Detroit River Sunday afternoon, and though terribly decomposed, was positively identified by members of the young woman's family this morning. The police are now looking for Mrs. Best's husband, a young man, whose home is near Comber, Ont., and who, was with her the night she was last seen alive. Best was arrested a few days after his wife's disappearance, but was released because they had no evidence that his wife was not still alive.

ASSAULTED AND ROBBED

Former Peterborough Man Dies in Calgary Hospital From Concussion of the Brain---Mysterious Circumstances in Connection With His Death.

AN INQUEST TO BE HELD

The following despatch from Calgary refers to a former Peterborough man and former employee of the Examiner. The late Mr. Clarke lived here for a number of years and will be remembered by many. Mr. Sidney Tivey, with whom he was in partnership, is a son of Mr. R. Tivey, Stanley Ave., Ashburnham.

The despatch says:

Calgary, Alta., April 16. — Alex. Clark, partner with Sydney Tivey in the Calgary Quick Print Works, died in the General Hospital this morning from what is supposed to be concussion of the brain though the circumstances surrounding his death are mysterious. He was taken to the hospital unconscious a few days ago with a bruise on his head. It is said that he was assaulted and robbed. Deceased, who was well known in Toronto, London and Winnipeg, was about 33 years of age and single, was born in Kincardine, and worked at the Winnipeg Free Press office, coming here a few weeks ago. An inquest will be held because of ugly rumours in connection with the affair. Deceased's family has not yet been located.

THE MILLER BILL PASSED.

As intimated on Friday in the Examiner would be the case, the Miller anti-gambling bill, has been revived, and with compromise amendment, passed by parliament. The amended bill and the compromise that brought about its adoption, is one of the most direct evidences of the deferences public opinion is able to command. When, after a long and exhaustive investigation the bill in its original form was reported to the House, it was practically killed, but only by the slender majority of one in a House of 155 members voting. Public opinion made itself so loudly heard through the press and otherwise, that the opponents of the bill, who had practically killed it, were wise enough to bow to public opinion and entertain the idea of a compromise. The compromise has been effective in procuring the passage of the bill in it is true, a considerably modified form, compared with the original bill, but in a shape which marks a distinct advance step in bringing about, through restriction of the evils of gambling on race tracks, and elsewhere, an important advance in moral reform. Public sentiment, no doubt, favoured a much more drastic measure, but sentiment, to be effective, must, in cases of this kind, be translated into action through legislative enactment, and there are practical difficulties in the way of taking too great an advance stride at one time. In the matter of moral reform of any kind, gradual advance is better than revolutionary measures, and though the passage of the anti-gambling bill does not go the length that the more extreme and zealous may desire, it may reasonably be accepted as an installment, and a foundation upon which more thorough reform in the future may be built.

SMALL STATESMANSHIP.

The Ontario Government's new timber "policy" is greeted by the party organs with a great flourish: though what great statesmanship is involved in putting in additional rates of stumpage dues and ground rents is difficult to understand. There is, however, logic in the province sharing in the increased value of timber; but there is little defence for doubly adding to the burdens of the lumberman. It is not statesmanship, as much as petty tyranny, to place upon them the whole cost of fire-ranging; and the spirit of petty huckstering is implied in the reason given, namely, that the lumberman is interested by the full value of the timber, in its preservation from fire. "while the government is interested to the extent of only $1.50 per thousand feet." If this is the measure of the Government's appreciation of the extent of its responsibility in the matter of forest conservation—for the sake of revenue only—we may expect its past policy of laisses faire in forestry matters to continue. The Government takes a very sordid view of the situation, if it assumes the position that its responsibility in regard to forestry interests, is confined to the single-hanging view of collecting revenue. Forest conservation is a national matter, in which the lumberman is only an incident; it has a broader and more comprehensive aspect. The influence of forest areas upon climatic conditions, and the conservation of water in the interests of internal navigation and power production involve considerations far more vast and important than the collection of a little revenue from the destructive exploitation of forest growth. Conservation will bring its own compensation a thousand fold more important than the addition of a few more dollars to the provincial coffers. Meanness in money matters finds its extremest illustration in placing of compulsory maintenance of fire protection upon lumbermen, because the province is only interested in the toll.

A GOOD DAY'S WORK.

Most days in Parliament are alike: the same iteration of more or less purposeless and pointless talk; but Friday was in a very important, if not entirely in a parliamentary sense, government day. It brought into high relief two or three points greatly to the credit of the Liberal Government. In answer to a question by a western member as to whether the Government had any intention of abandoning the building of the Hudson Bay railway, the Minister of Railways and Canals gave an emphatic answer in the negative; stating that far from having any intention of abandoning this important transportation enterprise, the Government intends to proceed with its construction with all possible speed—that having put its hand to the plow it would not turn back. The construction of this line seems to be greatly in the interests of national development. In view of the great inpour of immigration the grain production of the West will be greatly increased and the Hudson Bay Railway will form an important outlet, and one that will be urgently needed. Besides, it will open a vast and at present inaccessible area of land to settlement.

Hon. Mr. Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, prefaced the submission of his estimates with a full and informing resume of the work of the Department of Agriculture for the past fourteen years. No country in the world has made greater strides in agricultural advancement than Canada has done during the administration of the present government, and much of that progress may very properly be placed to the credit of the industry, foresight, insight and practical knowledge of the Minister of Agriculture. He has efficiently organized his department and added to the staff of competent men, whose expert knowledge and valuable research have done much to make Canada renowned throughout the world as a source of food supply and give valuable assistance to farmers in making their industry more productive and more profitable by the improvement of marketing facilities, including means of farm products reaching the ultimate markets in the best possible condition, and finding the highest favour with the purchasing public. Mr. Fisher's story of agricultural success achieved under his administration received practicalevidence of its telling character by provoking the interruption of the Opposition with the object of breaking its connected character, and destroying its effect—by the way, a favourite form of "discussion" on the part of the Conservative members of the House. Mr. Fisher persisted and succeeded in placing before the House a valuable precis of the work of his department, creditable alike to himself, as head of it, and to the Government, of which he is a member.

In the matter of the Anti-Gambling bill, which, at the close of the debate, was practically defeated, it was allowed to stand on the order paper, and when the parties interested yielding to public opinion decided upon a compromise, the Government, through the Minister of Finance, restored the bill to the place of a live issue, and procured whatever public benefits may arise from the adoption and application of the law.

In these three respects the Government came through the day with distinct advantage, and gave another evidence of their desire and ability to promote and protect the interests of the nation.

PORT OF PRINCE RUPERT

Of this continent, the opening article in the April "Hampton's Magazine contains some startling figures. We used to measure in millions, but Mr. Hampton when he comes to compute the possible wealth of only three commodities in Alaska builds from millions to billions and finally when he totals up he has the audacity to print $1,513,936,000,000. This includes the value of gold, copper and salmon only. All this wealth according to this writer is located in Alaska which will be easy of access, through the port of Prince Rupert when the new line is completed. And when resources of the territory immediately surrounding Prince Rupert are added to the commercial possibilities of Alaska the prospect for traffic over the Grand Trunk Pacific will make the management begin to figure on a double track already.

The son says: "My father and mother owe their present strength and good health to Vinol. During the last two trying winters neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of."

We want every feeble old person in this town to try Vinol. We will return their money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim for it.

UP WILL GO PRICE OF LUMBER

Government Increases Ground Rents---Money Must be Found to Meet Ontario's Large Expenditure---Whitney Government Breaks Faith---Large Operators Will be Hit Hard by the Increase in the Ground Rent.

List of the Increases.

The increases are:

On pine sawlogs, from $1 to $1.50 per 1,000 board feet.

On square timbers, from $20 to $50 per 1,000 cubic feet.

On hemlock, an increase of 25 cents per 1,000 feet.

Ground rent, which was raised from $2 to $3 per mile twenty-three years ago, will now be $5 and the transfer fee has been raised from $1 to $5 a mile.

In making the announcement the Hon. Mr. Cochrane said: "The Government has had, under consideration for some time the sharing in the increment of value that has taken place in the stumpage value of the timber on lands which have been under license for long periods.

"The total revenue from wood and forests for the last ten months has been $885,892.44, the revenue from timber dues being $529,422.50.

"The number of fire rangers has been 450, costing $66,114,71, of which the licensees have been paying half. Henceforth they will pay it all, each one paying the expenses of their own limits."

"The fire ranging system," said the Minister, "has worked satisfactorily—is now well established, and its benefits recognized, and we are confident that it will not deteriorate, but rather improve when the lumber trade has to bear all the expense.

Control Over the Rangers.

The Crown Lands Commissioner says: "We have, however, felt it necessary (politically) to retain some control over the men appointed, and will continue to require that their names shall be submitted here so that we may give them full instructions, and further, that we shall have the right to remove any man who does not serve that party, neglects his duty and require the substitution of a new man in his place. We have also retained the right to require all licensees to put fire rangers on their limits, and if they neglect to do so we are to have the power to put on the necessary rangers and charge their wages and expenses against the limit, withholding the license until these charges are paid, so that w will still have patronage.

We also retained the right to appoint what are called supervising rangers, whose duty it is to see that the work is efficiently done."

"The Government might as well have knocked us down and taken the money out of our pockets," is the vigorous way one of the biggest lumber merchants is expressing himself on the increase in lumber dues demanded by the Government. "It must be remembered that the men who have bought these old licenses did not get them for a song, but paid stiff figures for them. The original purchasers may have got them cheap, but the present holders of them paid all they were worth. For twenty-three years there has been no change in the prices, and as long as we lived up to the provisions of the license it strikes me that we ought to have been immune from further raises.

Certainly it is going to mean a lot to us. Take a firm that takes out fifty millions of feet per year. These increases will mean twenty-five thousand dollars a year extra cost. There are lots of firms taking out twenty-five million feet, and it will mean to them $12,500 a year additional cost. It is the most high-handed act I ever heard of.

"Then the additional cost of fire protection will mean an added $1,500 a year easily, and the government is retaining the control of the fire rangers. In other words the Government is grabbing everything it can, and giving nothing.

"The market gardener will soon be taxed if the reckless expenditure continues. In five years Ontario's expenditure has increased by four and one-half millions and I suppose we will have to keep this band in power. It will mean an increase of cost to the consumer of lumber all right.

"The making the lumber men pay for the cost of fire protection is the most unjust feature of the whole thing," the manager of the Ontario Lumber Co. said. "The Government has always paid one half of this cost, and I do not see any reason why it should not do so in all fairness. Then the boosting of the ground rents from $1 to $5 is a serious thing for those companies which hold large areas. Our company has 435 square miles of limits for instance. Now the raise of $4 a mile means something, as you can see."

Moral Reform Association Will Not Accept Miller Bill

Rev. Dr. Shearer Says Moral Reformers Will Continue War for Abolition of All Betting.

"Whether the Miller bill, as amended, is accepted by the moral reformers of the country as a temporary advance or not, it is quite certain, in my opinion, that it cannot be ultimately accepted as a solution of the serious problem which it aims to solve. No self-respecting Christian country in the twentieth century can consent to the bleeding of its weak and foolish citizens by men regarded as criminals under ordinary circumstances."

The above was the opinion expressed by Rev. Dr. Shearer, in discussing the race track bill this morning with a Star reporter.

"The bill, as amended," continued Dr. Shearer, "has many good points. It limits and defines the meaning of the word 'place.' This will be a material help for those seeking to enforce the law. The abolition of the handbook men is a gain. The forbidding of the publishing of tips or racing information is a distinct gain."

SHE REMEMBERED HIM.

"No. I've nothing for you," said the stern-faced woman. "You was along here last summer, and, after giving you your dinner I asked you to beat a carpet."

"Well," queried the hungry hobo. "didn't I beat it?"

"You did," answered the woman. "You beat it down the pike and you can do it again before I call the dog."

My Dear Examiner:—Just a word for the girls who wish to walk along the King's highway after a week of toil and duty. One would almost think it an unpardonable sin. Don't!!!

If the unspeakable blackguards, the cowardly curs, who speak to girls without an introduction were occasionally caught and punished, there would be no need to find fault with any who wish to come "down town" and pass an hour, seeing the shops and having a chat with their friends as they go along. Sure it is, that if the parents of certain boys knew how they behave, there would be a better state of acairs in our midst.—Yours, A Citizen of Fifty years in Peterborough.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

OUT OF THE BELLY OF HELL CRIED I

"I cried by reason of mine affliction unto the Lord, and he heard me; out of the belly of hell cried I" (Jonah ii, 2).

On the Mediterranean Sea, April 17.—We are not far from the place where poor Jonah long ago had his sad experience in his attempt to run away from the Divine commission to the Ninevites. We are nearing Jaffa, the port from which he sailed, then called Joppa. Some, intent on disproving as much as possible of the Bible, have attempted to make light of Jonah's experience, claiming that there was no fish in the world of such capacity as could swallow a man entirely. We are to remember, however, that the Scriptures do not say that it was an ordinary whale that swallowed Jonah, but rather they specifically declare that God "specially prepared" a great fish for the occasion. Nor is this all. We have our Lord's own testimony to the truthfulness of the matter, and whoever denies either his truthfulness or his intelligence is thereby denying also his Messiahship and repudiating him as a Saviour, because neither a falsifier nor a dupe could possibly be recognized as the great Redeemer and Saviour, the Sent of God, the Messiah.

Additionally our Lord informs us that the Jonah incident was in the nature of a type, especially designed of God to foreshadow the fact that Jesus himself would be dead for parts of three days and arise from the dead on the third day, even as Jonah was buried alive for parts of three days and on the third day the great fish vomited him upon dry land. There is nothing difficult about the narrative to one who has proper faith in God. To those who have not faith, nothing connected with Divine revelation is reasonable, commendable or satisfactory. Let us maintain our stand with those who hold fast to, and hold forth for others, the Word of Life.

But what have "the belly of hell" and the poor soul crying from it to do with the story of Jonah? And how does the story associate itself with our journey to-day over the Mediterranean Deep? Jonah was the man who was in the belly of hell and whose cry unto the Lord from there constitutes our text. When a boy I heard this text, and my imagination conjured up what hell would be like, and especially what the belly of hell, or what I supposed the middle part of it, would be like. I had the opportunity of looking into blast furnaces through what is called the glory-hole or peep-hole. There I noted that the centre of the fire was at white heat. I tried to imagine people in such a condition in the very middle or belly of hell. I could not imagine how they could survive such an experience a single moment, let alone for all eternity. I sought theological expositions of the matter and learned that some theologians of the hoary past, admitting the destructive effect of fire, claimed that God would specially vitalize all the poor creatures consigned to this torment, so that they would never die, but would keep on suffering forever and forever and forever, untellable tortures. I found that other theologians explained that those consigned to such a fiery ordeal would gradually become adapted to it and assume an asbestos-like shell which would measurably protect them from the fire. But these theologians went on to explain that, wishing them to suffer horrible tortures, God would scale off the asbestos shell, causing them to suffer still more excruciatingly every time the operation was performed. As a child I tried to imagine that this was the just desert of sinners, and that the Heavenly Father was really kind and loving—that he did not give them worse, though I could not think of anything worse that they could suffer.

"When I was a child, I spake as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things" (I. Corinthians xiii, 11). I asked for the proof that anybody could endure such sufferings and yet live. I asked for the proof that our God is as unsympathetic as any devil could be. My mind rejected as irrational the whole proposition. I said: The God whom I shall worship must be a greater being than myself—greater than any human being, not only in power to execute his will, but also in wisdom to make a wise arrangement for his creatures, and also perfect in justice to do to them as he would have them do to him, if he were the creature and they the God. He must also be perfect in love, the noblest feature of any character. I said to myself, Such must be the God who was the Creator of our race, for he has produced in humanity certain degrees of these various qualities and he could not give to man what he does not himself possess, nor can we suppose that he would create man with more justice, wisdom, love and power than he himself possesses. To that great God I bowed my heart and mind and every power that I possess. To him I still bow, and give thanks that by his grace I have come to see his character, his Plan and his Word more clearly than in the past. I thank him that now I can see in what way ultimately Jesus will be the "Light of the world"—not merely the Light of the Church (John viii, 12).

In abandoning the doctrine of eternal torment my disposition was to abandon the Bible also, because I believed that the Bible was the foundation of the irrational theory which had pictured God to my mind as a demon of the worst imaginable type. But, thank God, dear friends, the Lord heard my prayer for light, for knowledge respecting himself. After I had made a search of heathen creeds, as well as those of Christendom, and had found them all illogical, unreasonable, unsatisfactory, I turned to the Bible again, saying, Perhaps I have not done the Bible justice; perhaps I have unconsciously attributed to the Bible the teachings of the creeds. Perhaps I have read it through colored spectacles. Praying to God for guidance I took up Bible study in a very different way from previously. I began to study the Bible as I should have done at first—without reference to any of the creeds. I began to let God teach me. I ceased to say, It reads, "Thus," but it must mean otherwise. It says "So and so," but cannot mean that, but the reverse. In other words I ceased to try to teach God and endeavored to be taught of God through his Word, guided by the holy Spirit.

That was thirty-eight years ago. Under the Lord's blessing I found the Key to the interpretation of the Scriptures—not because of ability, but, I believe, because it is now due time for the Bible to be understood—in the closing of this Gospel Age and the dawning of the Millennial Day. Having found the Key and us it myself I have spent my best endeavors since to put the Key into the hands of God's consecrated people the world over. I have nothing to boast of, dear friends, but have much to be glad for. First, I am glad on my own account with a joy unspeakable, that now I know my Heavenly Father and can have confidence in him and can have love for him, as never before. I am thankful that, to some extent, I have been enabled to convey similar joys, similar blessings, to others of his dear people of all denominations in all parts of the world. The Lord has gradually enlarged my opportunities year by year. I am not building a sect—not making a new denomination — not founding a Church! We have had too much of that sort of thing already. Not only have we Wesley's Church and Calvin's Church, etc., etc., but it has become the custom for each minister to be spoken of as the proprietor of the Church; as, for instance, The Reverend Dr. A.'s Church. It has become a custom, too, for the preachers to speak of the people as "My people," "My Church." This is all wrong. I wish to have neither part nor lot in it. I have no Church, and wish for none. There is but the one Church—the Church of Christ—"the Church of the Living God"—"the Church of the First-Borns, whose names are written in heaven." That Church includes in its membership every true saint of God who trusts in the merit of Christ and seeks to walk in his footsteps. Whatever earthly systems such may be identified with are without Divine authorization. Their standing in God's sight is merely because of their identification with Christ as "members of his Body."

In God's providence I was led to publish six volumes of "Studies in the Scriptures," or Bible Keys. These were taken up by the Bible and Tract Society, and published at cost price, to enable all of God's people everywhere to procure them. They are now published in ten of the most prominent languages. The first Volume, "The Plan of the Ages," has passed the three million mark. I have received not one cent of royalty. My life is a very simple one. My expenses are small. I accept no salary and take up no collections. Voluntary donations from those who have been blessed by my labors supply my needs and the surplus goes to the Bible and Tract Society for the general forwarding of its work—"The Promulgation of Christian Knowledge."

Each earnest Christian who obtains the assistance of these Bible Keys and enters into the treasures of God's Word and becomes rich himself in spiritual knowledge and in joy and peace of heart is glad to call the attention of others to those Bible Keys. Thus the International classes of Bible Students of all denominations in all parts of the world are springing up and a blessed light, we believe, is going forth from these, assistful to all who love righteousness and hate iniquity. Although I am the regular pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle congregation, there are several assistants and I am privileged to speak to thinking Christians of various parts of the world, especially in the United States. Only the Lord knows how I thank him for this additional service, and for the still larger opportunity afforded me through the columns of some of the principal newspapers of America.

My sermons are handled by a Syndicate, and I am advised that now they appear in nearly five hundred newspapers, aggregating a circulation of six million copies, or, according to newspaper count, thirty million readers. All of these dear people of every denomination who do any thinking at all, I am sure have had similar difficulties to those which I experienced—difficulties in appreciating how our Heavenly Father could be a good Father, a good God, a loving Creator and yet provide for his human creatures such terrible destinies as all the creeds of the "dark ages" set forth. There is not a thinking Christian in the world who does not need the correct understanding of the Bible in order to be able to stand in the evil day that is upon us. All need to give heed to St. Paul's words, "Take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and, having done all, to stand" (Ephesians vi, 13). Our day is a blessed one in respect to its wonderful opportunities and privileges, but it is an evil one in the sense of being a time of great trial and testing of faith to Christendom.

Thinking minds are rejecting the doctrine of eternal torment and generally at the same time rejecting the Bible and denying that it is the inspired Word of God. These dear friends are stumbling into infidelity and think that Higher Criticism and Darwin's Evolution theory are new light. What they need is to see that the true light is in the Bible and that, wearing our grandfathers' spectacles, we inherited the Word of God and wrested it to our own injury and to the loss of our peace of mind and fellowship with the Father and with the Son and with the holy Spirit.

Whoever gets the proper understanding of our text has in his possession the Key to the Bible. If he will use it, passage after passage will open for him and the whole Word of God becomes a new and glorious revelation of Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power Divine. Jonah was in the fish's belly—he was buried alive. It is this that is referred to in our text. The words hell-belly signify grave-belly or belly-grave. The context shows all this, telling us additionally that sea-weeds were wrapped about the Prophet's head and that God heard his prayer and delivered him from the hell-belly, or belly-grave, on the third day by causing the fish to vomit him up. If you have a reference Bible note that in the margin there is a reference to the words of our text, saying, "Hebrew, the grave." Ah! says one, The translators merely made a mistake and translated it "hell" when they should have translated it "grave." Yes, I answer, and they made the same mistake in every case in which they used the same word "sheol" throughout the Old Testament. As it is, "sheol" is translated "grave" more times than it is translated "hell" in our Common Version; but it should be translated "grave" every time. There we have the Key to the Bible. The hell of the Bible, the penalty for sin, is death, the grave, the tomb. It is not an everlasting hell, for special Scriptures declare that "sheol" (hell) shall be destroyed. "I will ransom them from the power of the 'grave' (sheol); I will redeem them from death; O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave (sheol, hell) I will be thy destruction" (Hosea xiii, 14). St. Paul quotes this prophecy in conjunction with his great discourse on the resurrection "O death, where is thy sting? O 'grave' (hades) where is thy victory' (I. Corinthians xv, 55).

We see, dear friends, what our dear Redeemer suffered on our behalf to release us from the penalty for sin. He did not go to eternal torment for our sins. He did go into "sheol," ito "hades," into the "grave." Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures" (I. Corinthians xv, 3). Thus God has provided for the resurrection of the dead — all mankind, "both of the 'just' and of the 'unjust'." The 'just' are the Church, the saints. The "unjust" include all others. The blood of Jesus will avail for the release of every member of the race from the great penalty of death. Now it operates under a special call to the saintly few who are invited to become joint-heirs with the Redeemer in his great Kingdom which shortly is to bless all the families of the earth —not only those then living, but also all who have gone down to the tomb. The general resurrection will not be an instantaneous one, as in the case of the saints. It will be a gradual one in two senses.

(1) All will not come forth at once, but, as the Apostle declares, "Every man in his own order," company or band (I. Corinthians xv, 23).

(2) It will be gradual in the sense that the awakening from the tomb will be but the beginning of the resurrection of the world. During the thousand years of Christ's reign all who will give heed to his instructions and assistance may rise gradually—up, up, up—and by the close of the millennium they will reach the full perfection and image of God lost by Father Adam through disobedience. The unwilling, those rebellious after the light has fully come upon them, will be destroyed in the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery. They will perish as the brute beasts.

So, then, let us learn a lesson from Jonah's words, not forgetting the other lesson mentioned by our Lord when he declares that Jonah's experiences in the grave—the belly of the fish, and his release therefrom"—foreshadowed his own experiences in the tomb and his resurrection in power and great glory on the third day.

Everyone Thought She Was Going Into Consumption.

Gained Ten Pounds in Two Weeks by the Use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. Fred. Biggs, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"I was completely run down, my blood was out of order, and I used to get so weak I would be compelled to stay in bed for weeks at a time. I could not eat, was pale and thin; every one thought I was going into consumption. I tried everything and different doctors until a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have one bottle used when my appetite began to improve. I used six bottles. I gained ten pounds in two weeks. When I began to take it I only weighed ninety-three pounds. It just seemed to pull me from the grave as I never expected to be strong again. I will tell every sufferer of your wonderful medicine."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment and remove effete matter and waste products. Clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be.

Get pure blood and keep it pure by removing every trace of impure morbid matter from the system by using Burdock Blood Bitters. It exerts a curative influence unapproached by any other remedy.

The Port of Missing Men.

By Meredith Nicholson.

He halted the party, dismounted and crept forward to the bungalow. He circled the veranda, found the blinds open and peered into the long lounging room, where a few embers smoldered in the broad fireplace and an oil lamp shed a faint light. One man they held captive; the other was not in sight. Chauvenet's courage rose at the prospect of easy victory. He tried the door, found it unfastened and, with his revolver ready in his hand, threw it open. Then he walked slowly toward the table, turned the wick of the lamp high and surveyed the room carefully. The doors of the rooms that opened from the apartment stood ajar. He followed the wall cautiously, kicked them open, peered into the room where Armitage's things were scattered about and found his iron bed empty. Then he walked quickly to the veranda and summoned the others.

"Bring him in!" he said without taking his eyes from the room.

A moment later Zmai had lifted the silent rider to the veranda and flung him across the threshold. Durand, now aroused, fastened the horses to the veranda rail.

Chauvenet caught up some candles from the mantel and lighted them.

"Open the trunks in those rooms and be quick. I will join you in a moment." And as Durand turned into Armitage's room Chauvenet peered again into the other chambers, called once or twice in a low tone, then turned to Zmai and the prisoner.

"Take off the bag," he commanded.

Chauvenet studied the lines of the erect, silent figure as Zmai loosened

The man was not John Armitage, but Captain Claiborne.

the strap, drew off the bag and stepped back toward the table on which he had laid his revolver for easier access.

"Mr. John Armitage"—

Chauvenet, his revolver half raised, had begun an ironical speech, but the words died on his lips. The man who stood blinking from the sudden burst of light was not John Armitage, but Captain Claiborne.

The perspiration on Claiborne's face had made a paste of the dirt from the potato sack, which gave him a weird appearance. He grinned broadly, adding a fantastic horror to his visage which caused Zmai to leap back toward the door. Then Chauvenet cried aloud, a cry of anger, which brought Durand into the hall at a jump. Claiborne shrugged his shoulders, shook the blood into his numbed arms, then turned his besmeared face toward Durand and laughed. He laughed long and loud as the stupefaction deepened on the faces of the two men.

The objects which Durand held caused Claiborne to stare, and then he laughed again. Durand had caught up from a hook in Armitage's room a black cloak, so long that it trailed at length from his arms, its red lining glowing brightly where it lay against the outer black. From the folds of the cloak a sword, plucked from a trunk, dropped upon the floor with a gleam of its bright scabbard. In his right hand he held a silver box of orders, and as his arm fell at the sight of Claiborne the gay ribbons and gleaming pendants flashed to the floor.

"It is not Armitage; we have made a mistake!" muttered Chauvenet tamely, his eyes falling from Claiborne's face to the cloak, the sword, the tangled heap of ribbons on the floor.

Durand stepped forward, with an oath.

"Who is the man?" he demanded.

"It is my friend Captain Claiborne. We owe the gentleman an apology"—Chauvenet began.

"You put it mildly," cried Claiborne in English, his back to the fireplace, his arms folded and the smile gone from his face. "I don't know your companions, M. Chauvenet, but you seem inclined to the gentle arts of kidnaping and murder. Really, Monsieur"—

A GREAT ENTERPRISE COMES TO PETERBOROUGH

McDermid & Jury Make an Important Connection With the Largest Co-Operative Corporation in America, Backed by Men Doing an Annual Business Amounting to $75,000,000.

PEOPLE OF PETERBOROUGH BENEFITED

McDermid & Jury, of this city, have with characteristic enterprise, demonstrated their ability to keep well abreast of the times by connecting themselves with the largest druggists' co-operation in America. The men connected with this enterprise do a yearly business aggregating over $75,000,000, which well emphasizes its soundness and magnitude.

About three thousand retail druggists throughout the United States and Canada have organized themselves as a co-operative company for the purpose of producing a line of medical preparations which they recommend, absolutely guarantee and back up with their own names and personal reputations. The formulas of these remedies are thoroughly known to every one of these druggists and the ingredients of each will be truthfully described to the public and the remedies sold with the distinct understanding that their purchase price will be instantly refunded without question or quibble if they fail to benefit the user.

One thousand different formulas were turned over to the company. Each formula being selected because of its tested and proved value, and established reputation, gained through continued and successful use by prominent physicians.

A research committee of expert chemists and physicians made a most thorough and exhaustive test of each one of these one thousand prescriptions until they had selected about three hundred as being the very best and most dependable known to medical science, each for the treatment and cure of a particular ailment.

These three hundred remedies are now manufactured by the company, which is known as the United Drug Co., Boston, Mass., and United Drug Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada, in the largest, most modern and best equipped pharmaceutical laboratories in America.

The tremendous output of this company enables it to purchase drugs, herbs, and other necessary material in very large quantities. The co-operation and professional advice of 3,000 leading druggists guarantees the high quality of everything used and guarantees that only formulas of extraordinary merit are used in the manufacturing of their products.

The preparations of the company are shipped direct to the retail druggists, who are connected with the enterprise. Thus their absolute freshness is assured, it is impossible for their quality to deteriorate, there are no middlemen's or jobbers' profits to be added to their cost, and the public can obtain these products at actual cost of manufacture, plus a single retail profit.

One noticeable feature of this business, and a very commendable one, is that no one remedy manufactured by this company is a "cure-all." Each one of the 300 different remedies is a known and dependable specific for a particular ailment. The confidence of the druggists interested in this enterprise is unquestionably demonstrated by this guarantee, which is printed on every package: "The United Drug Co., Limited, and The Rexall Store selling this preparation guarantee it to give satisfaction. If it does not, go back to the store where you bought it and get your money—it belongs to you, and we want you to have it."

This is certainly an innovation that must appeal to the people of Peterborough. It insures safety and satisfaction because our local druggists, McDermid & Jury, who are so well-known and highly respected for their integrity, are connected with this enterprise and are staking their own personal reputation on the quality of these remedies, and the very frankness with which they take the people of Peterborough into their confidence insures an unprecedented success for these remedies, which are sold under the trade-name Rexall, which means King-of-All. From reports coming from thousands of towns and cities, the Rexall Remedies are certainly demonstrating their full title to the name.

Those who have previously refused to buy proprietary medicines because there was no way of ascertaining their ingredients, can now purchase Rexall Remedies, the formulas of which they can have for the asking. Besides, they are sold by a concern personally known to you and located right here in our own city, who guarantees that they are in every way as represented or they will cost nothing.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are one of the first of the three hundred remedies which are being introduced. Anyone in Peterborough who suffers from stomach derangement, indigestion or dyspepsia should not hesitate to try this Rexall Remedy when they are so highly recommended and backed with such a strong guarantee.

McDermid & Jury are so well and favourably known for their sterling honesty and square dealing that we predict a great success for them with the Rexall Remedies, and they are to be heartily congratulated in bringing this great and modern business enterprise to Peterborough.

We urge all who may be in need of prepared medicines to call on McDermid & Judy, and learn about Rexall Remedies. Enterprise of this sort should be encouraged.

THE IDEALS OF IRELAND SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Rev. Father Casey Lectured Before the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S. on Friday Night.

INTELLECTUAL TREAT

Rev. Father Casey was the lecturer at the meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. His address on Ireland's Ideals, which was as follows, was greatly appreciated:

Far out in the western sea, where the mighty waves of the Atlantic break upon her rocky shore, there lies a little island, the Dark Rosaleen of her poetic chroniclers, known on the world's map as Ireland. A tiny speck on the earth's surface, insignificant if measured by miles and leagues, and yet mighty with strange happenings is this Isle of Destiny. Its place in the great library of nations is beyond all superficial comparison, empires of which it would have formed, but an insignificant province have risen up and lived and died, leaving behind them but scant memories of their greatness; but this strange land of a strange people has its record in the imperishable pages of time. It is a strange story, this story of Ireland. In it the smile and the tear, the light and the shade are inseparably blended as the sunshine and the shadows in the skies that overhang her sacred soil. And as in the Irish sky the cloud and the sunbeams play hide and seek with each other, so that you are never sure what any day is going to be like until it is over; in like manner, when you turn over the pages of this Island's annals, you can never reckon beforehand what any entry will be. For, if to-day it speaks of glory and the bright records of success and victory, to-morrow it may be the wail of her children in your ears and their piteous appealing faces before your eyes. But one thing you can be sure of—one thing even the most cursory glance will reveal, and that is, that through smiles and through tears, through weal and through woe, Ireland has been faithful to her ideal. Ireland, as one of her poets beautifully said, lives and breathes for Heaven above. Alone amid a materialistic world she seeks the Spirit. Alone she recognizes that there is no God, but God, and Mammon is but an idol, made by the sordid hands of man. The prayer of Mangan has been upon her lips since first the Apostle wrought with God upon the western mountain:

'O, Ireland, be it thy high duty,
To teach the world the might of moral beauty,
And stamp God's image truly on the struggling soul."

Other peoples have been busy about many things, Ireland has ever sought the one thing necessary, and for that she is willing to sacrifice everything—riches, prosperity, life itself. The world cannot understand her point of view. Grasp the present good, they say, we know not what the future brings. Faithless themselves, they would fashion God even as they are—faithless, too. But the breeze that plays above the martyred dead in the lonely graveyards speaks to Ireland of an eternal promise. And like the murmur of her limpid streams or the joyous paean of her feathered songsters deep in sequestered glens, is her unceasing credo.

It is not my intention to speak to you to-night of the story of Ireland from a political standpoint. That would be an interesting study. But I prefer to treat of another aspect of Irish history—that summarized in the title of this paper. We all have ideals—consciously or unconsciously we set for ourselves a model and we strive to imitate that model more or less successfully. It is with nations as with individuals. And Ireland, in common with all other peoples, has her ideals. Come with me to-night, while we turn over the pages of her history, and we will see what is Ireland's idea:

"That thou soughtest
Shall not lack consummation. Many a race,
Shrivelling in sunshine of its prosperous years
Shall cease from faith, and, shamed, though shameless, sink
Back to its native clay; but over thine
God shall the shadow of His hand extend,
And through the night of centuries teach of her,
In woe, that story which, when the nations wake
Shall sound their glad deliverance. Nor alone
This nation from the blind dividual dust
Of instinct, trade, thoughts drifting in wills,
Be Thee evoked and shapen by thy hands
To God's fair image, which confers alone
Manhood on nations, shall to God stand true;
But nations far in undiscovered seas,
Her stately progeny while ages waste,

Fifteen hundred years have passed away since the angel Victor thus spoke to our national apostle, at the end of his forty days' wrestling in prayer with the Almighty, on the summit of Crough Patrick, overlooking the western sea. This people whom he had by his own hands formed to the image of Christ, would, come weal or come woe, "to God stand true." The lamp of faith would never be extinguished upon the Altar of Erin. Persecution and suffering she would endure; the red hand of war, the black shadow of famine would shut out the sunshine from the fair hills and convert the smiling valleys into a land of horror; foreign foes would come, but Erin would still stand true.

In the old days when the fierce barbarian hordes swept down on western Europe, like a swarm of locusts, eating up and destroying every vestige of culture and religion, burning schools, devastating churches, destroying books—when the darkness of a new paganism was settling down on the fair provinces of Austria, and Germany and Italy and Spain and France, all eyes turned, as to their only hope, to the insignificant Island that lay far out beyond Britain, they looked to Ireland to re-kindle anew the lamps in the desecrated churches, and to relight the torch of learning in the dismantled halls of the universities. Ireland, poverty-stricken, famine-stricken Ireland, had the great mission given her to spiritualize, to Christianize the world.

Now, it is all very well to take pride in our country's glorious past, but what of the present? What will the future bring forth? Will Ireland be true to her vocation? It is for us to decide. We are the link between the past and the future. If we fail in our duty to Ireland our glory is gone forever. Shall we alone of all the generations that have looked upon these green fields and heard the rushing of the mighty waters through these smiling valleys, shall we prove faithless to the heritage of the age? No! A thousand times, "No!" Ireland saved Europe from Hun and Vandal, she will save the world from the new paganism that worships matter and images before success. We need have no fear if we are only true to our country and true to ourselves. True to our country; remembering her ancient glory, believing in her vocation, proud of the fact that we are Irishmen, but at the same time not hating other nations. If we have our national virtues, so have we our national defects. Let us never be ashamed of our Motherland, but let us always respect those that differ from us in nationality. It is the Irish ideal, the open door, that signifies "a hundred-thousand welcomes" to the stranger; it is the Christian ideal: "I became all things to all men that I might gain all." Respect for ourselves, love for our country. Freedom for mind, heart, conscience—that is the mission of the Irish race.

In fifteen hundred years Ireland has pursued that ideal unflinchingly and unwaveringly. And to-day when the other nations and other peoples have made for themselves graven images—when other peoples offer incense at the shrine of Mammon and grovel before the fetich self, Ireland still cherishes in her heart this, her ideal, and all that it means.

Ladies and gentlemen, for a few minutes this evening we have dipped into the story of the Isle of Destiny. We have tried to discover what is the explanation of her wondrous fidelity and her deathless faith. We have asked and answered the question: "What is Ireland's Ideal?" And we have found that it is symbolized in the one word "Spirit." Ireland cares nothing for material greatness or worldly success. She understands, as only God's people can understand, that the fashion of this world passes away. And she knows that in the great day when the Ruler of Nations will hear the causes of men, that colonies and possessions, vast armies and great fleets, and mighty cities will count as nothing, compared with one soul taught the way to truth and brought nearer to life.

The Gaelic League has revolutionized Ireland. It is teaching her self-respect and self-reliance. It is teaching her to live up to her ideal because it shows her that her greatness and her glory are altogether in this ideal. Within the last year we have seen inaugurated in Dublin the New National University, which gives us reason to hope that in a very little while Ireland will be again the Teacher of Nations—the Island of Scholars. A new soul is abroad in Erin. The old days are gone forever—the old days of despondency and hopelessness and despair, when

'Each morrow brought sorrows and shadows of dread,
And the rest that seemed best was the rest of the dead."

The future is bright for our dear country; it is a future of hope. The Gaelic League has done more to perpetuate the living faith of Ireland than all the sermons that could be preached in a generation. For it has interested our people in this country, it has encouraged them to go teach or study her history, and in that study they cannot fail to see that Ireland's greatness lies altogether in her fidelity to the Faith, and that any divorce between faith and nationality would rob her of the brightest gem in her emerald crown.

The programme for the evening was as follows:

Instrumental duet—Misses Pierce and Giroux.
Vocal solo—Miss G. Delaire.
Vocal solo—Master J. Clancy.
Recitation—Miss K. Derocher.
Lecture, "Ireland and Her Ideals"—Rev. Father Casey.
Instrumental duet—Misses Delaire and Leahy.
Vocal solo—Miss Ethel Jays.

At the conclusion of the lecture a vote of thanks, moved by Rev. Father Meagher, and seconded by Miss F. O'Connor, was tendered to Rev. Father Casey for his very interesting address.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC SHOPS

The big shops of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Winnipeg are rapidly taking the form of finished buildings. The roundhouse is already roofed in and more than one-half of the five thousand tons of steel used in the construction of the shops has been riveted in place. There will be thirteen separate buildings, eight departments. Eight buildings of steel construction and five buildings of reinforced concrete. The shops and grounds will cover 300 acres and there will be seventeen acres of floor space in the thirteen buildings. The main building alone will be 180 feet wide, 880 feet long and 47 feet high. These shops will employ about 3,500 men to begin with, which force will be increased to 5,000 as business justifies. All this work is being done by a Winnipeg firm, and the work is expected to be completed by the end of this year.

imply. He referred to the want in the great Canadian west, and said that those who went to the west from Christian communities and did not find these privileges would deteriorate, and it was the duty of Christian people to see to it, that the west was not neglected in this respect. The churches of older Canada have a great deal to do in helping to assimilate the new population of the west. He congratulated Mr. Keith, the congregation and the Building committee, and he hoped that the corner stone which had been laid, was the beginning of a new era of progress.

Greetings From Sister Churches.

A number of the clergy representing the sister churches in the community, were called upon and expressed greetings from the denominations they represented. Rev. G. W. Henderson, on behalf of the Methodists of the city, heartily congratulated the pastor and congregation of Knox church on the progress they were making and extended best wishes for future prosperity. Rev. Mr. Riddiford in extending the greetings of the Baptists, stated that the workingmen of the south end had expended $170,000 in the erection of churches in the last few years. It was an evidence that the people had the right principles and the right spirit. Rev. H. R. Trumpour, M.A, on behalf of the Anglican congregation, addressed a few remarks of congratulatory nature, as did also Rev. Mr. McKenzie, representing the Presbytery, Rev. J. G. Potter and Rev. Robt. Pogue.

The gathering dispersed, after the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev Mr. Pogue.

CORNER STONE OF NEW KNOX CHURCH LAID BY LIEUT.-GOVERNOR GIBSON

Auspicious Event in the History of Knox Congregation—The New Edifice to Cost $23.000—Occasion Marked by Splendid Addresses by Prominent Men.

MANY ATTENDED

An auspicious event in the history of Knox Church was the laying of the corner stone of a new $23,000 edifice by his Honour the Lieut.-Governor of the Province, J. M. Gibson. The occasion will long be remembered by the congregation and friends of Knox Church, as a step in their progress and advancement. A large number of people was in attendance, and the remarks of the distinguished speakers were followed with interest. The pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith, conducted the proceedings, and in opening called on Rev. J. G. Potter, the representative of Presbytery, to read a portion of Scripture, after which Rev. Mr. McKenzie, moderator, led in prayer. The choir rendered an anthem very acceptably.

Before calling on his Honour to perform the ceremony, Rev. Mr. Keith placed a box containing, among other things, the coins of the realm, copies of the three daily papers, a copy of the certificate of the Young Ladies' Bible class, who presented the stone, and a copy of the first hymn at the commencement of the church, in the stone.

In introducing His Honour Lieut. Governor J. M. Gibson, Rev. Mr. Keith said they were especially honoured by his visit. It was pleasing to know that he was interested in phases of work other than those directly incurred by high office. His Honour was then presented with a handsome silver trowel, suitably engraved, by Mr. Andrew McKenzie, chairman of the Building committee. After performing the ceremony, His Honour, in addressing the gathering, said that it was a pleasure for him to come apart from his busy life in Toronto, to attend such an occasion. He congratulated His Worship the Mayor, on the progressiveness of the city. Every feature of his visit was new to him. One, he said, was very apt to become tired of the monotonous round of social functions in the city of Toronto, and as Toronto always said when he returned to his own city of Hamilton, he had gone to the country, so would also, the same be said in reference to Peterborough. He had been a Presbyterian since infancy and as the Lieut.-Governor of the Province, it was pleasure for him to witness the extension and growth of the church. Here, too, enlarged churches were required. He had often noticed, he said, in many places, missions outstripping the parent churches in usefulness. This new enterprise on the part of Knox congregation, he remarked, would be justified by the activities on the part of Mr. Keith and the Board of Managers.

"I am a great believer in punctuality and regularity at church," remarked the speaker. "I hope there will be two prominent features of the people of Knox church congregation." There was a danger in these days, of young men making their way to the golf links on the Sabbath which was, to him, not the proper observance of the Lord's Day. Because Sunday was intended as a day of rest, that was no excuse for spending it in vigorous exercise on a golf field. Punctuality and regularity never would be a source of regret to those who practised them. In these days of higher criticism and evolution, the shorter catechism which he learned when he was a boy at Sunday school, may be omitted, but there was still the same infallible truth, namely that the chief end of man, was to glorify God. It was with that end in view that they were erecting the new church. He did not know whether it was paid for or not, but he was sure they would have the sympathies and liberalities of many friends. The matter of giving for church purposes, was one that should meet with universal approval. There was no feature in connection with a church so important as what people did to assist in work. He knew many persons who could afford to give much more and never miss it, who gave but very little. He did not know anyone who ever gave to a church, regret having done so. It was like relieving want and distress and speaking words of sympathy where they were needed. A man who never made any sacrifice would never realize that feeling of having given anything that cost him something. After all true religion was but a case of making sacrifice. "Where you find a man who is relieving and improving humanity you have a man who must have faith," added the distinguished speaker.

REV. H. J. KEITH,
Pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church.

In conclusion, the Lieut.-Governor thanked Mr. Keith and the congregation for paying him the honour of asking him to lay the corner stone. He was sure that a building would be built that the city would feel proud of, and he hoped that it would be erected without accident to the workmen. The congregation would be a strength to the people of Peterborough.

Mayor Morrow.

Rev. Mr. Keith introduced his Worship the Mayor. Mayor Morrow, after thanking the Building committee for the privilege of being present, at the laying of the corner stone, congratulated the reverend gentleman on the continued growth of his congregation, which had necessitated the laying of this corner stone and the erection of a new church. The corner stone which had been well and truly laid by His Honour, the Lieut. Governor, represented the highest form of civilization, of Christian progress, of civil and religious liberty and all that that carried with it. This was the fourth church built in this ward, within the last two years and there could be no doubt but that it represented the growth and advancement of the city. Ample evidence of the city's progress would be found in the number of new churches that have been and are being built. While the city had made material progress, he was glad that it was going ahead in other directions. Spiritual matters were not being forgotten. Representing the citizens, for the time being, as Mayor, he welcomed His Honour the Lieut.-Governor, to Peterborough, and he was glad to see that from his multiplicity of duties he found the leisure time to take in the afternoon's proceedings. He hoped His Honour's visit would be a pleasant and agreeable one. Concluding, the Mayor, after thanking the committee for their kind invitation, congratulated the people of Knox church on their enterprise and devotion to the work of the church as exemplified by the proposed new building.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P.

Mr. Keith then called upon Hon. Mr. Stratton, M.P., the member for West Peterborough whom, he said, they were pleased to have with them, this afternoon.

Mr. Stratton said that under the circumstances, it was unnecessary for him to say that it gave him the greatest pleasure to be present for several reasons. This was the first opportunity he had to publicly congratulate his old friend and colleague, upon his advancement to the dignity of Lieut. Governor of the great Province of Ontario, whose good government he had promoted, in another capacity. Mr. Stratton had the pleasure and honour of having associated and co-operating with him in applying measures for the promotion of the best interests of the Province and the people. It was a pleasure and honour to co-operate with him and others that afternoon, in promoting the highest interests of the community. In laying the corner stone of this new church, they were not merely placing the foundation of a structure of stone and brick. They were laying the foundation of the moral upbuilding of that and all parts of the city. His Worship the Mayor had referred to the rapid growth of Peterborough which was not bound down to mere material consideration. They were not neglecting the better part. The established churches have created a public sentiment that church building and church privileges should keep pace with the building of factories, homes and schools, and this sentiment was being very practically emphasized. Last year three new churches had been erected in number one ward and the corner stone of another laid and to-day they were laying the corner stone of another which means the fifth new church completed or in the course of construction, in three years. "We have in Peterborough," Mr. Stratton remarked, "seventeen substantial church buildings, including the Salvation Army and some of these as large as they are, are becoming too small for increasing congregations, though new churches had been built in the ward to relieve the congestion. Peterborough can now boast of the creditable condition that she has one church building for every one thousand inhabitants." He referred to the growth of the population and said the growth of the churches was keeping pace which was a healthy sign, that the churches were alive to their responsibility. Mr. Stratton said Rev. Mr. Keith and his officials were to be congratulated on the energy, zeal and work of Knox church. In all communities the first great want, was church privileges and all that they

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY

Sixty Per Cent. of Entire Mileage of G. T. P. is Either Completed or Now Under Construction.

PRAIRIE SECTION COMPLETE

(Montreal Gazette, March 8, 1910)

Since the turning of the first sod on the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway at Fort William, Ont., September 11, 1905, by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the construction work has proceeded steadily to the extent that at the present time, covering a period of four years and a half since the building of this transcontinental railway was commenced, of the entire main line from Moncton to Prince Rupert, a distance of 3,000 miles has been placed under construction. On this there has been laid 1,795 miles of track, which in some cases is made up of disconnected sections and is, therefore, not all continuous. That portion of the line, however, from Winnipeg to Edmonton, 793 miles, has been constructed and in partial operation by the construction department for the past eighteen months. Within the past ninety days the track has been completed continuously from Edmonton westerly to Wolf Creek, 122 miles, thus completing the track laying on that portion of the line, designated as the prairie section, Winnipeg to Wolf Creek, 915 miles.

Track laying was also recently completed from Winnipeg to Fort William, 445 miles, thus making continuous line from Fort William, via Winnipeg and Edmonton, to Wolf Creek, 1,360 miles, which however, cannot be completed for practical operation for some months as considerable work is required to be done on the easterly and westerly ends of the line, to put it in a suitable condition for the movement of regular trains. The other portions of the main line on which the rails have been laid are situated at different points east and west of the city of Quebec. During the past year contracts have been let for the construction work from Wolf Creek, Alberta, westerly to Tete Jaune Cache in the Rocky Mountains, 179 miles, and there are at present engaged on this section of the line, 1,000 teams and a large army of men. Similar forces are also engaged on the construction of the line from Prince Rupert, the terminus on the Pacific coast easterly to Aldermere, B.C., 240 miles.

In addition to the mileage referred to above, the provincial governments of Saskatchewan and Alberta passed acts at the sessions of their legislatures in 1909, authorizing guarantees for the construction of branch lines by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company in these provinces to the extent of 686 miles, comprising branch lines from the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to Yorkton, Regina, Battleford, Calgary, Lethbridge Macleod and Coutts, the construction of which is at present under way.

At the session of the Saskatchewan Legislature in December, 1909 an act was passed authorizing the guarantee of the construction of additional branch lines by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in that province, to the extent of 475 miles, comprising lines from Regina southeasterly to the United States boundary line, from the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to Prince Albert and from Regina westerly to Moose Jaw, Calgary, etc., the construction of which will be undertaken during the present year. From the foregoing it will be observed that out of a total mileage of main line and branches of approximately 7,900 miles, there have been completed and under construction at the present time approximately 4,800 miles or 60 per cent. of the entire mileage authorized in the company's charters.

THIS CONVICT IS A POET

In Middle of a Ten-Year Sentence For Breaking Into a Station, Youth Named Carter Is Released From Penitentiary Because of High Merit of His Contributions to Magazines — Is a Pianist.

St. Paul, Minn., April 18.—A young Englishman, known as "John Carter," who has served half of a ten-year sentence for burglary, and whose case attracted wide attention because of his poetic genius, was freed by the state pardon board Saturday afternoon. He will be released from the Stillwater Penitentiary as soon as the papers are made out, which will be Monday morning, April 18, which is his 24th birthday.

Pleas for Carter's freedom were made by Judge J. W. Willis and Rev. L. R. S. Ferguson of St. Paul. Telegrams and letters were read before the board from magazine editors.

Harry Phillips, director of music at McAlester College, who had become interested in Carter through his playing at the services in the prison chapel, and the managing editor of a Minneapolis journal also sent letters. Judge Willis read a letter from a man in England who knew of Carter as a boy, and who told of the condition of his father, the refinement of the family and the reasons the boy had been sent to Canada.

The young poet admits that Carter is not his real name, but says that he is an Englishman and of good family. He will not divulge his family name. He says that his poems, which have been published in a number of leading magazines, and have attracted considerable attention, were written to kill time and ease unhappy thought. His poem, "Ballad of Misery and Iron," won his especial recognition.

According to a statement made before the pardon board by Judge Willis, Carter was less than twenty years old when the crime was committed. His father was in an asylum, and John, who had been working in a bank building, not liking the confinement, was sent to Canada by the family, who were in straightened circumstances, to learn farming.

Being unable to secure steady employment, Carter started to "beat it" from Winnipeg to St. Paul, but during the night was put off the train at Karlstadt, Minn., having had nothing to eat for 36 hours. Carter broke into the railroad station and stole $24 and a silver watch. He was caught, pleaded guilty, and having no attorney, was given the maximum penalty of ten years.

During his confinement, Carter had been employed in the prison library cataloging books and assisting in the publishing of the prison "Mirror." He also is a pianist and plays a clarionette in the prison band.

Carter's Identity a Secret.

London, April 18.—There is little prospect of the identity of John Carter, being revealed here, as after consultation with the young man's relatives, Cyril Thomas, the erstwhile friend and adviser of Carter, said yesterday that the sacrifice would be too much.

Mr. Thomas personally favored telling the whole story, realizing that publicity might help considerably toward Carter's pardon, but he could not act without the relatives' sanction.

A family conference was held yesterday afternoon, at which it was decided that, while it might help Carter to get a release, the dragging of the family name and honor through the mud was not to be thought of, more especially as it would prejudice the young man's future.

Mr. Thomas said that Carter had been cut from his family by reason of wrongdoing. They refused to have anything to do with him personally, although very likely provision would be made for him on his release from prison.

Cyclone Causes Wreck.

Manchester, Ga., April 18.—The Town of Woodland, nine miles south of Manchester, on the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad, experienced a destructive cyclone Saturday afternoon, practically every house in the town being more or less seriously damaged.

Five cars of a side-tracked freight were blown over on to the main line and a moment later another freight dashed into them, making kindling wood of the box cars.

Southern Illinois, Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri also report heavy damage from wind, rain and hail storms.

Asphyxiated In Bathroom.

London, Ont., April 18.—Word was received last night from Detroit of the death there of Miss May Treble, of this city, who was staying at the home of Mrs. Richmond Hill. She had gone to the bathroom and was heating water with a gas stove when she was overcome and asphyxiated.

New York Village Fire-Swept.

Geneva, N.Y., April 18.—The Hamlet of Orleans, eight miles southwest of this city, was nearly wiped out by fire yesterday. Twenty-two buildings, including the church and school house, were destroyed.

Dropsy—
Given up by Doctor

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected around my heart, and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

L. TURLEY CURD,
Wilmore, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been wonderfully successful in relieving heart trouble. Its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles is a great factor in assisting nature to overcome heart weakness.

A VICTORY FOR ASQUITH

His Recent Declaration Has Had the Effect of Making Britain Take a New Interest In Politics While All the Unionist Arguments Went Unheard — Struck Psychological Moment In British Politics.

New York, April 18.—A special cable to The Times from London says:

Premier Asquith's statement of the Government policy, made on Thursday in the House of Commons, has raised his supporters to the highest pitch of enthusiasm and has depressed his opponents to the lowest depths of desperate fury.

The Liberal leader has won a complete victory in the game of party politics which has been going on ever since the general election. He got the Unionists in a tight place between the devil of the dissolution of Parliament in the middle of the London season, which is particularly undesirable from a Conservative point of view, and the deep sea of acceptance of office under conditions precluding any possibility of carrying on the official business of the country.

In the event of another general election, he clearly defined the issues which will be fought out, and made it almost impossible for the Unionists to befog them or complicate them with questions such as tariff reform and naval extension. He has given the Opposition one solitary and very feeble battle cry. Only on Wednesday Mr. Balfour begged his supporters not to allow their attention to be diverted from the questions of tariff reform to that of the House of Lords. Mr. Asquith has now succeeded in bringing the House of Lords so prominently into the foreground that the Balfourites will, in case of a general election this summer, be forced to take up the cry of "No single chamber Government!" And there is not one Englishman in a thousand who really believes that the Liberal party desires any such thing.

Another feature in Mr. Asquith's triumph is that he has enlisted the attention of the country. As a Conservative weekly yesterday admits, out of forty-five or fifty million people in the country possibly three thousand have followed the recent proceedings in the House of Commons. The public interest taken in Parliamentary manoeuvering has been infinitesimal. All the diatribes of the Unionist organs during recent weeks have fallen on barren soil. Now a note has been sounded, which all Liberal papers of all shades of opinion describe as a clarion cry to victory at the polls.

Socialism and Anarchy.

Toronto, April 18.—Prof. J. C. Hume of Toronto University treated the Mutual Welfare Society, Sunday afternoon, to a most interesting address on "Socialism and Anarchy," and in the course of his remarks defined nihilism as a purely destructive policy, anarchy as a system embodying greater hopes and altruism, and the socialism of to-day as a policy of more practical worth than either anarchy or nihilism. The speaker said that whilst in many ways he favored the socialistic platform of to-day, he deprecated its purely industrial basis, and advocated a greater consideration of the political and moral aspects of the situation.

MONTREAL TO BE OPEN PORT

Chairman of Commission Announces That Montreal Will Be an Open Port For Eight Months, Instead of Six Every Year — Two New Steamship Lines Will Come In This Year From Naples.

Montreal, April 18.—Major G. W. Stephens, who returned yesterday from Europe, announced that work on the great Montreal harbor scheme was being started to-day, and that an expenditure of $1,500,000 annually will be made for about four years.

The commissioners working harmoniously with the Government, will produce results that will give Montreal an open port eight instead of six months in the year.

The section to be started this year will be the raising of the Victoria from a low to a high level wharf, giving accommodation for 25 instead of 20 large ocean steamers in the port proper, the construction of a high level double track railway from Victoria Pier eastward seven miles, to be eventually taken all round the island, besides dredging a good portion of the harbor.

The chairman says that there is no doubt whatever, with improved ice breakers, the announcement can be made to the world that two months of navigation can be added to the present time.

Two new steamship lines, the Canadian Northern and the Allan line from Naples, will send their boats to Montreal this year.

Speaking of Montreal's importance as a shipping point, he says that the terminals here of the C.P.R. G.T.R., and C.N.R. embrace 1,800 square acres.

Suffragists Organize.

Toronto, April 18.—The Provincial Legislative Suffrage Association has been organized with the following officers: President, Mrs. Emma Lawlor, Dutton; first vice-president, Mrs. Henry Billings; second vice-president, Dr. Abbie Walker; secretary, Mrs. Hazel Wagner; treasurer, Rev. Penry Billings.

Chairman of the medical committee, Dr. Margaret Gordon; of the visiting committee, Dr. Margaret Johnston; of the reception committee, Dr. Stowe, Gullen.

Miss Olivia Smith, who created the "scene" at the closing of the last session of the Legislature, has been appointed organizer. A weekly letter will be sent to the newspapers, and Ontario ministers will be asked to give a Sunday annually to the cause.

NATURE TELLS YOU

As Many a Peterborough Reader Knows Too Well.

When the kidneys are sick,
Nature tells you all about it.
The urine is nature's calendar.
Infrequent or too frequent action;
Any urinary trouble tells of kidney ills.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Peterborough people testify to this.

Mrs. T. DeRusia, of Mary and Bethune street, Peterborough, Ont., says, "I believe Booth's Kidney Pills a remedy of exceptional merit in quickly relieving backache caused from disordered kidneys. I frequently suffered with a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back. It would extend around my sides and into my shoulders. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Booth's Kidney Pills were recommended by a friend and I procured a box at Wm. Madill's Pharmacy. I soon found them to relieve me, I have had no trouble since and can credit this only to Booth's Kidney Pills."

Mad Storm In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, April 18.—The storm which struck Manitoba on Friday, continued without intermission throughout Saturday and Sunday. It is still blowing hard from the north with a heavy snowfall.

The telegraph service is maintained by the C.P.R. with some difficulty, but the G.N.W. service in this province has been utterly paralyzed since Friday morning.

To the south, in Northern Minnesota and the Dakotas, the Western Union is carrying on a very precarious service on a few wires.

Lightning Hits Balloon.

Bitterfield, Prussian Saxony, April 18.—The balloon Delitsch, which ascended here Saturday evening, fell to the earth near the village of Reichensachson, about twenty miles northeast of Eisenach, in a thunderstorm. The crew, consisting of four men, were killed.

The balloon passed over Eisenach at midnight and soon drifted into a thunderstorm. It is assumed that it was struck by lightning and that the gas exploded. The envelope was in tatters when found and the car wrecked.

Socialists of Paris Get Busy.

Paris, April 18.—The Socialists, the workingmen and the proletariat generally are just now in the throes of their annual spring fever of agitations and public demonstrations.

They are getting ready for a grand May Day manifestation of discontent, and this, together with an electioneering campaign of effervescence, makes the Parisian outlook exceedingly lively.

Minnehaha Goes Ashore.

London, April 18.—The Atlantic transport line steamer Minnehaha is ashore at Ceiling (near Bishop's Rock, according to a wireless message received from her at Lloyd's signal station at the Lizard at 2.10 yesterday morning. Lloyds have wired to Falmouth for assistance. The wind is west, light, with dense fog.

Patriotism

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. The confirmed dyspeptic "is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils." The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier and a fault finder.

A sound stomach makes for good citizenship as well as for health and happiness.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are promptly and permanently cured by the use of

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.
It builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.

Enjoy your food---Starvation only aggravates Indigestion and Dyspepsia

Medical science strongly advises every dyspeptic to eat plenty of good, wholesome food because starvation only weakens the stomach as a digestive organ. Take a Little Digester after each meal and find out how easily the stomach will perform its function.

It costs nothing to try Little Digesters. These dainty tablets are put up in little red boxes—made to slip in the smallest purse or vest pocket. FOUR CITY LEAGUE TEAMS HAD WORKOUT SATURDAY

Ball Bug Begins to Buzz in Peterborough---All of Local Nines Were Out Saturday and Had Lively Practice---Getting Ready for the Opening

All four of the City League teams worked out on Saturday afternoon, taking advantage of the suitable weather to pack a couple of hours of strenuous fun beneath their belts, and as a result of the going there will undoubtedly be an epidemic of sore "wings" and an alarming amount of "Charley's horse" in evidence for the next few days. The weather was of the variety, that tempts a player to let out a little harder than he should on the go in, and there was nothing lazy about any of the practices.

The West Ends and Stratheonas were out in force at Riverside Park, the champion T.A.S. drilled at Boswell's field and the Park St. A. C. team cavorted around their own grounds in the south end. All four teams had big turnouts and the indications are that there will be four well balanced teams in line for the race for the flag.

Among the West Ends were Dobson, Geale, Guerin, Giroux, Pearson and McDougall. The latter is the McDougall of hockey fame who hangs up his hat in Keene. The Straths had a big string in line, including Kendry, Weatherstone, Heaslip, Sheridan, Hickey, Dusty, McPhee, Paquette, V. Craig and F. Craig.

The West Ends have practically all their last year's team intact. Kirn and Rose will likely do the box work with Dobson at the receiving end, Perkins, formerly of Lindsay, is slated for first base, and the Westerners have a number of men to pick the other infield positions from, including Gibson and Minorgan, who were at third and short respectively last season.

The Strathconas will also have their last year's men. Among the pitchers with the Commissioners will be Norm Dusty, last year with Park St., and Hickey, with a couple of other dark horses. McPhee and Andrus are the possible catchers in line, while for the infield, Heaslip, Weatherstone, Kendry, Ray and F. Craig are available. In the outfield the Straths will be able to choose a fast trio from Shaw, Sheridan, Curtis, V. Craig, Denisoh, Wettlauffer, and the other good men in the running.

STORM IS OVER

Blizzard in the West Will Not do Much Damage.

Special to The Examiner.

Winnipeg, April 18.—The weather today is clear, but frosty, after a three-days' blizzard. The storm did not extend west of Manitoba, while in Saskatchewan and Alberta, the temperature did not even reach freezing point. The general belief is that cold weather will injure the crops. Mr. J. J. Golden, deputy-minister of Agriculture for Manitoba, said there is nothing so beneficial to crops as a good snow storm. The storm will do more good than damage, except for an odd field unduly advanced and above ground the danger will be nil.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—I read with interest the letter in your paper recently under the caption "Farcical Legislation," signed by "Citizen," and I am sure it must have been edifying to some of our aldermen. Now, the by-law is passed, as I understand it, and why not enforce it, as Ald. Turner says. Surely the majority of our citizens, who are not dog owners, deserve some consideration at the hands of the representatives, whom they have elected to act for their interests, without fear or favour, or personal considerations, in all matters that might be brought before them.

It is not so much the dogs that are to be found fault with, as it is the unreasonable owners, who let them run at large, making nuisances of themselves in various ways well known to everybody, even being more or less of a nuisance to their owners in tracking up floors and verandahs, barking at nights, and littering up yards with bones, etc.

The by-law was carried by the council and they will, I hope, have the courage of their convictions. In conclusion, I would say I have heard several people say that it was their intention to lay information against any dog-owner who allowed his dog to run at large, after May 1st, so we expect developments, and hope to find out whether a by-law passed by the council is of any value. I personally think the question should be properly settled before the dog-owners are asked to pay their taxes on May 1st.

Yours, etc.,

ANOTHER CITIZEN.

Nervous Headache

AND MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM DISAPPEARED WHEN THE NERVES WERE RESTORED BY

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Feeble, wasted, starved nerves often make their condition known by nervous headaches. This was one of the first and most marked symptoms.

If you are at all subject to rheumatism you have noticed how much worse it gets when the system gets run down.

Both nervous headache and muscular rheumatism disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used to rebuild and revitalize the wasted and weakened body.

Mr. James Riley, moulder for the Waterous Engine Co., 46 Jarvis St., Brantford, Ont., writes: "I suffered for years with muscular rheumatism and as I also had frequent and severe attacks of nervous headache I concluded that the trouble came from the nerves and began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As I continued this treatment the rheumatism was gradually driven out of the system, my nerves got stronger and steadier and the headaches disappeared. I consider Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a splendid nerve regulator and health builder."

You cannot possibly make a mistake in using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when the nervous system gets run down, for, by forming new, rich, blood this great food cure builds up the nerve cells as nothing else can.

When you have made up your mind to test this treatment, go at it in earnest and keep at it regularly until you feel again the joy of health and vigour.

50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

DR. MICHELL'S LECTURE WILL BE OF VIVID INTEREST

Surgeon of Shackletons's South Pole Expedition Will Tell the Thrilling Story of the Dash to the Frozen South.

Dr. W. A. R. Michell, who lectures before the Royal Astronomical Society in the Collegiate Auditorium on Tuesday evening, enjoys the distinction of being the surgeon to the famous Shackleton expedition to the South Pole.

Doubtless, all know that Lieutenant Shackleton, who is now Sir Ernest Shackleton, commanded the English group of scientists and explorers, who, in their attempt to reach the South Pole, exceeded by far, all previous records, and came within hailing distance of the coveted spot. But they did not quite succeed. Just fifty pounds of solid food was the real needed feature to crown their success.

Though Sir Ernest did not quite reach the spot, the more honour is due him and, in fact, has been awarded him for his "English" honesty in not trying to claim a single foot more to his journey than he actually accomplished. This is quite in contrast to the jingo methods of the men across the border from us, who purposely leave behind them the associate scientific men of the expedition, and pretend to accomplish great things with ignorant Esquimaux as the only companions.

The Shackleton expedition is by far the greatest achievement of modern exploration. The story is one of immense interest to all and particularly so because it was under British auspices, and included in the party the distinguished young Canadian surgeon, Dr. Michell.

Photographs of scenes witnessed along the route to this great hitherto unexplored region were taken in great numbers, and from these a selection of fifty or more of the most interesting were converted into lantern slides. These slides will be used on Tuesday evening, and the pictures in conjunction with the personal reminiscences of Dr. Michell will undoubtedly make a most interesting as well as instructive evening.

While such a lecture means considerable expense to the Royal Astronomical Society, the public are cordially invited, and no fee will be charged. Considering that Dr. Michell is personally known to a number of our citizens, and the honour he has conferred upon our city in consenting to lecture here, the Society expects a record crowd.

Waggon Broke Down And The Train Was Delayed

The C.P.R. train which leaves Peterborough about 7.55 a.m. for Toronto, was delayed for some minutes this morning as a result of an accident on the railway crossing at Aylmer St.

While one of the Peterborough Lumber Co's waggons, loaded with hemlock slabs was crossing the C.P.R. track on Aylmer St. going south, the front axle broke, thus depositing the contents of the waggon on the track. At the same time the 7.55 train was pulling out, but Mr. J. Gorman, who regulates the traffic on Aylmer St. section of the railway signalled the train and stopped what might have been a very serious accident. The wood was soon piled to one side and the train continued on its route. The driver with great presence of mind, jumped to the opposite side to which the load swayed and saved himself from injury.

Buying Of Chimes Might Be Made Public Cause

To the Editor of The Examiner:

I venture to address a word to my fellow citizens on the subject of the Chimes, for which a public canvass is now being made.

After interviewing many of our citizens I cannot but conclude that there is a consensus of opinion that Peterborough needs a set of chimes, and it seems to be generally conceded that the central and commanding Tower of St. John's is the best position available for them.

A former resident of Cobourg remarked that while there might be more activity and stir in Peterborough on week days, there was certainly greater evidence of life and brightness and cheer in Cobourg on a Sunday. The absence of bells here was an unfortunate feature, tending to lack of sentiment and feeling.

As there is no movement to place chimes elsewhere, and as a good set is beyond the power of any one congregation, it would seem advisable to make it a public cause, as it seems indeed to be generally regarded. The music of the bells will not be confined within the tower of St. John's congregation. This church undertakes to operate the chimes for all time to come as a public trust, and the congregation has already subscribed $788, other citizens swelling this to $1038, not to be paid until at least $1550 has been fully subscribed and not until October 1st if subscribers wish, though amounts can be paid any time after the project has been made possible. "At present it hangs in suspense, the last $500 being naturally the hardest to raise.

We shall be doubly thankful accordingly for subscriptions during this week, within which, by a sharp, decisive campaign, we intend to decide the issue.

Everyone says "Peterborough wants the best," but this depends entirely on the amount of money raised. We shall not stop at $1550 if more be offered. As a public cause, the subscription list will be published in full when complete, and will always be available for inspection in the church porch where amounts of $10 and upwards will be chronicled in separate lists of churchmen and citizens. Should any subscriber regret afterwards giving his subscription for any reason, it may be withdrawn this week on application to Mr. Alex. Elliot or myself. We want this to be a matter of pleasure and satisfaction to all and of regret to none who unite in this public undertaking. With warm gratitude to all our supporters.

Yours faithfully,
J. C. DAVIDSON.

TAKE A COLD SERIOUSLY

The possibilities of every cold are dreadful to contemplate. Bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption, usually begin with a simple cold. Why not fight the cold from the start and ensure success by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It allays inflammation, keeps the cough free and loose and protects the bronchial tubes from danger.

AVOIDS TESTIFYING.

President Clarke of Great Waterways Dodging Stand.

Edmonton, Alta., April 19.—It is now almost certain, it is stated on good authority, that President Wm. Clarke of the Great Waterways Co. stayed away from the Edmonton investigation in order to escape the writ issued by Hawes of Toronto, who claims $250,000 from him, and in order to avoid giving evidence in public which might give Hawes' lawyers here opportunities for a stronger case against him.

This is all alleged by friends of Clarke's, who state that he would be willing to give evidence in Winnipeg behind closed doors, where Hawes' lawyers could not get at him for his evidence.

W. L. Walsh yesterday produced letters between J. K. Cornwall and Messs. Minty and Biggar, written at various times, which showed that he gave up hope of securing a subsidy or guarantee. Mr. Biggar had written Mr. Minty that the Provincial Government did not want to guarantee a northern line because they were afraid they would lose their southern support.

Mr. Cornwall told R. S. Bennett that he never owned any land or mineral claim on the route of this railway.

The afternoon session was occupied with the examination of J. A. J. Waddell, engineer of the Great Waterways Railway, but it did not reveal much. Cross-examined by Bennett, he admitted he was to get a salary of $25,000, but stated his income had been between $25,000 and $30,000 for years.

"Yes, that was for building bridges, not railroads," commented Bennett.

Waddell had previously confessed he had but little experience on railroad construction, although he is one of the foremost bridge experts in America. He said Clarke had three Albertan railway projects, but only the Fort McMurray route proved feasible.

Harmon Gets Three Years.

Port Arthur, April 19.—Hugh Harmon, second engineer of the steamer Andrew Carnegie, was yesterday evening convicted of manslaughter in causing the death of Albert Walner, wheelsman on board a steamer, in Port Arthur harbor, the night of Aug. 16 last. He was sentenced by Justice Latchford to three years in the penitentiary.

The charge against Harmon was murder, but the evidence showed conclusively that it was not a premeditated affair, but the outcome of a quarrel after the men had spent the evening uptown and returned, both under the influence of liquor, and decided to fight out an old score.

Harmon's own story of the affair was dramatic. He said he was sure Walner intended to kill him, and decided to shoot first. He called to others of the crew nearby, Pray for us, boys, one of us must die, and I would rather be a live coward than a dead hero," whereupon he whipped out a revolver, beating Walner to it, and fired, killing him instantly. Harmon was defended by T. C. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto.

Young Man Pays Death Penalty.

Auburn, N.Y., April 19.—Earl B. Hill, convicted of the brutal murder of Eldridge Davis, a prosperous farmer, was put to death in the electric chair yesterday morning. The execution showed Hill as a cowering, trembling boy, whose twenty-first birthday was celebrated in the prison four days ago.

Aeroplane Falls Into Sea.

Nice, France, April 19.—R. Rougier, the aeronaut, while making a flight yesterday, fell with his aeroplane into the sea. He was injured, but was rescued. The machine was lost.

Publicity for Campaign Fund.

Washington, D.C., April 19.—The House yesterday passed the McCall bill, authorizing the publicity of campaign contributions both before and after political campaigns.

O'BRIEN IS VERY ANGRY

White With Rage, Leader of Irish Insurgents Rises In the British Commons and Answers Chancelor's Charge of a Breach of Faith—No Discussion Will Be Given on the Historical Budget.

London, April 19.—Wm. O'Brien, leader of the Independent Irish party, had it out with Chancellor Lloyd-George yesterday over O'Brien's recent statement at Cork that the Chancellor had offered him certain concessions in the way of modifications in the budget, in return for the support of the Nationalist party which Redmond had neglected to demand.

In the House last night, when Lloyd-George replied to the interview, denying that he made such offers, and accusing O'Brien of breach of faith, O'Brien, white with rage, took the floor, gave a detailed story of the interview, and added:

"Lloyd-George has taken advantage of the fact that there were no witnesses to issue a denial. I do not know what the Chancellor's code of honor may be, but I am certain it is not mine."

Lloyd-George in reply did not deny that he had the interview with O'Brien, but declared O'Brien's account of its purport was grossly inaccurate.

"O'Brien talks about honor," he said, "but admits publishing a confidential talk without permission."

Redmond denied that any bargain existed between the Irish and the Liberals, declaring the Irish supported the budget of their own accord.

In the Commons, it is generally admitted that Lloyd-George's reply adequately disposed of them, so that the eagerly awaited incident closed. O'Brien, however, made a clever attack on the Redmondites, wherewith he is probably satisfied, charging them with losing great concessions to Ireland.

Premier Asquith was enabled to get a majority of 93 of his motion guillotining discussion on the practically unaltered budget. As its passage is now assured, the road is now clear for the great fight on the Lords' veto.

Redmondites' Program.

London, April 19.—The Redmondites of the House of Commons yesterday decided to support the budget in all its stages, they also resolved to ask "our fellow countrymen in the United States to exert their influence with that Government with a view to the retention of Queenstown as a port of call for the fast mail steamers of the Cunard Steamship Co. on its eastbound passages."

Cattle Poisoner at Work.

Brantford, April 19.—During the absence of David Gee, a prosperous farmer, near Scotland Village, some one took a quantity of Paris green and mixed it in the food for some cows and horses. On his return, Gee found three cows dead in the field and three horses suffering in the stable. Gee lost three cows and a horse last fall in the same manner.

No motive is known for the deed.

Whirled Around Shafting.

St. Catharines, April 19.—After being caught in a belt and whirled about a shaft at the St. Catharines Woollen Mills, James Stiven of Port Dalhousie, is at the hospital. Stiven made the trip about the shaft once, fell to the floor and escaped with one broken rib and a badly-bruised foot. An iron casting struck by his foot was snapped like a twig.

Ecuador Calls Out Reserves.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, April 19.—The Government has called into service the first reserves. About 1,000 reservists paraded the street Sunday night, shouting for Ecuador and demanding war with Peru.

The return of Ecuadorean families from Peru has been made the occasion for great patriotic demonstrations.

Canoe Upsets; Two Drown.

Sherbrooke, Que., April 19.—An overturned canoe on Lake Massawippi tells the story of a drowning accident which befell Arthur Tomkins and Hubert Moyle, two young men of Coaticooke. Early in the morning cries were heard by neighbors, who, however, paid little attention.

Photographed 2,000,000 Miles of Comet.

Chicago, April 19.—What is believed to be the best photograph yet obtained of Halley's comet was secured at Yerkes' Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., early Sunday.

About 2,000,000 miles of the comet's tail was visible.

FARM DAY IN HOUSE

Minister of Agriculture's Bachelorhood Is Subject for Many Jests at Hands of Opposition—Census Announcement Is Made — Stonecutters Want Tariff Reform—Mr. Crothers Taken to Task.

Ottawa, April 19.—The agricultural members of the Commons had a field day in the discussion of estimates for the Agricultural Department, which took up nearly the whole of yesterday's sitting of the House. Topics ranged over the whole gamut of the Department's work, experimental farms, hog culture, hen-raising, cows and sheep, exhibitions, census, etc. One of the most interesting announcements of the day was that the coming decennial census would take about three years to complete, and the census clerks would be appointed by open competitive examination, under the auspices of the Civil Service Commission.

It begnn in this way. W. D. Staples, a Manitoba Conservative, who is a farmer and has views of his own regarding Mr. Fisher's administration of the Agriculture Department, accused the Minister of being "too slow in action" and "content to ride along behind the provinces." He declared also that Mr. Fisher was "not possessed of the originality that a Minister of Agriculture should be possessed of," and suggested that he was "always slow in moving, unless prodded up by Opposition members."

"Haven't the time, too busy," returned Mr. Fisher in a burst of confidence.

There was an illuminating discussion, initiated by J. A. Sexsmith (East Peterboro), who said he had visited the hog pen at the central experimental farm and found it in a deplorable condition of filth.

"Oh," said Mr. Fisher, "that was an experiment. We were trying dry black muck to see if it could be used for bedding, but the results have not been satisfactory."

On an item of $57,000 for cold storage, Mr. White of Victoria said that the ranchers of Alberta would have to go out of business if something was not done to encourage the chilled meat business. If the Government would agree to guarantee the bonds of the company, which proposed to go into the business on a large scale, chilled meat could be profitably placed in European markets.

Hon. Mr. Fisher said that while he sympathized with the objects of those behind the industry, the proposals which had been submitted to him were on so large a scale that he could not consider it.

There was some discussion on the vote to cover the cost of taking the next decennial census. Sir Fisher said that the actual work of enumerating the people of Canada would probably take about a month. No estimate had been made as to the probable total cost, Mr. Fisher said.

In committee on Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux's bill to amend the postoffice act regarding salaries of inspectors, etc., David Henderson moved as another amendment that, in cases where there is no delivery of letters by letter-carriers, the rate should be half a cent.

Mr. Lemieux declared this was irrelevant, and appealed to the deputy Speakor to rule the amendment out of order. Mr. McIntyre declined, and Mr. Lemieux then refused to accept it.

Mr. Borden asked why there was discrimination against people in the rural districts. Mr. Lemieux contended there was no discrimination.

Mr. Henderson disagreed. Letters were delivered in the cities for one cent. Letters in the country districts wre charged one cent, but were not delivered. The amendment was lost.

George Bradbury of Selkirk, read a letter from D. McGregor, secretary of the Stone Cutters' Association of Tindall, Man., endorsing a resolution passed by that association, as well as one passed by the British Columbia Association, in which request was made that the duty on stone be made equivalent to the duties paid on the necessaries of life. If this is not done, then the duties on the necessaries of life should be reduced.

Mr. Bradbury said the stone cutters were not getting proper pay, owing to the large amount of foreign stone being imported, and complained that imported stone had been imported in connection with construction of public works, while right in Ottawa, close to the Parliament Buildings, imported stone was being used to construct the new central station.

He hoped that if there were any tariff negotiations with the United States leading to tariff changes, the Government would not forget the stonecutting, and likewise the market gardening interests of the Dominion. There was no Ministerial reply.

In the House yesterday morning T. W. Crothers (West Elgin) corrected a statement attributing to him an attack on the chief justice of Ontario during his remarks on Friday last. Mr. Crothers said that the report was presumably based upon an attack made on him by the Minister of Justice, "an attack unworthy of the position he holds in tarning the words I used."

He said his declaration was that even if the judiciary had been brought under the original influence of the system of partisan appointment.

Hon. Mr. Fisher announced that the appointment of census clerks will be contingent upon passing a special examination to be set by the civil service commission.

Tethered Bull Attacked Vet.

Woodstock, April 19.—Dr. Rudd, V.S., is suffering from severe injuries from an attack by an infuriated bull at the farm of W. Teeple, Currie's Crossing, yesterday morning. The bull, which was tethered, charged him, throwing him against a cement wall, and breaking several ribs and inflicting many bruises.

The Port of Missing Men.

By Meredith Nicholson,

"It is a mistake! It is unpardonable! I can only offer you reparation—anything you ask!" stammered Chauvenet.

"You are looking for John Armitage, are you?" demanded Claiborne hotly without heeding Chauvenet's words. "Mr. Armitage is not here. He was in Storm Springs tonight at my house. He is a brave gentleman, and I warn you that you will injure him at your peril. You may kill me here or strangle me, or stick a knife into me if you will be better satisfied that way, or you may kill him and hide his body in these hills; but, by God, there will be no escape for you! The highest powers of my government know that I am here. Baron von Marhof knows that I am here. I have an engagement breakfast with Baron von Marhof at his house at 8 o'clock in the morning, and if I am not there every agency of the government will be put to work to find you, Mr. Jules Chauvenet, and these other scoundrels who travel with you."

"You are violent, my dear sir," began Durand, whose wits were coming back to him much quicker than Chauvenet's.

"I am not as violent as I shall be if I get a troop of cavalry from Fort Myer down here and hunt you like rabbits through the hills. And I advise you to cable Winkelried at Vienna that the game is all off."

Chauvenet suddenly jumped toward the table, the revolver still swinging at arm's length.

"You know too much."

"I don't know any more than Armitage and Baron von Marhof and my father and the honorable secretary of state, to say nothing of the equally honorable secretary of war."

Claiborne stretched out his arms and rested them along the shelf of the mantel and smiled with a smile which the dirt on his face weirdly accented. His hat was gone, his short hair rumpled He dug the bricks of the hearth with the toe of his riding boot as an emphasis of his contentment with the situation.

A sword dropped upon the floor.

"You don't understand the gravity of our labors. The peace of a great empire is at stake in this business. We are engaged on a patriotic mission of great importance."

It was Durand who spoke. Outside Zmai held the horses in readiness.

"You are a fine pair of patriots, I swear," said Claiborne. "What the devil do you want with John Armitage?"

"He is a menace to a great throne—an impostor—a"—

Chauvenet's eyes swept with a swift glance the cloak, the sword, the scattered orders. Claiborne followed the man's gaze, but he looked quickly toward Durand and Chauvenet, not wishing them to see that the sight of these things puzzled him.

"Pretty trinkets! But such games as yours, these pretty baubles—are not for these free hills."

"Where is John Armitage?"

Chauvenet half raised his right arm as he spoke, and the steel of his revolver flashed.

Claiborne did not move. He smiled upon them, recrossed his legs and settled his back more comfortably against the mantel shelf.

"I really forget where he said he would be at this hour. He and his man may have gone to Washington, or they may have started for Vienna, or they may be in conference with Baron von Marhof at my father's, or they may be waiting for you at the gate. The Lord only knows!"

"Come! We waste time," said Durand in French. "It is a trap. We must not be caught here!"

"Yes, you'd better go," said Claiborne, yawning and settling himself in a new pose with his back still to the fireplace. "I don't believe Armitage will care if I use his bungalow occasionally during my sojourn in the hills, and if you will be so kind as to leave my horse well tied out there somewhere I believe I'll go to bed. I'm sorry, Mr. Chauvenet, that I can't just remember who introduced you to me and my family. I owe that person a debt of gratitude for bringing so pleasant a scoundrel to my notice."

He stepped to the table, his hands in his pockets, and bowed to them.

"Good night, and clear out," and he waved his arm in dismissal.

"Come!" said Durand peremptorily, and as Chauvenet hesitated Durand seized him by the arm and pulled him toward the door.

He restored the insignia to the silver box.

As they mounted and turned to go they saw Claiborne standing at the table lighting a cigarette from one of the candles. He walked to the veranda and listened until he was satisfied that they had gone, then went in and closed the door He picked up the cloak and sword and restored the insignia to the silver box. The sword he examined with professional interest, running his hand over the embossed scabbard, then drawing the bright blade and trying its balance and weight.

As he held it thus heavy steps sounded at the rear of the house, a door was flung open, and Armitage sprang into the room, with Oscar close at his heels.

Chapter XXIII

THE VERGE OF MORNING.

"I HOPE you like my things, Captain Claiborne!"

Armitage stood a little in advance, his hand on Oscar's arm to check the rush of the little man.

Claiborne sheathed the sword, placed it on the table and folded his arms.

"Yes; they are very interesting."

"And those ribbons and that cloak I assure you they are of excellent quality. Oscar, put a blanket on this gentleman's horse. Then make some coffee and wait."

As Oscar closed the door Armitage crossed to the table, flung down his gauntlets and hat and turned to Claiborne.

"I didn't expect this of you. I really didn't expect it. Now that you have found me, what do you want?"

"I don't know—I'll be hanged if I know!" And Claiborne grinned so that the grotesque lines of his soiled countenance roused Armitage's slumbering wrath.

"You'd better find out! This is my busy night, and if you can't explain yourself I'm going to tie you hand and foot and drop you down the well till I finish my work. Speak up! What are you doing on my grounds, in my house, at this hour of the night, prying into my affairs and rummaging in my trunks?"

"I didn't come here, Armitage. I was brought—with a potato sack over my head. There's the sack on the floor, and any of its dirt that isn't on my face must be permanently settled in my lungs."

"What are you doing up here in the mountains? Why are you not at your station? The potato sack story is pretty flimsy. Do better than that and hurry up!"

"Armitage"—as he spoke Claiborne walked to the table and rested his finger tips on it—"Armitage, you and I have made some mistakes during our short acquaintance. I will tell you frankly that I have blown hot and cold about you as I never did before with another man in my life. On the ship coming over and when I met you in Washington I thought well of you. Then your cigarette case shook my confidence in you there at the Army and Navy club that night, and now"—

"D— my cigarette case!" bellowed Armitage, clapping his hand to his pocket to make sure of it.

"That's what I say! But it was a disagreeable situation. You must admit that."

"It was indeed!"

"It requires some nerve for a man to tell a circumstantial story like that to a tableful of gentlemen about one of the gentlemen!"

"No doubt of it whatever, Mr. Claiborne."

"And I knew as much about M. Chauvenet as I did about you or as I do about you."

"What you know of him, Mr. Claiborne, is of no consequence. And what you don't know about me would fill a large volume. How did you get here, and what do you propose doing now that you are here? I am in a hurry and have no time to waste. If I can't get anything satisfactory out of you within two minutes I'm going to chuck you back into the sack."

"I came up here in the hills to look for you—you—you! Do you understand?" began Claiborne angrily. "And as I was riding along the road about two miles from here I ran into three men on horseback. When I stopped to parley with them and find out what they were doing they crept up on me and grabbed my horse and put that sack over my head. They had mistaken me for you, and they brought me here, into your house, and pulled the sack off and were decidedly disagreeable at finding they had made a mistake. One of them had gone in to ransack your effects, and when they pulled off the bag and disclosed the wrong hare he dropped his loot on the floor and then I told them to go to the devil, and I hope they've done it. When you came in I was picking up your traps, and I submit that the sword is handsome enough to challenge anybody's eye. And there's all there is of the story, and I don't care whether you believe it or not."

Their eyes were fixed upon each other in a gaze of anger and resentment. Suddenly Armitage's tense figure relaxed, the fierce light in his eyes gave way to a gleam of humor, and he laughed long and loud.

"Your face—your face, Claiborne. It's funny. It's too funny for any use. When your teeth show, it's something ghastly. For God's sake, go in there and wash your face!"

He made a light in his own room and plied Claiborne with towels, while he continued to break forth occasionally in fresh bursts of laughter. When they went into the hall both men were grave.

"Claiborne"—

"You don't know who I am or what I am, and I haven't got time to tell you now. It's a long story, and I have much to do, but I swear to you, Claiborne, that my hands are clean; that the game I am playing is no affair of my own, but a big thing that I have pledged myself to carry through. I want you to ride down there to the valley and keep Marhof quiet for a few hours. Tell him I know more of what's going on in Vienna than he does and that if he will only sit in a rocking chair and tell you fairy stories till morning we can all be happy. Is it a bargain—or—must I still hang your head down the well till I get through?"

"Marhof may go to the devil! He's a lot more mysterious than even you, Armitage. These fellows that brought me up here to kill me in the belief that I was you cannot be friends of Marhof's cause."

"They are not. I assure you they are not. They are blackguards of the blackest dye."

"I believe you, Armitage."

"Thank you. Now your horse is at the door. Run along like a good fellow."

Armitage dived into his room, caught up a cartridge belt and reappeared buckling it on.

"Oscar," he yelled, "bring in that coffee, with cups for two."

He kicked off his boots and drew on light shoes and leggings.

"Light marching orders for the rough places. Confound that buckle."

He rose and stamped his feet to settle the shoes.

"Your horse is at the door. That rascal Oscar will take off the blanket for you. There's a bottle of fair whisky in the cupboard, if you'd like a nip before starting. Bless me, I forgot the coffee! There on the table, Oscar, and never mind the chairs," he added as Oscar came in with a tin pot and the cups on a piece of plank.

"I'm taking the rifle, Oscar, and be sure those revolvers are loaded with the real goods."

There was a great color in Armitage's face as he strode about preparing to leave. His eyes danced with excitement, and between the sentences that he jerked out half to himself he whistled a few bars from a comic opera that was making a record run on Broadway. His steps rang out vigorously from the bare pine floor.

"Watch the windows, Oscar. You may forgive a general anything but a surprise. Isn't that so, Claiborne? And those fellows must be pretty mad by this time. Excuse the coffee service, Claiborne. We always pour the sugar from the paper bag—original package, you understand. And see if you can't find Captain Claiborne a hat, Oscar."

With a tin cup of steaming coffee in his hand he sat on the table dangling his legs, his hat on the back of his head, the cartridge belt strapped about his waist over a brown corduroy hunting coat. He was in a high mood and chaffed Oscar as to the probability of their breakfasting another morning. "If we die, Oscar, it shall be in a good cause."

He threw aside his cup with a clatter, jumped down and caught the sword from the table, examined it critically, then sheathed it with a click.

Claiborne had watched Armitage with a growing impatience. He resented the idea of being thus ignored. Then he put his hand roughly on Armitage's shoulder.

Armitage, intent with his own affairs, had not looked at Claiborne for several minutes, but he glanced at him now as though just recalling a duty.

"Lord, man, I didn't mean to throw you into the road! There's a clean bed in there that you're welcome to. Go in and get some sleep."

"I'm not going into the valley," roared Claiborne, "and I'm not going to bed. I'm going with you."

"But bless your soul, man, you can't go with me! You are as ignorant as a babe of my affairs, and I'm terribly busy and have no time to talk to you, Oscar, that coffee scalded me. Claiborne, if only I had time, you know, but under existing circumstances"—

"I repeat that I'm going with you. I don't know why I'm in this row, and I don't know what it's all about, but I believe what you say about it, and I went you to understand that I can't be put in a bag like a prize potato without taking a whack at the man who put me there."

"But if you should get hurt, Claiborne, it would spoil my plans. I never could face your family again," said Armitage earnestly. "Take your horse and go."

"I'm going back to the valley when you do."

"Humph! Drink your coffee! Oscar, bring out the rest of the artillery, and give Captain Claiborne his choice."

He picked up his sword again, flung the blade from the scabbard with a swish and cut the air with it, humming a few bars of a German drinking song. Then he broke out with:

"I do not think a braver gentleman,
More active-valiant or more valiant-young,
More daring or more bold, is now alive
To grace this latter age with noble deeds.
For my part, I may speak it to my shame,
I have a truant been to chivalry—

"Lord, Claiborne, you don't know what's ahead of us. It's the greatest thing that ever happened. I never expected anything like this, not on my cheerfulest days. Dearest Jules is out looking for a telegraph office to pull off the Austrian end of the rumpus. Well, little good it will do him. And we'll catch him and Durand and that Servian devil and lock them up here till Marhof decides what to do with him. We're off!"

"All ready, sir," said Oscar briskly.

"It's half past 2. They didn't get off their message at Lamar because the office is closed and the operator gone, and they will keep out of the valley and away from the big inn because they are rather worried by this time and not anxious to get too near Marhof. They've probably decided to go to the next station below Lamar to do their telegraphing. Meanwhile they haven't got me!"

"They had me and didn't want me," said Claiborne, mounting his own horse.

"They'll have a good many things they don't want in the next twenty-four hours. If I hadn't enjoyed this business so much myself we might have had some secret service men posted all along the coast to keep a lookout for them. But it's been a great old lark. And now to catch them!"

Outside the preserve they paused for an instant.

"They're not going to venture far from their base, which is that inn and postoffice, where they have been rummaging my mail. I haven't studied the hills for nothing, and I know short cuts about here that are not on maps. They haven't followed the railroad north, because the valley broadens too much and there are too many people. There's a trail up here that goes over the ridge and down through a wind gap to a settlement about five miles south of Lamar. If I'm guessing right, we can cut around and get ahead of them and drive them back here to my land."

"To the Port of Missing Men! It was made for the business," said Claiborne.

"Oscar, patrol the road here and keep an eye on the bungalow, and if you hear us forcing them down charge from this side. I'll fire twice when I get near the Port to warn you, and if you strike them first give the same signal. Do be careful, sergeant, how you shoot. We want prisoners, you understand, not corpses."

TRAIN IS HELD UP.

Two Men Rob Mail Car and Turn the Engine Loose.

Benicia, Cal., April 18.—The China Japan mail which left San Francisco over the Southern Pacific Railroad for the east at 9 o'clock Saturday night, was held up by two masked men at Sprig, two miles east of here, early yesterday and robbed of nine pouches of registered mail.

After getting the mail sacks, the robbers cut the engine loose from the train and sent it wild, throttle open, down the main track to the east. In the direct path of the engine was a section of passenger train No. 5, westbound, heavily loaded. A cool-headed telegraph operator at Suisun threw the engine into a ditch in the nick of time.

Four of the nine pouches stolen have been recovered, but the robbers rifled the others and now are hiding in the hills between Martinez and Oakland. Sheriffs' posses from two counties and detectives and postoffice inspectors on horses and in automobiles are engage in the manhunt. The robbers were well armed and a battle is expected.

The train robbery was the first in California for several years. It was executed in spectacular fashion.

Before the fast mail arrived at Benicia, two men who had left Oakland on another train, two hours earlier and had left their train on the Port Costa ferry, climbed, unobserved, on the rear end of the fast mail's locomotive. The train had gone less than three miles from Benicia, when the stowaways crawled over the oil tank of the tender, pointed revolvers at the heads of the engineer and firemen and ordered them to stop the engine and get off.

The engineer and fireman quickly complied. Then the robbers compelled them to get into the mail car, which was in charge of Herbert J. Black and his assistant, Thomas A. Clancy.

"Throw out the registered mail pouches," the robbers ordered. Black started to toss the newspapers sack, but the robbers detected the ruse at once and they threatened to kill him unless they gave them the registered mail. Black complied. The engine crew then was forced to carry the nine sacks to the engine.

The engine and mail car were uncoupled from the coaches filled with sleeping passengers and run down the track for two miles. Here the mail pouches were thrown out, the engine was uncoupled and its throttle pushed wide open. The engine dashed forward on its wild journey toward a passenger train coming westward to Tolenas, 16 miles east, passing the first section at a siding at Cygnus.

As the engine passed the station at Suisun, the operator noticed it was running wild. He immediately reported to the despatchers' office at Oakland and received instructions to call Tolenas and instruct them to derail the oncoming engine.

Second section of train No. 5, westbound, had just arrived at Tolenas, under orders to wait there for the China-Japan mail. The switch was thrown and the runaway engine, by this time pretty well relieved of steam, ran on a siding and smashed into a string of box cars.

Fire at St. Eustache.

Montreal, April 18.—The Protestant Church at St. Eustache and sixteen houses were destroyed by fire yesterday in that town.

The fire started in a woodyard and it soon got beyond the control of the local brigade. When firemen from Montreal reached the town by special train, they saved the town from further destruction, as there was an ample water supply.

The Anglican church was a stone building, and, although the burned houses were of wood, the loss reaches $40,000. The insurance is small. St. Eustache is an historic village, being a hot bed of insurrection in 1837, Dr. Chennier, the local leader, being shot in the church belfry by British troops.

Charged With Selling Gift Ticket.

London, April 18.—When Mrs. Mary Fry came before Magistrate Love Saturday for trial on the charge of fraud in selling a railway ticket which Inspector Sanders of the Children's Aid Society gave her to Toronto, she pleaded not guilty, instead of guilty, as expected.

Crown Attorney McKillop, after a conference with the magistrate, decided that he could not succeed on a fraud charge. Then it was decided that no action for theft could be taken. Under the Railway Act the woman is liable for selling ticket, but no charge was laid, so she was dismissed.

Canadian Horseman Shoots Landlord.

London, April 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Bert Hunter, said to be a Canadian horsedealer, shot his landlord, named Charles Schofield, and his wife, at Stoke Newington, late Saturday night. Schofield is dead and his wife badly wounded. Hunter suicided. It is stated he was the owner of land in Alberta, where his wife is staying. An unlucky speculation, with a legacy, turned his head. He declared that Schofield was the cause of his ruin and left a letter for the coroner to that effect.

Killed by Fall Down Stairs.

Victoria, B.C., April 18.—Hilton Keith, accountant, was fatally injured Saturday night by falling down the stairs of the Colonist Hotel. A few minutes before he had been complaining bitterly because his partner in real estate deals had absconded.

Balfour Not Alone.

London, April 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It is announced that Balfour's statement favoring free import of empire wheat was made after a careful consultation with Austin Chamberlain, Bonar Law and other tariff reform leaders.

Clean Within!

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Purify the Blood and Prolong Life

Vigorous health at 70 due to Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

If as much intelligent care were given to keeping the body clean and pure within as well as without we would see more healthy, vigorous old men and women. The daily bath does its part by keeping the pores of the skin open so that they throw off much of the body's impurities, but it is even more important that the bowels and kidneys should be kept regular and active.

If the bowels fail, as they often do late in life, to move regularly at least once a day, the waste matter from the food accumulates, decays, poisons the system and upsets the stomach.

If the kidneys are sluggish the impurities which they should filter from the blood remain and cause rheumatism.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills regulate the bowels, stimulate the kidneys and open up the pores of the skin. The result is a body clean within—pure, red blood—good digestion—and a hale and hearty old age.

Three generations have proved the value of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, and their sale is steadily increasing all over the world.

CATARRH CURED

To get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, has been a problem which was never solved until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me).

Hyomei is prepared from eucalyptus, the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

The inflamed condition will go, too, and the snuffing, hawking and offensive breath, and the discharge of mucus and crusts in the nose will cease.

Then why should any catarrh sufferer hesitate, when Wm. Madill has such faith in Hyomei that he offers to return your money if if after a fair trial Hyomei does not cure catarrh.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Hyomei also cures asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip.

MI-O-NA Cures Dyspepsia.

Your money back if it don't. Gives immediate relief from heartburn, sour stomach, stomach distress and sick headache. 50 cents a large box at

Try to Scare Emigrants.

North Portal, Sask., April 18.—Settlers arriving at North Portal from the south, give some weird accounts of stories given as facts by trainmen, commercial travelers and merchants along the Soo line in North Dakota. These people see the best class of farmers slipping from their grasp, so to speak, and do their best to deter the intending settler from moving any farther towards Canada, by circulating stories that horses are being shot by the carload by veterinary inspectors at the border; that hay cannot be procured by an ordinary man's purse, and that water is as high as one dollar a barrel. As a matter of fact less than one per cent. of horses are rejected by the inspectors, and the other reports are straight fiction.

Willing to Sign Anything.

Brockville, April 18.—The fact that it is easy to get signatures to a petition is shown by two documents just filed with the license commissioners of Leeds district. The application of R. H. Service for a license at Rockport is supported by a majority of voters in the polling subdivision. There is also a petition against granting the license signed by an equal number of the majority of eligible signers.

A Strange Fatality.

Weston, April 18.—Blowing up a bladder of a football ended fatally to Sarah Dunn, aged 18, of Elia, near Weston, on Friday afternoon. She was stricken with convulsions while blowing. Several of the men heard groans in the house and found the girl. She died a few minutes after Dr. E. F. Irwin of Weston, arrived. Death is thought to have been caused by the breakage of a blood vessel, due to strain.

The girl was the daughter of Mrs. Francis Dunn of Lakeview avenue, Fairbank. She was in the employ of Mr. Baker of Elia. The body was brought in to Harry Ellis, the undertaker, to be prepared for burial. The funeral will be held from the residence of her sister, Mrs. O'Brien, Fairbank.

Object Lesson for Anti-Suffragists.

Paris, April 18.—Mme. Marguerita Durand, a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies, from one of the Paris districts, has conceived the novel electioneering scheme.

Saturday night she announced widely that she would appear in joint debate with Charles Marest, "one of the candidate against her." Men were in the great majority at the crowded meeting when Mme. Durand walked to the platform, accompanied by a man, whom she introduced as Marest. It was immediately apparent that the man was a hopeless idiot. Mme. Durand had had his name registered as a candidate.

The brainy woman began her speech, while the man, poor imbecile, grinned and chattered.

"Marest is an interesting medical case," said Mme. Durand, calmly. "There's no harm in bringing him here, for he does not understand what is going on and he rather enjoys being conspicuous.

"I wish only to give you an object lesson. The law allows this idiot to vote and to be a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies. By this side stands a woman in the full force of her intelligence and yet she is denied the privileges he has by law."

Threw Wife Over the Falls.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 18.—Walking into police headquarters at Antioch, Illinois, Foster Johnson, an Indian, confessed to having thrown his wife over Niagara Falls Oct. 4, 1904. The confession has caused a sensation here. On the evening named, after a big parade, held by the Knights Templar, it was reported that the body of an unknown woman had gone over the falls, and on Oct. 13 Sampson Williams reported that his sister, Mrs. Emma Johnson, had been missing since Oct. 4, saying that he feared his sister might have "been foully dealt with." Mrs. Johnson was 28 years old, and was engaged in selling Indian novelties to tourists. On Oct. 23 the body was recovered. At an inquest a verdict of suicide was returned. It was brought out then that Mrs. Johnson had several times upbraided her husband for alleged attentions to other women.

Johnson told the Antioch police that he had been in constant fear of detection.

Penal Reform Proposals.

London, April 18.—Hugh Courtenay Luttrell, M.P., has introduced a bill in Parliament proposing sweeping changes in England's mediaeval criminal sentences. The bill proposes the abolition of the death sentence upon minors, penal servitude instead of execution for infanticide, the abolition of the black cap when a judge is imposing a sentence of death, religious service for convicts on the eve of execution, the prohibition of solitary confinement in all prisons, and the abolition of corporal punishment except between the ages of 10 and 16. The bill recommends the appointment of women on the board of prison commissioners.

Another Ripper Controversy.

London, April 18.—George Kebbell, a lawyer, denies Sir Robert Anderson's assertion that Jack the Ripper was a Jew. He says the Ripper was an Irishman, educated to be a physician, who had been discarded by his relatives. He was a fireman on a cattle boat and was suspected of the Ripper crimes. The police watched him and arrested him in the act of mutilating a victim. Mr. Kebbell says he defended the prisoner at his preliminary hearing. The prisoner was not represented by counsel at his trial at the Old Bailey, where he was sentenced. He died in prison.

To Wash the Unwashed.

London, April 18.—Nothing daunts London's County Council. It now intends to enforce its extraordinary powers, secured three years ago, and hunt out the great unwashed. Its doctors will examine the persons and clothing of the inmates of the common lodging houses. When either is found in a foul condition, the owner will be compelled to submit himself and his clothing to a washing within twenty-four hours.

Killed by Street Car.

Welland, April 18.—Mrs. (Dr.) Hunter Robb was killed Saturday night at Cleveland, Ohio, in a street car accident. She was a prominent medical and hospital woman, at one time superintendent of the Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore.

She was formerly Miss Addie Hampton of Welland. The funeral will be held here on Tuesday.

Sixty-Two 'Quakes In Three Days.

San Jose, Costa Rica, April 18.—Scientists believe that the danger from seismic disturbances is passed for the present. Sixty-two shocks were felt during three days.

No lives were lost.

A Young Harvard Champion.

Cambridge, April 18.—A. A. Berle, jr., has been chosen, with H. B. McGill and S. M. Seymour, to represent Harvard freshmen in their annual debate with Yale at New Haven on April 20. Berle is one of the youngest freshmen that has entered Harvard. He is fourteen years old.

Exploding Engine Kills Eleven.

Monterey, Mexico, April 18.—An antiquated locomotive exploded instantly, killing eleven employes. Two others were horribly injured.

Order Restored at Changsha.

Pekin, April 18.—Telegraphic communication with Changsha has been restored. The authorities have put down the riots, and practically normal conditions again prevail.

"The Sweetheart of the Corn"

Vegetarianism Fashionable.

London, April 18.—Society's latest fad is vegetarianism. A new vegetarian restaurant to be opened shortly will be under the patronage of many smart women. The Duchess of Westminster, the Duchess of Portland and Dean Wilberforce have promised to attend the inauguration, while others are planning lunches and dinners at the new restaurant, which is to be run in an extravagantly luxurious manner. The daintiest meatless dishes will tempt jaded appetites. The finest wines will be served by beautiful girls tastefully dressed.

Baby Shoots Father.

Binghampton, N.Y., April 18.—Dominic Frits of Corbettsville, nine miles east of this city, aged 29 years, died early yesterday morning from the effects of a bullet wound in his head. He was shot on Friday by his eighteen months' old child, which had been given an old revolver, supposed to be unloaded, to play with.

Gananoque Sailor Killed.

Rochester, N.Y., April 18.—David Daryaw, a seaman of Gananoque, Ont., was instantly killed at the docks of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad, at Charlotte. Several men were working near the free end of a heavy coal conveyor when a strap broke and let the heavy chute fall on Daryaw's head.

King Edward's Return.

London, April 18.—King Edward's plans are not likely to be seriously disturbed by politics. His return is expected early in May, and he has his usual round of engagements at racing meetings and country houses, with two important reviews of the troops at Aldershot and the fleet at Spithead.

Artillerymen Injured.

In connection with the recent military manoeuvres at Point Nepean (Victoria, Australia), on the occasion of Lord Kitchener's visit to Australia an accident that might have been attended with more serious results occurred through one of the large disappearing guns being fired before it had cleared the parapet of the gunpit. The shell struck and wrecked the masonry and ricochetted almost vertically into the air. The artillerymen were hurled in all directions, stunned, and bleeding, thirteen being more or less injured but none fatally.

Postcard Came Late!

A citizen of a Melbourne suburb received a postcard recently, which had been posted to him just 21 years ago. The card was from a person bearing the not inappropriate name, "A Gamble," of a Victorian country town. What happened during the 21 years between the posting and delivery is a mystery which the authorities will, no doubt, now seek to penetrate.

Ordered to Hospital

FOR OPERATION FOR ACUTE INDIGESTION—DID NOT GO AND WAS CURED BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The doctors seem to have made the common mistake of dosing the stomach when the real source of trouble was with the liver and kidneys. Anyway Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills made a complete cure and here is the record:

Mrs. F. O. Bacon, Baldwin's Mills, Que., writes: "I was very sick and the doctors said I must go to the hospital for a surgical operation. I had acute indigestion and the liver and kidneys did not act. I did not want to undergo an operation so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills and have used them ever since.

"I am feeling well now and doing my own work for a family of seven. I think there is no equal for acute indigestion and liver and kidney troubles such as I had and they and nothing else made me well again. There is no medicine I like half so well, for this did wonders for me."

The real serious cases of indigestion almost always have their location in the bowels and can only be reached by making the liver and kidneys active. No medicine regulates the liver, kidneys and bowels so nicely and so promptly as do Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers; or Edmanson Bates & Co., Toronto. Do not be satisfied with a substitute or you will be disappointed.

DUKE OF TECK IN NEEDLE GUILD

Joins as Member of Little Known London City Livery Company.

FROM CROMWELL'S DAY

Has the Only Charter Ever Granted Under Seal of the Lord Protector.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

ONE of the smallest and least known, yet one of the most interesting, of the London city livery companies, the Needlemakers, has just come into public notice by reason of the statement that the Duke of Teck, following the example of his father, will shortly become a member of the little known guild.

Now, the Needlemakers may have little enough to do with the making of needles at the present day, but not so very long ago, when needles cost more than a penny a packet, the company had plenty to do in looking after the interests of both those who made needles and those who bought and used them. As a company the Needlemakers were first heard of in the time of Henry VIII. Some time before the reign of that monarch it is recorded that a Spanish negro "made needles by a secret art" and sold them in Cheapside.

Whether the mysteries of his "secret

DUKE OF TECK.
FROM THE SKETCH.

art" were penetrated by the craftsmen of the period history tells not, but from that time the making of needles was practised in London. Then, of course, with the demand the quality of the needles began to suffer, and a complaint was made by some one that there were certain aliens in London who not only made needles but made them with the aid of a machine. Hence the formation of the Needlemakers' Company, whose business it was to incorporate all the craftsmen then engaged in the industry to guard their interests and to see that their needles were well and truly made.

CROMWELL'S ONLY CHARTER.

It was not until November 11, 1656, that the guild got its first charter of incorporation, and that charter has an added interest in that it was the only one ever known to have been granted under the hand and seal of the Lord Protector, Oliver Cromwell. Five large sheets of parchment were needed to set out the charter, and being the only one Cromwell ever granted it is only fitting that it should have his portrait on the back.

That charter did well enough for a time, but a little later the Needlemakers got another charter, this time from Charles II. History says little as to the reason or need for this second charter, and one can only surmise that the honest Needlemakers thought it well to show their loyalty in preferring to do business under the seal of the Merry Monarch rather than exhibit anything to connect them with the Protector.

On their arms the Needlemakers have quite eloquent indications of their craft. There are three needles on a silver band set on a blue shield. There is a Moor's head in profile, with wreaths about his temples. Evidently the company was not ungrateful to the aforementioned Spanish negro who introduced the art of needlemaking into England, and he is thus commemorated on their arms. For the supporters, as they are termed in heraldry, there are the figures of a man and a woman, representing Adam and Eve. They are wreathed around the waist with leaves, and in her right hand Eve holds a needle. And the most appropriate motto of the company is "They sewed fig leaves together and made themselves aprons."

From all this it may be gathered that in those days the Needlemakers were a fine, prosperous body. Scarcely a needle was made in the city of London but the company gave it the stamp of its approval, and with the growth of the industry a stringent code of bylaws was drawn up for the protection or punishment of members of the guild. These bylaws were sanctioned by the Lord High Chancellor (the Earl of Clarendon) and the Lord Chief Justice of Pleas and Common Pleas.

Never, from that day to this, have those bylaws being repealed; and, strangely as many of them may read now, it would make matters stranger still if some of them were put into force. Whatever temptation a needlemaker at that time might have had to profit by selling inferior needles there was little fear of his being able to defraud his customers for long. Behind him was the company, with all its powers; and with a law like this stringently enforced it must surely have paid the craftsmen to be honest.

SOCIETY INTERESTED IN THEATRE CLUB

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THERE is no disguising the fact that while King Edward was confined to his rooms at Biarritz, "suffering from a cold," as the bulletins had it, there was a good deal of public anxiety as, day after day, for a week, the news reached England that His Majesty's next outing had been postponed. But those who have just returned from Biarritz are able to tell how greatly the King had benefited by his visit to that town, and that the chill never at any time gave rise to the slightest alarm to his medical adviser or his suite, and when he was able to get out again he very speedily threw off all trace of his indisposition.

King Edward has this year indulged in walking exercise to a much greater extent than in former years, and has not depended so much on his automobiles. It would now seem to be practically certain that His Majesty will revert to his original intention and join Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria for a short cruise in the Mediterranean in the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. This change in His Majesty's plans has been brought about in great measure by the alteration that has come over the political situation, for the present, all likelihood of a dissolution of Parliament, for the next month at any rate, having passed away. The King, therefore, feels that he can extend his spring holiday a little, and he is not expected home now for at least another fortnight, or perhaps three weeks.

It is the intention of the Prince of Wales to show his personal regard for the personality of the two representatives of American life who are to be in England during May. The first to arrive will be Mr. Robert E. Peary, and it is said that Queen Alexandra views with regret the circumstance that her absence from England at the time will prevent her displaying a personal interest in the welcome that will be accorded to the polar explorer. The Prince of Wales, accordingly, will act as the representative of the royal house, and is expected to be present at the Peary reception at the Albert Hall; and, though he will have an engagement preventing him from attending Mr. Rosevelt's Romanes lecture a fortnight later, he will share the welcome that will be given by the King during that week to the one time President at Buckingham Palace.

It was to be noted, by the way, that the Prince of Wales, while in the House of Commons the other afternoon, engaged in frequent conversation with Mr. Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador, who occupied the corner seat in the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery next to the Prince's seat "over the clock."

The latest society venture in Knightsbridge is the Theatre Club. It is situated just opposite the barracks of the Life Guards, which is a convenient site for those associated with it, and has made an instant success. Everybody who is "anybody" in society has joined it, and most of the Guards' officers are members.

The club possesses a fine private theatre, the most beautiful and most comfortable house of the kind, it is said, in England, and seats seven hundred members. There is also commodious provision for fencing, pistol shooting and other sports. On the Ladies' Committee are Lady MacGregor, the widow of Sir Charles MacGregor, who has apartments at Hampton Court Palace; Lady Theodora Davidson, Lady Maud Warrender, Lady Teynham, Emma Lady Tenterden, Alice Lady Armstrong and Mrs. St. John Mildmay.

WANTS WAR ON "WHITE PLAGUE"

British Surgeon Says Municipal Authorities Could Eradicate Tuberculosis Within a Generation.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THAT tuberculosis could be stamped out within a generation if municipal authorities would do their duty is the assertion of Arthur Latham, a surgeon who has made a special study of the "white plague." At the invitation of the Manchester Sanitary Society Dr. Latham delivered before that body an interesting and instructive lecture on the subject He said in part:—

"Many of those who are brought into daily contact with the disease hold the belief firmly that consumption can be eradicated within a generation. Our knowledge of the subject is such that i only remains for us to convince those in positions of authority that a work of inestimable value to the world lies within their grasp. We know the cause of consumption; we can prevent the disease; we can detect its presence; we can cure it but the seed which gives rise to the crop consists of tubercle bacilli.

"No matter how strong a man may be, no matter what degree of health he may enjoy, he will contract consumption if he receives a sufficient dose of tubercle bacilli. If his physique is indifferent or if he suffers from ill health he falls an easier prey. If his resistance has been lowered, as it may be, by semi-starvation, by disease, by excessive indulgence in alcohol, the fighting forces of the body are not so efficient, and a comparatively small dose of tubercle bacilli will set up the disease.

WEAK ORGANISMS ITS PREY.

"If bacilli meet with inefficient defensive forces—that is, if the man has had his health undermined—the seed falls on fertile and prepared ground and multiplies a thousandfold, but if the man is healthy the seed falls on stony ground.

"You can at once make a deduction. If the campaign against consumption is to be crowned with success part of the task must be concerned with the question of raising the standard of health in the community, of raising the capacity of nature's method of defence. This really means that those things which undermine a man's health must be wiped away. The towns must be made more like the country. Slum property and overcrowding must be dealt with; a sufficiency of air to the inhabitants by open spaces and better architecture must be provided."

The other part of the campaign, that dealing with the seed, Dr. Latham approached by advocating an effort for the establishment of a "corner" in the seed supply of consumption.

"We have the necessary knowledge," he said, "and now merely require intelligent organization and co-operation. The two main sources of the seed supply of consumption are (1) the expectoration of consumptives and (2) the products of the cow—milk and butter. Twenty per cent of the milk supplies of towns in England and ten per cent of the butter contain living tubercule bacilli capable of producing the disease. One glass of milk out of every five sold across the counter may carry the seed of death. One pound of butter out of ten may produce same form of tuberculosis.

REMEDY IS SIMPLE.

"But the remedy is simple, inexpensive, and proved by experience to be sufficient. All milk before it is sold or used for making butter should be heated to 140 degrees Fahrenheit for twenty minutes. This process destroys all the germs of consumption and of other diseases in milk, does nothing to diminish the food value, and does not materially affect the taste."

Regarding the inadequacy of the present arrangements for treating the consumptive in the early stages of the disease, Dr. Latham said:—"It shows how much remains to be done, when it is realised that in England and Wales there is a consumptive population of from 250,000 to 300,000, while the number of beds available at sanatoriums is generously stated at 1,500."

Emphasising the necessity for State intervention and of government grants for the establishment of sanatoriums, as a first means of stamping out the scourge, municipalities meanwhile setting about some of the reforms he had already referred to, the lecturer said:—"If we made prevention the keynote of our scheme, and spent our money intelligently we should do more for the present generation of consumptives, and we should stamp out the disease in twenty to thirty years."

WOMEN WEAR SPIDERS NOW

Enamel and Silver Representations of Insect Examples of Newest Fad in Hat Pins.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

WHETHER they have money to burn or not, "smart" women will always have some fad, be it big or little. Just now they are in the throes of a mild hatpin craze, and the jewellers, exerting their inventive faculties to meet the demand for novelties, have produced some strange designs.

The "catch of the season" and the "spider and the fly" are two specimens of pins which have attained huge sales—presumably because they are bizarre. The first is simply a silver hook covered with the gorgeous fly with which fishermen lure the trout from their haunts. Every fly having a place in the angler's fly book is procurable, as the hooks are sent to the manufacturers of the flies for them to decorate. The "spider and the fly" is cleverly conceived out of enamel and silver. The web is octagonal, with a fat spider in bronze enamel lurking in the centre, and a fly—a really lifelike blow fly—with peacock body and gauze wings, enmeshed in the outer strands.

"Spinsters with a sense of humor are purchasing these two pins largely," remarked a West End jeweller to an inquirer, "to advertise their marriageable condition."

The "Chantecler" hatpin is another variety. In its cheaper form it is a large bird made of feathers, but in enamel it is a beautifully inlaid design of a human face framed below the beak. Butterfly hatpins have been displaced by dragon flies. The bodies consist of brilliants, and the outspread wings, measuring four and one-half inches from tip to tip, are enamelled so as to reproduce the prismatic coloring of the real insect as it hovers over a pool in the sunlight.

"There is also a rage now," said the jeweller, "for miniature articles of domestic use made in silver. Tiny pieces of Chippendans, &c., are bought by ladies who are tea services. Sedan chairs, kettles, saucepans, &c,, are bought by ladies who are starting a silver table. The workmanship of these little knicknacks is all English, as in this branch of the silversmith's art the Englishman is unrivalled—the finish is so much more delicate than that of our Continental rivals."

BROKEN WINDOW COST HIM $32

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

MR. LLOYD BINGHAM and his wife, Mrs. Amelia Bingham, have just had a unique experience in travelling from Cologne to Paris. Neither of them speaks German—or French either, for that matter—and they were consequently more or less at a disadvantage. They had a compartment to themselves on a night train leaving Cologne. After the train had started a heavy travelling bag which Mr. Bingham had put in the rack fell out as the car lurched and broke the window. They were both considerably exercised over this, not knowing how to explain to the guard that they had not done it intentionally. At the first stop, however, the broken window was discovered by an official on the platform. Uniformed men came tramping up the aisle and talked in guttural tones and gesticulated emphatically toward the window.

"I expected we were certainly going to be hanged," said Mr. Bingham, "but it occurred to me that if I paid for the window we might get on in safety to Paris. So I gave the soldier who had the most gorgeous uniform on eight marks, or two dollars in American money. He grunted, pocketed it, bowed and went away. I said to myself "Now we have got all fixed up nicely." Not a bit of it! At the next station the same thing was repeated, and I gave up two dollars more. The train made sixteen stops, and at each I loosened to the extent of two dollars. That widow cost me exactly thirty-two plunks. I suppose that brigand—I mean the first one—telegraphed ahead that there was a 'good thing' on that train and to touch him for eight marks."

FAST FOR HEALTH, NEW DOCTRINE

Mr. Upton Sinclair's Experiment and Results Which Followed Arouse Interest in Medical World.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE experiences described by Mr. Upton Sinclair, an American writer, in the current issue of the Contemporary Review, his search for health and how he ultimately obtained it after a period of fasting have aroused a good deal of interest among the medical profession here. Many medical experts admit the benefit that one may obtain from fasting, provided, of course, that it be discreetly practised.

Dr. Wallace, a well known woman physician of London and editor of the Herald of Health, is a strong believer in fasting for certain cases. "Fasting is most efficacious as a cure," she said in the course of an interview. "I have known it work remarkable cures in my own experience. The person undergoing the 'no food' cure should take nothing but distilled water and should exercise caution. The weight should be taken before starting the fast, and if it is below the normal food should be taken in reasonable quantities until the patient is the right weight and ready to undertake the complete fast. A fast should not be started in cold weather, for that takes away much of the heat and energy of the organism.

"In my own experience I have known a patient fast for fifteen days and derive only advantage from the ordeal. He had suffered from serious internal trouble since boyhood, and he came to me to ask advice about the fruit diet I recommend. I told him the fasting cure would do him good. When I saw him again several weeks later I hardly recognized him. He was the picture of health. He held himself upright and his step was alert and vigorous. His eyes were bright, his tongue a good color and his pulse normal. I learned to my surprise—for I never intended he should go so long without food—that he had fasted for fifteen days, taking only distilled water during all that time. And it certainly cured him.

"Another interesting case was brought to my notice by my friend Dr. Hillier, in Canada. A working man suffering from a tumor fasted six weeks, keeping at work all the time, and he completely overcame his complaint. I have known many cases of short fasts of ten, six and five days, and members of my own family have fasted with much benefit. I know of a young girl typewriter who fasts for one week in each year regularly in order to preserve her figure. I have no hesitation in saying that fasting is a great curative agency and of the utmost value in many cases of disease and illness."

BRITISH PROFIT INSURANCE MAY BE BROUGHT HERE

Scheme of Insuring Against Loss of Business, Stopped by Fire or Other Disaster, Makes Great Headway in England.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

AMERICAN insurance men may be surprised to learn that while they are so busy invading Europe with American insurance propositions there is in all likelihood the possibility of America being invaded with an English insurance idea. This idea is known as "profit insurance."

Profit insurance is a comparatively new thing in England. It has only existed for three or four years and in that time has become extraordinarily successful. As the name indicates, it insures the loss of profits after a business has been stopped by fire or some kind of disaster. It is operated in this manner: Some authority, like a chartered accountant, goes over the books of the firm wishing to take out profit insurance and finds what their average profit has been for the two preceding years. The firm is then allowed to take out an insurance based on this average profit for three months, six months or a year. If a fire, an earthquake, a tornado or any catastrophe destroys their business the insurance company pays them for the time they have been insured the profits agreed upon.

In case a man's store is burned down absolutely and his business is at a standstill until he can rebuild and start trade again, he is, if he is insured in a profit insurance company, paid the profits which he would ordinarily have acquired. Of course, a man might be paying this profit insurance through his whole business career and never receive any benefit from his premiums; then again he might be burned out and be very thankful that he is insured.

AN UNLUCKY REFUSAL.

Mr. B. D. Evans, who has just been elected a member of the London Common Council and is also on that very important board known as the Highways Commission, which has control of all the trams, canals and bridges in London, was not long ago a victim of a fire which destroyed his large drapery establishment, consisting of eleven shops. It was a total loss.

In a conversation with Mr. Evans yesterday he said:—"While I was fairly well insured against fire, I very foolishly refused to take out a profit insurance only two days before the fire occurred. It will take at least six months for me to rebuild my establishment and have it in working order. It's a curious thing, too, that under the ground rent lease I am compelled to rebuild my shops in exactly the same structure as they were before. To be sure, they were not antiquated or old buildings, but if I had a free hand in the matter I would put up something much more modern and more suitable to my requirements. This, however, the Board of Fire Control does not allow me to do.

"Now," continued Mr. Evans, "I have been annoyed by paying our insurance premiums year after year, and finally gave the big insurance to one company and scattered the rest as sort of sops among the others to keep them quiet. One man annoyed me so that when he suggested profit insurance I wouldn't even listen to him. Now I'm sorry."

COMING TO AMERICA.

Mr. Waller Morroket, the manager of one of the largest department stores in London, was present when Mr. Evans was telling me his experience. The former is an officer in the London Drapers' Assurance Company, which is a fire insurance association taking risks only on drapery shops.

"This profit insurance scheme," said Mr. Morroket, "has become so highly popular and successful in London in the last three years that I have heard rumors to the effect that a company will be formed to do business in America. My knowledge of the United States leads me to believe that it should be highly successful there, as it is here."

"Do you know—" I asked, "what company or what men will promote it there?"

"No," replied Mr. Morroket. "I have no information on the subject whatever I only heard it as a rumor."

So here is something for American insurance men to think about.

ONE GOWN FOR TWO MINISTERS

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

There is a queer custom here not generally known—that of the outgoing Chancellor of the Exchequer selling his official gown to his successor. Last year it led to a picturesque incident. On the opening day of the Royal Academy there were discovered hanging on the walls portraits of the Prime Minister and the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Obviously each had been painted in the same gown. The explanation was that when Mr. Asquith, on the death of Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman, became Prime Minister he sold his Chancellor's gown to his successor, and Mr. Lloyd-George lent it to him for the purposes of the portrait, each taking "turn about" at sittings.

It is even less well known that the gown of the President of the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division of the High Court is battered in the same way. The one worn by the erstwhile Solicitor General on his promotion to the Presidential Bench originally was made for Sir Francis Jeune, afterward Lord St. Helier.

TAILOR REBELS AT 'VARSITY' CLOTHES

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

OXFORD men have not escaped the lynx eye of the Tailor and Cutter expert who goes about seeking metaphorical holes in the clothing of the nation's gentlemen. In a recent issue of that paper it is stated that many of the Oxford students show a lamentable lack of common sense in their dress, or, at any rate, certain parts of it. Their gray flannel trousers are turned to show about three inches of brightly-colored socks, and the belted jacket is all the rage. Fancy vests are worn, which have a decidedly ready-made atmosphere about them.

The trousers are marked out for special condemnation. The knees are baggy, they are innocent of any creases, and they have long ago lost any claim they may have had to shape. Even the students' hair is mentioned as being almost long enough for curls, and there is a veiled sarcasm in the remark that "it is possible some of these eccentricities are adopted to label themselves 'Varsity' men, and if that be the case they succeed."

The scholars' gown is a dignified garment," says the expert in clothes, "but when it hangs down from the wrists when the wearer's hands are in his trousers pockets, and the neck is located at the waist, then it is neither dignified nor graceful, and yet this seems to be the way they are mostly worn."

LONDON 'BUSES MEND THE ROAD

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

JUDGING from the appearance of certain stretches of wood paved road in London the motor omnibus is forming a new road surface, in which solid steel is the principal feature. At some of the regular stopping places, as, for instance, the one in the Strand at Charing Cross, a shower of rain or the flushing of the road by the cleaners reveals a remarkable sprinkling of steel fragments embedded in the wood until they are flush with the surface.

The shapes of these fragments reveal their origin. There are hexagonal pieces with a centre circular aperture—clearly nuts—washers, bolts and various strips of metal, besides innumerable small fragments. The loss of nuts and other small parts is a serious item in the expenses of the motor omnibus traffic, and the chief places where the losses are sustained are the stopping places, where brakes are applied again and again.

The motor omnibus evidently repairs the roadway, but not as quickly as it wears out. It is said that the quantity of the steel fragments now found in the roads on the motor omnibus routes provides a numerous class with a livelihood.

POLITICAL WARFARE BLOW TO TRADESMEN IN LONDON

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE uncertainty of the political situation, the inevitability of a general election, combined with the doubts as to its date, is already affecting the prospects of those traders in the West End who begin at this season of the year in normal times to anticipate orders for smart clothing and the many costly commodities incidental to the entertainments of the spring and early summer.

Fashionable establishments are in a quandary of a doubly perplexing kind. If the government cannot survive for more than five or six weeks, as is feared, then a general election, with all its exciting activities, will ruin all festivities.

On the other hand, should the spring recess which the Prime Minister promises be reached, Parliamentarians of both houses, who have not been allowed much rest from politics for eighteen months, will fly off insearch of rest and recreation in other lands. That, again, will badly affect "the season" and its dependent trades. And still there will be the election to face and to fight.

"There is a serious depression ahead," said one well known caterer, with a good proportion of the peerage on his books. "Politicians of all parties have spoken much of the crisis, but few of them realise what such a crisis means to the tradesman. The West End firms are all suffering, and the quietness we experience is reflected throughout the suburbs, and, indeed, all over the country.

"Take a typical case of a titled customer of ours. I ventured to hint to her yesterday that she might be favoring us with the usual orders for the season. She replied, I am afraid there will be no season worthy of the name this year. People who go, or try to go, into Parliament have already spent hundreds of thousands of pounds on one election. All these expenses and the big contributions to party funds have to be paid all over again in connection with the next election. Where is the money to come from for entertaining?

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $30,000.00 made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security or part security for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

"PROVIDENCE, INCORPORATED"

Appropriate Nickname Bestowed Upon the C. P. R.—A New Chapter In Immigration

(World's Work for April).

"Providence, Incorporated," is the new nickname of Canada's great railroad. A Danish immigrant agent of the road invented the phrase and it ought to stick. The occasion was the inauguration of a new method of bringing farmers into the Northwest, and the method itself is so radical that it deserves some free advertising.

The road owns much land. It needs many thousands of farmers. It wants the best men. It is not satisfied with the man who lands at Ellis Island with $23 in his pocket. It goes after the very best class of farmers in Denmark, Sweden, Norway, and the mid-Continental areas. Its agents, who swarm everywhere, found much trouble in persuading satisfied and prosperous farmers on well-tilled farms to leave those farms and take to the back plains, with the hardships of the pioneer's life before them. That problem was put before the Canadian Pacific officials. They set to work to solve it.

So, to-day, pioneering is going out of fashion. Instead of selling raw land to raw settlers, the railroad itself has gone into the pioneering business. It sells the land, builds the house and the barn, breaks the fields, plants the first crop, puts all the necessary tools under cover on the farm—and hands over the farm ready-made. The new settler comes from a finished farm to a finished farm.

Two years ago this was an experiment; now it is a policy. As a result, the cream of the industrial farmers of central Europe and of our own Middle West is drifting into Canada by train loads.

Again, while our own Government went slowly at the task of reclaiming arid lands in the West, the railroad went into the irrigation business itself. It could not afford to wait for Government methods or for the wasteful selections of private capital. Five years ago the financial papers announced that the railroad was going to reclaim some millions of acres of land in the Bow River country, Alberta. Now, a million acres are watered, sold to farmers—settled. The railroad's ditch-diggers are moving on to the second million.

No ordinary farmer is wanted on these new acres. The railroad's agents are instructed to call for and demand the best irrigation farmers on earth to till these fields. A scientific farming expert is travelling through selected areas of Europe, lecturing on irrigation farming in Alberta. His lectures draw the very best of the farming experts of the old hard-working nations—and the promises that he makes are backed by a guarantee that never has failed, the word of a railroad does not lie.

In the face of such efforts, directed by the wisest brains in the pioneering business, free from every sort of Government trammel, liberal beyond the experience of the past, is it any wonder that more than 80,000 of the best farmers in the United tSates last year went into Western Canada, carrying with them proabbly more than $100,000,000? The settlers on the new farms that are sold ready-made need nearly $2,000 each to start with—and the figure is put high to be sure of getting the best men.

What machinery have the railroads of this country to compare with methods like these? When the Grand Trunk Pacific opens up, it will undoubtedly follow the same methods. It takes no prophet to see, in the regions settled under these principles the nucleus of the most efficient agricultural nation in the history of the world.

"I FEEL LIKE JUMPING ON PEOPLE AND CHOKING THEM"

Hastings Man Who Was Bitten by a Dog a Short Time Ago, Says That He is Insane and Asks the Authorities to Lock Him Up---Request Was Complied With.

Special to The Examiner.

Hastings, April 18.—"I am crazy, Doctor; can you do anything for me?"

Dr. Edmison, of this village, was, to say the least, mildly surprised, when a big Scotchman, named Stewart, an employee of the Hastings Tanning Company, walked into his office on Saturday and fired the above question at him.

Realizing, however, that the man was not joking, Dr. Edmison took him to the Justice of the Peace, Mr. T. Howard, C. P. R. agent, and to this authority, Stewart imparted the information that he was crazy, that he was a dangerous man to be at large, and that he wanted to be locked up.

"If you want to be locked up, go down to the town hall and tell the policeman that you are insane, and he will lock you up," advised Mr. Howard, and the man departed.

Mr. Howard telephoned to the policeman, giving him instructions to take charge of Stewart, when he arrived. The man, however, failed to call at the station, but sometime afterwards Mr. Howard saw him on the street and sent the policeman to ask him if he still wished to be locked up.

Stewart informed the officer that he was insane at times and would be safer in custody.

"Sometimes when I am passing a person on the street I feel like jumping on him and choking him until I kill him," he said, and realizing that he was sincere in his story the officer arrested the man.

Dr. Edmison took him in charge, leaving at 3 o'clock and driving to Norwood, catching the afternoon express for Toronto, where Stewart will be looked after in an institution.

To Mr. Edmison, Stewart stated that he had been bitten by a dog a week ago, and it afterwards transpired that this part of his story was true, that he had been bitten twice by a dog at his boarding house, and that the canine had been shot.

HASTINS ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST

Examiner Special.

Hastings, April 16.—Once more we are called upon to chronicle the demise of one of our most respected citizens in the person of Mrs. Wm. Hill, Sr., who departed this life on Thursday of last week, in her sixty-fourth year. The deceased lady had been suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia, but was thought to be on the way to recovery, when all at once alarming symptoms appeared, which resulted in her death. Mrs. Hill was of a bright, sunny disposition, and her cheerful smile will be much missed by her many friends. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons and one daughter, who have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement. The funeral was largely attended. Interment took place in the R. C. cemetery on Saturday.

Mrs. Durnher and son, of Rochester, and Mrs. Lauder of Missouri, attended the funeral of their sister, the late Mrs. Hill, last week.

Mr. J. Hess has disposed of his fine team of driving horses, one of which has become the property of Mr. Robt. Collins, near town.

Our picturesque floating islands are almost a thing of the past, the small dredge having been busy putting them out of sight.

Mr. Lou. Kelly visited friends in Dartford on Sunday last.

Rev. Mr. Cree, of Norwood, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church here on Sunday last, Rev. D. A. Thomson taking his place in Norwood.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. J. Thomson is recovering from his recent illness.

Mr. Andrew Cameron, of Peterborough, visited in town last week.

Miss Kenneally, of Lakefield, attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Hill on Saturday of last week.

Miss Edmison, of Brighton, has returned to her home after a two-weeks' visit with Dr. and Mrs. Edmison.

The friends here of Miss Julia Choute extend congratulations on her success in winning second prize in the violin contest in Toronto.

Mrs. J. Johnson, of Campbellford, has been visiting friends in town, the guest of the Misses Tyler.

Mrs. Stevenson and daughter have moved into town and are occupying the house lately vacated by Mr. McGrail.

Mr. F. O'Shea, of Peterborough, has accepted a position as telegraph operator with Mr. T. Howard, and comes highly recommended as an adept at his work.

Mr. H. Humphries took a trip to Ottawa last week.

Miss Maggie Oakman has returned to her home after an extended visit with friends in Perth county.

Mr. John Collins, of Otonabee, has been renewing old acquaintances in this vicinity.

Mr. J. Doherty, who has been in the employ of Mr. T. Howard, for the past two years, has accepted a position in Calgary, where he intends going in the near future.

Fall wheat, in this vicinity, is looking remarkably well, and the farmers are feeling quite elated over the prospect.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Colour of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabourand, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

"Destroy the cause—you remove the effect."

Sold by McDermid & Jury, druggists; also Payne's drug store. One dollar bottles guaranteed.

Many Women who are Splendid Cooks

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table she sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

Gives no outside heat, no smell, no smoke. It will cook the biggest dinner without heating the kitchen or the cook. It is immediately lighted and immediately extinguished. It can be changed from a slow to a quick fire by turning a handle. There's no drudgery connected with it, no coal to carry, no wood to chop. You don't have to wait fifteen or twenty minutes till its fire gets going. Apply a light and it's ready. By simply turning the wick up or down you get a slow or an intense heat on the bottom of the pot, pan, kettle or oven, and nowhere else. It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for coffee, teapot or saucepan, and even a rack for towels. It saves time, worry, health and temper. It does all a woman needs and more than she expects. Made with 1, 2, and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner sizes can be had with or without Cabinet.

Canadians In Wreck.

Hughtown, St. Mary's, Scilly Islands, April 19.—The passengers of the Atlantic Transport Line steamship Minnehaha, which struck on the submerged rocks near Bishop Rock, in a heavy fog, at two o'clock yesterday morning, have been removed to safety. The vessel is badly damaged.

Scarcely had the steamer climbed upon the rocks, when urgent wireless messages were being sent to Lloyds signal station at the Lizard, from which point they were passed on to Falmouth. Signals of distress were also picked up on the islands and in a short time fishermen's boats had put out to the wreck. These boats took off the passengers and landed them at Bryher.

From statements by the officers, it appears that they had been unable to take observations for the last three days and all were anxiously watching for the light house on Bishop Rock.

The Minnehaha struck at almost the identical spot where her namesake, a sailing ship, was driven ashore thirty-seven years ago.

Among the passengers were Charles Walter and Blanche Walter, elocutionist, of Toronto; H. P. Hemming, of Hamilton, and Brabagan Lawther of Winnipeg.

Experimented on Orphans.

New York, April 19.—The Herald yesterday printed a Philadelphia despatch which says:

As the result of investigation, it has been revealed that 160 children, inmates of Blockley, the great Philadelphia Hospital, and of St. Vincent's Home for Orphans, mostly very young children and even babies less than a year old, have been used as human "material" for purposes of experimental research by physicians of the William Pepper Clinical Laboratory of the University of Pennsylvania.

After these experiments were concluded it was announced by the physicians in the Archives of Internal Medicine, published by the American Medical Association, that the results were such as to render part of the practices unjustifiable in medicine, it being admitted that on beginning the tests the experimenters had no knowledge of the serious results their use entailed.

It is admitted that permanent disturbance of vision was sure to follow in one of the experiments practiced upon an orphan and that one test if pursued might lead even to the destruction of the eyesight.

MONTREAL, April 18.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, receipts last week were 1575 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 2325 calves. The supply this morning was 750 cattle, 75 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 500 calves.

Prices have scored another advance of 37½c per cwt. since this day week, due to limited supplies and high prices ruling thruout Ontario, on account of keen competition on the part of American exporters for supplies. Offerings were small, nothing was left over. Choice steers, sold at 7½c to 7¾c; good, at 6¾c to 7c; fairly good, at 6¼c to 6½c; fair at 5¾c to 6c, and lower grades at 5c to 5¼c per lb. Hog prices show an advance of 10c to 20c. The supply was fair and demand good from packers and sales of selected lots were made at $10.20 to $10.25, weighed off cars. Cables from Liverpool, London and Bristol on Saturday for Canadian bacon noted a decline of 3c to 5c per cwt. for the week.

Trade in sheep and lambs was quiet on account of continued light receipts and there is a scarcity of supplies. The demand is good and sales were made at 6c to 7c per lb., and lambs at from $4 to $8 each. Calves are fairly plentiful, but owing to beef being so dear the demand is greater than ever. Sales of large lots were made at from $2.50 to $5 each for ordinary to good stock and as high as $10 for choice. At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market receipts last week were 1000 cattle, 125 sheep and lambs, 200 hogs nd 1050 calves, while offerings this morning were 300 cattle, 155 hogs and 100 calves.

PLANS FOR ISOLATION HOSPITAL

Submitted by Mr. Wm. Blackwell, Architect, Accepted by the Property Committee—Will Ask for Tenders for New Building in a Few Days.

THE SOUTH END PARK

At a meeting of the Property Committee last evening the plans submitted by Mr. Wm. Blackwell, architect, for the new isolation hospital were adopted.

A motion to that effect was made, it being moved by Ald. Graham, and seconded by Ald. Morgan, and that the committee be instructed to advertise for tenders. The building equipped is to cost $12,000.

Those present at the meeting last evening were Ald. Duncan, chairman; Morgan, Bradburn, Batten, Graham, and Mayor Morrow.

Mayor Morrow brought up the matter of the new park in the south end of the city, and moved that the chairman see that the ground is ploughed and harrowed, seeded, and some trees planted.

"Have a good space left for the boys to play baseball on," suggested Ald. Bradburn.

The matter was left to the chairman and Ald. Graham to look after.

Ald. Morgan stated that the old drill shed, on Mark street, in Ashburnham, was not used now, and the building might be removed, and the space put to some other use. On motion of Ald. Morgan, and seconded by Ald. Batten, the chairman was authorized to interview Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., in regard to having the shed removed.

BUILDING ON LOCK STREET

Mr. Israel Payne is making preparations to build another dwelling house on his finely situated property on Lock street, south of his own residence. The cellar has already been excavated, ready for the foundation. Mr. Payne is also making a number of improvements to the north end of the homestead.

This is a pretty suburb of the city—the land is sandy loam, well drained and partly covered with fruit trees, etc. It is a perfect site for homes, and for one who likes rest and quietness after a busy day, an atmosphere of calm and good bracing air. It is far enough away from the uptown district, and yet within 10 minutes' ride of the city on street cars.

NO ARRANGEMENT YET REACHED AS TO THE NEW PROTESTANT HOME

Wm. Hall Poor Trust and Protestant Home Board Discuss Matter With Special Committee of the Council—Wm. Hall Trustees Would Not be Willing to Give Any of the Capital for Such a Purpose.

COST ABOUT $20,000

No arrangement yet has been reached in regard to the adoption of a plan to build a new home for the Protestant poor of the city. Mr. J. B. McWilliams, representing the Protestant Home Board, and Messrs. A. P. Poussette, Wm. Aldridge, W. G. Ferguson, T. W. Robinson, and Jas. Connal of the Wm. Hall Poor Trust, met the special committee appointed by the Council to look into the matter, last evening. The committee was present as follows: Ald. Morgan, chairman, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Bradburn, and Hicks. After much discussion it was suggested that the Protestant Home Board and the Wm. Hall Trust meet together and discuss the matter and report back to the Council.

Mr Poussette, speaking for the Wm. Hall Poor Trust, said that the late Wm. Hall left a fund of $30,000, the interest of which each year was to be devoted to the relief of the Protestant poor. At present forty-five women were each being paid three dollars a month. He pointed out that the Trust could not give any of the capital towards the Protestant Home but there was a clause that allowed the giving of a portion of the income. "I think that it would be all right to give part of the income toward the maintenance of the Home," he said, "but for the last fifteen years we have given nothing in that way. We have had a relief committee of three and nothing has been given out unless an order was signed by at least two of them."

Mayor Morrow stated that Mr. Ferguson and himself had discussed the matter with the city solicitor and had been informed that part of the money could be used for such a purpose.

"I think, then, in that case, we would be guilty of a breach of trust," replied Mr. Poussette, "We could turn part of the income over to the Protestant Home, it would be unconstitutional to give any of the capital."

I think the best way would be for the Protestant Home Board to give $10,000, and the Wm. Hall Trust the same amount and the city give a free site," suggested Mr. J. B. McWilliams. "Then," he said, "we could get special legislation to tax the Protestant poor, the same as in the case of the schools, for its maintenance."

"I like that idea," Mr. Poussette said, "but I think it would be a breach of trust. The trustees I think, would not mind giving three-quarters of the income to the Home."

"What would the Home cost?" asked Mr. Connal.

"I think one with accommodation for about fifty persons would cost about $20,000," Mr. McWilliams stated.

"I think the city made a grave mistake in not uniting with the County when they built their House of Refuge," Mr. Poussette stated.

"It is hard to unite with people when they won't unite with you," Ald. Bradburn replied.

"Let the Protestant people put up the Home and the Hall Poor Trust ... $900 yearly to its maintenance," suggested Mr. Connal.

"You are just giving the money to the relief of the poor in another way," Ald. Bradburn stated.

At the suggestion of the chairman, it was decided to leave the matter to the two boards for consideration, to report back to the Council.

WOMAN'S LONG SLEEP

For 18 Months She Has Slumbered—Strangest Case Since 1777.

New York, April 18.—Mrs. Elizabeth Hodes, of No. 914 Blake ave., Brooklyn, who has been the victim of a baffling sleeping sickness for eighteen months, returned into a state of narcolepsy, yesterday, after she had been awake for 50 hours. The woman lapsed into unconsciousness at a time when her husband and her two sons were making every effort to keep her awake. After sleep overtook her she could not be aroused.

The case was reported to Dr. John D. Quackenbos, who made a careful research of similar cases and found that the disease which has afflicted Mrs. Rhodes has had no parallel in the history of medical science since 1777, when the illness of the Lady of Nismes drew the attention of all the European professors. The symptoms of the two cases appear almost exactly alike. The Lady of Nismes recovered after she had been treated by neurologists for six months.

While I have not had an opportunity to make a close study of the condition of Mrs. Hodes, it may be due to the absorption of toxins, as from a decayed tooth or intestinal fermentation," said Dr. Quackenbos. "There are many instances of protracted sleep, but few cases have continued with regularity for any long period. The symptoms show a danger of approaching apoplexy, which would end the sleep in death."

Had Places For Fifteen Young Farm Labourers

Immigration Officer G. H. Howson had a very busy day yesterday. He placed fifteen men on farms, two immigration trains arriving here on Sunday and Monday. The steamship "Lake Erie" arrived at St. John's, on Friday, and a number of young men, who came out on it, got here on Sunday. The steamship "Tunisian" arrived at Halifax on Saturday, and the "Canada" reached Portland on the same day, each bringing a large contingent of immigrants. The party arriving here, included three domestics, and within a short time of their arrival, all were placed in good homes, with farmers, as assistants. Mr. Howson stated that they were mostly all young men, and were anxious to learn farming. The "Southwark," which sailed from Liverpool on April 14th, will also have a large number of farm labourers for this community.

THREE MONTHS IN JAIL ON A THEFT CHARGE

Harry Hardin, Charged With Stealing a Watch and $30, Had a Chance to Make Restitution But Failed To Do So.

SENTENCED TO DAY

Harry Hardin, who a few weeks ago stole a gold watch and thirty dollars from a room mate in the Foster house, was sentenced this morning at police court to three months in jail with hard labour by Magistrate Dumble.

Hardin was allowed to go after his first trial, a few weeks ago, in order to obtain money to pay back what he stole. The watch, at this time being found on him, was returned to the owner. He abused his opportunity and thus was rounded up this morning by constables Meharry and Adams and brought before his Worship.

The magistrate informed Hardin that he was given ample time to make atonement but he didn't put forth any effort to comply with the law. He therefore considered three months in the jail sufficient punishment for such an offence.

A suit case containing shirt, socks and ties, which Hardin had bought with the stolen money was given to the owner. Hardin had on his person at his first trial $12.16, which was also restored to the owner.

"Give me just to-day, only one more chance," was the plea put forth by the prisoner.

EARL GREY TO BE PRESENT AT PRODUCTION OF "GEISHA"

His Excellency Has Kindly Expressed His Intention to Attend During His Visit to Peterborough

ON SATURDAY EVENING

At 7.30 last evening, Mr. R. J. Devey received a telegram message from F. C. T. O'Hara, Esq., hon.-sec., of the Executive Committee of the Earl Grey Musical and Dramatic Trophy Competition, stating that their Excellencies would be pleased to attend a gala performance of the "Geisha," when they would have an opportunity of witnessing a complete production of this excellent opera and also of publicly expressing their congratulations to the company on the excellence of their work.

It will be remembered that Mr. Devey and his company of local amateurs staged and sang this difficult opera at Toronto recently in competition with the whole of Canada, for the Earl Grey musical trophy, and while the award went to the Ottawa Symphony Orchestra from the judgment of an American critic, His Excellency, the Governor-General expressed his high approval of the work of the Peterborough Operatic Company and regretted that he had been privileged to see but one act of the Geisha. The Geisha Company is to be congratulated upon the exceptional notice that their work has elicited from the Governor-General

To an Examiner reporter Mr. Devey said he had immediately, upon receipt of the Governor-General's reply arranged with his company for another production of the Geisha in the opera house on Saturday next, according to his Excellency's pleasure.

The Geisha is an expensive opera to stage, and Mr. Devey who assumed all responsibility for the late production, lost money on his venture, owing to the expenses in connection with the competition at Toronto. On Saturday night, however, the attendance, at prices to be announced later will undoubtedly insure a balance on the right side of the ledger.

A Lost Pin

A young lady, graduate of Nicholls Hospital, lost a class pin a few days ago and has yet been unable to locate it. As it is of no value to the finder and prized very much by the owner, it would be appreciated if left at the Examiner office. The initials, N.H.P., are on the pin.

Peterboro' Man Tries To End His Existence

(Lindsay Post.)

Shortly after seven o'clock on Saturday evening citizens crossing the Lindsay St. bridge noticed a man making a wild rush down the road leading to the wharf. His actions aroused the suspicion of a number of the spectators, and as the man was rapidly nearing the water's edge several of them went in hot pursuit. He was grabbed, just as he reached the edge of the wharf and was dragged back from danger.

In response to several questions regarding his intentions, etc., the stranger did not vouchsafe very much information.

The man is said to be a farm hand who has been working in Emily township, while it is claimed he is a Peterborough citizen who has been employed by a local concern, and who has been on a drunk for the past week.

The Opening Of The New T. A. S. Hall Next Week

For the opening of the new T. A. S. hall arrangements have been completed for the appearance, at the two concerts, which will be given in the spacious hall on Wednesday and Thursday, April 27th and 28th, of a singer of international reputation in the person of Miss Margaret McCann, who has appeared at the highest class events in the principal cities all over the British Empire and the United States.

The Society is exceedingly fortunate in this selection as an artist for the occasion of whom the New York Daily News says the following:

"A feature of the Emmet celebration at the Brooklyn Grand Opera House was the appearance of the famous Australian soprano, Miss Margaret McCann, who was introduced by the chairman, David Healy, as a "singer of international renown, who came all the way from the Antipodes to pay respectful homage to the memory of Emmet. Miss McCann received a welcome from the great audience which has seldom or never been equalled in the case of any other stranger. The building fairly shook with applause as she was escorted to the platform by Mr. Healy.

"Miss McCann is a beautiful woman with a gracious manner, a graceful carriage and great personal magnetism. But the beauty of her voice is the greatest of all. It has a golden warmth, a limpid crystal purity and a sympathetic quality which is lacking in many great artists. Her vocal method is the perfection of art. She has an exquisite tone production, perfect command of sustaining power, even to the vanishing point of tone, and her phrasing is artistic and finished in every detail."

FRED CAMERON OF AMHERST, N.S., LEADS THE FIELD HOME IN THE CLASSIC EVENT

Special C.P.R. Wire to The Examiner:

Boston, Mass., April 19th.—Promptly at noon the 14th Boston Marathon, the greatest of them all, began. There were 185 starters, biggest field ever, and weather conditions are excellent. Air clear and balmy and foremost of distance roads are fairly fast. It will be hard to imagine more confident aggregation than the Canadians. Certainly, with twenty runners entered, they ought to feel fairly confident of at least a good representation in the van at the finish.

Dan Sheridan, of Toronto, said this morning: "This is going to be another Canadian year. All men from our country are in fine shape and ought to make a killing of the course. I want to lead the pack home myself, and I believe I shall do it." In past years runners have carried among them a strong favourite, but this year such is not the case. There is no strong favourite. It is anybody's race, and there is no good ground for picking a likely winner. Such men as Corkey, Sheridan and MacCormich, of the Canadians, and Ryan, Fowler and Harry Jenien, seem to have the greatest following.

Nova Scotian Leads.

Boston, April 19th.—Fred L. Cameron, Amherst, N.S., is leading first bunch of runners and finished first lap between Ashland and South Framingham in the fast time of 22 mins., 50 sec. This is a trifle slower than Longboat's time, in 1907. Cameron was closely followed by Lynch, Horn and Sheridan. Cameron, of Nova Scotia, still leading, Natick covering distance in 45 mins., just duplicating the wonderful record of Longboat At this distance Horn, Lynch and Sheridan have given way to Corkery, of Toronto, Ryan, of New York, and Buxton, of Toronto.

Cameron Still Ahead.

Boston, April 19th.—At Wellesly, Fred L. Cameron was still leading. Corkery and Ryan and Appleyard, of Yonkers, N.Y., had taken fourth place from Buxton. Cameron's time to Wellesly was 1 hour and 15 mins., or nearly fourteen minutes slower than Longboat's time in 1907.

Looks Sure for the Canadians.

Boston, Mass., April 19.—The race now looks sure for the Canadians. At Woodland Park hotel in Auburndale Cameron, of Nova Scotia, is still holding his lead, with Corkery, of Toronto, at his heels. Mike Ryan 3rd. M. Demar, of Boston, is 4th, and Moloney, of Wercester, is 5th. Time, 1.28.22 1-5.

Cameron Still Ahead.

Boston, Mass., April 19.—Cameron, with only the last lap of the distance to be run romped by Coolidge corner and still in the lead.

Demar, of Dorchester, is second, Corkery, of Toronto, third, Ryan fourth, Maloney fifth. If Cameron keeps up the pace he is now going, Longboat's time will be duplicated.

Boston, April 19.—Fred L. Cameron, of Amherst, N.S., wins to-day's big Marathon in the splendid time of 2 hours, 28 minutes, 52 seconds, about three minutes slower than Longboat's record, which was made on a faster road. Demar, of Boston, was second.

A SPLENDID WINDOW

A Picturesque Spring Scene Attracts Attention at Warne Bros. Store.

A very picturesque spring scene has been designed and placed in the north window of Warne Bros.' new store.

In the back ground of the scene is a diminutive house, having all the equipments and elaborate trimmings of an up-to-date building. This little mansion is surrounded by a luxuriant grass plot, while a gravel path of selected pebbles runs from the verandah to the foreground of the scene. The back ground is a cluster of palms, while the monotony of the green grass is broken by several small flower beds.

The thought underlying the scene is that any person, who wishes to enjoy such comforts, which are illustrated in this miniature picture must have something to up-hold his physical powers in this season of spring. For this, Warne Bros. highly recommend the use of "Nyal's Spring Tonic."

Much credit is due the designer of the window, Mr. S. Ridley.

CAUGHT POACHERS

Bobcaygeon Game Warden Lands Men With Nets and Spears.

Bobcaygeon, April 18.—Mr. H. B. Parker, our Game Warden, and his assistant have been on the "qui vive" during the past week, and they succeeded in landing three poachers on Friday last. Two of them had nets in Pigeon Creek and the third one was trying with what precision he could land his spear in the maskinonge as they moved gently along in the shallow waters in Humphries' Bay near here. He had proved that his hand had not lost his cunning, nor his eye its unerring aim of old, when the assistant Warden swooped down on him and took his spear and two nice lunge with which he intended to grace his table for the morning meal on Saturday. Such are the disappointments of life, and now instead of relishing the nice browned slices of maskinonge, the parties have to settle with the Warden for a good round sum, or appear in court where the cases will be settled according to the game law.

DR. FORD WAS HONOURED ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

A Communion Service Was Presented Last Evening at the Norwood Church Dedicated to the Popular Physician.

MANY CONGRATULATIONS

Special to The Examiner.

Norwood, April 18.—A pleasing event took place in the Sunday School room of the Norwood Methodist church this evening, when the seventieth birthday of Dr. S. P. Ford was fittingly recognized. There was a large attendance and Dr. Ford was overwhelmed with congratulations.

The service was opened by song service, conducted by the pastor, followed by a prayer by Rev. J. J. Mellor, of South Dummer.

Mr. J. L. Squire was voted to the chair, and a beautifully illuminated address in book form, signed by the pastor and recording steward of the church, was presented by Mr. J. T. Keefer, while an individual communion cup service, consisting of six beautiful oak trays, filled with appropriate unbreakable cups, was dedicated for use in the church. One of these cups had the following inscription: "Dedicated on the seventieth birthday of S. P. Ford, M.D., as a tribute to his Christian character, April 18, 1910."

A number of congratulatory letters were received from friends at a distance, after which addresses were given by Messrs. R. W. and Sam Clarke, of Millbrook, who were there for that purpose; Mr. R. J. Stewart, of Toronto, and Rev. Mr. Pickford, and Mr. J. B. Pearce, of Norwood.

The Masonic Lodge, which was holding a meeting to-night, adjourned in a body to the church, and Mr. E. P. Cuffe, acting as spokesman, added their congratulations to Dr. Ford.

The chairman read a number of verses, written for the occasion, by Rev. W. H. Adams, of Penetanguishene, a former pastor of the church, after which little Miss R. Squires presented Dr. Ford with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, a gift of his old friend, Mr. F. Mason, of Peterborough.

Dr. Ford made a fitting reply to the many kind words that had been said of him, and expressed his heartfelt gratitude to his friends.

CHIEF WITNESS DEAD

Family Physician of Man Who is Said to Have Been Murdered Dies on Day on Which Trial Begins.

Kansas City, Mo., April 18.—Scarcely had the State completed its opening statement to-day in the trial of Dr. B. C. Hyde, for the murder of Col. Thomas Swope before Dr. G. T. Twyman, the prosecution's most important witness, died at a hospital of acute diverticulitis. Dr. Twyman was for years the Swope family physician.

Dr. Hyde sat calmly between his wife and his father in the crowded Criminal Court room to-day and heard himself described as a man whose greed for gold had made him a murderer.

The defence objected to the State telling the story of any incidents in the Swope home not directly connected with the death of Col. Swope. The court decided to admit all circumstances which the State avers will tend to show that a plot existed to exterminate the entire Swope family.

As a result of this decision the whole panorama of incidents in the Swope residence from the first illness of Col. Swope was displayed.

The charge that Dr. Hyde poisoned Col. Thomas H. and Chrisman Swope by the use of cyanide of potassium as well as strychnine was the only new feature brought out in Mr. Reed's address.

ALL HAVE RECOVERED

Hastings Family Who Were Stricken With Typhoid Fever Return Home.

Mrs. Sharp and her three children, of Hastings, who were all so seriously ill in the hospital here for the past two months, have made a complete recovery, the last one returning to her home to-day. There were Mrs. Sharpe and baby, Emma, aged nine, and Stella, aged fourteen. Mrs. Sharpe and the baby returned home about a month ago, Emma, a week ago, and Stella, to-day. The case of Stella Sharp was a long and serious one, and it is pleasing to know that she has made a complete recovery. All the patients were under the care of Dr. Leach.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Some Conservative critics are fond of describing the Laurier Government as hide-bound partisans, anxious only to assert every particle of patronage to advance the interests of their party and to fill office only on partizan considerations. In disproof of the latter charge may be cited the fact of the Government appointing a Conservative lawyer of Toronto to a seat upon the High Court Bench. No doubt he was chosen as a fit and proper person for the position. On Monday morning the Government gave another example of advance in civil service reform. In the bill to amend the Civil Service Act, it is provided that the 150 temporary employees to be engaged in connection with the decennial census next year, would be subject to competitive examination, and that appointments should be vested in the Civil Service Commission. In all previous censuses, even under virtuous Conservative governments, appointments were made for political reasons, in one sense in party interests. Now, the Dominion Government, so insistently charged with the practice of making party capital by such appointments, deliberately divests itself of the privilege, and turns over the appointment of census officials, who, by the way, have to be qualified, to the Civil Service Commission. The Dominion Government, in establishing a civil service commission, made a great step in removing the appointment and regulation of civil servants from the influence of political considerations. In this the Liberal Government has given an example that might, with profit, be followed by the governments of the provinces, especially that of the Province of Ontario.

TARIFF CONCESSIONS.

Many journals anxious to make a point against the Dominion government employ assertions that, are all the more misleading by being part truths. In referring to the recent tariff arrangement between the United States and Canada, our local evening contemporary says the Laurier government levied duties "without getting any concessions from the United States." This is in part true. It is true that insignificant reductions were made on articles of such limited output that the total reduction of duties amounts to only $192,000. How the United States regarded Canada's "concessions" may be judged from the New York Journal of Commerce, which refers to them as "a semblance of concessions and evidently regards them as the Examiner has characterized them, as only formal concessions. And did the United States make no concessions? It was in the power of President Taft to impose the penalty of the maximum tariff of 25 per cent. upon articles imported from Canada. Was the withholding of this penalty no concession to Canada? It is true that Canada was in a splendid position to wage a tariff war. But would it be wise for the sake of standing firm, to enter upon a tariff contest which would have resulted very seriously to many Canadian interests and, for the moment, have paralyzed them? It is known that if the maximum tariff of the United States had been imposed, if a war of tariffs had not been averted by "a semblance of concession," at least one of Peterborough's industries would have been for a term practically prostrated and Peterborough would have had to contemplate for a time at least the ruin of an industry that is now in prospect of immense expansion. The tariff reductions which Canada made to avoid a widespread operation of the disastrous results of a tariff war, were not made specifically as concessions to the United States. They were tariff reductions which extend to a dozen or more countries besides the United States. President Taft made the concession of the olive branch in the form of a proposal to negotiate with Canada a plan of reciprocity, which if affected by reasonable men, it is acknowledged by reasonable men, would be in the mutual interest of the two countries. A few years ago there was in Peterborough a cut price war in coal oil. The man with the largest bank account lasted the longest, but the foolish contest was a losing game for all concerned. A tariff war (when it could be afforded by a little natural good sense) would have been bad for both countries, it would be more foolish than the coal oil competition, for it, that case the loss fell on the dealers and their customers had the advantage, but in the event of a tariff war the customers—the people—would be hardest hit.

POST OFFFICE ADVANCE.

It is an open question whether or not the Post Office department should be classed with the mint, that is to be a money-maker, or revenue producer. The race between postal expansion and national prosperity has to some extent, complicated matters. It is true that the postal revenue has rapidly increased; it is also true that expense of administration has also greatly grown. The growth of the country has demanded great extensions of accommodation, which have not yielded revenue proportionate to the cost. It is acknowledged freely, and, grudgingly, sometimes, too, that the administration of the post office has been successful; but it is claimed by those who grudgingly make this admission, that its administration has been too economical, even parsimonious; that employees are underpaid, etc. In the administration of such a multitudinously manned enterprise as the postal service, it is not easy to adjust all the relations concerned with unvarying equality: so many demands have to be met that choice must be made between what is obligatory and what is expedient. The public interest is the first consideration. The latter has not escaped the eye of the effective Postmaster-General. It is taking its time. Three years ago the salaries of postmasters were given a substantial increase: and the Minister increased the salaries of the letter carriers last year to such an extent, as he jocularly remarked in the House, on Monday, that they could entertain the possibility of matrimony, and he announces that next year he contemplates bringing the post office clerks and the railway mail clerks within civil service conditions, which would result in a levelling up of salaries. Some idea may be formed of the difficulties of administering a department with such multiplicity of detail, requiring co-ordinate adjustment, further complicated by the numerous demands arising from the growth of the country. This as well as the growth of the Department, and its work and results, may be illustrated by a few statistics. The Liberal Government came into power in 1896. At that time the administration of the Post Office Department was attended with a deficit of $780,000. In the interval between that and 1909, due to better administration, greater business or greater prosperity, the revenue gained over expenses, to the extent of $803,000, or a surplus to that amount. In this fourteen years the number of post offices grew from 9,103 to 12,479; the number of money order and postal note offices from 1,310 to 10,317; the number of post office savings banks from 755 to 1,102; the number of miles travelled from thirty and a half millions to forty-four and a quarter millions; the number of letters carried, from 177 millions to 542 millions; the money transmitted by money orders and postal notes from thirteen millions to fifty-seven millions, and the number of postal savings banks depositors from 136,442 to 155,865. Of course, with all this there has been a proportionate increase of staff and salary expense, and the increase of remuneration of employees is receiving practical consideration.

HE INHERITED HIS ILL-HEALTH

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured J. Baillargeon's Rheumatism.

Further Proof that no case of Kidney Disease can stand before the old reliable Kidney Remedy.

Monte Bello, Labelle Co., Que., April 18.—(Special).—That a man may be cured even of inherited ill-health if he keeps his blood pure and his body toned up by using Dodd's Kidney Pills is the experience of John Baillargeon, of this place.

"I inherited poor health from my parents," Mr. Baillargeon says. "I was bothered with Rheumatism, Lumbago and Gravel. I was always tired and nervous. In fact I was a total wreck. I tried all kinds of medicines but I got no relief till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. They did me good and no mistake. I took fifteen boxes in all but I am cured.

"My wife also has taken Dodd's Kidney Pills and received great benefit from them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. Cured Kidneys strain all impurities, all the disease feeds on, out of the blood. That is why they always cure Rheumatism. Lumbago, Dropsy and Heart Disease.

STOCK NOTES

Mr. Richard Dundas lost his big heavy horse, we are informed, which will be a serious loss indeed.

Mr. W. H. Staples, of Cavanville, parted with his Clydesdale stallion Torran, and has put in his place a Silver Cup horse, Captain Vasey [9603] (14937), a grandson of Barron's Pride Captain Vasey is a beautiful brown with white markings, was foaled June 4th, 1906, bred by John Vasey, imported in August, 1909, by Smith & Richardson, Columbus, Ont. Captain Vasey is one of the most richly bred Clydesdale stallions that has ever been imported into Canada, a get of Silver Cup, a horse that has produced so many high-class colts that his services are already secured for 1911, two years ahead for some of the most popular districts in Scotland. Silver Cup was by Barron's Pride, a horse so world-wide known as a sire that he needs no comment. His dam is Rose Leaf [15627] (15862), by Sir David. He by Castle Ray, Davey Riddley's great show horse, a horse that won more premiums for his owner than any other horse of his day. Castle Ray was by Darnley, he by Prince of Wales. Gr. Dam Damsel [15728] (20540) by King Lawrence, Gr. Gr. Dam Rose Vasey [18380] (22408) by Royalty. Not only is Captain Vasey richly bred, but in form is a perfect model of a Clydesdale from the ground up, with faultless action and lots of it and is up to a big size, although not yet four years old is crowding a Tan very close. All lovers of a good Clyde should see this horse before making a choice for the season.

LINERS.

Wyatt Lee, Jimmy Frick and Andy Kyle, are apt to land in the New York State League.

When close to 200,000 persons turn out to see eight baseball games in one day there is reason to marvel at the wonderful popularity of a still growing sport.

The Toronto team is strong in all departments and in every position. Another high-class catcher will make the Leafs pennant contenders every minute of the season.

Frank Arellanes, the Mexican twirler of the Boston Red Sox, has christened a new ball of his invention, the Salome ball. Arellanes has been reticent concerning the reason for the name until Saturday, when he explained to Manager Pat Donovan: "Why, there's nothing on it."

It is safe to say that when John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, begins weeding out his small army of pitchers Drucke and Dickson of the new men are almost sure to be retained. The Giants should be strong in the box with Mathewson, Wiltse, Ames, Raymond, Marquard, Crandall, Drucke, Dickson, and possibly Klawitter on the staff.

New York American: The presence of Clyde Engle has spoiled an otherwise fine-looking outfield. Engle was none too good last season. This year he is 25 per cent less speedy and reliable. Birdie Cree may be ready to step into harness at Philadelphia today. If not, Stallings could do much worse than give Tom Madden a chance. Madden has the speed and brains of Ty Cobb, and uses both. Engle will not do.

We haven't heard much lately as to what Willie Keeler intended to do this season. The Brooklyn land-owner refuses to wind up his career in the minor leagues, and has turned down a handsome offer from Joe Kelley to play with the Toronto Club. Keeler will work out with the Giants during the week, and if he thinks that he is still capable of putting up a good article of ball he will probably sign with the Giants.

Jimmy Frick of the Leafs, on whom all Eastern League clubs have waived claim, will be missed by the Toronto fans. He is a hard-working, gentlemanly player of the sort who are a credit to the game. There is no better fielder in the league, and Arthur Irwin made the unqualified statement last season at the island that there is not a better handler of hard hit balls or bunts in either big leagues. Frick's weakness has always been at the bat.

Vice-President Sherman had a narrow escape from injury in the opening game at Washington last Thursday. Mr. Sherman was seated in a box with a party of friends. He momentarily bent over his score book, when a foul tip from Baker's bat whizzed by his head. It missed Mr. Sherman by a foot, struck a well-known Washington clubman on his derby hat and found a landing place on the right shoulder of Charles C. Bennett, Secretary of the Senate.

JOHNSON WANTS WELCH TO REFEREE THE BIG FIGHT

Chicago, April 18.—If Champion Jack Johnson has his way about the selection of a referee for the big fight Jack Welch, of California, will be the man. The suggestion was made by Johnson yesterday as he talked other various phases of the coming battle. As the referee is to be picked sixty days before the fight Johnson has been giving considerable thought to the subject.

Several well-known referees were mentioned to the champion, but he would not agree on any of them except Welch. The champion said if Jeffries approves of Welch one of the most serious problems will be overcome. Johnson did not do a bit of work Sunday, but took a thirty-mile ride in his automobile.

Johnson, disgusted with the near-winter, which is lingering in the lap of spring in this vicinity, announced to-day that he would make no more attempts to train until he reaches the coast. The champion expects to leave here next Thursday, stopping at Salt Lake and Los Angeles, and arriving at San Francisco on May 1.

Provided that as to race-meetings at which there are running races no such race-meeting continues for more than seven days of continuous racing on days on which such racing may be lawfully carried on, and provided that no such association holds in any one year more than two race-meetings at which there are running races and that there is an interval of at least twenty days between meetings, and provided that such race-meeting is held upon the race-course of a racing association now incorporated, or upon a race-course located in or within three miles of a Canadian town or city having a population of not less than fifteen thousand people by a racing association hereafter incorporated. Provided, also that as to race-meetings at which there are trotting or pacing races no such race meeting shall continue for more than three days, on which racing may be carried on, in any one week, and that no race-meetings at which there are not trotting or pacing races shall be held on the same grounds for more than fourteen days in all in any one year."

Reed and Ingalls.

"Why don't you grow?" said Tom Reed to Senator Ingalls some years ago, when both men were in the service of the people at Washington.

"Ah," said Ingalls, who was of very slight stature, "I'm too much interested in my fellows' life and property to assume to your magnificent height and proportion."

"And is not that my concern, too?" asked Reed deliberately.

"Impossible!" said Ingalls. "Walk on the edge of a board walk and you lift up the other end; stand in the middle and you break through. The people's safety lies in your being a middle of the road man."

Some days after Reed found Ingalls in a state of mental distraction. "Just swallowed the gold fillings of this front tooth," explained Senator Ingalls, pointing to the exposed cavity.

Reed laughed immoderately. He drew himself up to his full height. As a victor he stood; his time of revenge had come.

"Ingalls, I congratulate you. You are now worth your weight in gold."

Polar Pine Forests.

Professor David, who holds the chair of geology in the University of Sydney and who accompanied Sir Ernest Shackleton in his recent expedition to the antarctic, has been making some interesting observations on his discoveries there. The fossil woods he had found showed that pine forests had flourished in the vicinity of the south pole at a remote geological epoch. The coal seams he had discovered suggested the same conclusion. At that time there was more or less continuous land from Australia to the south pole. The climate all over the world was at that period probably much milder than at present.

Meat Cured by Electricity.

For the last three years meat has been cured by electricity in much less time than was required by the old method. The meat is placed in large wooden tanks and covered with the ordinary pickle. An alternating current of thirty-five amperes at thirty-five volts is passed through the vat, the alternations serving to prevent electrochemical action. Carbon electrodes are used, which are surrounded by porous cups that dip into the brine. The cost of curing a vatful of meat (4,000 pounds) is less than $1. The action of the current is not perfectly understood.

Clark Duff Out of Danger.

Toronto, April 16.—Word has been received by the Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, that his son Clark is now out of danger.

Universities for Calgary.

Calgary, Alta., April 19.—A movement has been started by a number of Calgary's millionaires and near-millionaires to make this a university city.

It is probable that if present plans are carried out, Western Canada College will be absorbed. An effort will be made to secure 160 acres for a site, with a view to allowing theological colleges, schools of practical science and like institutions to affiliate.

The project will be financed by a joint stock organization, and tuition fees will be adjusted so that students will pay the entire cost of their individual education.

C.P.R. Buys Coal Mines.

Victoria, B.C., April 19.—The Western Fuel Co., operating coal mines at Nanaimo, has given an option to the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for the purchase of its properties for $2,500,000, according to a report here yesterday.

It is reported here that this is the answer of the C.P.R. to the purchase of the Dunsmuir coal mines by the Canadian Northern Railway. The C.P.R. has a contract with the Wellington Colliery Co., the assets of which have been sold to the Canadian Northern, which has still several years to run.

Four Mail Clerks Killed.

Memphis, Tenn., April 19.—Four mail clerks were killed and three trainmen and a mail clerk injured in a wreck of passenger train No. 2, from New Orleans to Chicago on the Illinois Central Railroad, near Jackson, Miss.

The wreck was caused by the engine leaving the track and plunging down a fifteen-foot embankment, carrying with it the baggage car, mail and library car and two sleeping cars. The wreckage caught fire.

Gouin Not Influenced.

Quebec, April 19.—Sir Lomer Gouin yesterday announced that the order in council prohibiting the export of pulpwood on crown lands would be published Saturday in The Gazette.

The statement from Washington that it would interfere with negotiations for reciprocity had not influenced him in the least.

Hopeless.

Lawyer—You don't like the jury? Defendant—I do not. No. 1 is my tailor, No. 3 is my grocer, No. 5 is my milk and egg dealer and No. 7 is my wife's first husband. What chance have I got?—St. Paul Dispatch.

Best Not to Be Re-arrested.

Detroit, Mich., April 19.—The police will not re-arrest Arthur J. Best, the young Comber tinsmith, whose wife's body was found recently in the lower Detroit River, and identified yesterday.

Captain of Detectives McDonnell said yesterday: "I don't believe that there is any prospects of Best's re-arrest. Since we had Best under arrest and questioned him, our investigation seems to have weakened the case against him. Many of the statements he made to us have been found to be true."

Mrs. Best's body will be taken to Comber for burial. It had been thought at first that Best might have thrown her in the river, following a quarrel, the marriage having been a secret one.

People of Peterborough May Know What is in the Medicine They Take---An Enterprise Which Merits the Endorsement and Hearty Support of the Public.

Health should be more seriously considered and safe-guarded. The Government have partially awakened to the fact and now compel the publication of certain ingredients on the packages of medicines that contain them. That was a step in the right direction, but it did not reach far enough.

The public should know and be told about every ingredient of every medicine they take. In our business of selling drugs and medicines, we are compelled to sell what the public demands, even though some medicines we sell contain drugs injurious to the good health of the person using them.

We have often attempted to overcome this evil, but we were almost powerless until we became affiliated about three thousand other leading druggists of the United States and Canada in a co-operative enterprise, known as the United Drug Company, Boston, Mass., and United Drug Company, Limited, Toronto, Canada. Through this large co-operation of druggists, it was possible for experts to travel over the country for more than two years in search of extraordinary remedies. When they found a remedy that was perfect they purchased its prescription. The druggists themselves also contributed prescriptions that they knew to be good through their having been continually prescribed and successfully used by eminent physicians.

In this way about one thousand different prescriptions were collected. These were then carefully classified; remedies compounded from them and thoroughly tested by actual use for a long period under the supervision of a committee of expert chemists and physicians, until about three hundred different remedies were selected as being the best for the treatment of certain ailments or diseases.

We are now able to offer these remedies of known and proved curative value to the people of Peterborough. We will truthfully tell anybody all about them, explain what they contain, and give our own personal guarantee that they are and will do exactly as we represent, or they will cost the user nothing. These medicines are called "Rexall Remedies," which means "King-of-all. There is one special specific remedy for each human ill. Therefore no one remedy is a "cure-all."

We earnestly urge you, our neighbours, friends and acquaintances to use Rexall Remedies on our personal, positive guarantee that you pay us nothing if for any reason they do not prove entirely satisfactory to you. Now, you must realize that when we have this bold statement, we must be absolutely positive that we can back it up to the entire satisfaction of the public. Otherwise, we would lose your friendship and patronage, ruin our business and suffer a very severe financial loss.

We make this statement with a full understanding of what it means to us, and because we are certain we can make this bold statement, we must the Rexall Remedies, what they contain and their power to do great good for suffering mankind.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets was the first Rexall Remedy made. They are composed of the well known properties of Bismuth Subnitrate, Pepsin, Carminatives and their agents, in perfect combination. They are incomparable and invaluable for the positive cure of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic. We urge all in need of such a remedy to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets at our risk. Three sizes, 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

When you purchase Rexall Remedies, you are buying health insurance, and we do not believe we could sell you anything with a more secure and liberal guarantee. When you are in need of medicine, remember this offer and take advantage of it. McDermid and Jury.

"MY NAME IN MOTHER'S PRAYER"

But few who sing this beautiful hymn are aware of the facts that prompted the author. The Scottish American of this week gives the following details as to its origin and the good this hymn has done.

Years ago a little boy, passing by the open door where his mother was kneeling in prayer, caught, as he passed, a part of a sentence. It contained his name—"my little David." The boy was of a religious nature, and was in a home permeated by a distinctly religious atmosphere, yet until then he had given little real thought to the more serious things of life. But this incident touched him at the time, although not so deeply as afterward. Through the long years that followed he heard the echo in his heart of his name, ushered in the accents of solicitude and affection in his mother's prayer. He knew she prayed for him every day, of course, but the casual hearing of that name—his own name, David—came back to him in memory, and grew more tender as the years went on.

He grew to manhood, came to America and began life for himself in a great city. With the sobriety and honesty which one might expect in a boy trained as he had been, he began to make his way upward. In time he married, and by middle age had become a prosperous and well-known banker. Yet in all the years he had never forgotten the incident of his mother mentioning his name in her prayer.

One night he wrote some verses, and handed them to his wife. She sent them to a friend, who sent them to another friend, and he sent them to a noted preacher. The minister read them in a sermon, and they found their way into print without any name attached to them.

Nothing more was heard of the verses for perhaps ten years. Doctor Torrey and Mr. Alexander were then preaching in Scotland. One night Doctor Torrey announced that Mr. Alexander would sing a new song, entitled, "My Name in Mother's Prayer." He said the author was unknown.

So Mr. Alexander sang the song which contains the lines—

"And in quiet eventide
I passed her kneeling there,
That just one word—my name—I heard,
My name in mother's prayer."

On the platform sat an Aberdeen minister, who, at the close of the meeting, said, "I know that incident, and the author of those lines can be no other than my brother, who is a banker in America."

It was news to the banker when he learned from his brother that his little poem had become a popular Gospel song, and he was rather glad than otherwise that his name had not been signed to stanzas so intimate and personal, and it is his own reluctance to further publicity that causes the withholding of his name from this narrative. But those who have heard the song will be glad to know that it came out of the heart of a busy man, who through the many years that had passed since that boyhood event never ceased to hear and he moved by the echo of his own name in the prayer of his mother.

That kneeling form, those folded hands,
Have vanished into dust;
But still with me for aye shall be
The memory of her trust.
And when I cross dark Jordan's tide,
And meet her over there,
We'll praise the Lord, who blessed that word—
My name in mother's prayer.

POST CARD COLUMN.

Peterboorugh, April 18.

Sir,—The Toronto Telegram on Saturday night used rather rabid language of the advocates of free trade and trying to show that England would be more prosperous with protection, says that at Hanley, Staffordshire, in January, the cry was heard, "We used to get the best bacon for sixpence. Now we have to pay ten and twelve pence a pound." What is the reason of the higher price? The shortage in supplies from the United States, largely owing to the increase in population, and also to the higher price of maize and other feeding stuffs. Therefore, according to the Telegram, high price under protection in the States is an argument in disfavour of free trade in England.

Tom, Tom, the piper's son,
Stole a pig, and away he ran,
The pig was eat, and Tom was arrested but the judge said it was a shame to punish him while the (alleged) beef trust was at large, so he discharged him with a reprimand, and Tom went roaring down the street.

Editor of The Examiner:

I trust I will not be considered as meddling with the affairs of others, when I write a few words regarding the installation of chimes in St. John's church tower. It seems to me not merely a congregational affair, but rather a matter of civic interest. Everybody would benefit by it; special and public occasions could be emphasized by the joyous pealing of the chimes and the Lord's Day greatly enhanced by the sweet sound of hymns of praise peeled forth from God's house.

Therefore, I would like to see the good people of Peterborough give every possible support to the undertaking.

E. A. LANGFELDT.

THE MATRON OF ST. SULPICE

A Short Story.

"The mountains wear crowns of glory
Only when seen from afar,
And the sails loose all of their whiteness
Inside of the harbor bar."

"That, Patricia," Roof Chiswick laughed, "is the poet's way of putting the world's opinion. Commoner mortals have a less pretty way of saying the same thing. 'All is not gold that glitters. Now, I——"

Patricia Fanning pulled up her horse with an impatient tug of her gauntleted hand, turning in her saddle until she faced her companion. "Roof" she said earnestly, "I don't know what to think when you talk like that. Your tone is distinctly flippant, quite as if you were addressing a woman with a schoolgirl's judgment. Surely you don't think of me——"

"Patricia," he protested earnestly, "surely you don't think of me——"

They both laughed and the situation became a little less strained, but at the end of a smart gallop the conversation was resumed.

"I tried to tell you," Patricia said with a quiver in her voice, "just how I felt, I can't explain further, for I don't myself quite understand. It's as I imagine a man, young and strong, with life spreading before him feels."

"What is it you want, dear?" Roof Chiswick's hand closed upon hers clinched upon the pommel of her saddle. "I didn't mean to be flippant, I only——"

"I know, I know," she cried, impatient again. "I don't care for that. Help me, if you can, to understand myself. Money! to me it's nothing! A life of ease has not the slightest attraction. Neither has society. Not one of the things that appeals to my girl friends appeals to me. I want to achieve, to try my mettle. I want the failures and successes that men have. I want an identity, my life to be worth while.'"

"Patricia," he reproached, "don't you love me?"

"What has love to do with it?" she flashed at him. "You love me, but you are not changing the plans of your life in consequence, are you? Why, then, should I change mine?"

"I can't argue, Patricia, I wish I could. Or, rather, I wish I could say what's in my heart. A woman's place is——"

He stopped in consternation. A quick turn of Patricia's wrist had brought her horse to his haunches, and her eyes, suddenly big and black, stared at him from a white face. Her voice, coming in gasps, was the merest whisper, but every syllable was clean cut as a crystal.

"And that is your plan for—me—that old myth of woman's sphere——"

Wih the sentence unfinished, her lips pressed together, a distinct, purplish line. She turned slowly, her eyes leaving his and abstractedly following the road before them. After a minute she raised her whip and would have dashed away only that he laid a firm hand on her rein.

"Pat, dear," he said gently, "how strange you are to-day. Surely you are not afraid of a future with me. Everything, I promise, that heart can desire shall be yours if it's in my power to give. Trust me, dear."

"You don't understand." The bright, eager face looked old and hopeless, and the strong young shoulders had a weary droop. Roof Chiswick saw and caught his breath.

"You don't mean—Patricia! We've known each other always. You wouldn't—you'd break my heart!"

"I must have till to-morrow, Roof. To-morrow," she repeated when he would have remonstrated, and before he could speak again her whip had fallen and she was darting down the road and off among the trees.

Roof Chiswick watched with gloomy eyes, not attempting to follow. "We've loved each other so long, and now—no, I won't doubt her. Her heart's in the right place. Dear little Pat," he finished, more cheerfully, and rode home fairly at ease, future happiness built upon knowledge of his sweetheart's love and loyalty. Another man, less obtuse, might have thought only of the keen, alert eyes and tensed nerves, and made himself miserable with doubts. Not so Roof Chiswick.

With their marriage, which occurred almost at once, Roof nearly forgot that he had ever had misgivings. His interests immediately became hers. She entered into his ambitions and together they worked them out. She was a model wife and mother and if she had one care or one wish ungratified Roof Chiswick didn't suspect it.

Sometimes, though, when he noticed the little puckers of worry on her face and the look of unrest gradually becoming habitual, he would hold her close and say: "You're growing old almost too soon, Pat. I don't like it. You've too many irons in the fire. Now, there are the children and me, and your club and church work. This last fad, a children's hospital—St. Sulpice, isn't it?—let it go, won't you—at least for the pres——"

But Patricia was instantly alarmed. "Oh, not that, Roof—and not a fad. I wish I had even more time to give. My heart is in it. Besides, I am not in the least fagged. You are oversolicitous."

And Roof's fears were quieted, perhaps because of his confidence in Patricia, who was always level and cool, and not in the least given to nerves, but chiefly from lack of time for thought.

He was himself a man of many irons. Money, with its attendant responsibilities, swelled his bank account in business circles. Frequent mention was made of him as a financier of extraordinary ability, and speculators began to copy his methods. He was vastly flattered.

After all the public, whose business it was to know, might be right in crediting him with unusual judgment and business acumen. Finally, the belief that it was right possessed him, and one day, with a face like a dead man's, he started home to tell Patricia of great losses, utter financial ruin.

Just how it happened no one exactly knew. According to the testimony of a conductor and motorman, Chiswick had suddenly staggered and sunk down directly in front of the car, and too late for it to be stopped. There were severe bruises, but it was a skull fracture that made recovery so long doubtful.

Afterward there were awful days, when the body strengthened but the mind remained a blank—days of agony even when the failure was old enough to be forgotten except by those who suffered. There were days, too, when Patricia's heart almost burst from fear of the future.

That was before a reaction came and the old-time dreams of independence and individual effort returned. But they came, modified, shorn of glamour and entirely matter-of-fact, fused and welded in one ambition, keeping her family together.

When the failure was more than a year in the past Roof Chiswick surprised his friends by suddenly arriving at himself. Clear as crystal, his mind returned up to that point when he became dizzy and fell in the car track. After that there was nothing, not even vagueness. The shock of learning of his accident and subsequent condition was almost too great, but greater yet, and more humiliating, was the fact that the hospital which Patricia's broad sympathies had fostered was sponsor for their every comfort.

The long rest of brain and body had armed Chiswick for a fresh effort, and there were men of means who had faith in him. The matter of finding employment was one of small difficulty. He was keen for the fray again, even without the spur of relieving Patricia from what he called her "drudgery."

When that day came he received the surprise of his life. Patricia's eyes held a look he had never seen there, her voice even had a new ring.

"I'm sorry, Roof," she said, evenly, "if you are not pleased, but I shall go on. The position of matron is, possibly, not just what I might have chosen if there had been a choice, but there wasn't. Extremity thrust it in my way and I was grateful. Now I have grown to love it. Nothing would induce me to go back to the other life, Roof."

"Not even my love, Patricia?"

"Of course not," she laughed, "for of that you can't deprive me. But Roof," she said seriously, "you must understand me. It's the trying, the doing, that I want. The life you would give me, beautiful in many ways, yet misses the essence, the real heart of living usefulness. If you remember, I once told you I wasn't like most other women, and tried to talk to you about my hopes and plans. Roof, because my love was stronger than desire for independence, I gave them up. It's different now, dear. I shall go on."

And Roof Chiswick, dumb, looking at his wife, recalled many things he had been too blind to see or understand, and St. Sulpice retained its matron.

THAT WASN'T ALL

A novelty-filled musical comedy is "The Soul Kiss," which will make its initial appearance in this city at the Grand Opera House on Monday, April 25th. Unlike many other musical comedies, "The Soul Kiss" does not depend upon one number or novelty alone to insure its success, but from the rise of the first curtain to the finale of the last act, it is filled to the brim with overflowing comedy lines and situations, startling novelties and pleasing melodies. Too much cannot be said in praise of the beautiful and finished music of composer Maurice Levi. The entrancing melodies of Harry B. Smith, and such song numbers as "When the Swallows Return in the Spring," "That Wasn't All," "Affinity," "Let's Pretend," "The Human Night-Key," "Very Well Then," "Any Old place in the World with You," and "My Diabolo Beau" are bound to be whistled by all the theatre-goers. "The Soul Kiss" is filled with novelties which in themselves are enough to make it popular. The cast is headed by Mlle. Pertina, a sensational Parisienne danseuse, who has been brought from Paris to appear in the principal role of "The Dancer." A competent supporting company of seventy-five funmakers has been provided for, each member of which handles his or her role in a very efficient manner. So, altogether, "The Soul Kiss" has everything in its favour for a successful engagement in this city.

TALIAN IMMIGRATION INTO CANADA INCREASES

Rome, April 17.—The Italian emigration authorities have been for some time studying the possibility of encouraging emigration to Canada. With this object an attempt was made recently to discover how many Italians emigrate at present to the Dominion. At the present time the figures relating to the total number of foreign immigrants yearly entering Canada do not afford any indication regarding their nationality. The Canadian authorities place immigrants in two categories, English speaking and non-English speaking. The former average 75 per cent of the total. Therefore the number of Italian immigrants would seem to be very low. A majority of the Italians bound for Canada, however, pass through the United States and may therefore be often included under the category of English-speaking. So far as the Italian authorities have ascertained, between 1900 and 1909 about 57,000 Italians emigrated to Canada. By comparing these figures with those of the last census in 1901, when the Italians in Canada numbered only 10,834, proof is afforded that Italian immigration to Canada is increasing.

ENJOYABLE "AT HOME"

Court Langton C. O. F. Had a Delightful Programme Last Evening.

A most enjoyable "At Home" was held last evening in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, under the auspices of Court Langton. Mr. W. Stevens occupied the chair, and the following programme was rendered:

Gramaphone selection—Mr. Sanderford.
Recitation—Miss Hill.
Banjo selection—Mr. F. Clarke.
Swinging clubs—Mr. Lily, accompanied by Mr. Frauter, on the mouth organ.
Exhibition in skipping—Mr. Lily.

About ten o'clock ample justice was done to the supper prepared by Bros. J. Gray, B. Johnson, and T. Logan, assisted by Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Sanderford.

A vote of thanks to all who assisted in making the At Home such a huge success, was responded to by Mr. W. Stevens.

The singing of the national anthem brought the evening's entertainment to a close, about 11 o'clock.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, is it certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the healthful condition.

WESTON AT BUFFALO

Veteran Walker Gets a Grand Reception.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 18.—Accompanied by a squad of mounted police, representatives of athletic clubs and scores of enthusiasts afoot and in automobiles, who met him at the city line, Edward Payson Weston, the veteran long-distance pedestrian, reached his hotel on Main street in this city, at 12.45 to-day. He had negotiated 52 miles of muddy roads from Fredonia since midnight, and held his record at sixteen days ahead of the 90-day schedule between Los Angeles and New York city.

Noontime crowds cheered him along the city streets, and several thousand people thronged the vicinity of his hotel, where awaited him a banquet arranged by city officials, business and club men. Weston said he was in "fine form." He looked it.

OBITUARY

DANIEL SHEEHAN.

Mt. Irwin, April 18.—The sad death occurred on Tuesday morning, March 29th, at nine o'clock at the family residence, lot 17, con. 10, Galway, of Mr. Daniel Sheehan, one of the best known and highly respected gentlemen of that section. The deceased had been in poor health for a long time, and was taken to his bed some six months ago and was never able to be about again. Although having been sick so long, his death came as a great shock to the whole community. Mr. Sheehan had for some fourteen years been tax collector and assessor. While engaged in this he contracted a severe cold, from which he never gained his good health, and he had to retire from his position some two years ago owing to ill health. He was an expert in the business and was well liked by all whom he came in contact with during his many years of experience, and no doubt would have held his position for many years had it not been for the loss of his health. Mr. Sheehan was well known and a highly respected gentleman throughout the whole county of Peterborough. In dealings he was an honest, upright man, in religion a Roman Catholic and a staunch Liberal. Mr. Sheehan was born in Douro fifty years ago, where he was also well known and when a young man he came to Galway and has been resident ever since. Twenty eight years ago he married Miss Margaret Allen, who predeceased him some seventeen years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss a family of four, three boys and one girl. They are Messrs. James, Edward and Dennis and Miss Mary all at home, and who will ever mourn the loss of a kind and loving father, and were all with him at the time of his death. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Edward Cain, and one brother, Mr. Edward Sheehan. They are also of Galway. The funeral was held on Thursday morning at nine o'clock, followed by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends to St. Mary's church, Galway, where requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father P. J. Galvin, after which the remains were interred in their last resting place in St. Mary's cemetery. To the grief-stricken family we extend our heartfelt sympathy in this, the hour of their sad bereavement. May his soul rest in peace.

MILLING INDUSTRY

Toronto is vying with Montreal to be the headquarters of some of the largest Canadian Milling concerns. It is indicated by the developments that have occurred during the past few weeks in Toronto, resulting in the entrance into the Milling industry of some of the biggest of the younger capitalists of the Queen City. It is understood that two of the largest Ontario companies have been acquired as going concerns and that the investment of a large amount of additional cash capital will enable the new Company when arrangements have been completed to go ahead with the erection at a point in Ontario of what will be one of the largest and most modern mills there is in Canada.

The rivalry that has always existed between Toronto and Montreal in the larger financial transactions will result in the developments in connection with the new consolidation being watched with a great deal of interest.

FAITH IN CANADA

Mr. Robt. Meighen is Shareholder in Companies Other Than His Own.

An indication of the great faith that the leading milling interests in the country have in Canadian, as well as in their own concerns, is indicated by the fact that Mr. Robert Meighen, who is the president of the widely known Lake of the Woods Milling Company, in addition to being a very large shareholder in his own concern, is also a shareholder in the three other largest Canadian milling concerns, namely, The Ogilvies Flour Mills Company, the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, and the Western Flour Mills Company. Mr. Meighen down in Montreal has the reputation of being one of the most careful and shrewdest investors on the local street, and that he should have decided to become a shareholder in rival concerns, as well as his own, must be regarded as rather significant of the great belief he has in the milling industry of the country.

FIFTY-FIVE DROWNED

Steamer Samara Strikes a Rock Off Coast of Australia and Goes Down With All Her Crew On Board.

LOST IN BREAKERS

Special to The Examiner.

Newcastle, N.S., April 20.—The Steamer Samara crashed on the rock of Seal island, off the coast of Australia and went down within a few minutes to-day. Although the fate of the crew of fifty-five is not definitely known, all hands are believed to have been lost when the vessel went down in the breakers over the rocks. The Samara, whose master was Capt. A. Clide, was a British steamer of 2,030 tons, hailing from Glasgow. Her owners were Maclay and McIntyre. She was built in 1906. She was of steel, single screwed and three cylinder triple expansion engines of a nominal horse power of 280. Her destination was Singapore.

PROGRAMME OF RECEPTION TO BE GIVEN HIS EXCELLENCY EARL GREY

Arrangements Have Been Completed for Governor-General's Visit Here on Saturday—Will be Met by Mayor Morrow and City Council.

NO GUARD OF HONOUR

The arrangements for the reception to His Excellency Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada, on the occasion of his visit here on Saturday, have been completed. The reception committee of the City Council held a meeting last evening but the arrangements were not finally decided until this morning. There will be no guard of honour. His Excellency having expressed the desire that there be none. The Vice-Regal party consisting of His Excellency Earl Grey, the Earl of Lanesborough, Military Secretary, and Capt. Fife, A.D.C., will arrive here on the 11.26 C.P.R. train from Toronto. They will be met at the station by Mayor Morrow and the members of the City Council, after which they will proceed to the Canadian General works, where they will be shown through the plant by the Superintendent, Mr. E. G. Patterson. The Governor General expressed the wish that he would like to see the works and Mr. Patterson very kindly consented to keep the men working until one o'clock. From there they will go to the Quaker Oats Co. mills, where Mr. W. H. Denham, the superintendent, has extended the same courtesy as Mr. Patterson. At half past one luncheon will be served at the Oriental, at which, in addition to the distinguished visitors, there will be present, the members of the civic bodies. At three o'clock they will go to Central Park where an address of welcome will be read to His Excellency by Mayor Morrow. Following the proceedings at the Park, the party will drive to the Wolfe St. wharf, where they will go on board the "Bessie Butler" for a trip up the canal and over the Lift Lock. The Vice-Regal party will return to their own car for dinner, and in the evening will be present at the presentation of the "Geisha" at the Grand Opera House.

Opening Of New T. A. S. Hall Appearance Of Miss Margaret McCann

No artist has appeared in Peterborough for some time who has the ability to please audiences as Miss Margaret McCann, the famous Scottish-American soprano, who is appearing at the two concerts given at the opening of the new T. A. S. hall on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, April 27th and 28th. The following notices will give some idea as to her popularity, wherever she has appeared:

Hallowe'en Concert, Montreal.

Miss McCann sang for us last night at our 52nd Annual Hallowe'en concert. Her true accent was adapted to the good old songs which were much appreciated, and both her voice and manner carried the large audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. I can speak of her as a talented artist, who gave strength to our programme. Mr. J. Albert McLean, chairman of the concert committee, desires me to add that he heartily endorses these personal views in every particular.

Yours truly,
WM. McNAB,
President Caledonian Society, Montreal.

Pittsburg, Pa.

The recital given by Miss Margaret McCann last night fulfilled all the expectations which her coming had aroused. Miss McCann possesses a splendid mezzo-soprano voice, which was heard to advantage in the large auditorium. She is much more than a remarkably accomplished singer: she possesses a warmth of temperament, a charm of interpretation that grips the emotions of the audience. Her vocal efforts certainly were highly entertaining to her hundreds of hearers last night.

Fort William Morning Herald.

The singing of Miss McCann was the feature of the programme. She is easily the greatest singer of Scottish songs that has been heard here. The songs were gems of natural talent set in pure gold of dramatic merit.

Musical Judge Praises "The Geisha" Performance

The following report from Mr. Brockway, the musical judge of the Earl Grey Competition, has been forwarded through the secretary to Mr. R. J. Devey to-day. It reads as follows:

Peterborough Operatic Co., — The performance of an act of "The Geisha" by this organization on Tuesday evening, April 5th, calls for enthusiastic commendation. To organize from amateur ranks in a town of the size of Peterborough a company which could give so creditable performance is an achivement which arouses admiration and sincere praise. The performance brought forward one singer of most remarkable quality, possessed of an exquisite voice, a fine musical sense and histrionic ability. The general spirit of the performance and the singing of the chorus in particular impressed me as remarkable and in the highest degree praiseworthy. I am moved to suggest to His Excellency that if it is practicable that this organization should in some public way receive honourable mention."

ONE OF FEW TO MAKE MONEY BY RACING

Los Angeles, April 16.—To the surprise of the business world, which predicted a scatterment of his holdings to the four winds when E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin died, his estate has been saved from the financial rock and the enormous and world-famous Baldwin debts have been practically cleared away. The heirs will be richer than the old man ever dreamed. The estate is estimated as worth $15,000,000 to-day.

The first annual report of Executor Unruh will show that the poorest land has been sold for $1,200,000, and $2,000,000 more worth of sales are in sight to lift mortgages. The Santa Anita ranch is intact. The estate has been converted from a white elephant into a vast paying enterprise. There is now a larger bank account than "Lucky" ever had available. The estate will soon be ready for distribution.

Unruh had gone minutely into all Baldwin's books and says he finds that the public was wrong in the belief that "Lucky" sunk an immense fortune in fast horses. He was one of the few who ever made money out of a racing stable. Unruh declares the racing books, after twenty years, many of them disastrous, showed a balance of $250,000 twelve years ago, and this did not include any of the large bets which the old turf king usually won. The Emperor of Norfolk alone earned him $150,000; the mare Los Angeles and Roy El Santa Anita $100,000 each.

The racing stables have been already turned into a profitable breeding farm by Unruh, pending a decision by the heirs regarding the continuance of "Lucky's" favourite sport, the finest horses being retained.

The estate will be assessed the largest inheritance tax ever paid in California—probably between $250,000 and $300,000.

For about one-fifth of the price we pay we could get hops that would make an ordinary lager beer. But we select the finest Saaz hops for REGAL Lager, because we have built its reputation by its merit alone. Try it.

BOY IS A PREACHER AT AGE OF FIFTEEN

Weirs, N.H., April 16.—The youngest preacher in New England is Milan Smith, who is fifteen years old and a member of the Laconia high school. He holds services in a small community known as The Oaks and has just completed a half year of his pastorate over a hundred people.

Smith is the son of William Smith, a railroad labourer, and always has been proficient in Bible lore. As a child he even dreamed of his religious heroes, and when he was six years old he decided to become a minister. At fourteen he became superintendent of Laconia Sunday school, and now is a full-fledged pastor.

He is a disciple of "The New Religion," and believes in a panacea for all religious ills.

POSTAL GROWTH.

Nothing, perhaps, except the yield of wheat shows more strikingly the wonderful progress of the Canadian west than the figures of postal progress. The number of post offices opened, being roughly, the measure of settlement progress, has increased more than three hundred per cent. in the present fourteen years. In 1896 the number of Canadian post offices west of Lake Superior, was 786. To-day, the number is 2,360, including twenty in the shadow of the north pole, the Yukon. The post office department has followed up and met the needs created by settlement, and in other respects has made postal progress. Rural mail delivery, one of whose conditions of success is density of settlement, has made considerable progress. Free rural mail delivery routes have been established to the number of 335, of which 240 are in the Province of Ontario, in districts with the greatest density of population.

THE MINISTER AND HIS ESTIMATES.

The fact that on Monday Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, got through the estimates of his department to the amount of nearly half a million dollars is a tribute to the excellent administration of his department. He was at all times subject to interruption, more than criticism, from the Conservative Opposition on the committee. He was plied with gratuitously un-pertinent questions, and was made the object of attack of an apparently, organized heckling campaign, in which the aim of the Opposition hecklers, whose often frivolous questions created an air of sophisticated expectancy among his colleagues, provoked an applause in inverse proportion to the pointlessness and impertinence. But Mr. Fisher met these tactics with perfect courtesy, and kept before the committee what his opponents had, apparently, lost sight of, the interests of the great agricultural community of Canada.

MR. HALL JUSTIFIED.

On Monday our evening contemporary criticized a statement made by Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., at Norwood, to the effect that, to permit of the tariff settlement arrived at between Canada and the United States, the latter country made concessions, and in effect denies that any concessions were made. Regarding the matter from the point of view of fact, and not mere definition the United States made important concessions. That country surrendered the right to impose a surtax of 25 per cent. on Canadian imports that would have been prohibition, of many forms of exchange between the two countries, and would, for the time being, have produced intense trade unsettlement and positive end, in some cases, disastrous, in jury to many Canadian enterprises. The admission was practically made by the United States, that Canada was not hostile in the matter of trade relations. Another equivalent of an important concession was the offer of the President of the United States, to open negotiations for a consideration of reciprocal trade arrangements between this country and our neighbours—an almost humiliating concession in view of the firm and steadfast attitude Canada had taken to not initiate such negotiations. As a matter of fact and not of definition Canada made no concessions to the United States specifically. She made a slight tariff reduction on a dozen or so articles, in which a dozen or so countries can share. The United States was also permitted to share and accepted this as a concession, to which they are welcome, as far as its importance upon the trade of Canada and Canadian revenue is concerned. As a result, we have tariff peace and are relieved of the disastrous consequences which would necessarily come from a state of tariff war.

FORESTRY.

The Montreal Witness in an article on Forestry, says:

With the wasteful example of the United States to point a moral, Canada has at length engaged earnestly in the matter of forest conservation, and has at last overcome the habit of centuries during which 'mankind was prone to regard forests mainly as arenas for wholesale and wanton destruction.' We have at last been taught clearly to know the effect of forests upon rainfall and temperature, their value in preventing the denudation of soil, the large part they play in the control of rivers and in the preservation of moisture. Knowing all this, and recognizing that our forests are valuable assets, both by reason of the revenue they produce and the many other direct and indirect benefits they confer upon us, if we do not do our utmost to preserve them, check their reckless exploitation and develop speedily an efficient forestry system throughout the length and breadth of Canada, we shall be foolish and wicked, indeed. As the United States, which to-day consumes three times as much timber as the country annually produces, is the 'horrible example,' so Germany which leads the way in scientific forestry, is the admirable inspiration. The splendid woodlands of Germany are now possessions of incalculable value, and they have been largely under control for a century. Austria-Hungary, too, has an efficient forestry system, as has France; and Russia, and Norway and Sweden are bringing their forests under scientific control.

The importance of forestry, as far as Canada is concerned, is emphasized by results of its neglect in the past. If, fifty years ago, Canada had entered upon the system of conservation now proposed and partially put into practice; if practical forestry had been followed out, the present area and value of our timber would be as great to-day as it was half a century ago; and we should have perhaps at the same time realized nearly as much in the form of national wealth by timber operations. There is no doubt that our lumbering operations, in addition to being necessarily destructive, have been wasteful; we have destroyed as much as we have harvested. Instead of older Ontario being tree-bare, wind swept, and subject to violent weather charges, tornadic and soil destroying rainfalls and protracted serious of droughts, we should have gentle, regular and beneficient rainfalls and general climatic conditions favourable to the best agricultural results. We are just beginning to realize how reckless and foolish we have been in the matter of forest destruction and of neglect of forest conservation methods and, though in this regard we cannot equal the United States, we can pose as a fairly good second. But we are doing better. Preceding, and the present, governments have set apart millions of acres of forest reserves, whose value will depend upon the manner in which they are administered. The value will be lessened in proportion as the wasteful methods of the past are allowed to obtain. Not only is conservation to be regarded as indicated, but reforestation on an elaborate scale is demanded. All over the older provinces there are scattered acres—millions of acres, in the aggregate—of waste lands, once covered with dense tree growth; now they are naked and waste. The soil is of little or no value for cultivation, but is capable of growing trees. A slight attempt is being made in the way of tree planting in these areas, but it is not sufficiently extensive or energetic. If these areas were planted with the proper variety of trees, they would in a few years be the most valuable portions of the farms or districts of which they now form barren and useless appendages..

The Witness goes on to say, referring to an article by the London Times on Empire Forestry:

"For the backward condition of Canada in regard to scientific forestry, the 'Times' makes the 'reasonable excuse' that the rainfall and water supply are not seriously affected and that 'the vast areas under timber have possibly justified a somewhat reckless process 'of clearance.' This cannot, however, 'continue indefinitely.''

It has continued too long already. But, the outlook is improving. Newfoundland we are told, is considering questions of forest conservation and in this regard is now, with her forest resources, comparatively intact, where Canada should have been fifty years ago. But the Canadian Forestry Association is moving rapidly in the conduct of an educational campaign. There is need, however, for practical and energetic work. The sooner a new forest stand is created and economical modes of lumbering adopted, with a view of reserving and preserving every trunk of young timber for future growth, the sooner will the country receive the tremendous advantages possible.

A Monument to Tecumseh.

Toronto, April 20.—That a public subscription list should be inaugurated for the erection of a monument to the great Indian chief Tecumseh, same to be unveiled in 1912, the centenary of the war in which he played such a great part in saving Canada to the crown, is the timely and patriotic suggestion of F. O. Loft, himself a prominent representative of the Six Nations' Indians.

It was Tecumseh, chief of the Shawnees, whose efforts united the various tribes as allies of the British. Military writers have since declared that had it not been for this valuable aid, that the United States forces would have triumphed. Tecumseh was killed in battle at Thamesville in 1813.

Mr. Loft's idea is that a statue should be erected in Queen's Park, as the centre of the province.

The Canadian clubs will be asked to consider the proposal.

Knocks For Balfour.

London, April 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Canadian Associated Press has heard that agricultural societies in England are likely to protest against Balfour's proposal to admit colonial wheat free.

G. N. Broomhill, the well-known trade statistician, expressed the opinion that one effect of exemption would be to disappoint British agriculturists and offend American; another would be the production of inferior flour, as the British miller would be unable to make as good flour out of colonial as out of the combination of colonial and foreign.

Constable Kicked to Death.

Vancouver, April 20.—Answering a summons for aid by railway officials, Constable Lane was killed Monday evening by a band of hoboes numbering at least seven, who had boarded the Seattle express as it pulled out of the Canadian side of Sumas.

The constable boarded a southbound train and met the express two stations south of Mission. The hoboes were seated at their ease and defying the conductor in the smoking-car when the constable arrived. He at once ordered them off, but his orders were met with a volley of oaths. The constable seeing that further parley was useless, resorted to force, and with the help of the train crew grabbed two of the men and rushed them towards the door.

In the melee which followed, the constable was thrown to the floor and was lost to view. The brakeman, conductor and fireman finally succeeded in getting rid of the men, who, by this time had taken up their position on the vestibule. A hasty examination of the constable on the floor revealed injuries inflicted by may feet. He died later.

The three men have been arrested and charged with murder.

They Married In Haste.

Brantford, April 20.—The Penman Co., the big woollen manufacturers of Paris, are minus one of their English girls to-day, and thereby hangs a romance.

One day last week a man, apparently 25 years old, secured employment at the mills. Looking over the factory girls, of whom there are about a thousand, he singled one out, asked her address, called on her Friday night, and married her on Saturday afternoon. The couple left that evening for their new home in Seattle, Washington, where the young man, who gave his name as George West, is said to be a civil engineer.

The girl was a Miss McMillan, who came out from England only three weeks ago. The groom, who secured employment merely to pick out a wife, refunded to the Penman Co. $60, the amount of the passage money which had been advanced to bring the girl to this country.

Specifications of the White Gasoline Car

CHAPTER I.

It is not difficult for any student of motor car progress to recognize the QUALITY of the White gasoline car and to note its superiority over all other cars of moderate price. For example, the White is fitted with :

Long Stroke Engine

Giving increased power, greater flexibility, and lower gasoline consumption.

Four-speed Transmission

Instead of the cheaper and less efficient three-speed transmission.

Honeycomb Radiator

Crucible Chrome-nickel Steel Frame

Instead of the cheaper and weaker carbon steel frame.

Bosch Magneto

Instead of a cheaper and less reliable make.

Upholstery of Hand-buffed Leather

So it goes throughout the White car—the best materials which money can buy are used in every part. In fact, if the selling price of the White were one thousand dollars greater, there is no part of the car which could be built better or of more expensive material.

Armitage found a faint trail and with Claiborne struck off into the forest near the main gate of his own grounds. In less than an hour they rode out upon a low wooded ridge and drew up their panting, sweating horses—two shadowy videttes against the lustral dome of stars. A keen wind whistled across the ridge, and the horses pawed the unstable ground restlessly. The men jumped down to tighten their saddle girths, and they turned up their coat collars before mounting again.

"Come! We're on the verge of morning," said Armitage, "and there's no time to lose."

Chapter XXIV

THE ATTACK IN THE ROAD.

"THERE'S an abandoned lumber camp down here if I'm not mistaken, and if we've made the right turns we ought to be south of Lamar and near the railroad."

Armitage passed his rein to Claiborne and plunged down the steep road to reconnoiter.

"It's a strange business," Claiborne muttered, half aloud.

The cool air of the ridge sobered him, but he reviewed the events of the night without regret. Every young officer in the service would envy him this adventure. He was so intent with the thought that he hummed reveille and was about to rebuke himself for unsoldierly behavior on duty when Armitage whistled for him to advance.

"It's all right; they haven't passed yet. I met a railroad track walker down there, and he said he had seen no one between here and Lamar. Now they're handicapped by the big country horse they had to take for that Servian devil, and we can push them as hard as we like. We must get them beyond Lamar before we crowd them, and don't forget that we want to drive them into my land for the round up. I'm afraid we're going to have a wet morning."

They rode abreast beside the railroad through the narrow gap. A long freight train rumbled and rattled by, and a little later they passed a coal shaft, where a begrimed night shift loaded cars under flaring torches.

"Their message to Winkelried is still on this side of the Atlantic," said Armitage, "but Winkelried is in a strong room by this time if the existing powers at Vienna are what they ought to be. I've done my best to get him there. The message would only help the case against him if they sent it."

Claiborne groaned mockingly.

"I suppose I'll know what it's all about when I read it in the morning papers. I like the game well enough, but it might be more amusing to know what I'm fighting for."

"You enlisted without reading the articles of war, and you've got to take the consequences. You've done what you set out to do, you've found me, and you're traveling with me over the Virginia mountains to report my capture to Baron von Marhof. On the way you are going to assist in another affair that will be equally to your credit, and then if all goes well with us I'm going to give myself the pleasure of allowing M. Chauvenet to tell you exactly who I am. The incident appeals to my sense of humor. I assure you I have one. Of course if I were not a person of very great distinction Chauvenet and his friend Durand would not have crossed the ocean and brought with them a professional assassin, skilled in the use of smothering and knifing, to do away with me. You are in luck to be alive. We are dangerously near the same size and build and in the dark, on horseback"—

"That was funny. I knew that if I ran for it they'd plug me for sure and that if I waited until they saw their mistake they would be afraid to kill me. Ugh! I still taste the red soil of the Old Dominion."

"Come, captain, let us give the horses a chance to prove their blood. These roads will be paste in a few hours."

The dawn was breaking sullenly, and out of a gray, low hanging mist a light rain fell in the soft, monotonous fashion of mountain rain. Much of the time it was necessary to maintain single file, and Armitage rode ahead. The fog grew thicker as they advanced, but they did not lessen their pace, which had now dropped to a steady trot.

Suddenly, as they swept on beyond Lamar, they hear the beat of hoofs and halted.

"Bully for us! We've cut in ahead of them! Can you count them, Claiborne?"

"There are three horses all right enough, and they're forcing the beasts. What's the word?"

"Drive them back! Ready—here we go!" roared Armitage in a voice intended to be heard.

They yelled at the top of their voices as they charged, plunging into the advancing trio after a forty yard gallop.

"'Not later than Friday'—back you go!" shouted Armitage and laughed aloud at the enemy's rout. One of the horses—it seemed from its rider's yells to be Chauvenet's—turned and bolted, and the others followed back the way they had come.

Soon their drumming hoofs [illegible] trot, but the trio continued to fly before them.

"They're rattled," said Claiborne, "and the fog isn't helping them any."

"We're getting close to my place," said Armitage, and as he spoke two shots fired in rapid succession cracked faintly through the fog, and they jerked up their horses.

"It's Oscar! He's a good way ahead if I judge the shots right."

"If he turns them back, we ought to hear their horses in a moment," observed Claiborne. "The fog muffles sounds. The road's pretty level in here."

"We must let them out of it and into my territory for safety. We're within a mile of the gate, and we ought to be able to crowd them into that long open strip where the fences are down. Hang the fog!"

The agreed signal of two shots reached them again, but clearer, like drum taps, and was immediately answered by scattering shots. A moment later, as the two riders moved forward at a walk, a sharp volley rang out quite clearly, and they heard shots and the crack of revolvers again.

"By George, they're coming! Here we go!"

They put their horses to the gallop and rode swiftly through the fog. The beat of hoofs was now perfectly audible ahead of them, and they heard quite distinctly a single revolver snap twice.

"Oscar has them on the run. Bully for Oscar! They're getting close. Thank the Lord for this level stretch! Now bowl and let 'er go!"

They went forward, with a yell that broke weirdly and chokingly on the gray cloak of fog, their horses' hoofs pounding dully on the earthen road. The rain had almost ceased, but enough had fallen to soften the ground.

"They're terribly brave or horribly scared, from their speed!" shouted Claiborne. "Now for it!"

They rose in their stirrups and charged, yelling lustily, riding neck and neck toward the unseen foe, and, with their horses at their highest pace, they broke upon the mounted trio that now rode upon them grayly out of the mist.

There was a mad snorting and shrinking of horses. One of the animals turned and tried to bolt, and his rider, struggling to control him, added to the confusion. The fog shut them in with each other, and Armitage and Claiborne, having flung back their own horses at the onset, had an instant's glimpse of Chauvenet trying to swing his horse into the road, of Zmai half turning as his horse reared to listen for the foe behind and of Durand's immovable white face as he straddled his horse with his left hand and leveled a revolver at Armitage with his right.

With a cry Claiborne put spurs to his horse and drove him forward upon Durand. His hand knocked the leveled revolver flying into the fog. Then Zmai fired twice, and Chauvenet's frightened horse, panic stricken at the shots, reared, swung round and dashed back the way he had come, and Durand and Zmai followed.

The three disappeared into the mist, and Armitage and Claiborne shook themselves together and quieted their horses.

"That was too close for fun. Are you all there?" asked Armitage.

"Still in it, but Chauvenet's friend won't miss every time. There's murder in his eye. The big fellow seemed to be trying to shoot his own horse."

"Oh, he's a knife and sack man and clumsy with the gun."

They moved slowly forward now, and Armitage sent his horse across the rough ditch at the roadside to get his bearings. The fog seemed at the point of breaking, and the mass about them shifted and drifted in the growing light.

"This is my land, sure enough. Lord, man, I wish you'd get out of this and go home. You see, they're an ugly lot and don't use toy pistols."

"Remember the potato sack! That's my watchword," laughed Claiborne.

They rode with their eyes straight ahead, peering through the breaking, floating mist. It was now so clear and light that they could see the wood at either hand, though fifty yards ahead in every direction the fog still lay like a barricade.

MARVELLOUS POWER OF FRUIT JUICES

Valuable in Many Diseases

"Fruit-a-tives," the Famous Fruit Medicine, is Making Many Wonderful Cures.

The whole world is beginning to realize the value of fruit in curing disease.

To Canada belongs the honor of discovering the one method by which the juices of fresh, ripe fruit could be rendered so active medicinally as to be an infallible cure even when drugs are failures.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the wonderful tablets made of fruit juices and valuable tonics—have proved their value in thousands of cases of Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia and all Skin, Liver and Kidney Trouble.

To-day, the sales of "Fruit-a-tives" are enormous—due solely to the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" never fail when properly used.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION

If you have indigestion, your food ferments in the stomach and bowels. It does more; it decays, and the nutritious matter which should go to make new blood decays with it, and this leads to an impoverished condition of the blood, to nervousness, biliousness, constipation, sick headache, bad breath which disgusts your friends, and other disagreeable and unpleasant conditions.

And all this trouble is caused by the food that doesn't digest, but ferments and ofttimes rots in the stomach.

And fermentation is caused by the stomach not being strong enough and energetic enough to thoroughly mix the food with the digestive juices.

MI-O-NA is responsible for tens of thousands of cures. In fact, it is such a positive cure for indigestion and all stomach troubles that it is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to cure or money back. The price of a large box of Mi-ona Tablets is 50 cents, and they are sure to promptly relieve the worst case of indigestion or gastritis. Try them.

GIVES HER LIFE TO SAVE SON OF HER EMPLOYER

As Street Car Approached Woman Threw Boy to One Side and the Fender Struck Her--Was Dragged Ten Feet—Many Witness the Horrible Catastrophe.

PICKED UP LIFELESS

New York, April 17th.—Crowds in upper Broadway saw an elderly woman give her life to save a boy early last evening. It was at the corner of Eighty-eighth street, where a car for which the two had been waiting, struck her. Before she could be drawn from under the fender, spectators were at the spot, crying out against the motorman. The police arrived and hurried him off. A patrol came for the body and with it rode to the West One Hundredth street station the boy who had been saved.

The woman was Mrs. Annie Albrecht, a widow, fifty-one years old and housekeeper for Herman Moepus, of No. 312 East Forty-fourth street. Her charge was Mr. Moepus's son Philip, aged six. They had been visiting friends of Mrs. Albrecht at No. 588 Amsterdam avenue and about 6 o'clock started for home.

Cross Street to Take Car.

When they got to Broadway there was a rapid procession of motor cars between them and the trolley car tracks. When at last they saw an opening they crossed from the north side of the street to the narrow foot path that skirts the pathway in the middle of Broadway. That walk carried them across the tracks of southbound cars, for which they were waiting.

While they stood there a Broadway car came along. Mrs. Albrecht signalled it to stop. Supposing it would stop at the north corner Mrs. Albrecht stepped out in front of the car. It was almost upon her when she realized her mistake. At that instant she lifted the child and threw it beyond the tracks. Then the car hit her. The tender pushed her ten feet before the car could be stopped.

Skull Broken, Died Instantly.

A crowd was collecting when Charles Quinn, the motorman, ran to her assistance. Bicycle Policeman John G. Dwyer helped him drag her from the fender. They carried her to a drug store on the corner. Dr. Wardner of the J. Hood Wright Hospital, who examined her, said she had been killed instantly. Her skull had been broken.

The boy was able to tell a clear story to Acting Capt. Reith, at the station house. He said his father had taken his two elder brothers to the country for the afternoon, and had left him at home because of some misbehaviour. Mrs. Albrecht pitied him and proposed that they go for an outing of their own. They went to Central Park and afterward to call on her friends.

Mr. Moepus had just arrived home with his two sons when the police went there to report the accident. He said Mrs. Albrecht was German and had been his housekeeper for several years.

Quinn said at the station house, where he was held on a charge of homicide, that he had intended to bring the car to a stop on the south side of Eighty-eighth street, and so that Mrs. Albrecht might get on from the rear. He said he thought she so understood until he saw her step in front of the car. Traffic was held up for three-quarters of an hour by the accident.

THE PUBLIC BENEFITED

Peterborough People Greatly Interested in the Generous Offer of McDermid & Jury.

The people have already demonstrated that they would rather trust a man who is naturally honest, than one who was honest only because he had to be.

McDermid and Jury have a firmly established reputation for square dealing and sterling honesty. When they told the people that Rexall Remedies are the purest and most dependable remedies that it is possible for modern science to produce, and that they would tell the public exactly what each one of these 300 remedies contained, and that they sold Rexall Remedies on their own personal guarantee that they would give entire satisfaction or the medicine would not cost the user a single cent, they were believed.

Ever since this announcement the store of McDermid and Jury has been crowded by people buying Rexall Remedies, all of which proves that McDermid and Jury have the confidence of the people and that honesty is the best policy.

There is no "cure-all" among the Rexall Remedies,—there are 300 different and separate remedies; one for each human ill, and each unquestionably the best of its kind.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are particularly recommended for the positive cure of stomach irritation, indigestion and dyspepsia. They are rich in Bismuth, Subnitrate Pepsin and Carminatives, and are prepared by a special process which perfects and enhances the great curative value of these well-known medical agents. This remedy sells for 25c. a package. Everyone suffering from a stomach disorder should try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, inasmuch as they cost nothing if they do not satisfy.

McDermid and Jury are certainly fortunate in securing control of the sale of these remedies, and we urge everyone in need of medicine to investigate and take advantage of their frank and generous offer.

Mr. Wadely will give an illustrated lecture on "Decorative Art" under the auspices of the Peterborough Women's Art Association, on Thursday evening April the twenty-first, at eight o'clock in the Gymnasium of the Y.W.C.A. Married Woman And 19 Year Old Boy End Lives

Knoxville, Ia., April 16.—"We die from love. oGd forgive us. It was the only road to happiness."

So read a note signed by both, found to-day beside the bodies of Mrs. Slocum, thirty-six, attractive looking and the mother of four children, and William Crabtree, nineteen, a popular youth. The note was pinned just over the woman's heart.

The attractive looking woman, Mrs. Slocum, and her husband, a prosperous farmer, separated a few days ago when Slocum learned that his wife was in love with the boy. Mrs. Slocum rented a cottage and this afternoon neighbours saw young Crabtree enter. Soon after one of them, a woman, went to call on Mrs. Slocum. On the floor lay the body of Crabtree. Across him, with one arm clasping him to her bosom, was the woman, from whose cut throat blood was flowing. Two half empty glasses containing strychnine stood nearby.

Seventeen Year Old Girl Has Three Husbands In Year

Lansing, Mich., April 16.—Three husbands within a year, from two of whom she obtained a divorce, is the matrimonial career of Mrs. Albert Fullme of Lansing, formerly Mrs. Jesse J. Strickler, and before that time Miss Daise Cobbledicke, of Mason.

Though possessor of a wedding license and a divorce decree, and claiming to be experienced as a miserable wife, the girl was obliged to secure her mother's consent before she and Fullme were united in wedlock by Judge Peck, of Mason.

Her first matrimonial venture lasted but three weeks, the second, two months.

MAGISTRATE REFUSES TO ISSUE ANY INFORMATIONS

Peculiar Complications in Lindsay's Dog By-law—County Magistrate Moore Has an Offending Dog.

SITUATION ACUTE

(Lindsay Post.)

Matters in reference to the enforcement of the dog by-law are becoming quite acute.

Yesterday it came to the ears of the Mayor that a citizen had seen Magistrate Moore, with his dog without a leash, on the street, and in the course of their rambles the dog got his eye on a stray cat and forsook his master to give tabby a race for his life. His Worship finally got the dog at his heels, but not before several citizens had noticed the occurrence. The matter was taken up by Mayor Begg, who instructed Chief Vincent to enter the case. The papers were made out by the Chief and presented to Magistrate Jackson, who positively declined to issue the summons unless the private citizen instituted the proceedings, and in that case he would be responsible for the costs. Naturally the citizen declined to prosecute.

The action of the two magistrates is causing considerable adverse criticism and the Mayor and Councillors are very much annoyed by the unusual grounds taken by the two officials.

It is quite likely the matter will be brought before the Attorney-General of the province.

The following is the clause under which the police have been instructed to prosecute:

"No person shall allow his dog to run at large in any of the public parks, squares, drives, streets, lanes, alleys, or other public places in the town of Lindsay, unless such dog is accompanied by, and is under the immediate charge, restraint and control of some competent person; and any dog found running at large, contrary to this provision shall be liable to be captured and disposed of as hereinafter provided."

The Man Had 10 Wives And Tried For The Eleventh

Columbus, O., April 16.—As an accumulator of wives Albert Wright, also known as Albert E. Holden and as Burt C. Holden, a prisoner in the penitentiary here, simply is incorrigible. Ten wives and six years in prison for having them have not served to cure his longing to hear wedding bells and breathe the fragrance of bride's roses. It has just been discovered that although a prisoner for bigamy he has been paying devoted court to Miss Farnsworth, sister of Thomas Farnsworth, of Washington County, and also trying to swindle her out of several hundred dollars of a legacy which she recently received.

Farnsworth, her brother, is serving five years in the penitentiary. Holden saw her and she saw him one day when she went to the prison to visit her brother. Holden decided she looked good.

Holden wrote to her. He appealed to her sympathy, told her how her visit had impressed him, and begged her to write to him. She did so. Holden is certainly a master of art of writing fetching love letters. He succeeeded even better than he had hoped, and the deluded woman sent replies which breathed love and devotion.

To keep the prison officials from reading any more of his letters, Holden complained to the Post Office Department that his mail was being tampered with. Inspector Oldfied was directed to make an investigation. He did more than Holden thought he would. He began tampering with Holden's mail himself and discovered that Holden was trying to get several hundred dollars from the woman on the plea that it was needed to defray legal expenses incidental to recovering a large estate and a $5,000 trust fund created for his benefit.

Miss Farnsworth was urged to visit him in prison and take the money with her. Oldfield blocked the game and Holden once more is disconsolate.

"THAT'S A TERRIBLE COUGH

you have," remarked one man on the street the other day to another, "you bet it is," was the reply, "and I have taken so much cough syrup that my stomach is all knocked out, and the cough still hangs on." That's the way valuable time is wasted. Cough syrups are only palliatives. If you want to stop that cough, cure the cause by taking Vinol. — McDermid & Jury, druggists.

LEFT FOR MEXICO

Mr. Leonard T. Acton Will be Engaged in Chemical Research There.

Leonard T. Acton, second son of James Acton of The Shoe and Leather Journal, left on Sunday, April the tenth, for Torreon, Mexico. He will be engaged on chemical work, research and otherwise, for the Mexican Continental Rubber Company, the well known producers of Guayule rubber. This concern already has five Canadians at Torreon and the addition of Messrs. Acton and Robert MacPherson, who took the journey with him, brings the number of Canadians at their Torreon works up to seven.—Leather Journal.

Smart and Exclusive TRIMMED HATS

$5.00 to $7.50

We have just placed on display in our Millinery Department a beautiful collection of Spring and Summer Hats, made up in our own work-room, for selling at very low prices—between $5.00 and $7.50.

These possess all the smart lines and effective trimmings of the higher priced Hats and are made of excellent materials.

Some of them are accurate copies of costly New York and Paris models. Others are original creations by our own Milliners, and so thoroughly have our artists caught the spirit of the Parisian and New York designers that their clever productions are more dashing and beautiful than any we have ever shown.

A wide variety of shapes, colours and trims, in large, medium and small sizes are included at these prices, and there's not a Hat in the assortment which the most critical dresser would not wear with pride. Certainly they are far superior to any Hats offered anywhere.

Cressman's

ASTRONOMICAL SOCIETY TO BE CONGRATULATED

Splendid Lecture by Dr. Michell at the Collegiate Institute Last Night.

The lecture given last night in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute, under the auspices of the local branch of the Royal Astronmical Society, was in every respect, save one, an unqualified success.

The Astronomical Society seems to be singularly unlucky in the matter of weather. Last night the heavens opened and, during the greater part of the evening the rain beat such a thunderous tattoo on the roof as to render it difficult to follow the words of the lecturer. However, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was good, and the intentness with which every word was followed, showed the interest that the lecturer's words produced in his hearers.

Dr. Michell, the sole Canadian under Shackleton, in the Antarctic expedition, gave a very modest and matter-of-fact account of that part of the expedition with which he had been familiar.

He joined the Nimrod, in June, 1907, and the vessel left the Port of London on July 31st of that year. Prior to leaving the shores of England the King inspected the vessel at Cowes, and immediately after the inspection the Nimrod started on her long journey to the south.

Being a slow vessel it took over four months for them to reach their destination. In pleasant language the lecturer told of steaming through the "Doldrums"; of the flying fish, and dolphins playing about the vessel, and the paper that was started on board, to which everyone had to contribute an article. Two days were spent at Capetown. Lyttleton was reached at the end of November, and there a month was spent, whilst the vessel was thoroughly cleaned and her sides freed from barnacles and sea weeds preparatory to the dash for the Antarctic continent. Lieut. Shackleton joined the ship at this point, and here the Manchurian ponies and "huskies" and the famous motor car were shipped and every available part of the little vessel loaded with provisions. Space will not permit of an exhaustive review of the voyage. A brief summary must suffice.

On leaving New Zealand, gales swept the unfortunate vessel continuously, the ponies stabled on deck were tossed so cruelly against the bulwarks and barriers that one died and another had to be shot on account of injuries; monster seas invaded the cook's galley, and ruined his best efforts, and it was with unbounded relief that, after weeks of continual tossing and working at the pumps they at last came into ice-covered waters.

But these waters had their dangers in the shape of huge icebergs that were continually toppling over, rendering navigation amongst them hazardous in the extreme.

The lecturer showed some very interesting slides, amongst many others, two or three views of the great ice barrier that stretches for hundreds of miles along the coast, and several of penguins, one of them a particularly quaint one, showing a company of these curious birds listening to the strains of a gramiaphone. He spoke of Mt. Erebus and Terror; told of many close escapes from death by different members of the party, and of the final wind up of the expedition, with which of course, our readers are already familiar.

At the close of the lecture a hearty vote of thanks was conveyed to Dr. Michell for his enjoyable and instructive lecture.

GRAND CONCERT A GREAT SUCCESS

Given by Knox Church Choir—Large Number in Attendance.

Owing to the unfavourable weather, the Grand Secular concert, given by Knox church choir was not attended in such large numbers as the merit of the programme demanded. Great credit is due to Mr. E. Thompson, conductor of the choir, whose untiring efforts were distinctly obvious in the many selections rendered by the choir and quartettes.

Miss C. Chiles is to be congratulated on the many piano solos and accompaniments she played.

Owing to sickness Miss Bartley was unable to take part in the humorous quartette "Pro Phuno Basso." Mrs. Keith with one hour's study took Miss Bartley's selections and very ably carried out the roll without a hitch.

Miss Jean Robson, Mr. R. Dickson, Mrs. Parker and Mr. Davenport, were greatly applauded and responded to many encores.

During the intermission, Mr. Mackenzie, chairman of the Building committee, made a few remarks, congratulating the choir on their melodious singing and expressed his wish to have a new pipe organ in the new Knox church. At this remark great applause rang throughout the church.

The following programme was rendered in a most acceptable manner:

Chorus, God Save the King (Edward Elgar), by the choir.

Piano solo, Polacco Brilliante, (C. H. Weber) Miss C. Chiles.

Quartette (mixed) "Sweet and Low" (J. Barnby) Misses Mansen, Williamson, Messrs. Dickson and Thompson.

Vocal solo, Anchored, Mr. A. Donaldson.

Chorus Waken Lords and Ladies Gay, (Cuthbert Harris) by the choir.

Quartette (male) The City Choir, (J. A. Parkes) Messrs. Dickson, Donaldson, Allen and Thompson.

Vocal Solo, The Swallows (Frederick H. Cowen) Miss Jean Robson.

Vocal Duet, Life's Dream is O'er, Mrs. Parker and Mr. Thompson.

Vocal solo, "My Ain Folk," (Laura G. Lemon) Mrs. R. D. Dickson.

INTERMISSION.

Part II.

Piano Solo, Third Mazurka (B. Godard) Miss C. Chiles.

Chorus Boat Song (F. M. Lohr) choir.

Vocal solo "For You" Mr. M. Thompson.

Quartette (male) "You'll Remember Me" (Balfe) Messrs. Dickson, Donaldson, Allen and Thompson.

Chorus "Tell Her I Love Her So, (P. de Faye) choir.

Quartette (humorus) Pro Phuno Basso (P. P. Bliss) Misses Bartley, Williamson, Messrs. Dickson and Thompson.

Vocal solo, Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep, Mr. Davenport.

Quartette (mixed) "Good Night, Good Night, Beloved," Mrs. Keith, Miss Williamson, Messrs. Dickson and Thompson.

God Save the King.

After the concert the choir was taken down to Coleman Bros., where they were the recipients of a most elegant banquet. Toast were given to His Majesty the King, proposed by Mr. R. D. Dickson who gave a very acceptable address and which was responded to by Mr. A. Davenport in a suitable manner. Toasts were also given to the Session and Church, to the Hon. Pres. of the choir, Rev. H. J. Keith and to the Choir. A vote of thanks was tendered to Coleman Bros. and the evening closed with Auld Lang Syne.

Those who didn't hear this fine selection of songs will have a chance to do so at some future date as Mr. Thompson has complied with the request of a great many people who consider the production of superior quality.

MAKE THE BLOOD RICH AND RED

Miss Cynthia Hutchinson, Hancoville, B. C., writes: "My system was so completely run down that my friends as well as myself thought I could never get better. All medicines failed to help me. A trial of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food benefitted me and at the end of a month people scarcely knew me I had improved so much. The blood was enriched, colour improved, new flesh was added, and I got strong and well."

Eczema Must Yield To

THE WONDERFUL, SOOTHING, HEALING INFLUENCE OF

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

There is one thing you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to do every time, and that is to cure eczema. There is no more severe test to which an ointment can be put, and because Dr. Chase's Ointment triumphed over eczema it has become the standard Ointment.

When another ointment is praised it is said to be as good as Dr. Chase's. And this illustrates the high position held by this preparation.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine, Sask., writes: "I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure for eczema and other skin diseases. One son while nursing broke out with running, watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many salves were prescribel to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered untold agony. He became weak and frail, would not eat and we thought we would lose him.

"Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. An older boy was also cured of eczema by this Ointment and we hope more people will learn about it so that their poor little ones may be saved from suffering."

Do not be satisfied with the experience of others, but put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test when occasion arises. Try it for chafing and irritation of the skin, for chapped and cracked hands, for chilblains and frost bites, for sores and burns. It is delightfully soothing and healing. 60c. a box, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

LEAVING THE NEWS

Mr. Harry Theobald Becomes Associated With the MacLean Publishing Co.

Mr. Harry Theobald, until recently connected with the reportorial staff of the Examiner, and more recently on the same staff of the Toronto News, is making another move. He has resigned the latter position to become associate editor on The Canadian Grocer, Toronto, one of the MacLean Publishing Co's trade papers, and begins his new duties next Monday.

In making the change Mr. Theobald associates himself once again with two of his former Examiner colleagues, Messrs. M. J. Hutchison and B. T. Huston. He will be connected with the same journal as the latter. This makes four former Peterborough newspapermen with the MacLean Publishing Co., Mr. S. J. Moore, editor of the Dry oGods Review, being the other.

The many friends of Mr. Theobald in the city will no doubt be glad to know of his progress and will follow with interest his work in the field of trade journalism.

Tickets for the Lecture at the Young Women's Christian Association under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, are to be had at Madill's Drug Store & at Payne's Drug Store.

THE LINDSAY ROUTE

Steamer Stoney Lake Will be Available for Excursions There.

From all appearances Lindsay will be well supplied with excursion boats this season. Following the announcement of the Otonabee Navigation Co. regarding the placing of a steamer on these waters for excursion purposes, comes the Stoney Lake Navigation Co. with a similar announcement.

This company is securing an agent at this centre, and will cater for excursions during the season. They will place the palatial steamer "Stoney Lake" on the route. This boat is the fastest on the Kawartha waters, has a steel hull, and an electric light plant with a 3,000 candle power searchlight. It has visited this part on several occasions and was greatly admired for its stately appearance and modern appointments.

A CONSOLIDATION

Important Announcement May be Made in Regard to Milling Concerns.

For some days past there have been reports in trade circles that an important consolidation might be looked for in the near future of two of the largest flour milling concerns of Ontario, and that prominent Toronto capitalists were becoming identified with the enterprise, and would place in the new company $1,000,000 of additional cash capital, which would result in the new concern being able to show just as large an output as any other Canadian milling concern. Enquiry at the offices of the companies reported to be in the deal failed to elicit much information regarding the details, but it is understood that an important announcement in regard to the consolidation will be made within a few days.

Dr. O'Brien in the midst of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. She was attended by her sister, Miss Josie Barnett, who was prettily attired in a gown of Biscu shade of crepe de Paris, with gilt trimmings and an Anna Held hat to match. Said the House-owner:

"Give me ten gallons of "English" Liquid White Paint.

"No, Sir! I won't take any other kind.

"Yes, that other paint may possibly be good paint, but if it is all right in every way, why don't the makers tell you, and tell me, frankly, what they are trying to sell us—namely, what is in the paint.

"I always use "English" Liquid Paint because the guarantee formula is on the can telling me that it is made of 70% white lead, 30% zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. I know this formula is the standard in paint making and I know that I am taking no chance when I use that kind of paint."

"English" Liquid Paint made by Brandam-Henderson Limited, is very economical to use. Come in for a color card.

ONLY FOUR VICTIMS

Communication Is Renewed With La Tuque, Que., and Fuller Reports of the Disaster Show That First Estimate Was Far Too Large—Eleven Men Escaped Any Hurt at All — No One Is to Blame.

Ottawa, April 20.—E. B. Doucet, N.T.R. engineer on district B, yesterday afternoon got into communication by telephone with La Tuque, Que., and got definite details as to the exact nature of the accident resulting from an embankment sliding away on Monday, carrying a work train with it.

According to information received by Mr. Doucet, from engineers on the spot, four men only were killed, and ten injured.

The train, which fortunately was a short one, and made up of flat cars, so jarred the top of the embankment that the top of it gave way. Cars, engine, workmen and all were hurled violently over the edge, where four were crushed to instant death, and ten seriously injured.

"It is only an ordinary accident that will occur on any road," said Mr. Doucet. "Our men or our engineers were in no way to blame for loss of life that occurred."

Of fourteen men killed or injured in the wreck nine were Italians. The others were French or English. Eleven workmen escaped without injuries.

Montreal, April 20.—Superintendent H. Downey of McDonald & O'Brien, contracting firm, stated yesterday evening that two Poles were killed and an Italian, but they have not been identified.

ESTIMATE WAS HIGH

Engineer A. L. Waddell, on Stand In A. & G. W. Ry. Inquiry, Says the Estimate Prepared For the Government Was Higher Than That For Company — Waddell Says He Was Protecting Clarke.

Edmonton, Alta., April 20.—On the stand yesterday morning before the royal commission, Engineer A. L. Waddell told much of interest relating to the A. & G. R. He practically admitted giving a report of the estimated cost to the Government that was higher than a report, supposed to be similar, which was on the previous file with the company.

He said all his estimated figures were higher and on the safe side, but he was working for Clarke and endeavored to protect him. He admitted making a private confidential report to Clarke for the Royal Bank, in order to get the bank to finance for them. This report had shown a probable profit of $1,000,000, based on a cost of $17,000 a mile, or a profit of $1,000 a mile on the 350 miles of the road. Waddell said he was going to build a better road than the specifications called for. The Government had practically forced the specification on him when he had better ones to produce.

In answer to a question as to why he wired in cipher to Clarke, warning him against guaranteeing the operation of the road, Waddell said he knew that the million-dollar guarantee promised by Clarke in his letter to the Government was foolish, as it would prevent getting money from the bank, since it was different from the agreement with the bank. He admitted that the A. & G. W. R. Co. is paying a salary of $12,000 to its general manager.

Speaking of the specifications which have been accepted by the Government, for the construction of the road, he said he would be ashamed to build a road under those specifications, and that the Alberta Government had forced the specifications on them.

The specifications now in effect allowed for the building of a road $1,000 cheaper per mile than those he proposed.

He said also that they had bought 56-pound rails for the $38 and $40 per ton laid down in Edmonton.

To Surrender Quarries.

Quebec, April 20.—An important bill was introduced in the Legislature here by Hon. C. R. Devlin, Minister of Mines, by which the Quebec mining law will be amended so as to give to proprietors the ownership of stone quarries which are located on their lands. Since time immemorial almost, quarries situated on seigneuries in this province have been considered as the property of the crown.

Fire at the Falls.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 20.—Fire badly damaged Elks Blocks, Main street, last night, the Elks' Theatre and lodge-rooms being completely wrecked. A large quantity of tobacco, owned by the Brooks Cigar Co. was destroyed by water. The damage will reach $5,000.

Wreck Near Halifax.

Halifax, N.S., April 20.—The steamer Halford ran aground at the entrance to the port here yesterday morning. Her crew were saved, but it is believed the vessel is a total loss.

OLD BUDGET AGAIN.

Mr. Lloyd-George Re-introduces Last Year's Measure.

London, April 20.—Mr. David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, reintroduced last year's Budget in the House of Commons yesterday. He declared he realized that the present deficit of $131,240,000 would be more than wiped out when all arrears had been collected, and that there would be an actual surplus of $14,800,000. If the Budget had been passed as usual last year, he said, there would have been a surplus of $21,000,000.

The Chancellor commented upon the remarkable decrease of thirty-two per cent. in the consumption of whisky, which he attributed mainly to the extra duty imposed.

The famous Budget of 1909 was presented to the House of Commons by Mr. Lloyd-George a little less than a year ago—on April 29, to be exact. The debate began in the Commons on May 3, but the measure was hung up on several occasions, and it was not until Nov. 4 that the lower House passed the third reading by a vote of 379 to 149. Then it went to the Lords, and after three weeks' discussion was rejected on the last day of November by 350 to 75.

In order to meet the demands for increased expenditure which the more extensive naval program and the new scheme of old-age pensions adopted by the Government created, and which rendered necessary the raising of $80,000,000 more than the amount of any previous Budget, Mr. Lloyd-George had recourse to various expedients. He placed heavier taxes on incomes over $25,000 a year; he added a third to the whisky duty; put eightpence additional upon tobacco; subjected motor cars to heavier taxation; increased the death duties, and placed a small tax on Stock Exchange transactions.

B. C. Varsity Planned.

Victoria, B.C., April 20.—Under authority of legislation of last session, the British Columbia Government has named a special royal commission to select a site and formulate general plans for the establishment of a provincial university, intended to rank second to none, while leading the world in facilities for instruction in certain technical branches, such as mineralogy, forestry, mining, engineering, horticulture, etc.

The personnel of the commission includes Dr. Pritchett of New York, president of the Carnegie endowment establishment, Dr. Weldon, of Dalhousie University, Nova Scotia; Canon Dathie, of Laval University, Quebec; Dr. O. E. Skellon, professor of political science of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and Principal Murray of the University of Saskatchewan.

The British Columbia University will from its inception be relieved of all money worries, the Government having years ago adopted the policy of setting aside tithe of all public lands for higher education purposes, so that the endowment yesterday represents scarcely less value than forty to fifty millions. Both academic and specialized education will be amply provided for.

Said He Bribed Judge.

Brantford, April 20.—Harry Gourijian, leader of the local Armenian colony, and Police Court interpreter, was charged with fraud in court yesterday, and committed for trial. Chas. Garo, a storekeeper, against whom an action for debt was pending swore that Gourijian secured $45 from him to bribe the judge of the county court. Garo wanted to withdraw the charge in the morning, but the crown would not consent.

Local Englishmen are aroused over a recent comparison made in the Police Court by Chief Slemin between a certain class of English and foreign immigrants. An indignation meeting has been called by the presidents of two lodges.

Prince of Wales Assists the West.

London, April 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Prince of Wales has contributed $2,500 to the Archbishop's Western Canada fund, as expressing his deep interest therein, and having visited western Canada he realizes the difficulties arising there from the extraordinary immigration, and trusts the appeal in connection with such a noble work will receive generous support.

The fund has reached over $70,000. It is estimated $1,125,000 will be needed.

Abbot Resigns.

Rome, April 20—The Giornale Italia says that because of his visit to ex-President Roosevelt in Rome, Abbot Lawrence Janssens, secretary of the congregation of the affairs of religious orders, has resigned all the positions held by him and the headquarters of the church. The paper adds that the Pope has not yet taken any decision.

Do You Realize What an Important Work the Kidneys Do?

Do you know that every drop of your blood goes to the kidneys hundreds of times every day? Do you know why?

To be filtered and purified from its impurities. That is the great work the kidneys have to do. They filter the blood. Then these impurities go to the bladder and are passed out of the body along with the urine.

Do you think it possible for you to be well, unless the kidneys do this work thoroughly?

It is these impurities—this unfiltered blood—that causes backaches, headaches, rheumatism, diabetes, Bright's disease, etc. They poison and interfere with the whole system.

If you have any kidney trouble let Doan's Kidney Pills do for you what they have done for thousands of others. They cure all forms of kidney trouble, and they cure them to stay cured.

Mrs. Maurice Doiron, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes:—"I was troubled with my kidneys for five years. They were so bad at times that I could not cross the floor for the pain. I went to a doctor, but he did me no good at all. I sent to the druggist and got five boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I am glad to say that after taking them I was cured. I have had no trouble for nearly three years now."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In ordering, specify "Doan's."

Five Roses, Madam, is not A Blended Flour

"Yes'm, all wool and a yard wide."
But Mrs. Homemaker grew suspicious — would turn the piece over — deftly jerk a thread away — triumphantly cry:
"That all-wool! — pshaw, cotton thread!"
For, you see, it's easy to get fooled on woollens.
Almost as easy as on flour, Madam.
Unless you read the label — "Manitoba Hard Wheat."
And those words — "FIVE ROSES."

It is NOT a "blend"—FIVE ROSES flour, not a mere mixture of wheats.

It's "all-wool," truly.

Being the exclusive extract of as strictly Hard Spring Wheat as ever comes out of Manitoba in a golden stream.

No soft stuff ever reaches the rolls at Keewatin, never. Just the highest-priced wheat in the world's market. And this is the WHY of it, Mistress Housewife:

• • • •

When different-coloured wheats are mixed, the flour MUST vary more or less in complexion.

Then to obtain the uniform colour required, YOUR FLOUR IS BLEACHED!

Which you don't want, of course. So get FIVE ROSES.

And the soft wheat being weaker than the hard, the different flour particles in your dough can't absorb equal quantities of water.

So you get uneven granulation, erratic fermentation, irregular doughs.

And you don't want that either, do you?

• • • •

Soft wheat having less gluten, less nutriment, less strength—your meals are less nutritious, less sustaining

Soft wheat having less strength, less quality gluten—you get less good things for your money and things less good.

Therefore, you don't want soft wheat in your flour, isn't that so?

For the sake of a healthier, tastier table; for better texture, flavour, appearance, lightness—

Superior "oven consequences," Madam—

Get a flour that is NOT a blend, which answers the whole circle of kitchen economy—.

Get FIVE ROSES now.

CANADA'S GRAND SHOWING IN BOSTON MARATHON

Canucks Take First, Third, Fourth and Seventh in the Big Race Yesterday---"Blue Nose" Runner Wins in Great Time.

Boston, Mass., April 19.—Rah! rah! rah! for the Canadian boys who covered themselves with dust and glory in the big Marathon race here to-day. They romped in first, third, fourth, and seventh, and the rest of the bunch were also well up in the front at the finish.

To-day was the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, when the British forces, as they beat a hasty and ignominious retreat, were peppered most unmercifully with buckshot from the ancient flint locks, in the hands of determined bands of New England farmers. The Canadians took peaceful but irritating revenge for the chasing the empire's "Tommies" got on that occasion.

It was a splendid victory in glorious weather and unprecedented enthusiasm, and cheered by fully 25,000 persons, who had gathered at and about the Boston Athletic Club on Exeter street, Fred. L. Cameron, the Nova Scotia long-distance runner, won the race, making the third best record for the twenty-five miles' course. Charles H. Demar of Dorchester, Mass., was second.

Cameron's time was 2.28.52 4-5. This is about twenty-five minutes better than that made last year by Henri Renaud, a French-Canadian, and about four minutes behind the record made by Tom Longboat in 1907. Cameron finished in excellent condition. When he crossed the line a winner he turned to the immense throng and bowed thanks in return for the tumultuous cheers that rang in his ears.

Running a minute behind Cameron came Demar, the Dorchester, Mass., boy. When the throng realized that he was the local contestant they gave him an extra cheer. His time was 2.29.52 4-5. He was apparently fresh and able to do several more miles.

James J. Corkery, of Toronto, was the game contestant to come in third. Long before Corkery reached the end of the long jaunt he showed signs of weakness, but he kept pluckily out. When he reached the finish he was staggering, and when he realized that the ordeal was over almost collapsed. Time 2.34 4-5.

Renaud, who carried off the honours last year, found himself in competition with fleeter company, and he reached the line in twenty-fourth place.

John R. Roe, of Toronto, romped in fourth. Just to show that he was in fine fettle Roe gave the sightseers a chance to see him at his best gait and finished with a great burst of speed. Just as he crossed the tape he was seized with a cramp in one leg, which would have been fatal to his chances had it come a few minutes earlier. Time, 2.38.06 2-5.

When M. J. Ryan of New York, reached the club house a few seconds later he seemed dazed and staggered into the arms of some of the club officials. He was able to pull himself together however, and was applauded for his pluck. Time 2.38.42 1-5.

Others in the race finished as follows:

6—John J. Reynolds, New Jersey A.C., Jersey City, N.J., 2.40.03 1-5.

7.—R. E. MacCormack, Tecumseh A C., Toronto, 2.40 2-5.

8.—Edwin A. White, Holy Cross Lyseum, New York, 2.40.50 2-5.

10.—James Cleary, Cherry Valley, 2.44.58 4-5.

12.—George F. McInery, Shanahan A.C., Philadelphia, 2.49.45.

13.—R. F. Piggott, Cambridgeport Gymnasium Association, 2.50.59 1-5.

14.—James H. Maloney, St. Stephen A.C., Worcester, 2.51.55 4-5.

15.—W. Wiseman, So. Boston A. C., 2.53.45.

16.—Chas. Cook, 91st Highlanders A.A., Hamilton, Ont., 2.54.48 2-5.

John G. Near, Central Y. M. C. A., Toronto, 2.57.15 1-5; John P. Brennan, Boston, 2.57.31; Geo. W. Wolfe, D. B. C. A., Dartmouth, N.S., 2.57.56 2-5; Edward W. L. McTiernen, Alpine A. C., Worcester, 2.58-57 1-5; Wm. Gibson, Hanson; Albert H. Ellis, Linnwood A.A., Brockton; Alex. Russell, Sherbrooke, Que.; Henri Renaud, Nashua, N.H.

Cameron ran a splendid race. His judgment of pace was good and in not setting too fast a clip for the kind of day he showed fine generalship. The winner made this statement after the contest:

"I did not expect to win the race, so I am greatly pleased at the result. I expected to be one of the first five to finish. Corkery, of Toronto, was the only man that I really feared. I finished in excellent condition, and I could have run many miles farther. I ran carefully from start to finish, taking care not to exert myself. I ran up the hills slowly. I kept an even pace all through the race. The roads were in good condition, and I did not mind the heat."

During the progress of the race an enthusiastic Canadian, evidently a Toronto man, who was stationed with a party of ladies in a suite of rooms at the Hotel Lenox, was so carried away by his emotion when Corkery romped in third that he broke fourth into song, and gave in excellent baritone voice, "O, Canada," from start to finish. The crowd quieted down to listen, and when the voice concluded a tremendous outburst of applause was heard, showing conclusively that in that dense throng there was a goodly sprinkling of the 200,000 Canadians who help to make up the population of Boston.

Want Peterborough In Midland Ball League

The expected has happened.

Peterborough has been invited to place a team in the Midland Baseball League.

Every year the magnates along the lakeshore get together and decide to form a league among themselves and drop Peterborough out of the district, and just as invariably they have been forced to ask Peterborough to accept a franchise.

Some of the Bowmanville promoters of the game have written to local ball enthusiasts and have asked Peterborough to get in line. The proposed League is to consist of Port Hope, Bowmanville, Cobourg and Peterborough, four out of the six original Midland teams, Oshawa and Lindsay being the other two. It is proposed to have a strict residence rule and to allow only bona fide residents of the different towns to play. The importation of players will not be permitted under any consideration.

Just whether Peterborough will have a team in the League or not is a matter of conjecture just now. There is an abundance of material in sight for a nine that would have more than a fighting chance of carrying off the honours and there is no doubt that the project could be well supported by the fans of Peterborough who are anxious to see good ball. A number of local enthusiasts are discussing the scheme and a more definite announcement as to their intentions will be made in the near future.

In any event the City League will not be interfered with. The team will, of course, be picked from among the four teams of the City League, but the schedule of the two Leagues will be arranged so that they won't conflict.

TORONTOS WIN TWICE

Beat Fall River in Morning and Afternoon Games.

Providence, R. I., April 19.—(Special).—The Torontos finished up their training trip to-day by winning both ends of a double-header from Fall River, the New Englanders being shut out in the afternoon game. The scores were 5 to 2 and 2 to 0.

Sammy Smith went the full distance for the first time in the morning game, and aside from a little wildness pitched a good game and received fine support from Tonneman behind the bat, though the latter had to go to a doctor to-night to have his sore finger repaired. Grimshaw did not play in either game, and spent the afternoon in his room, but accompanied the team to Providence to-night. He will not likely play on Thursday.

Kelley and Deal settled the morning game in the sixth inning, when they drove the ball over the left fence for home runs. The only score made on Smith was in the first inning, when a charity, Vaughn's error and Weisenstein's two-base hit off a wasted ball gave them two runs.

In the afternoon "Doc" Newton pitched the first five innings and Corey finished the game. The first two batters to get on were caught napping by Newton at first base. In the fourth Fall River filled the bases with one out, but Newton made the next two batters pop infield flies. Toronto's two runs were made on Vaughn's single, Fitzpatrick's sacrifice, Lee's two-bagger and Kelly's single in the opening inning. After that Bedient, who holds the world's record for strike-outs, pitched a very creditable game.

While Corey was on the rubber not a man reached first base. He had a fine change of pace, and there was plenty of "stuff" on every pitched ball. The morning crowd was small, but in the afternoon there was a fine attendance, the Toronto club's share of the day's receipts being $497.

To Be DYSPEPTIC Is To Be MISERABLE.

Dyspepsia is the prevailing malady of civilized life. It is largely due to gross errors in diet, over-eating, too free indulgence in stimulants and over-taxing the stomach with indigestible food, eating too rapidly without chewing the food sufficiently, indulging in hot biscuits, pastry, pickles, confectionery, etc.

Burdock Blood Bitters has an established reputation, extending over thirty-four years, as a positive cure for dyspepsia in all its forms, and from all diseases arising from it.

Can Eat Anything Now.

Mrs. Herman Dickenson, Benton, N.B., writes: "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters and find that few medicines can give such relief in dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was troubled for a number of years with dyspepsia and could get no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles and became cured and I can now eat anything without it hurting me. I will highly recommend it to all who are troubled with stomach trouble."

RUNNING

Hats off to the Canadians!

Once more a runner from the land of the Maple Leaf has shown his heels to the best men that Uncle Sam can produce.

Yesterday, Fred Cameron, of Amherst, Nova Scotia, followed in the footsteps of Jack Caffery and Tom Longboat, by carrying off the famous Boston Marathon. To do so the plucky "Blue-nose," of whom little was known this far west, had to beat a field of nearly 200 runners. The result was a surprise to Ontario followers of the long-distance game, not because a Canadian led the pack home but rather because Corkery, or Near, or McCormick, or Sheridan, or some one else belonging to the Toronto contingent, was considered as having the best chance for the victory. However, the Nova Scotian carried off the big event, and the people of Canada will unite in acclaiming the victor, who accomplished a feat of which his country might well feel proud. Jim Corkery brought additional fame to the Maple Leaf by taking third place.

Once more, here's to Cameron, worlds champion amateur long-distance runner, and don't forget a cheer for Corkery, who ran the distance for the first time in his life in a race yesterday.

The mantle of Caffery and Sherring and Longboat has fallen on worthy shoulders.

HATS OFF TO THE CANADIANS

Cameron's Plucky Win Yesterday is Being Everywhere Acclaimed.

Yesterday was the fifth occasion on which a Canadian runner has won the Boston Marathon.

Friday at Winnipeg St. Yves, Marsh, Acoose and two upknowns, named Souch and Connolly, are matched to run twenty miles.

With the exception of a mile or two early in the race Cameron, the little Amherst runner, never saw the heels of a competitor, and gained the honour of being the first winner of a Boston Marathon run to set the pace practically from start to finish.

Fred Cameron's Marathon yesterday was his first twenty-five mile race. He had gained many honours in ten-mile distances, winning the Nova Scotian ten mile championship last Thanksgiving and establishing a new Canadian amateur record of 54 minutes, 46 seconds. He is only 5 feet 3 1-2 inches in height and weighs 127 pounds.

That Clarence H. Demar, an eighteen year old runner of the Dorchester district, of Boston, was second, was due to his stamina in beating out James J. Corkery, of Toronto in the last three miles. John H. Roe, another of Toronto's team, was fourth, while R. E. Cormack, of Toronto, came in sixth, Charles Cook, of Hamilton, Ont., was sixteenth, John G. Near, of Toronto, seventeenth and Gordon W. Wolfe, of Dartmouth, N.S., nineteenth, giving seven placed men in the team of twelve Canadians who started.

COMET STRUCK THEM, SO THESE PEOPLE SAY

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 14. — Have we been struck by the comet?

That is the question uppermost all over Bermuda, and everybody is discussing it. Scientists who think that a swish of the comet's tail implies the surcharge of the atmosphere with laughing gas, which precipitates a season of silly giggling of mankind, take the negative side of the debate. We have had a rain of ink, and that is no laughing matter. The community feels much puzzled and rather doleful over it, and impatiently awaits the results of analyses at Cambridge University and Washington.

Last Monday morning the thing happened. The worst thunder storm of the season broke loose. While the rain fell in sheets, there was a sudden cloudburst, and with it came a black deluge that overflowed all the water tanks with ink. Cataracts of the same colour poured from the roofs. Some of the curious set out pails under the eaves and spouts and soon got them full.

Since then filters have been working double time, for one rinsing is not enough to cleanse the drinking water. Water as a beverage, indeed, is just now tabooed. City Chemist Huyl has gathered together a lot of the sediment by filtration. He doesn't assume to say what it is, nor do any of the other scientific officials on the island.

Volcanic eruption might explain it, but in the absence of report of any such occurrence in this hemisphere that supposition is not entertained. The filtered sediment looks volcanic, and some have surmised that the celestial artillery may, have shot through a passing meteor and pulverized it. Comet talk is the favourite topic, however, and if that theory should be confirmed by analyses the scientists in the outer world will have added to their knowledge the item that this particular comet at any rate moults ink essence.

Prairie Fire Near Winnipeg.

Necklace and Ring Worn by Young Girl Identified by Her Mother—Were Found in Man's Room Who is Alleged to Have Murdered Her.

THE WOLTER TRIAL

New York, April 19.—The jury box in the Wolter case, on trial in general sessions, was filled at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

In his opening Mr. Moss, assistant district attorney, occupied only half an hour. He said that much of the state's evidence necessarily would be circumstantial. He then related the facts made familiar by accounts of the crime—namely, that Ruth Wheeler, a girl of 15, living with her widowed mother and two sisters on West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street, having completed a course in stenography in a commercial school, answered a postal card request for a stenographer made to the school and signed by Wolter. This quest for work took her to the rear apartment on the fourth floor of the furnished apartment-house, 224 East Seventy-fifth St., and she never came back.

Mr. Moss concluded by telling of the finding, on the fire escape outside the window, of the half-burned and mutilated parts of a young woman's body, which, he said, had been positively identified as that of Ruth Wheeler.

The first witness called was an architect, Walter H. Vulkering, who identified a drawing of the rooms on the floor of the house Wolter had occupied.

Kodaked the Scene.

The second witness, a professional photographer, H. L. Koh, identified a number of photographs he had made of the scene of the tragedy. These included pictures of the fire place, in which the body of Ruth Wheeler, as the state alleges, was partly consumed.

When these exhibits had been admitted and examined by the jurors, Mr. Moss called Mrs. Emily Wheeler, mother of Ruth. She testified that Ruth was 15 years and six months' old, and identified an umbrella Ruth took with her on that day.

After much objection, the mother was permitted to say that the umbrella afterwards found in Wolter's room was hers and that she had given it to Ruth when Ruth set out in her hunt for employment. Under the same circumstances the witness identified a necklace of beads and a little gold ring found with the remains as having been ornaments worn by her child.

Then an assistant passed to Mr. Moss from the great bundle of physical evidence a little box. Taking off the cover and holding it near the witness, the state's attorney asked:

"Do you recognize that as Ruth's hair?"

The woman said that it was a braid of hair that looked like Ruth's, and was braided as Ruth had braided hers.

There was no cross-examination.

John Taggart, a waiter, and his wife, who live in apartments next to those occupied by Wolter, told of finding the body wrapped in oil cloths on the fire escape of the Wolter apartments.

CHIEF ROSZEL PASSES AWAY AFTER SEVERAL WEEKS OF ILLNESS

Death of Chief of the Police Force Early This Morning—Was Head of the Department Here for Twenty-two Years—Was Universally Esteemed and Respected.

FUNERAL ON SUNDAY

The news of the death of Chief Geo. J. Roszel, who passed away at his home, Stewart street, early this morning was received throughout the city with the profoundest regret. While it has generally been known that the Chief's condition was serious, his death came unexpectedly. He was in his sixtieth year, and had been a resident of Peterborough for the past twenty-two years. He was born in Wellandport, near Hamilton. Before coming to Peterborough he was for six years on the police force of St. Catharines, and previous to that resided in Smithville. During the twenty-two years of his residence in this city, as Chief of the Police, he carried out his duties without fear or prejudice. He was a man of straightforward and honest principles, and in discharge of the work entailed in his position, was fair and just. He commanded the highest esteem and respect of all classes of citizens, and his place in the community will be one that will be hard to fill. The relations between him and the men on the force were always of the most pleasant and agreeable character. The late Chief Roszel was a past president of the Canadian Chief Constables' Association, and was a regular attendant at all their conventions. He was prominently identified with the Masonic Order, and was a Worshipful Master of Peterborough Lodge. He was also a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, and of the Canadian Order of Foresters and of the Home Circle.

His wife and two sons, and three brothers and two sisters are left to mourn his loss. The sons are Messrs. John and Frank of this city. The brothers are Messrs. S. Roszel, of Welland, L. Roszel, of Hamilton, and D. Roszel, in the States. The sisters are Misses Mary Roszel of Hamilton, and J. Roszel, of Smithville.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 from the family residence, corner McDonnel and Stewart streets, to the Little Lake cemetery, and will be conducted by Rev. J. R. Webb, of the Murray Street Baptist church, of which the deceased was a faithful and devoted member.

MANY MEN DOOMED TO DEATH IN MINE

Special to The Examiner.

Birmingham, Ala., April 21.—Between 25 and 40 men are dead or doomed to death in the burning Medel mine at Mulga, owned by the Birmingham Coal and Iron Company. They were trapped by a terrible explosion last night, and practically all hope for their rescue was given up to-day, though desperate efforts were made to reach them. Air was pumped into the blazing shaft all night and to-day, but it is believed if the men were not killed by the terrific blast that rocked the country for miles around, they have burned or suffocated. The mine foreman was among those in the mine when the explosion occurred. He alone knew the exact number of men at work at the time.

Helped To Fight Fire Was Discharged By Court

Special to The Examiner.

New York, April 18.—Walter Grimm of Bloomfield, N. J., known as "Panhandle Pete," who was arrested for begging yesterday, earned his liberty by his efficient work with a bucket brigade that put out a brush fire in the rear of the court and police station.

Grimm was having a hearing before Recorder Cadmus, who, although seventy-two years old, is still an active fireman, attached to Essex Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, being one of the charter members. When some one called out "Fire!" the Recorder jumped from the bench and formed a bucket brigade of policemen, courtroom loungers and the prisoner.

The fire was subdued without calling out the department and the Recorder again took his seat on the bench.

"Grimm," he said, "you did good work, and I consider that you have repaid the town the amount of the fine I was about to impose on you, in work. Go and hunt up a job."

As Grimm was leaving the court room the Recorder handed him a quarter, saying: "Get a cup of coffee and brace up."

Charged With Murder Of Her Little Son

Special to The Examiner.

Examiner Special:

Bracebridge, April 21.—Exactly seven months after the murder of her bright, healthy two-year old son, Eva Suter is to-day facing trial before Mr. Justice Middleton. The young woman, who is 23 years old, has altered very little during her stay in gaol. Calm and deliberate in her actions she sits in the dock at ease and looks neither to right nor left. Her father who was the first witness, told of having reproved his daughter for coming home at 1.20 a.m. next morning. She took the child and left the house, afterwards accounting for the disappearance of the child by telling neighbours widely divergent stories.

TWO WERE MURDERED

Shawville Man, Who Was Being Teased by a Number of Youths, Fired on Them With Fatal Results.

FIRED FOUR SHOTS

Special to The Examiner.

Ottawa, Ont., April 21.—The village of Shawville, in Pontiac, was the scene last night of a shooting affray, which resulted in the death of two young men, Harry Howes and Willie Dale. These, with several other young men, were teasing Mike Murphy and his wife though without any malicious intent, when Murphy chased them with a shot gun, and fired four shots, the last one killing the two young men. The others ran into an old building followed by Murphy, intending to shoot them as well but one of the young men seized the gun. Murphy and his wife are under arrest. The couple, who are gypsies, have been camping on disputed territory for 3 years, and have been a nuisance to the public during that time.

RUNNING AWAY

Witnesses Will Swear That Robt. Parker Was About to Leave.

Special to The Examiner:

Tweed, April 21.—Witnesses will be produced this afternoon at the adjourned inquest into the death of Wm. Masters, to show that Robt. Parker, now held in connection with the shooting, was running away from his home shortly after Masters was killed.

That he went to the Bank and drew all his money, and that for several days he was dodging hither and thither until advised to give himself up. The Crown is in possession of Parker's rifle, which carries a bullet of the same calibre as that which killed Masters.

NOT "SWELL" ENOUGH

Chicago Policeman Told His Wife That And She is After a Divorce.

Special to The Examiner.

Chicago, April 16.—The bill for divorce filed by Mrs. Emma Youts against Policeman Fred Youts makes these charges:

Her husband choked her and she forgave him.

He smashed the dishes and reconciliation followed.

He tore her shirt waists off, and even then love arose triumphant.

But when he told her on her birthday that she was not "swell" enough to stroll with him in the park her heart was broken. Nothing but a divorce could alleviate her pain.

THE NAVAL BILL PASSED.

On Wednesday afternoon in the House of Commons the Naval Bill—to provide for the creation of a Canadian navy received its third reading and passed into law, subject to Senatorial and Gubernatorial sanction. On Tuesday the bill was passed through its second reading in committee, with comparatively little discussion. The Opposition took the ground that the Canadian navy should be automatically placed at the disposal of the Imperial authorities on a declaration of war. Sir Wilfrid voiced the position of the Liberals, when he declared that, while there could be no doubt that Canada, with all the other daughter-nations of the Empire, would come to the help of the Mother Country in time of need, the principle of self-government, on which the unity and cohesion of the Empire were based, must be maintained—Canada must not only build, man, and equip her own navy, but must maintain control of her own affairs. He pointed out that Canada's loyalty to the Empire was undoubted and unquestioned, and if the supremacy of Great Britain were threatened, any Canadian Government that refused to send the Dominion navy to her assistance would be swept out of power. In Canada, as in England, we had responsible government and the will of the people must be expressed through the Government and Parliament. The question, Sir Wilfrid said, was whether the King should control the Canadian Navy through his Imperial ministers, or through his Canadian ministers. Apart from this phase of the question there was little discussion of an important character. The bill provides for the establishment of a new Department of the Government under whose administration the navy would be placed. On the third reading of the bill on Wednesday the principal speakers were Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, and Hon. W. S. Fielding, Finance Minister. Mr. Borden declared in favour of a contribution of several million dollars to the British Government, to build a Dreadnought, and further demanded that the question involved in the bill before the House should be submitted to the people, for their decision, though he was quite willing that the twenty or twenty-five millions to be given to the Old Country to give employment to British workmen, instead of Canadian, should be voted by parliament independently of what the people thought. Mr. Borden's inconsistencies were further emphasized by Mr. Fielding, who said that on March 29, 1909, Mr. Borden had declared and voted for a Canadian navy and had opposed a policy of contribution. Now, he was opposing a Canadian navy, and advocating a contribution. At Halifax last October, Mr. Borden, in a public address, had supported the naval policy of the Government, because it would revive the ship-building industry of Nova Scotia, and Mr. Fielding inquired how the ship-building industry of Nova Scotia coul be revived by the sending of twenty or thirty millions to England? Mr. Fielding remarked that the unanimous resolution of the House last March was a message of immense value to the Empire, and a warning to the enemies of the empire, whose force was weakened by the withdrawal of the Conservative party from the position they had assumed. The contradictory campaign of the Conservative party was shown in the fact that while the leader-in-chief of the party asserted that the Bill was a weakening of the Imperial tie, Mr. Monk, his colleague and leader of the Quebec Conservatives, declared that it was too imperialistic. The debate was continued by Mr. Bristol of Centre Toronto, who devoted most of his time to raising imaginary, impossible situations, and circumstances, in which a Canadian navy, under Canadian control, would prove to be useless. The vote was then called and the division was a purely party one, the Liberal members voting solidly for a Canadian navy as a contribution to the burdens of Imperial defence, and the Conservatives voting solidly against the project they had solidly voted for a little over twelve months ago on the floor of the same House. The Government majority was 41 in a house of 174 members.

QUEBEC LIBERALS AND EMPIRE.

The Ottawa Journal reprints the following from the Ottawa correspondence of the London Times, under the above heading:

Nothing is more striking than the speeches of the Quebec Liberal members who have taken part in the debate. While they have advocated a Canadian navy, they have expressed loyalty to Great Britain and concern for the Empire in language as clear and as unequivocal as any uttered by English-speaking representatives. In this city they are supported by the French Liberal journals with discreet, moderate, straightforward acceptance of the obligation of Canada to protect her own ports, and contribute something towards the defence of the Empire.

There is nothing striking or surprising in this. It is only a logical outcome of antecedent and present conditions. The French in Canada came under British authority as a quasi subject race, expecting, no doubt, a repetition of the treatment usually meted out to subject races by other nations after a conquest. But they recived all the rights and privileges—and in generous measure—which Britain accords to all, white or black, or brown, who come under the influence and protection of her flag, in accord with the Christian symbolism it bears, the three-fold cross. In one sense, while it may not be so ex-French-Canadian loyalty is of a higher quality. It is founded on conviction. dian loyalty is founded on conviction, and not sentiment. The French Canadians recognize that under British rule, under British institutions, they enjoy a breadth of freedom that cannot be secured under any other nation; as something they would not have had, even if they had remained a colony of Mother France. Not only did they give support to the Canadian Navy proposals, by eloquent speech, in which they are particularly gifted, but they did not break away from the Liberal party to advocate three or four contradictory policies, as obtained among the English-speaking and French-speaking members of the Conservative party; and they had the courage of their convictions, for they voted as they spoke upon the third reading of the naval bill, which was passed in the House of Commons on Wednesday afternoon. There is nothing in the way of patriotism, or national gain, in making French Canadian patriotism and loyalty a subject of discussion, which our Conservative orators are rather fond of doing, as if it were something unusual, and something unexpected to see a French-Canadian exhibit the characteristics of a good patriotic Canadian and a loyal subject of the Crown.

WARNING

Since its introduction into Canada the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations similar in name. Look out for them; they are not the genuine. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. You can always get the genuine at Wm. Madill's.

Parisian Sage is the quickest acting and most efficient hair tonic in the world.

It is made to conform to Dr. Sengerbond's (of Paris) proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness, and scalp itch are caused by germs.

Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks, or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.

And remember that baldness is caused by dandruff germs, those little hard working, persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.

Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing, not sticky or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using it. 50 cents a large bottle.

GOVERNMENT IMPROVEMENTS IN PETERBOROUGH AND VICINITY

Items From the Main and Supplementary Estimates.

The supplementary estimates brought down on Wednesday, contain an item of $2,100 for wharf restoration which will be of interest to Rice Lake steamer owners and users. The old wharf at Harwood had become in indifferent repair and in need of extension. Through the efforts of Mr. J. B. McColl, M.P., West Northumberland, engineers were sent by the Department of Public Works to examine the wharf and generally investigate. Through their report a sum of $2,100 has been placed in the supplementary estimates for the purpose of extending and repairing this wharf.

The supplementary estimates were placed upon the table of the House on Wednesday and the following item relating to Peterborough city and country, will be of local interest.

Lakefield Wharf—$5,000.

This amount is voted for extension of Lakefield wharf. The work will be proceeded with as soon as the level of the water will permit. It will be remembered that when the Minister of Public Works visited Lakefield last year, his attention was directed to the matter of wharf extension by the people of Lakefield in the complimentary address presented him; and that he personally examined the situation and promised to give it his consideration. During the present session, the member for West Peterborough, Mr. Stratton, the member for East Peterborough, Mr. Sexsmith, and Mr. Tanner, reeve of the village, urged the matter upon the Minister's attention with the result that the above appropriation appears in the supplementary estimates. This improvement will be a great convenience to the shipping interests of the Lake and to the general public, especially Stony Lake tourists and cottage holders, as it will enable the Grand Trunk train to run directly to the wharf and permit passengers to pass, with their baggage and impediment almost directly from the railway coaches to the steamers and vice versa. The Grand Trunk Railway have promised to extend their track to the wharf as soon as it is completed. When this work is finished, Lakefield will be provided with the best system of wharfage on the Trent waters.

Peterborough Post Office—$10,000.

The growth of Peterborough has made the postal accommodations entirely inadequate to the needs of the service, especially since the introduction of city delivery. Room for ten postmen to sort and arrange the mail matter for their routes is needed and will be supplied; and, besides, other departments need more space than is now available. To provide needed accommodation Mr. Stratton has gained the permission of the Public Works Department to erect a one-storey addition to the rear of the present post office building. For this purpose an appropriation of $10,000 appears in the supplementary estimates and work upon the addition will begin at once and be completed with all possible expedition.

Mark Street Wharf—$4,500.

The decay of the old wharf in East City at the foot of Mark street, has created great inconvenience to the people of this part of the city, especially in the case of Sunday school and other excursions and the shipping and receiving of the different kinds of freight sent out and in by steamer. To remedy this state of things, after the Public Works Department had had the matter presented, engineers were sent to make examination and as a result of their report an appropriation of $4,500 has been included in the supplementary estimates to be expended this season in the constructing of a good sized and substantial concrete wharf for the benefit of the general public and of the citizens of the fifth ward especially.

Pengelly & Barnard's Landing—$5,000

The difficulty of maintaining in good condition on Rice Lake, a wharf of ordinary construction, owing to the destructive action of the ice and frost, has been experienced. A largely signed petition bearing signatures of the farmers of South Monaghan and Hamilton townships was presented, through Mr. Stratton, to the government, asking for the erection of a wharf at the above landing. Engineers were sent to investigate the conditions and as a result of their report a sum of $5,000 has been appropriated to provide for the erection of a new pile wharf—ample to meet the needs of the neighbourhood for all shipping purposes. The farmers of South Monaghan and Hamilton desire to make Peterborough the market place for their products, to the mutual advantage of themselves and the city. The construction of this wharf will enable the steamers to give the farmers the accommodation they require for the easy shipment of their hogs, grain and other farm produce. Only those who notice the arrival of Rice Lake steamers at Peterborough on Wednesdays and Saturdays can form an idea of the very considerable amount of produce sent into our market from the district tributary to Rice Lake and the river, a good deal of which, without proper conveniences, would find an outlet to the south.

The main estimates, it will be remembered contained appropriations for the construction of a number of dams for release and use for navigation and power purposes at the dry season of the year, as will be seen from the following, reprinted from the Examiner:

$1,750,000 for the Trent Canal.

That is the big feature of the estimates for the fiscal year, as submitted to Parliament yesterday afternoon by Hon. Mr. Fielding, and will be hailed with delight by the people of this district. The appropriation of such a large sum means great progress towards the completion of the waterway that means so much for Peterboorugh, and will be an effective argument for the Board of Trade in its work of "building up Peterborough." The estimate is the largest that has yet been made towards work on the canal, and indicates that the Government is determined to finish the important work as soon as possible. With nearly two millions voted towards the canal the work next year will go ahead more rapidly than it has at any stage in the history of the enterprise, and the end of the great work is brought much nearer.

The appropriations also contain another item that is of importance to many Peterborough people. $3,400 is set down for the construction of a new steamer wharf at Juniper Island, Stony Lake, which will be appreciated by the many citizens who spend their summers at the Kawartha resort.

It is Mr. Stratton's intention to urge upon the government, the acquirement of the property of Mr. G. W. Hatton, situated on the east side of George street, lying between the premises of the George Matthews Company and the property of the McDonald estate. The object is to use this property for the erection of an L-shaped wharf and no finer site in the city for such a purpose can be found.

It is recognized that when a swing is placed in the C.P.R. bridge, a retaining wall on the west side of the river for the latter bridge to the Hunter street bridge will be required. The attention of the mayor and aldermen can profitably be directed to arranging with the Canadian Pacific Railway for the opening of a swing in the bridge and the promise of a foot walk between the two sides of the river connected by this bridge.

ALL ORDERS BEING FILLED

Eight days after the disastrous fire that ruined their entire stock, the "SALADA" Tea Co. resumed packing tea. An army of painters, plasterers, carpenters and charwomen have turned chaos into order—a smoke and water-laden building into a perfectly clean, fresh, wholesome warehouse. All orders are now being filled promptly. The insurance was finally adjusted Friday noon of last week—four days after the fire.

The Port of Missing Men.

By Meredith Nicholson,

Author of "The House of a Thousand Candles."

Copyright, 1907, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"I should value a change of raiment," observed Armitage. "There was an advantage in armor—your duds might get rusty on a damp excursion, but your shirt wouldn't stick to your hide."

"Who cares? Those devils are pretty quiet, and the little sergeant is about due to bump into them again."

They had come to a gradual turn in the road at a point where a steep wooded incline swept up on the left. On the right lay the old hunting preserve and Armitage's bungalow. As they drew into the curve they heard a revolver crack twice, as before, followed by answering shots and cries and the thump of hoofs.

"Obee! Oscar has struck them again. Steady now! Watch your horse!" And Armitage raised his arm high above his head and fired twice as a warning to Oscar.

The distance between the contending parties was shorter now than at the first meeting, and Armitage and Claiborne bent forward in their saddles, talking softly to their horses, that had danced wildly at Armitage's shots.

"Lord, if we can crowd them in here now and back to the Port!"

"There!"

Exclamations died on their lips at the instant. Ahead of them lay the fog, rising and breaking in soft folds, and behind it men yelled and several shots snapped spitefully on the heavy air. Then a curious picture disclosed itself just at the edge of the vapor as though it were a curtain through which actors in a drama emerged upon a stage. Zmai and Chauvenet flashed into view suddenly, and close behind them Oscar, yelling like mad. He drove his horse between the two men, threw himself flat as Zmai fired at him and turned and waved his hat and laughed at them; then just before his horse reached Claiborne and Armitage he checked its speed abruptly, flung it about and then charged back, still yelling, upon the amazed foe.

"He's crazy; he's gone clean out of his head!" muttered Claiborne, restraining his horse with difficulty. "What do you make of it?"

"He's having fun with them. He's just rattling them to warm himself up, the little beggar. I didn't know it was in him."

Back went Oscar toward the two horsemen he had passed less than a minute before, still yelling, and this time he discharged his revolver with seeming unconcern for the value of ammunition, and as he again dashed between them and back through the gray curtain Armitage gave the word, and he and Claiborne swept on at a gallop.

Durand was out of sight, and Chauvenet turned and looked behind him uneasily; then he spoke sharply to Zmai. Oscar's wild ride back and forth had demoralised the horses, which were snorting and plunging wildly. As Armitage and Claiborne advanced Chauvenet spoke again to Zmai and drew his own revolver.

"Oh, for a saber now!" growled Claiborne.

But it was not a moment for speculation or regret. Both sides were perfectly silent as Claiborne, leading slightly, with Armitage pressing close at his left, galloped toward the two men who faced them at the gray wall of mist. They bore to the left with a view of crowding the two horsemen off the road and into the preserve, and as they neared them they heard cries through the mist and rapid hoof beats, and Durand's horse leaped the ditch at the roadside just before it reached Chauvenet and Zmai, and ran away through the rough underbrush into the wood. Oscar close behind and silent now, grimly intent on his business.

The revolvers of Zmai and Chauvenet cracked together, and they, too, turned their horses into the wood, and away they all went, leaving the road clear.

"My horse got it that time!" shouted Claiborne.

"So did I," replied Armitage. "But never you mind, old man, we've got them cornered now."

Claiborne glanced at Armitage and saw his right hand, still holding his revolver, go to his shoulder.

"Much damage?"

"It struck a hard place, but I am still fit."

The blood streamed from the neck of Claiborne's horse, which threw up its head and snorted in pain, but kept bravely on at the trot in which Armitage had set the pace.

"Poor devil! We'll have a reckoning pretty soon," cried Armitage cheerily. "No kingdom is worth a good horse."

They advanced at a trot toward the Port.

"You'll be afoot any minute now, but we're in good shape and on our own soil, with those carrion between us and a gap they won't care to drop into. I'm off for the gate. You wait here, and if Oscar fires the signal give the answer."

Armitage galloped off to the right and Claiborne jumped from his horse just as the wounded animal trembled for a moment, sank to its knees and rolled over dead.

Chapter XXV

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN.

CLAIBORNE climbed upon a rock to get his bearings, and as he gazed off through the wood a bullet sang close to his head, and he saw a man slipping away through the underbrush a hundred yards ahead of him. He threw up his rifle and fired after the retreating figure, jerked the lever spitefully and waited. In a few minutes Oscar rode alertly out of the wood at his left.

"It was better for us a dead horse than a dead man—yes?" was the little sergeant's comment. "We shall come back for the saddle and bridle."

"Humph! Where do you think those men are?"

"Behind some rocks near the edge of the gap. It is a poor position."

"I'm not sure of that. They'll escape across the old bridge."

"Nein. A sparrow would shake it down. Three men at once—that would not need our bullets!"

Far away to the right two reports in quick succession gave news of Armitage.

"It's the signal that he's got between them and the gate. Swing around to the left, and I will go straight to the big clearing and meet you."

"You will have my horse—yes?" Oscar began to dismount.

"No. I do well enough this way. Forward! The word is to keep them between us and the gap until we can sit on them."

The mist was fast disappearing and swirling away under a sharp wind, and the sunlight broke warmly upon the drenched world. Claiborne started through the wet undergrowth at a dog trot. Armitage, he judged, was about half a mile away, and to make their line complete Oscar should traverse an equal distance. The soldier blood in Claiborne warmed at the prospect of a definite contest. He grinned as it occurred to him that he had won the distinction of having a horse shot under him in an open road fight almost within sight of the dome of the capitol.

The brush grew thinner and the trees fewer, and he dropped down and crawled presently to the shelter of a bowlder, from which he could look out upon the open and fairly level field known as the Port of Missing Men. As he looked about he saw Armitage, his horse at a walk, ride slowly out of the wood at his right. Claiborne jumped up and waved his hat, and a rifle ball flicked his coat collar as lightly as though an unseen hand had tried to brush a bit of dust from it. As he turned toward the marksman behind the cedars three shots, fired in a volley, hummed about him. Then it was very still, with the Sabbath stillness of early morning in the hills, and he heard faintly the mechanical click and snap of the rifles of Chauvenet's party as they expelled their exploded cartridges and refilled their magazines.

Claiborne jumped up and waved his hat.

"They're not so bad—bad luck to them!" he muttered. "I'll be ripe for the little brown men after I get through with this," and Claiborne laughed a little and watched Armitage's slow advance out into the open.

The trio behind the barricade had not yet seen the man they had crossed the sea to kill, as the line of his approach closely paralleled the long irregular wall with its fringe of cedars, but they knew from Claiborne's signal that he was there. The men had picketed their horses back of the little fort, and Claiborne commended their good generalship and wondered what sort of beings they were to risk so much upon so wild an adventure.

Armitage rode out farther into the opening, and Claiborne, with his eyes on the barricade, saw a man lean forward through the cedars in an effort to take aim at the horseman. Claiborne drew up his own rifle and blazed away. Bits of stone spurted into the air below the target's elbow, and the man dropped back out of sight without firing.

"I've never been the same since that fever," growled Claiborne and snapped out the shell spitefully and watched for another chance.

Being directly in front of the barricade he was in a position to cover Armitage's advance, and Oscar meanwhile had taken his cue from Armitage and ridden slowly into the field from the left. The men behind the cedars fired now from within the inclosure at both men without exposing themselves, but their shots flew wild, and the two horsemen rode up to Claiborne, who had emptied his rifle into the cedars and was reloading.

"They are all together again, are they?" asked Armitage, pausing a few yards from Claiborne's rock, his eyes upon the barricade.

"The gentleman with the curly hair—I drove him in. He is a poor shot—yes?"

Oscar tightened his belt and waited for orders, while Armitage and Claiborne conferred in quick pointed sentences.

"Shall we risk a rush or starve them out? I'd like to try hunger on them," said Armitage.

"They'll all sneak off over the bridge tonight if we pen them up. If they all go at once they'll break it down, and we'll lose our quarry. Has you want to capture 'them—alive?"

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

HANDICAPPED

This is the Case With Many Peterborough People.

Too many Peterborough citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest, and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief, but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pains and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Can you doubt Peterborough evidence.

W. Wormington, of 121 Brock St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"I had suffered with rheumatism for over three years. I found little or no relief in any of the remedies I tried. I became so stiff and sore that I could scarcely turn in bed, and had to lay off from my work. The urine was highly coloured and filled with a heavy, sand-like sediment, which plainly told the disordered state of the kidneys. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store, and was surprised to see how quickly the urine cleared. The kidneys were soon active and the uric acid went from my system. The rheumatism gradually became less severe and finally left me. I am better than in years previous and could not hesitate to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills.

Arbitral Court Will End War

American Statesman Is Hard at Work on the Preliminaries For the Great Tribunal at The Hague—He Does Not Expect Disarmament at Once, But Says It Will Only Be a Matter of Time.

Washington, D.C., April 21.—Ultimate disarmament of the nations of the world is practicable, in the opinion of U. S. Secretary of State Knox.

He believes the establishment of a court of arbitral justice, to which nations of the world may appeal for the settlement of their controversies, will have the effect, as its own natural consequence, of not merely reducing armament, but ultimateley of rendering large armaments unnecessary.

His plan for the establishment of an international court of arbitral justice, which was outlined in an identical note sent last fall to various nations, is said to be meeting with general favor, and Mr. Knox believes that such a court will be constituted at The Hague in the near future.

The Secretary said yesterday that the existence of an important tribunal of arbitral justice would make a resort to it very easy, as, being in permanent session, it would not have to be constituted anew for each case as it arises; that the expenses of the court would be borne by the nations jointly, not, as heretofore by the parties in controversy, and that the judgments of such a court would bind all parties interested in the particular controversy.

The court would be composed of judges representing various nations or systems of law, and it is expected would develop international law just as the common law was developed by judicial decision.

The Secretary also said that while the court would be primarily intended for the powers participating in its constitution, it would be open to any power that might wish to submit a controversy to it, thus making it in the fullest sense international.

Found Tablets; Baby Dead.

Toronto, April 21.—The danger of children picking up things in the streets was shown at the inquest into the death of nine-months-old Thomas McGreby, who died at the General Hospital on Wednesday last, the result of swallowing some bichloride of mercury tablets, which his little brother, Patrick, had found in the street, and taken home.

Eczema On Head and Arm

Four Doctors Failed After Fair Trial—Cure Effected by DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

The average physician is helpless in the presence of skin diseases such as eczema and salt rheum. Some make the mistake of treating eczema as a blood disease and advise internal treatment. Others think only relief is possible and recommend a lotion to afford relief from the itching.

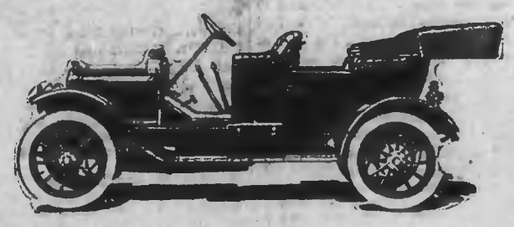
By far the most successful treatment for eczema is the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. You can verify this statement by enquiring of any druggist. This letter is a fair sample of what we are receiving about every day.

Mr. Geo. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "I wish to communicate to you the great benefit I received from using Dr. Chase's Ointment. For years I suffered with a skin disease on my head, a sort of eczema. I tried four doctors, giving each a fair trial, but got no better. In fact, the disease spread to my left arm.

"I saw Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised and began using it. Persistent use of this treatment has entirely cured me and I give you a statement of my case with pleasure as I hope thereby to induce some other sufferer to try the same Dr. Chase's Ointment."

There is a wonderful satisfaction in using Dr. Chase's Ointment for you can see from day to day just what results are being accomplished. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Specifications of the White Gasoline Car



CHAPTER II.

The White gasoline car is designed and built to run at a lower cost of upkeep, mile for mile, than any other car on the American market. Some of the factors which ensure economy both in fuel consumption and in cost of maintenance are:—

Intake Gases Heated

By including the intake passages within the block engine casting, the intake gases are heated. As a result, every particle of gasoline is completely vaporized, and each cylinder receives a uniform mixture of the proper richness, thus ensuring very low fuel consumption.

Exhaust Gases Cooled

By water-jacketing the exhaust passages, the temperature of the exhaust gases is reduced as soon as they leave the cylinders. As a result, the pressure of these gases is greatly reduced, and there is a minimum loss of power due to back pressure. This factor also results in low fuel consumption.

Four-Speed Transmission

The direct drive is on third gear, and practically all driving in town is done on this gear. For high-speed running, the fourth gear is used. There is, therefore, no racing of the engine, and no undue strains upon it when the car is run at high speed. Furthermore, the engine may always be run at very close to its most economical speed.

Valve Mechanism Enclosed

There is no chance for dirt and grit to work their way into the bearing surfaces and cause wear and faulty timing, as is the case when the valve mechanism consists of a series of external and unprotected springs, rocker-arm, push-rods, etc.

Accessibility of Every Working Part

The cost of making an ordinary adjustment on any car is determined largely by the accessibility of the several parts. In the White, accessibility has been developed to a much greater degree than in any other car. For example, as there are no external manifolds, or no overhead valve contrivances, a valve may be removed for regrinding without removing or disturbing any other part. As another example, the magneto and water pump are on opposite sides of the engine, and are driven independently, so either may be reached without disturbing the other.

ADVICE TO WOMEN

A Message From a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system, which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the weeping of mucous membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact this whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Banish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces become rosy and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health, and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mme. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucu-Tone. Here is her letter:

"I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucu-Tone as a cure for systematic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and run-down, lacking in energy, and vitality, will use Rexall Mucu-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities.

Rexall Mucu-Tone works through the blood, acting thus upon the mucous cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucu-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a builder of vigorous health and a creator of good complexions. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail orders filled. It may be obtained only at our store,—The Rexall Store.—McDermid & Jury, corner George and Charlotte streets.

PRESENTATIONS TO TWO MEMBERS

B. A. C. Banquet Two Young Men Who Are Leaving Their Ranks.

The members of the B. A. C. met at the beautiful parlours of Coleman's last evening, and spent a very pleasant time. The feature of the evening was the presentation to two of the members, Dr. Middleton, who is shortly to become a benedict, and Mr. D. B. McRae, who leaves in a few days for Winnipeg, where he will join the staff of the Manitoba Free Press. After partaking of an excellent repast. Mr. Leslie Turner, who presided, called the gathering to order. In neat speeches, Mr. Wallace Wood presented Mr. McRae with a handsome signet ring, and Mr. C. E. Sisson made a similar presentation to Dr. Middleton. Short speeches were made by Messrs. Ford Turner, W. D. Campbell, P. Hetherington, W. Warne, W. Richardson and S. Hall, to which suitable replies were made by the honoured guests of the evening.

An Address Of Welcome Was Read To The Visiting Masonic Brethren

The Masonic Lodge of Instruction opened yesterday by Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr. Ford, of Norwood, closed last evening with the exemplification of the work of the third degree, viz., the Wor. Masters and others of Ontario Lodge, No. 26, and Hope Lodge, No. 114, of Port Hope.

An address of welcome was read to Rt. Wor. Bro. Aubrey White, Deputy Grand Master, and the visiting brethren by Wor. Bro. G. W. Morrow as follows:

Rt. Wor. Sir and Brother:

By kind permission of your District Deputy I, as their Chief Magistrate, am accorded the privilege of tendering you the hearty welcome of the citizens of Peterborough.

We should esteem it a high honour to have you visit us in your private capacity.

But it is particularly gratifying to welcome you as a distinguished Deputy Grand Master of the Masonic Order—an Order in which are enrolled the best of citizens in every community the world over, and which has done so much to relieve distress, improve society, and inculcate those principles of morality and virtue, which underlie the highest ideals of good citizenship.

We congratulate you upon your deserved promotion in the craft, and we congratulate the craft on the good judgment it has evinced in selecting you as its Deputy Grand Master.

We trust that you and the brethren in this part of your jurisdiction will receive much encouragement and inspiration as a result of the Lodge of instruction.

We cordially welcome you to our city and hope that your fraternal duties will not be so onerous as to prevent you from getting some impression of our civic advantages and our material progress.

During your stay the freedom of the city is yours.

The Deputy Grand Master made a fitting reply, in which he stated that this was not his first visit to this city, as he had been called here in his professional capacity before. He felt sure his visit would be very enjoyable and the duties of his office light. No one regretted more than he the unavoidable absence of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master He was also well aware of the civic advantages and of the mutual progress which had been made by the city and concluded by congratulating the mayor on representing such a progressive city and the citizens on having such a man as Mr. Morrow for mayor.

After the close of the work of the Lodge of Instruction the brethren adjourned to the dining hall where Bro. T. Hooper prepared refreshments and a very pleasant hour was spent, a short toast list being offered.

Speeches were made by the Deputy Grand Master and Rt. Wor. Bro. Judge Harding, of Lindsay. Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr Ford and others interspersed with songs, etc.

The large number of brethren in attendance from all over the district was highly gratifying to the District Deputy, and he expressed himself as well satisfied with the work done at both sessions.

Among the other distinguished brethren present were Rt. Wor. Bro. Harding, P.G.M.; Rt. Wor Bro. R Clarke, and Rt. Wor. Bro. J. Hull.

Decorate For The Vice Regal Visit Saturday

Mayor Morrow has asked the Examiner to urge upon the citizens of Peterborough, and the merchants, in particular, to hang out their flags and bunting on Saturday in honour of the visit of His Excellency Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, on Saturday. A vice-regal visit to Peterborough is a distinct honour to the city, and the citizens should show their appreciation by decking their homes and business places in gala attire. Give the City a festive appearance.

NEW PHOTOGRAPHER

Mr. R. Farthing, a graduate of Heath and Stoneman's studio, Plymouth, is to succeed Mr. Richmond, and promises to become one of Peterborough's foremost photographers. The Richmond studio is now undergoing a renovation of equipments. Mr. Farthing has had the honour of photographing amongst many Royal and notable personages, the following: H. R. H. King Edward VII., H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, the Rt. Hon. Earl of Rosebury, K.G.K.T., His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, Rt. Hon. Earl Roberts, V.C., K.G. K. P., and Admiral Rt. Hon. Lord Chas. Beresford, K.C.B.

In the course of a few days Mr. Farthing will re-open the studio.

THE IVORY VENUS

A Short Story.

Winifred's acquaintance with Paul Sangster began when she was nine. He was living at that time in the old house where he had been born, and his father had died. It was a charming old house, filled with the many lovely things the Sangster family had been years in accumulating. Paul taught in the little college on the hill, just as his father had taught before him. He was 25 and plain-looking, save when he smiled, and then one saw that his teeth were perfect and his eyes were very kind and gentle.

Winifred's Aunt Lucy, who was a widow, kept house for Paul, and Winifred often went to see her. She was a thin, pale little girl, with sparkling gray eyes that ended in lines at the outer corners, giving her an elfishness of glance which could not be forgotten. She was largely dependent upon her aunt Lucy, for her father was an invalid and could not work much, and her mother was dead. Aunt Lucy saw that she had mittens and aprons as she needed them, and her kindness made the one bright spot in the child's tedious boarding-house existence. Occasionally she went with Aunt Lucy about the house on dusting and sweeping days, and had a cloth with which to wipe the plainer pieces of furniture, but never on any account must she touch the wonderful bric-a-brac, which was everywhere so temptingly displayed. It chanced one morning while they were in the library that Aunt Lucy was called away to the back door and Winifred was left alone. She stood entranced before a cabinet laden with bits of porcelain and alabaster and bronze. Surmounting them all was an exquisite little statue in ivory—a woman's figure, with waved hair and no arms. Winifred felt the greatest curiosity to know why she had no arms. She longed to hold the figure in her hands, and examine it more closely. There was no one to know, and she reached forth her hand to take it. But something held her back—something within her which she could not have named or understood. Sinking, she let her hand fall. Then, in the great mirror opposite she saw behind her a man who had entered the room silently and stood watching her. It was the first time that she had ever seen him to know him, but she was sure that he was Paul Sangster.

"Well," he said, "who are you?"

Winifred blushed.

"I'm Aunt Lucy's little girl," she answered.

"And a very reliable little girl, too, I should say," said Paul, smiling at her in his wonderful way. "Do you like such things as this?" He motioned towards the armless figure.

Winifred told him that she did, and then, although ordinarily she was a reserved, quiet child, she went on to tell him a great deal more what the doctor said about her father and how good Aunt Lucy was to her. By the time Aunt Lucy returned she and Paul were good friends.

So it came about that when, three years later, he decided to give up teaching and go abroad for a long time to travel and study and write a book he had in mind, he sent for Winifred to come to the library, where he was sitting.

"Well, he said, "you know I'm going away, Winnifred."

"Yes," she replied.

"When I see you again you will probably be grown up into a young woman. I want to give you something to remember me by—something out of this room." He rose and went to the cabinet and took down the armless ivory figure. "I am going to give you this," he said, "because it is considered one of the most beautiful things in the world. It is the Venus of Milo. I want you to keep it with you always and look at it often and try to make your whole life as perfect as is this little ivory statue."

So he went away and Winifred had the ivory Venus. Her father had died and when Paul closed his house Aunt Lucy, feeling herself too old to work longer for others, took Winifred with her to a tiny rented home of her own. For several years she kept the girl in school. Then all at once the money seemed to give out and Winifred had to go to work in a store. But she meant to be something more than a shop girl and so she spent her evenings studying shorthand. It was three years before she got an office position, and then Aunt Lucy was dead, and she was utterly alone in the world.

Winifred lived bravely, dividing her time between the office by day and her half bedroom by night. The hall bedroom was rather a pitiful place for a girl to call home, but one thing it held glorified it for Winifred; that was the ivory Venus. It stood beside her mirror, and before her bed, upon a little dark wood bracket, regal in its whiteness and perfection of outline. In the years that had passed since Paul gave it to her, Winifred had learned its meaning, and its value, and thus had been led to learn of other things until she had grown into a rare knowledge and love of books and art. It had helped her to maintain dignity of thought and purity of conduct in every circumstance of her life. The memory of Paul had helped her, too. He had come to be, indeed, her ideal of manhood. And since she believed that the ivory Venus embodied his idea of lovable womanhood, she tried with all her girl's strength to attain some measure of protection for herself. Many people wondered at the lofty serenity of this little working girl who seemed to live in a world apart from that of the men and women who surrounded her.

For two years Winifred did very well. She even saved a little money. Then came a terrible time. She fell ill, and when, after several weeks, she was able to return to her place she found that it had not been kept for her as she had been made to believe it would be. Her late employer was very plausible; he was sorry, but there had been such a pressure of business; he was sure she would find another situation without the least trouble.

But Winifred could not find another situation. It was at the wrong time of the year. She went everywhere. She answered endless advertisements. And all the time her savings were going—going with the incredible swiftness that is the portion of one who consumes without producing. She felt that she would soon be forced to pawn something. And she had only one thing of value, the ivory Venus.

"I can't part with that," she thought, desperately, looking into the calmly perfect face that had comforted her sense of beauty through so many trying years.

Her tailored suit and hat were growing shabby from being worn in all kinds of weather. Her rubbers gave out, and she had to walk with her shoes unprotected until they, too, were shabby. She was behind with her rent. All things seemed culminating to her destruction, and she had no one to turn to in her need.

After a sleepless night she rose one morning determined that day to carry the Venus to the pawnshop. But after she had drank a cup of bitterly strong tea, boiled surreptitously over the gas jet, her courage revived, and she set forth on one more quest for work, a quest that proved futile like all the rest. She walked back to her room, because she felt that she could not afford to pay carfare, and arrived there utterly tired out with a hole in the sole of her last pair of shoes. It was wet, sloppy weather, and as Winifred looked at that shoe sole she knew that in order to avoid more illness she must either buy a new pair of shoes or pay carfare. As the new shoes were quite out of the question she decided that the cheaper thing to do would be to pay carfare.

She made more tea and drank it and ate a bad sandwich which she had purchased on her way home. The crisis had come. After she had eaten she took the Venus down from its bracket and wrapped it in a piece of white paper.

"Forgive me," she whispered to the inanimate thing. "I love you dearly for your own sake and for his, but you see, I can't starve in this big city. And I'm not ready yet to throw myself into the river."

With the parcel in her hand she again set forth. At the corner she took a down-town car which she knew would leave her within half a block of the pawnshop to which she was going. The car was crowded, but a tall man in brown rose and gave her his seat. She thanked him and took it, but she did not look at him. Her trouble made her apathetic and she sat miserably staring out at the street, which, at that hour, was full of traffic. Suddenly came a crash and terrific jar. Winifred was flung into the aisle on her knees. About her was a pandemonium of shrieking women and cursing men. The car was full of broken glass and blood was running from many hands and faces. There had been a collision. With the breath shaken out of her, Winifred struggled to right herself and found that she was clinging with both hands to a brown-clad shoulder, which seemed to interpose between her and the attacks of the panic-stricken passengers. Nevertheless, her hands were torn from their hold and she was pushed bodily into the street, where traffic had temporarily ceased. Bruised, shaken, and wholly bewildered, she managed to make her way out of the press. Then it occurred to her that her hands were empty. She had lost the ivory Venus! With a little cry of dismay she turned and ran back towards the wrecked car. But before she could reach it a policeman stopped her.

"I must go back. I've lost something," she cried, wildly.

"What did you lose?" asked a quiet voice. It was the man in brown who was speaking to her. He stood at her elbow.

"A parcel," explained Winifred, "that held a little ivory statue — the Venus—"

"What's that?" The man in brown's exclamation was so sharp that she looked at him startled and was still more startled to find that his face had something familiar in it. Then she saw that he had a parcel in his hand, from which the Venus' delicate head protruded through a break in the paper. Winifred gave a sob of joy and caught at her treasure.

"Oh," she said, "I'm so glad."

But the man in brown merely laid hold of her arm and drew her away from the press of suspended traffic and gathering spectators.

"Now," he said, "you will please tell me where you are taking that?"

"I'm taking it to a pawnshop," Winifred answered simply. "I'm out of work and—and—"

"My God!" said the man. "Winifred, don't you know me? I am Paul Sangster."

Two hours later Winifred sat with Paul in a cafe at a table from which she had just eaten the best dinner of her life. She was rested and refreshed. And she had told Paul all her story, which he had understood wonderfully.

"But for the ivory Venus," he said, "we might have gone our ways and never known. You have changed so much, Winifred, that I would never have recognized in you the thin, long-eyed little girl you were when your Aunt Lucy kept my house. Well, I will tell you. My book is written and needs only to be copied to be ready for the publisher. If you will undertake to put it in shape for me—".

In the weeks that followed Winifred was very busy in the office Paul set

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Manuel, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '09, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and to-day my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. CORNER STONE OF ADDITION TO NEW FIRE HALL LAID

Important Ceremony Performed by Chief Howard Yesterday in the Presence of Distinguished Guests

A SPLENDID BUILDING

"I William Alexander Howard, of the City of Peterborough, and the County of Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, Fire Chief, do hereby solemnly dedicate an addition to the fire station, by the laying of the corner stone, in the presence of the honourable, the mayor, and the honourable gentlemen of the corporation of the city of Peterborough.

(Signed.)
H. MORGAN,
Chairman Fire, Water and Light Com.

With the reading of the above address by Fire Chief Howard, the corner stone of the new addition to the fire hall was well and truly laid at 5 o'clock last evening in the presence of representatives of the Council, the members of the brigade and a number of invited guests. The epoch-making event was carried through with an eclat and brilliancy that speaks well for the good taste of Chief Howard and his men. The affair was a brilliant success in every way and the ceremony indicates the commencement of an era of prosperity and advancement in the history of fire protection that will eclipse all previous efforts.

Among those present were His Honour Judge Huycke, Ald. Morgan, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, Ald. Metheral, Ald. Graham and Ald. Batten, Dr. King, honorary physician to the brigade, and number of other invited guests. Every member of the fire department was on hand attired in gala garb, while a flag floating proudly in the breeze indicated the importance of the occasion.

Within the cavity of the corner stone were placed copies of each of the three local papers a list of the names of the members of the Fire Department, a number of coins of the realm, a copy of the address read by Chief Howard.

The dedication performed by Chief Howard, who attired in a white coat and silk hat, added distinction to the occasion. He was assisted in his important duties by Deputy-Chief Grange and Lieut. Denno, who performed the functions of mason and hod-carrier respectively with credit to themselves and the department. Before the solemn ceremony was carried through Mr. R. M. Roy succeeded in taking some excellent photographs of the gathering

Space will not permit the publishing of the many brilliant and eloquent speeches that were made. However, it is safe to say that the feast of oratory was much above the average and of the calibre appropriate to such an important occasion. Threatening rain clouds did not interefere with the success of the event which was carried through without a hitch.

The new annex which will be an important and useful addition to the fire hall, promises to be a credit to the city. The Examiner was informed that the plans were supposed to have been drawn by Smith and Bond, of Toronto, and are of a nature as to give comfort and room to the occupants of the building as well as to provide an attractive exterior that will uphold the dignity of Canadian architecture. The building will be chaste, if not to say plain in its lines, but will be built with a bold rugged simplicity that will have a most striking effect upon the visitors who will undoubtedly be taken to see the new addition. Work will be rushed on the new structure, and with the united efforts of the large gang of workmen that is at present employed, the building should be finished in record time. It will be a valuable addition to Peterborough's public buildings and show places.

Letters of regret at their inability to be present have been received from a number of prominent citizens.

Hon. Geo. A. Cox Contributes To the Chimes Cause

Editor of The Examiner:

The accompanying letter from Hon. Geo. A. Cox, enclosing his cheque for $200 speaks for itself. This most generous act and the kindly sentiments expressed will go far towards deepening the feelings entertained by Peterborough citizens for one whose steady interest in the welfare of the city and whose private and public benefactions are already so widely known and appreciated.

The committee in charge of this enterprise do not feel, however, like allowing Mr. Cox's gift to take the place of what might other wise be done by themselves.

On all sides subscribers and friends urge us for the sake for the city to "get the very best and only the best bells which can be procured." This is what we ourselves both desire and are determined to accomplish insofar as we are enabled to do so.

Accordingly, though this unexpected donation brings us within about $3.75 of the amount originally aimed at, still, with the help of the public, we shall strive to get the $1550 subscribed in Peterborough and reserve Mr. Cox's gift either for a higher class set of chimes (if that is at all possible to get) or for another bell to increase the range.

Canvassing is, of course, a very hard and unpleasant work which we all dislike, though in this case, we are cheered by the evident desire of citizens to help the scheme forward on public grounds in spite of the many obligations resting on them. It is something to have such an united feeling prevalent. As we cannot reach everyone, and as the help of everyone is needed to bring this enterprise to a conclusion satisfactory to all citizens, we have placed subscription lists at Coleman Brothers' store and Grafton & Co's, though further help may be given. Amounts of $5 and under should be paid in cash to save expense of collection.

With continued gratitude to every singe subscriber, and the hope that everyone else may have a share in the enjoyment of the bells.—Yours, etc.,

J. C. DAVIDSON.

P. S.—We expect to purchase the chimes through a representative committee of subscribers, and one of our citizens who has had experience of tubular chimes in England has agreed to personally interview the English manufacturers. Every precaution will be taken to prevent disappointment.

Hon. Senator Cox's letter is as follows:—

Rev. J. D. Davidson,
"The Rectory"
Peterborough, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Davidson,—I am in receipt of your esteemed favour of the 14th inst. I shall be quite pleased to assist you in your efforts to place a set of tubular chimes in St. John's tower, in the good city that has so many pleasant recollections for me, and have pleasure in handing you herewith my cheque for $200, to aid in that desirable work. I feel sure you will have no difficulty in raising the necessary amount and there will therefore, be no reason for me withholding my subscription until the final amount is raised, but if you desire to have it made conditional in that way you can do so and hand it in when the necessary additional $1350 has been subscribed I quite realize, appreciate and congratulate you upon the part you have taken in the kindly feeling that prevails amongst the different Christian churches in Peterborough, which I hope may long continue.

Yours very truly,
GEO. A. COX.

Diet For Mental Work

Have you ever felt the necessity of it?

I am speaking to people who have a certain amount of brain work to do every day and are sometimes hampered in the exercise of thought by a heavy feeling after meals. This is well known.

Of course you ought to study your diet, eat moderately, and avoid all indigestible foods. The presence in the stomach of imperfectly digested nutriment impedes the function of the intellect, and it is advisable to have recourse to small and frequent supplies of easily digested food if you wish your mind to remain alert.

During long business hours, when you feel exhausted, try a piece of TOBLER'S Pure Swiss Milk Chocolate, which contains the three following elements: Pure Swiss Milk, pure crystallized sugar, and pure cocoa.

This combination is both palatable and nutritious, and it will not overload your stomach.

An Interesting Story Of Business Advancement

(Canadian Courier.)

All the way from handling a portable flour mill to occupying the position of managing director of a $5,000 Canadian milling concern is a pretty strong indication that the man who accomplished it ought to have a very thorough idea of the milling business.

This is the record of Hedley Shaw, who next week assumes the office of managing director of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, the big Ontario milling concern formed by Cawthra Mulock, the young Toronto financier, Mr. D. C. Cameron, the Winnipeg lumberman who originally formed the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Co., L'td., and Mr. Hedley Shaw, founder of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, to take over both the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Co., and the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, and put up $1,000,000 additional cash that would permit of the erection of a modern 6,000 barrel mill, a million bushel elevator and storage warehouses at Port Colborne, the site that all the Canadian milling concerns have had their eyes on for some time past.

It was some twenty-eight or thirty years ago that Hedley Shaw, then a mere lad, had a portable mill, about the only thing he had in the world at the time, and with it did quite a little business through different parts of Manitoulin Island. Previous to that time, it is reported that he had been an apprentice miller and for the whole of his first year's work received the monumental sum of $50 or a little less than $1 a week.

But Shaw was just the kind of a fellow that was bound to get along even though his progress might be slow, and realizing that perhaps it would be better to operate closer to the big towns, became a partner in a business that had a small mill at Oakville. At the time his name was the second one in the firm and so it was not long before he started out for himself, his first mill being situated at Thorold.

That was about eighteen years ago and he then formed the Hedley Shaw Milling Company and afterwards secured an additional mill at St. Catharines.

Time and time again the big Canadian milling concerns tried to gobble him up and at times some pretty attractive offers were made him, but Shaw didn't like the idea of any transaction unless he was going to remain at the head of his own business and he insisted that he would wait even though the wait was a long one and build up his own concern rather than work in somebody else's.

When Cameron, the big Winnipeg lumberman, decided to break into the milling game and formed the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Co., L'td., he was told that he had better first of all get into touch with Hedley Shaw and the outcome was that there was a union of interests, Hedley Shaw becoming general manager of the Maple Leaf Flour the latter company controlling the Hedley Shaw Milling Company.

Shaw always looked after the practical end of the business and while he had to look after the construction of new mills and numerous elevators he was first, last and all the time, a miller who always insisted that his concerns should do a milling business exclusively.

Then came the plans for still bigger things than had been, resulting in the evolution of private business that had been pre-eminently successful into public corporations, the first undertaking of which would be the erection of a giant modern mill at Port Colborne that would have a capacity of 6,000 barrels of flour a day and would have alongside of it a 1,000,000 bushel elevator and large storage warehouses. All this would mean a large amount of additional capital and then we find the C wthra Mulock, Hedley Shaw and D. C. Cameron combination springing into existence, resulting in the formation of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, which would take over the two other concerns and by means of additional cash capital would become a great Canadian milling concern whose mills would have a capacity of 12,800 barrels of flour per day and have over fifty elevators spread out through the Western wheat belt and at Ontario points in order to keep the mills well supplied.

Shaw had long been looking at the Port Colborne location and was satisfied that the company that had its principal mill situated at that point would have something on every other Canadian milling concern in the advantages it would enjoy of being able to lay its flour down on the principal markets of the world, cheaper than could be done from a mill situated at any other point.

A peculiar feature in this development is that just at the time when the Province of Ontario is practically giving up raising wheat, that plans should be laid out to have such large mills erected at different points in the province.

Ontario will be all the more interested in the new big Maple Leaf concern because its head office as well as its largest mills will be situated in the province and its stock will be more largely held in the province than that of any other Canadian milling company.

And all the time we will be watching Hedley Shaw, the miller, just to see how he gets along with the operating end of the business.

SOME BIG EGGS

Mr. Dan McMillan Shows The Examiner Monster Pair.

The housewives of Peterborough would not mind paying fancy prices for eggs if they could get the quality of "hen fruit" shown the Examiner yesterday afternoon by Mr. Dan. McMillan, Bolivar street. To the newspapermen who cannot afford eggs during the famine prices, the articles that Mr. McMillan dragged in, appeared as big as footballs, but a calm investigation revealed the fact that the two eggs weighed exactly seven ounces, and each measured seven and one-half inches in circumference.

Naval Bill Third Reading

Anti-Combine Act Needs $10,000 and Technical Education Commission Demands $25,000—Hon. Mr. Fielding Replies to Charges of Disloyalty—Crocket Again Brings Up Sawdust Wharf Topic.

Ottawa, April 21.—The navy bill was given its third reading in the House of Commons yesterday. The vote stood:

For the bill, 111; against the bill, 70—Government majority, 41.

Much has been said about dissension in the Conservative ranks, but when it comes to the final issue, the Conservative party voted solidly together. Mr. Verville, the Labor member, voted with the Government. There were only three speeches on the third reading, Edmund Bristol (Centre Toronto) does not often speak, but he delivered an eloquent address yesterday. Amongst other things he scorned the claim made by Mr. Fielding that the leaders of the Liberal party were patriotic, when the Premier had to be forced to send troops to South Africa, and Mr. Fielding himself, when Premier of Nova Scotia, had refused to allow the British flag to be flown on Dominion Day.

When the bill was called for third reading, R. L. Borden said there were two questions which occurred to him as of importance. What form should Canada's immediate aid to the present emergency take, and what would be a reasonable basis of permanent operation? The people, he said, had a right to be consulted.

Mr. Borden declared that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had tried to becloud the issue, had tried to make out that he did not want Canada to be involved in every little war in which Britain might be engaged. What he wanted was that, when the Empire was in danger, Canada would assist in the defence, and that the whole world would see that, to attack Britain or any portion of the Empire, meant attacking the whole Empire.

It was foolish for the Government to argue that the Canadian navy would be dragged into every British war. The whole of the British navy was not itself called out, perhaps not one-tenth of it. Sir Wilfrid's proposal he derided as dangerous and revolutionary.

Sir Wilfrid was unable to reply, owing to a heavy cold, but Hon. W. S. Fielding said that the only question between the parties was one of detail, and the Government considered that their method was the better.

Mr. Fielding was inclined to attach much importance to the creation of a personal interest in the navy, and this interest would not attend a mere contribution of money. Every taxpaying Canadian should be made "one of the owners" of the navy, and then they would have a genuine interest in it.

In raising the disloyalty cry of the Opposition had been unfair to fellow Canadians, for the records showed that whatever had been done to cement the ties of the Empire had been done by Liberal Governments. The Liberals had devised the Imperial preference, sent troops to South Africa, provided the military college at Kingston, were building a navy and would provide a naval college. On the other hand, the Conservatives had declined to send a dollar or a man to the aid of the Empire when the relief of Gordon of Khartoum was being planned; they had devised a policy of high protection, and, when some one had said this was not good for British connection, the official organ of the party had remarked: "So much the worse for British connection."

Edmund Bristol (Centre Toronto) said the Conservative party and the people of Canada had forced the Premier's hand in the African war. The Liberal party, he said, thought more of money than of human life. They sent three regiments to South Africa, but would not send a dollar to help England. Every Conservative wanted to see Dreadnoughts built in Canada and manned by Canadians, but what they wanted to do first, last, and all the time, was to play their part in the defence of the Empire.

The vote was then taken.

His Excellency the Governor-General, in presenting the supplementary estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1911, to the House of Commons yesterday morning, asked for $10,000 to defray the expense in connection with the Combine Investigation Act, and $25,000 for the Technical Education Commission.

The total is $5,185,081.63, of which $3,673,781.63 is chargeable to consolidated fund and $1,469,300 to capital.

Whitby has been granted $20,000 for harbor improvements. Twenty-five thousand dollars has been devoted to the Department of Labor.

The new Naval Department is allowed $49,650 running expenses for the year ending March, 1911. The supplementary estimates yesterday morning contained items totalling that much.

They include the Deputy Minister's salary, $5,000, and sundry other officials.

The sum of $25,000 has been set aside for borings and surveys for the proposed new Welland Canal.

In Toronto $6,000 will be allowed for completing fittings, as sidewalks, fences, etc., for the meteorological building and $20,000 for the additions to the rear portion and east side of the Toronto General Postoffice.

In the estimates for Public Works Department is $20,000 for the improvement of the Hamilton harbor.

The question is likely to be raised in the House as to whether the proceedings of the Liberal committee now investigating the Lumsden charges, are in order.

Four is a quorum, but frequently the committee sits with only three members. The climax was reached last night, when for some considerable time the only members of the committee present during the examination of Engineer Poulin, by F. H. Chrysler, were Messrs. Geoffrion and McDonald.

Hon. Frank Oliver's bill to amend the Immigration Act was given a third reading in the Senate yesterday, as was also Hon. Mr. Graham's bill authorizing branch lines to be leased by the I.C.R.

The "sawdust wharf" at Richibucto formed the subject of debate on the motion to go into supply on Public Works estimates last evening. O. S. Crockett (York, N.B.) made several strong statements regarding both the transaction and Hon. William Pugsley's connection with it.

Mr. Crocket concluded by moving an amendment, stating that the evidence showed that the purchase was a corrupt and fraudulent transaction which deserved the severest censure of the House. He spoke for 3 1-2 hours.

F. B. Carvell moved the adjournment and the House rose at 11.30.

Cargo Is In Great Peril

Inhabitants Are All Engaged In Picking Up the Rich Loot as Fast as It Is Hurled Overboard by the Crew of the Ill-Fated Steamer—The Vessel Will Have to Be Cut In Half—May Be Total Loss.

Hughtown, St. Mary's, Scilly Islands, April 21.—The inhabitants of the rocky Scilly Islands were famous wreckers of primitive times, but they will forever remember this as the greatest day in their history. The Atlantic transport liner Minnehaha, which ran ashore early Monday morning, disgorged part of her 17,000 tons of valuable cargo, casting it upon the waters all day long, to be gathered up by those who cared to take the trouble.

Farming and fishing were abandoned; school even was dismissed, and most of the population of the nearby islands, men, women and children, devoted themselves to obtaining treasures from the waves.

The salvagers decided to try to rescue the Minnehaha in the same way they did the White Star steamship Suevic, which went ashore near the Lizard in March, 1907, by cutting her in half.

Every effort to lighten the ship is now imperative. Yesterday the waves were too high for the tugs to go alongside. Consequently, goods were thrown overboard from the forward hold as fast as the stevedores and a large crew could raise them to the deck.

Huge cases containing automobiles and piano players, sewing machines and clocks, followed one another over the side into the ocean.

Many bales of cigarettes covered the face of the water, and tons of cheap American novels drifted to the nearby shore of Bryner, where they were piled like seaweed.

Tidings of this jettisoning of wealth spread early and a fleet of fishing craft, luggers and rowboats scurried to the scene. As fast as the cargo struck the water the enterprising boatmen pulled up the smaller cases and took the larger ones in tow.

Many boatloads of provisions were taken ashore at other points by the islanders. The people of Bryner Island fished out boxes of foods, tea and tobacco and enough paper covered novels to keep the islands in reading matter for a century.

Two hundred and twenty-four cattle swam ashore, while ten were drowned.

Seamen here think it will be impossible to save the Minnehaha.

Blockade Increases.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 21.—The big blockade of steamers at this point continues to increase rather than diminish, and there are now 50 boats and the same number below the locks. There is no immediate hope for relief inside of two or three weeks. A large number of boats equipped with wireless are sending in orders for supplies via the station at the Park Hotel here.

The boats are given their locking turn by a watchman stationed at Little Rapid Cut, and up to the present there have been no accidents. The sight of an anchored freight at night is very beautiful. It attracts much attention and admiration as it extends up and down the river as far as the eye can reach.

The Essential Point.

London, April 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Standard referring to the passing of the navy bill at Ottawa says it would be highly improper to criticise the domestic arrangements of the patriotic self-governing state. The essential point for the present is the creation of a navy by the overseas states, which have undertaken their new responsibilities, some, too, soon.

Now—and Then

YEARS ago when none of us knew better we took our wheat to the village mill and our good friend the miller ground it for us the best he could.

It wasn't his fault if our wheat was mostly grits or if it was frosted or smutty. He did the best he could with the materials we gave him and the facilities he had for grinding.

The making of flour today is not a mere grinding process. It is a scientific process. The great Ogilvie Flour Mills of today are a vast commercial enterprise extending from ocean to ocean.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is a world product. It is well known in Africa as well as in Canada. It is as much appreciated in the poorest household at home as it is in the Royal Household abroad. To make Royal Household Flour the product it is, involves vast capital and vast resources. Every advanced process, every modern device that can in any way improve the quality of Royal Household Flour is immediately adopted regardless of expense.

If the production of ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR was purely a milling process it would not be better than any good flour. But it is not the milling alone that makes it the finest flour in the world. It is the all embracing system of care and watchfulness and scientific knowledge that surround it at every stage from wheat field to kitchen.

Every step in the production of ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR from the planting of the wheat to the delivery of the package to the grocer is embraced in the requirements of this system. It is watch, watch, watch, and test, test, test and know, know, know at every step. No happen-chance. No guess work. Everywhere and always, scientific knowledge and eternal vigilance.

Canadians ought to be proud of Royal Household Flour. It is no small thing to have to say that the world's most perfect flour is made in Canada from Canadian wheat and has become a world-wide factor through Canadian skill and capital.

"Royal Household" is head and shoulders above ordinary flour in quality and perfection. It is the result of Capital, Skill and Experience which are the parents of scientific milling knowledge.

The best flour for Bread and Pastry is "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD." To try it is to prove it.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 20.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market offerings to-day were 325 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 710 hogs and 2000 calves. Owing to continued small supplies of cattle prices scored a further advance of 25c to 35c per cwt. The attendance of buyers was large and demand was good, as butchers generally were short of supplies. Choice steers sold at $7.60 to $7.65; good, at $7 to $7.35; fairly good, at $6.50 to $6.75; fair at $6 to $6.25; and common, at $5.75 per cwt. Some very choice fat cows met with a ready sale, at $6.25 to $6.50, and good ones at $5.75 to $6 per cwt. The supply of sheep and lambs was a little larger, with demand good, and prices ruled firm. Sheep brought 4c per lb., and lambs, sold at from $4 to $6 each. Offerings of calves were large and an active trade was done at $3 to $10 each. A weaker feeling prevailed for hogs on account of increased supply and prices declined 15c to 20c. Demand was only fair at this reduction, as packers have ample stocks on hand for the balance of the week, and trade was slow with sales of selected lots at $10 to $10.25, weighed off the cars.

Had Given Up All Hope of Living.

Heart Trouble Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grattan's, N.B., writes:—"In the year 1905, I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors, but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

"One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say, 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

"I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now."

JOE KELLEY THINKS THE MAPLE LEAFS ARE STRONG

Toronto Manager in a Message Before League Opens, Speaks Well of the Prospects.

THE TEAM IS SPEEDY

Providence, R.I., April 20.—On the eve of the championship season, Manager Joe Kelley of the Toronto Ball Club, has the following comments to make on his team and the situation generally in the Eastern League:

"The race for the pennant, which begins to-morrow, marks the commencement of my nineteenth year in baseball, yet a man is as young as he feels, and I think I have a few more years left for active work on the diamond. I intend to play again myself this year, as usual, but with an extra outfielder on the payroll it will not be necessary for me to get in the game regularly until the warm weather sets in. The cold days of April and early May only retard the veteran, while they have little effect on the younger players. I also want to have a good look at the material we have on hand with the idea of procuring the best results for the club, and I think I can tell better from the bench than I can playing one of the positions in the outfield. However, I will be always available and in case of an emergency will jump right into the game. In case Grimshaw is not able to play to-morrow I will play myself.

"The Eastern League this season will consist of a number of new or almost new teams, and it would be idle to hazard an opinion on their strength until they measure up with the other fellows and swing at least once around the circuit. Rochester and Newark have made the least number of changes. The champions have, if anything, strengthened up, and in view of their splendid record last season, must be regarded with a great deal of respect. They appear to be better balanced than they were a year ago, and if their pitchers work as well as they did then they'll take some beating. Newark will miss Harry Wolverton and Bud Sharpe, but otherwise they are intact. The other teams are in the experimental stages, and no line can be had on them until they play some championship games.

"Our own team comes under that head, too. We are practically a new team, with the exception of the pitchers, and we must show our worth in actual play. I think we will not be found wanting in many respects. We may not have the ideal in all positions but we have men who, I think, will prove satisfactory and fill the requirements of the bill.

A Fast Team.

"We have one good feature this year that was noticeably absent in last year's team, and that is speed. We have several sprinters and good base runners in our line-up. Shaw, Vaughan, Deal, Mullen, McDonald and Fitzpatrick are all fast, and Delehanty is also a good man on the bases. Shaw and Vaughan are exceptionally fast getting down to first, while Deal is the best slider on the team. Many a game is lost by a single step, and with six or seven fast regulars we ought to get a great deal more runs with less hitting. However, I think we will average up pretty well in the hitting, too, and with Grimshaw, Delehanty, Shaw, McDonald, Fitzpatrick, Deal, and Tonneman we are well fortified in that line. I'd like to have Fred Mitchell back to help out the catching department, but George Stallings says there's no chance of Mitch leaving the New York Club. However, with Tonneman and Vandy we should be in good shape behind the bat.

Good Twirlers.

"I don't think any team has anything on our pitching staff. I intend to work McGinley, Rudolph, Newton, and Smith regularly on the rubber, and will have the others to fill in, and for batting practice all of the pitchers are in good shape and ready to work a full game and, of course, we place a great deal of confidence in them. Corey and Gurney are most promising youngsters, especially the former.

"We will try and give the people of Toronto some fast, lively baseball this year, and even if we don't win the pennant we'll always be a factor in the race, trying our very best all the time."

Jeff's Stomach Causes Trainers Trouble

Rowardennan, April 20. — A new cause for worry on the part of Jeffries' trainers has cropped up, and while Berger and the other pilots of sporting opinion are attempting today to put a soft pedal on the matter, there has sprung up a lot of serious doubt as to Jeff's ability to assimilate a punch in the 'midship section.

Jeff's wind is all right. The big guess in the first days of training has been answered. Jeff's bellows, so far as organism is concerned, are as good to-day as when the champion bowled over Fitzsimmons, Ruhlin and Munroe. Jeff could go fifteen rounds in real earnest without suffering any inconvenience, and is as tickled over the way his wind has developed as a 'kid who has just learned to "skin the cat." It was regarding his ability to get his wind in shape that Jeff entertained his one doubt.

It is the front he is putting up that is now being watched. In all his posed pictures Jeff carefully draws in the stomach and gives an appearance of being quite svelte like, but the paunch has not gone entirely, and the absence of the old washboard muscles which formerly sheathed the champion's solar plexus is obvious. In the little boxing the champ has done he has covered up the belt region very carefully, but when once or twice Armstrong has ripped stiff ones into his short ribs, Jeff has shown a decided dislike to the going.

Apparently, however, the lack of satisfactory upholstering is not worrying Jeff. When asked about it to-day he just grinned, rubbed a big paw over his "tummy," where the muscles ought to be, and remarked that he "guessed the material is still good."

The positive assurance of her doctors that Mrs. Jeffries will be out of the hospital in two weeks has made a big change in the disposition of the big fellow. He has dropped a grouch, and is as frisky as a kid. He was so frisky, in fact, that Berger stepped in yesterday and reminded him that the fight is July 4, and not May 4, when he was hitting it up too hard with the work.

Before sun up this morning Jeff was off on an eight mile jaunt, and this afternoon he promised to muss up the maps of Berger and Armstrong, in addition to working out with the gloves with Papke, in an effort to improve his judgment of distance.

Something About The Marathon Winner

On Monday, Fred Cameron, of Amherst, Nova Scotia, was unknown, but to-day he is the central figure of the athletic stage.

The Boston winner was born at Advocate Harbor, Nova Scotia, twenty-three years ago, and is at present a clerk in a dry goods store, although he was originally a farmer's son. He stands five feet three and one-half inches high, and weighed before the race 127 pounds. It was not until he moved to Amherst two years ago that he took up the running game, but he soon made a name for himself at the five and ten mile distances. At present he is the M. P. A. Y. A. five and ten-mile champion.

At the twenty-second annual championships of the Maritime Provinces A. A. A., held at Halifax last September 11th, he won the five-mile event in 26.01 4-5. His win was the feature of the meet. He came within a second of eclipsing the record made by Adams, of Hamilton, three years ago. In that race the fair-haired Amherster won as he pleased, and finished with a great spurt. His very first appearance was at the Labour Day meet at Amherst in 1907, when he ran second in both the one and one-half mile races. No one took much notice of him then.

After his fast race at Halifax last September, Cameron met Bob Fowler, of Cambridge, in a ten-mile indoor race at Sydney, N.S., and won hands down. He beat all Canadian records from two to ten miles, but the track was not surveyed. Cameron lapped Fowler twice and his time was 52.50. Fowler was lapped in the fourth and again the eighth. The five mile post was negotiated in 25.23. All Canadian records from two to ten miles were broken. Time by miles: 4.50, 9.52, 14.53, 20.06, 25.25, 30.45, 35.12, 40.43, 46.04.

Cameron's last appearance before the Boston event was the Halifax ten mile road race last Thanksgiving Day, when he ran the distance in pouring rain in 56.16, beating Homer's record for the race.

PASTOR DISRUPTS CHURCH

Baptist Who Attacked Creeds Has Stirred Up Trouble.

Brooklyn, N.Y., April 20.—The crisis has come in the Washington avenue Baptish Church. Four of the trustees and three of the deacons have resigned, and at least two of the trustees openly declare that they will neither attend nor support the church until the pastor, the Rev. D. Robert Macdonald, shall have resigned.

The leader of the Bible class, Frank Harvey Field, has resigned from the leadership, which he has held for 12 years, and the class has disbanded until the fall. A new Bible study class has been started under the leadership of the pastor, Dr. Macdonald.

There have been other resignations, notably those of Thomas L. Farrar, president of the Baptist Young People's Union of the Church; N. L. Otis, president of the Men's Club, and C. N. Manfred, vice-president of the Men's Club. Mrs. Frank Harvey Field has given up her Sunday School class, one of the largest in the school. One prominent member, a former deacon, has asked for his letter, and two have given up their pews.

The condition is the outcome of the radical address delivered by Dr. Macdonald at the church on Feb. 17, in which he attacked the Baptist creeds of immersion and close communion, and in which he said; "I cannot be hampered by denominational shibboleths and outworn traditions," which he characterized as the "swaddling clothes of ancient dogmatism."

POST CARD COLUMN.

The following letter appeared in a contemporary yesterday:

Sir,—I was greatly pleased to read Rev. Canon Davidson's letter, and I am sure there will be a hearty response. I would just say here that from what I know about chimes, $1,500 is not nearly sufficient to purchase first-class chimes. $5,000 would be more like it, and I suggest that this amount be raised for the purpose. There is no reason on earth why the funds should not be subscribed. Even if it takes a little longer it will pay to wait. Let everyone give something, no matter how little. I would suggest that a citizens' committee be formed, comprised largely of members of the Board of Trade, to further this most deserving object.

Yours truly,
J. W. CURRY.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend, of Toronto, is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Oriental Hotel on Friday, April 22nd.

GREAT NOVELIST'S GRATITUDE

His Bonny Child Stricken With Eczema —Marvellous Deliverance by Zam-Buk.

The beautiful three-year-old son of Mr. Campbell Rae-Brown, author of the famous "Kissing-Cup's Race" and "The Great Newmarket Mystery," has been cured in a fortnight by Zam-Buk, of a most distressing attack of eczema.

Little Stuart Campbell Rae-Brown, because of his clear skin and regular features, is constantly being sought as a model by painters and photographers, but his prettiness would now be a thing of the past, but for Zam-Buk's timely healing of the terrible sores on his face.

"I cannot express to you," writes Mr. Campbell Rae-Brown from his country home at Eden Villa, Dunoon "the gratitude felt by my wife and myself for the astounding way in which your Zam-Buk cured our only child's face of its terrible affliction.

"There was scarcely a pin's-point of his face left untouched by the disfiguring eczema. Perfectly sound and well in other respects, imagine our feelings when, after trying many so-called cures in vain, we began to think our boy might be permanently disfigured!

"No sooner had we applied your great remedy, than, hour by hour, and day by day, the unsightly blotches began to disappear, to fade—I can think of no better expression — gradually away, leaving behind not the very slightest trace of the affection! The skin on his face again assumed its own delicate texture and natural bloom, and when the glad day came when the cure had been wholly effected, we could scarcely believe our eyes. Our boy, whose beautiful face had been lost to us, had been restored—a miracle had been performed — by Zam-Buk."

Surely no higher testimony could be required to prove Zam-Buk's unique power over skin diseases than this spontaneous and unsolicited letter from such a popular author.

Eczema, disfiguring sores, rashes and skin injuries, are daily perils, and Mr. Rae-Brown's practical advice to all parents, is to get Zam-Buk into the home, and so have it always handy.

Zam-Buk is also a cure for ulcers, skin eruptions, poisoned sores, bad legs, varicose veins, chilblains, cold sores, piles, itch, ringworm and all skin diseases. Also heals cuts, burns, bruises, etc., and, used as an embrocation, relieves rheumatism, sciatica etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free, from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

up, where all sorts of literary persons flocked for Paul was already become a notable member of the profession from a series of articles he had written, in which were embodied the idea of his book. Yet, with all his distractions he had time to learn to know the quiet little girl who sat all day at the typewriter. There came a wonderful day when the work was all done and the book, having been issued from the press, was selling at a furious rate, that the successful author and his helper met for what Winifred felt must be the last time.

"Well," Paul said, "I'm going back to the old house to-morrow, Winnifred. There's nothing to keep me here any longer, as I can see. I'm sick of town. Out there the crocuses are coming up and the trees are budding. You'd like to see them, wouldn't you?"

But Winifred could not speak.

"Go home with me, dear," Paul said, "as my wife. I can't get along without your help—and you." Then he smiled into her tearful, uplifted rapt eyes. "Let's take the ivory Venus back together," he added.

So that was how the old ivory Venus happened to go back to the old Sangster house, where she may be found now any day at the desk upon which Winifred often leans to smooth his hair or drop a kiss upon his forehead.

IN AGONY WITH PILES

Mr. G. W. Cornell, with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes, "For six years I was a victim of itching, protruding piles and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me and I was about as miserable as any creature could be. My druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did and obtained relief from the first box and complete cure with the second. This ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

SUMMER MILLINERY OPENING

ST. ANDREW'S CONCERT, GUELPH

(Guelph Daily News.)

The programme of last evening, on the whole, may be considered quite up to the high standard of the past, and in some numbers, particularly those by Miss McCann, was something even superior. The audience soon discovered in Maggie McCann, a delightful treat. She has a splendid voice, and what is of even greater value, a splendid stage presence and the capability of putting an expression into her songs, which speedily makes her secure in the hearts of those listening. Her rendering of "Come Under My Plaidie" and other songs was admirable, and Miss McCann was fully entitled to the liberal encores and bouquets she received.

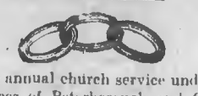
WEDDING BELLS

The marriage took place in Toronto yesterday of Miss Kathleeen Curton, 62 Sophia street, East City, to Mr. David Carew, of Winnipeg. Mr. and Mrs. Carew left Toronto last evening for Winnipeg, where they will reside.

AN ENGLISH FAMILY ARRIVING TO-MORROW

Immigration Officer G. H. Howson is expecting an English family here to-morrow. It consists of a father and mother and five children. They sailed from Liverpool by the "Mongolian" which arrived in Halifax yesterday. Mr. Howson has filled a large number of places this week and may have some difficulty in placing this man with such a large family. However, two of the boys are a good size, and should be able to go to work. Anyone who will be able to assist Mr. Howson in securing these people suitable places, will do a great favour, in communicating with the Immigration Officer.

A young English woman has written Mr. Howson from Hamilton asking him to secure her a position as housekeeper. She stated that she had good references and that she is very musical.



The annual church service under the auspices of Peterborough and Otonabee lodges of Oddfellows, will be held in St. James Methodist church on Sunday, April 24th. Rev. Brother Brown preaching the sermon. All the members of the above lodges and visiting brethren are asked to meet in the Oddfellows Hall the same evening, at 6.15 o'clock.

The members of Rebecca Golden Link Lodge, will meet at 6.30 o'clock, in the schoolroom of St. James' church, on the evening of Sunday, April 24th, for the purpose of attending divine worship in conjunction with Peterborough and Otonabee lodges of Oddfellows.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE HOLY CITY.

"Splendid scenic effects marked the presentation of "The Holy City" last night at the Grand Opera House. It proved to be one of the most pleasing plays of the season, and was highly interesting throughout. A fairly large audience witnessed the production. "The Holy City" is a four act drama based on the story of the death of John the Baptist as told in the Bible. Various views of Jerusalem are given. It was splendidly staged.

"Mr. Clarence Bennett, who fills the role of two characters, John the Baptist and Judas Iscariot, was most effective, and received much applause for his superior acting. Miss Pauline Harlee, as Salome, and Mr. George Dill as the young Roman were also good and proved decidedly popular. The other members of the company were excellent in their parts and in fact the whole cast was most satisfactory.

House Exonerates Him of Any Wrongdoing In Richibucto Transaction by a Vote of 111 to 63—Nearly Whole Day Is Spent In Discussion of the Affair—Conservative Members Play Mouth-Organ.

Ottawa, April 22.—The House of Commons yesterday spent a longer time in discussing the purchase by the Government for $5,000 of the so-called sawdust wharf at Richibucto in 1908 than it spent in putting the naval bill through the committee stage. As a result, however, Hon. Mr. Pugsley was vindicated by a vote of 111 to 63.

Mr. Borden made a fierce attack on the Minister of Public Works.

"This is an absolutely undefended case," he declared. "The resolution does not go far enough. Nobody would believe," he said, "that Murray would come to Ottawa to see the Minister, then go back to buy this wharf for $700 without knowing that the Government would take it off his hands for $5,000 to provide a campaign fund for the Liberal candidate in Kent."

Mr. Pugsley in his defence said: "If it is true that Murray and Robertson (Liberal manager) came to Ottawa, there is no evidence that they saw me in Ottawa." Murray had sworn that the subject was never mooted in his presence. Mr. Crocket, he said, had not the manliness to make a direct charge.

The refutation made by Mr. Carvell and Hon. Dr. Pugsley to the charge may briefly be summed up. The Minister showed that the purchase had been made in order to provide needed wharfage accommodation at Richibucto. It had been made in the usual way, on the report of the district engineer, Mr. Stead, that Mr. Murray's price of $5,000 for the wharf was a fair and reasonable one; it had been made without the knowledge of the Minister that there had been a previous transfer of the property for $700; it was in the public's interest to secure the wharf, and instead of paying too much for the property the Government had got a bargain, as was shown by the fact that an offer had been received from Messrs. Loggie, a reputable and well-known business firm, to buy it back for $5,500. As conclusive evidence of this latter fact Dr. Pugsley noted that two-thirds of the property secured had been resold to the Messrs. Loggie for $3,500. The net result of the whole transaction was, therefore, that for $1,500 the Government had got the most valuable part of the wharf property, and was now in a position to afford Richibucto the much-needed terminal railway facilities at the waterfront.

"There was a time in this country," said A. S. Meighen, "when a man could afford to trust his honor to the judicial temper of members of Parliament, but under the influence of this Government that time has gone by."

A chain of evidence had been woven around Mr. Pugsley, he said, on less than half of which more than one man in this country had been hanged. Referring to Murray he said: "If ever a man gave evidence that stamped him as a perjurer, it was Murray."

In reply to Mr. Borden, Mr. Pugsley stated that he had been informed by O. J. Leblanc, the Liberal member for Kent, that the price paid by the Government for the wharf was excessive.

Mr. Meighen drew the attention of Mr. Pugsley to the loud cheers and the large attendance at the opening of his defence, and the sparse attendance and "drivelling hosannahs" amid which he had closed.

While the whips were out gathering in the members, Joseph Russell, East Toronto, and A. B. Crosby of Halifax entertained the House to some selections on the mouth-organ.

EVA SUTER IS FREE NOW

Young Woman on Trial at Bracebridge Charged With Killing Her Illegitimate Two-Year-Old Child Displays the Utmost Composure on Witness Stand—Answered In Straightforward Manner.

Bracebridge, April 22.—Doubt caused the jury to bring in a verdict of "Not Guilty" at 10.15 last night, in the case of Eva Suter, charged with murdering her two-year-old illegitimate child on Sept. 20 last. A motive for the murder was not discovered. It took place in a swamp a few hundred yards from the Suter home, about 12 miles from here.

The girl told a story which was unshaken by the crown, accusing her father, but he established a fairly good alibi. T. E. Godson gave an excellent address to the jury. This is the first capital case Justice Middleton has tried. The case went to the jury at 9.45 p.m.

While addressing the jury, O. M. Arnold, for the crown, said: "No sane man will believe her when she says her father committed the crime," but the verdict was received with pleasure. Applause was quelled just in time to prevent an uproar. "I agree with you," said the justice.

Eva Suter is either heartless, possessed of almost unnatural self-control, or unable to comprehend her position. Until the commencement of her attorney's address to the jury at 7.15 p.m., she showed no emotion. Then she produced a handkerchief, bowed her head and covered her face. From her bearing during the day one would think she did it for effect. When she arrived at the court she was decidedly composed. While chatting with her lawyer, she smiled now and again. Her complexion was sallow and cheek bones prominent, due to her long confinement.

She acted unflinchingly when cross-examined, answering all questions in a straightforward manner. Her manner was of indifference to the result.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A Sunday service will be run from London to Port Stanley by the London and Lake Erie Railway.

Halley's comet was visible to the naked eye of observers at Harvard College Observatory, Cambridge, Mass., yesterday morning.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was fined $20 in the Montreal Police Court yesterday. His chauffeur exceeded the speed limit trying out a new car.

Matthew Butler, until recently Deputy Minister of Railways, now general manager of the Dominion Coal & Steel Co., addressed a Boston club last evening on Canadian problems.

Frank Leach, the Ridgetown brakeman on the Pere Marquette, who was injured at St. Thomas a few years ago, was awarded $4,000 damages yesterday afternoon in the high court at Chatham.

The Montreal Circuit Court is three thousand suits behind its schedule. Although the number of cases has increased from 11,139 in 1893 to 25,753 in 1909, there has been no increase in the number of judges.

Farmer Murders Companion.

Cardinal, April 22.—While two men were engaged in cutting up a pig, Albert Holmes, a farmer, living about two miles west of this place, suddenly attacked N. A. Bolton with an axe, inflicting wounds on the top of the head, and behind the ear, killing him instantly.

It is said that Holmes' mind was unhinged by the purchase of the farm from his victim believing he paid too much for it. He took poison last week in an attempt at suicide.

The murderer escaped to the woods. He was met by a boy named George Perry, whom he warned to keep away or he would kill him too. To the boy he also announced his intention of going into the swamp to kill himself. He thereupon plunged into the swamp of about sixty acres which lies behind his farm.

Men are out searching, but have not found him yet.

Bolton, his victim, was a man of about 40 years. He leaves a widow and one son.

MARK TWAIN PASSES AWAY

Business Troubles and the Death of His Best-Loved Daughter Proved Too Much For the Veteran Author and Humorist, and He Sank Into a Fatal Illness—Asked For His Glasses and Dropped Off.

Redding, Conn., April 22.—Samuel Longhorne Clemens (Mark Twain) died painlessly at 6.30 o'clock last night of angina pectoris. He lapsed into coma at three o'clock yesterday afternoon and never recovered consciousness.

It was the end of a man outworn with grief and acute agony of body. Wednesday was a bad day for the little knot of anxious watchers at the bedside. For long hours the grey aquiline features lay moulded in the inertia of death, while the pulse sank lower and lower; but late at night the patient passed from stupor into the first natural sleep he had known since he returned from Bermuda, and yesterday morning awoke refreshed, even faintly cheerful and in full possession of all his faculties.

He recognized his daughter, Carrie (Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitch), spoke a rational word or two, and, feeling himself unequal for conversation, wrote out in pencil: "Give me my glasses." These were his last words. Laying aside his glasses and pencil, he sank first into reverie and later into final unconsciousness. There was no thought at the time, however, that the end was so near.

Mark Twain did not die in anguish. Sedatives soothed his pain; but in his moments of consciousness the mental depression persisted. On the way up from Bermuda he said to Albert Bigelow Paine: "This is a bad job; we'll never pull through with it."

On shore once more and longing for the serenity of New England hills, he took heart and courage and said to those who noted his enfeeblement in sorrow: "Give me a breath of Redding air once more and this will pass." But it did not pass, and, tired of body and weary of spirit, the old warrior against shams and snobs said faintly to his nurses: "Why do you fight to keep me alive? Two days of life are as good to me as four."

It is certain to be recalled that Mark Twain was for more than fifty years an inveterate smoker and the first conjecture of the layman would be that he had weakened his heart by over-indulgence in tobacco. Dr. Halsey said last night that he was unable to predecate that the angina pectoris, from which Mark Twain died, was in any way a sequel of nicotine poisoning. Some constitutions, he said, seem immune from the effects of tobacco; this was one of them. Yet it is true that since his illness began the doctors had cut down Mark Twain's daily allowance of twenty cigars and countless pipes to four cigars a day.

No deprivation was a greater sorrow to him. He tried to smoke on the steamer while returning from Bermuda, and only gave it up because he was too feeble to draw on his pipe. Even on his death-bed, when he had passed the point of speech and it was no longer certain that his ideas were lucid, he would make the motion of waiving a cigar, and, smiling, expel empty air from under the moustache still stained with smoke.

His neighbors remember him best as one who above all things loved a good listener, for Mark Twain was a mighty talker, stored with fairly tales for the little maids he adored, and racier, ruder speech for more stalwart masculine ears. It is a legend that he was vastly proud of his famous mop of white hair and was said to pay the pains of a court lady in getting it to just the proper stage of artistic disarray.

The late Samuel Langhorne Clemens (Mark Twain), the American humorist "who made the world laugh," was born in Florida, Missouri, on Nov. 30, 1835. He was a son of John Marshall Clemens, a descendant of Gregory Clemens, one of the judges who presided at the trial of Charles I. for which at the restoration of Charles II. lost his head.

His mother was one of the famed Montgomeries of Kentucky, renowned for her culture and wonderful repartee. On the death of his father, Samuel Clemens, entered the newspaper office of his elder brother Orion, in Hannibal. Although but thirteen, he displayed marked ability as a "printer's devil," and on several occasions during his brother's absence got the paper out.

His desire to see the world induced him to leave Hannibal, and for some time he led a roving life as a journeyman printer, visiting Philadelphia, New York and Cincinnati, during his travels. Subsequently he returned to his old home and became a pilot on the Mississippi.

On the outbreak of the civil war he served with the Southern troops, and after a narrow escape from being made a prisoner by Gen. Grant, he was soon afterwards captured.

On the conclusion of hostilities, he became private secretary to his elder brother who, under the Lincoln administration, had been appointed secretary of the territory of Nevada.

His final ventures in the publishing business resulted disastrously to him, and he faced his declining years greatly in debt. Undaunted, however, he set himself to the task of repaying his creditors. Some months ago his favorite daughter, a sufferer from epilepsy, died under distressing circumstances, and this was the beginning of the end.

Mark Twain died as truly as it can be said of any man of a broken heart.

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON,

Author of "The House of a Thousand Candles"

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"I certainly do?" Armitage replied and turned to laugh at Oscar, who had fired at the barricade from the back of his horse, which was resenting the indignity by trying to throw his rider.

The enemy now concentrated a sharp fire upon Armitage, whose horse snorted and pawed the ground as the balls cut the air and earth.

"For God's sake get off that horse, Armitage!" bawled out Claiborne, rising upon the rock. "There's no use in wasting yourself that way."

"My arm aches, and I've got to do something. Let's try storming them, just for fun. It's a cavalry stunt, Claiborne, and you can play being the artillery that's supporting our advance. Fall away there, Oscar, about forty yards, and we'll race for it to the wall and over. That barricade isn't as stiff as it looks from this side. I know all about it. There are great chunks out of it that can't be seen from this side."

"Thank me for that, Armitage. I tumbled down a good many yards of it when I played up here as a kid. Get off that horse, I tell you! You've got a hole in you now! Get down!"

"You make me tired, Claiborne. This beautiful row will all be over in a few minutes. I never intended to waste much time on those fellows when I got them where I wanted them."

His left arm hung quite limp at his side, and his face was very white. He had dropped his rifle in the road at the moment the ball struck his shoulder, but he still carried his revolver. He nodded to Oscar, and they both galloped forward over the open ground, making straight for the cedar covert.

Claiborne was instantly up and away between the two riders. Their bold advance evidently surprised the trio beyond the barricade, who shouted hurried commands to one another as they distributed themselves along the wall and awaited the onslaught. Then they grew still and lay low out of sight as the silent riders approached. The hoofs of the onrushing horses rang now and then on the harsh outcropping rock and here and there struck fire. Armitage sat erect and steady in his saddle, his horse speeding on in great bounds toward the barricade. His lips moved in a curious stiff fashion, as though he were ill, muttering:

"For Austria! For Austria! He bade me do something for the empire!"

Beyond the cedars the trio held their fire, watching with fascinated eyes the two riders, every instant drawing closer, and the runner who followed them.

"They can't jump this! They'll veer off before they get here!" shouted Chauvenet to his comrades. "Wait till they check their horses for the turn."

"We are fools. They have got us trapped." And Durand's hands shook as he restlessly fingered a revolver. The big Servian crouched on his knees near by, his finger on the trigger of his rifle. All three were hatless and unkempt. The wound in Zmal's scalp had broken out afresh, and he had twisted a colored handkerchief about it to stay the bleeding. A hundred yards away the waterfall splashed down the defile, and its faint murmur reached them. A wild dove rose ahead of Armitage and flew straight before him over the barricade. The silence grew tense as the horses galloped nearer. The men behind the cedar lined wall heard only the hollow thump of hoofs and Claiborne's voice calling to Armitage and Oscar to warn them of his whereabouts.

But the eyes of the three conspirators were fixed on Armitage. It was his life they sought. The others did not greatly matter. And so John Armitage rode across the little plain where the lost legion had camped for a year at the end of a great war, and as he rode on the defenders of the bowlder barricade saw his white face and noted the useless arm hanging and swaying and rent in spite of themselves the strength of his tall, erect figure.

Chauvenet, watching the silent rider, said aloud, speaking in German, so that Zmal understood:

"It is in the blood. He is like a king."

But they could not hear the words that John Armitage kept saying over and over again as he crossed the field:

"He bade me do something for Austria—for Austria!"

"He is brave, but he is a great fool. When he turns his horse we will fire on him," said Zmal.

Their eyes were upon Armitage, and in their intentness they failed to note the increasing pace of Oscar's horse, which was spurring slowly ahead. When they saw that he would first make the sweep which they assumed to be the contemplated strategy of the charging party they leveled their arms at him, believing that he must soon check his horse. But on he rode, bending forward a little, his rifle held across the saddle in front of him.

"Take him first," cried Chauvenet. "Then be ready for Armitage!"

Oscar was now turning his horse, but toward them and across Armitage's path, with the deliberate purpose of taking the first fire. Before him rose the cedars that concealed the line of wall, and he saw the blue barrels of the waiting rifles. With a great spurt of speed he cut in ahead of Armitage swiftly and neatly; then on, without a break or pause—not heeding Armitage's cries—on and still on, till twenty, then ten feet lay between him and the wall, at a place where the cedar barrier was thinnest. Then, as his horse crouched and rose, three rifles cracked as one. With a great crash the horse struck the wall and tumbled, rearing and plunging, through the tough cedar boughs. An instant later, near the same spot, Armitage, with better luck clearing the wall, was borne on through the confused line. When he flung himself down and ran back Claiborne had not yet appeared.

Oscar had crashed through at a point held by Durand, who was struck down by the horse's fore feet. He lay bowling with pain, with the hind quarters of the prostrate beast across his legs. Armitage, running back toward the wall, kicked the revolver from his hand and left him. Zmal had started to run as Oscar gained the wall, and Chauvenet's curses did not halt the Servian when he found Oscar at his heels.

He lay bowling with pain

Chauvenet stood impassively by the wall, his revolver raised and covering Armitage, who walked slowly and dogedly toward him. The pallor in Armitage's face gave him an unearthly look. He appeared to be trying to force himself to a pace of which his wavering limbs were incapable. At the moment that Claiborne sprang upon the wall behind Chauvenet Armitage swerved and stumbled, then swayed from side to side like a drunken man. His left arm swung limp at his side, and his revolver remained undrawn in his belt. His gray felt hat was twitched to one side of his head, adding a grotesque touch to the impression of drunkenness, and he was talking aloud:

"Shoot me, Mr. Chauvenet. Go on and shoot me. I am John Armitage and I live in Montana, where real people are. Go on and shoot! Winkelried's in jail, and the jig's up, and the empire and the silly king are safe. Go on and shoot, I tell you!"

He had stumbled on until he was within a dozen steps of Chauvenet who lifted his revolver until it covered Armitage's head.

"Drop that gun! Drop it quick!" And Dick Claiborne swung the butt of his rifle high and brought it down with a crush on Chauvenet's head; then Armitage paused and glanced about and laughed.

It was Claiborne who freed Durand from the dead horse, which had received the shots fired at Oscar the moment he rose at the wall. The fight was quite knocked out of the conspirator, and he swore under his breath, cursing the unconscious Chauvenet—

Claiborne swung the rifle and brought it down on Chauvenet's head.

"I trust your wounds are not serious, my dear Armitage"—

Armitage, sitting on a bowlder, turned his eyes wearily upon Durand, whose wrists Claiborne was knotting together with a strap. The officer spun the man around viciously.

"You beast, if you address Mr. Armitage again I'll choke you!"

Chauvenet, sitting up and staring dully about, was greeted ironically by Durand:

Suffered Terrible Pains From His Kidneys.

Perhaps no other organs work harder than the kidneys to preserve the general health of the body, and most people are troubled with some kind of kidney complaint, but do not suspect it.

There is no way of getting the kidney poisons out of the system except through the kidneys, and no medicine so effective in taking them out as Doan's Kidney Pills.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely vegetable, and may be safely taken by old and young.

Mr. Dougald A. McIsaac, Broad Cove Banks, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with my kidneys for nine months, and suffered with such terrible pains across the small of my back all the time that I could hardly get around. After taking two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I began to feel better, and by the time I had taken three I was completely cured."

Dealers and Manufacturers Alarmed at Soft Coal Strike.

Toronto, April 21.—Industrial paralysis is imminent for Toronto—and Ontario for that matter—from the present appearances of the bituminous coal strike in the United States.

A despatch from Pittsburg says the strike will last from three to six months, and there is precious little soft coal in Toronto to-day, while the demand for it is great.

"It would be a pretty serious matter for Toronto if the disagreement is prolonged for six months," said John Rogers, of the Elias Rogers Co. last night. "It would tie the city's industries up completely. The price of soft coal would be run up in the air so high that it would probably be cheaper to burn anthracite."

According to customs reports, 558,301 tons of soft coal came into the port of Toronto last year. It was not all consumed here, but about nine-tenths of it was, and in all likelihood the local consumption for this year would have reached that figure if the strike hadn't occurred.

Mr. Rogers says he doesn't think there is on an average of three weeks' supply on hand, amongst the local users.

Negotiations have ended in Pittsburg, and the operators' and miners' committees will not again meet until one or the other side gives in. The miners' officers say men will starve before they resume work under present conditions; the operators say they have made the only possible concessions, and so the deadlock stands.

A bill to prohibit oral bookmaking has passed the New York State Assembly.

Miss Nellie Priestland, the missing Jarvis girl, has turned up at Charlottetown, P.E.I.

The number killed by the Cococache landslide was six, and forty men were injured.

During the last three months of 1909, 1,099 lives were lost on the railroads of the United States.

William R. Hearst has issued a statement endorsing President Taft and warning the American people against permitting a renewal of Roosevelt rule.

The Canadian bank statement for March shows a very heavy increase in note circulation and commercial loans, indicating a general broadening in business. Deposits also show a considerable increase. The total deposits in Canada now amount to $762,000,000.

Italians Are Frightened by Comet.

Rome, April 21.—The local authorities in several of the provinces, especially in the south and the islands, have notified the Government that the people are showing great anxiety regarding Halley's comet.

The Government in response has instructed the authorities to adopt some means to reassure the people, all scientists agreeing that there is no danger to be feared from this source.

Abuse of Immigrants.

Albany, N.Y., April 21.—By a vote of 32 to 30, the assembly yesterday refused to adopt a concurrent resolution by Assemblyman Weinstein of Brooklyn, directing the health officer of New York to investigate reports of neglect, cruelty and revolting treatment of immigrants, entering the port of New York.

Cheaper Food Coming?

New York, April 21.—The present sensational drop in the price of potatoes may mean cheaper food of all kinds. Farmers are closing out their supply of old potatoes for as little as 20 cents a bushel, which is the lowest price in many years. Other foods are also cheaper.

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

There are few people who have never experienced a headache from one cause or another. It effects all ages and both sexes alike, but the female sex is naturally the more effected through the higher nervous development and more delicate organization of the system. Those also of a nervous temperament and studious or sedentary occupation are subject to it.

The presence of headache nearly always tells us that there is another disease which, although we may not be aware of it, is still exerting its baneful influence and perhaps awaiting an opportunity to assert itself plainly.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and if you will only give it a trial we are sure it will do for you what it has done for thousands of others.

Headache and Constipation Cured.

Mrs. John Connors, Burlington, N.S., writes: "I have been troubled with headache and constipation for a long time. After trying different doctors' medicine a friend asked me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I find I am completely cured after having taken three bottles. I can safely recommend it to all."

MARK TWAIN DYING?

Great Humorist Has Slim Chances of Recovery.

Reading, Conn., April 21.—The condition of Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) yesterday afternoon was perceptibly weaker than it was twenty-four hours ago. Dr. Robert H. Halsey, in a statement as to the patient's illness, said that Mr. Clemens has cardiac asthma with angina pectoris. At times, he suffers a great deal, but generally he rests comfortably and is able to sleep at times.

In the opinion of Dr. Halsey, it is not beyond possibility that Mr. Clemens will recover, but as he is 74 years old, the chances seem against him. There is no probability of immediate death, however. Until twenty-four hours ago the patient's condition was such that no definite opinion could be formed as to his progress. In the last twelve hours the weakness has become marked, and Mr. Clemens does not respond to treatment as he did before that. This morning he was still weaker.

Murderer Will Go Free.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 21.—A peculiar situation has developed here as a result of the alleged confession that he murdered his wife here six years ago, made at Waukegan, Ill., on Saturday, by Foster Johnson, a Tuscorora Indian. Johnson says that he pushed his wife into the rapids above the falls. It is claimed by lawyers that the confession he made cannot be used against Johnson at a trial, and it is impossible to get corroborative evidence against him, as there were no witnesses. "The thing that makes me confess the murder of my wife," Johnson said, "was that before I killed her, and when she told me that she intended to commit suicide, she asked me for a nice gravestone, and I promised her I would get it. I have never done so, and it has haunted me. I see her head in the river in my dreams, and have hardly enjoyed a peaceful night in all these years."

Seventeen Years In Penitentiary.

Winnipeg, Man., April 21.—Charles Erickson was sentenced to seventeen years in penitentiary, with twenty-four lashes, for seducing his stepdaughter, Sarah, constantly since March, 1903. The girl told a pitiable story of having four children by him, the first being born before she was 14.

A New Confession of Faith.

New Haven, Conn., April 21.—A new confession of faith, which drops the apostles' creed and requires no formal expression as to the divinity of Christ, has been adopted by the deacons and will be presented by the adoption by the Centre Church (Congregational) of this city.

Miners Entombed.

Birmingham, Ala., April 21.—An explosion has just occurred in the mines of the Birmingham Coal & Iron Co. at Mulga, near Knsley. Between 30 and 40 men are in the mine.

Hungary Wants Her Small Farmers.

Ottawa, April 21.—Emigration to Canada is not looked upon with favor by all continental countries. In Hungary, according to the Dominion immigration officers, an order has for some months been in existence which prohibits in future immigration to Canada.

The reason given for this order is that Canada attracts agricultural laborers and small farmers, classes whom it is especially desired to keep in Hungary, and further, that such persons when once in the Dominion find the attractions so great that they rarely return to their motherland, but tempt others to follow them.

FELL ON THE STOVE BABY IS BADLY BURNED

The young daughter of Mrs. T. S. Dougall, 533 Flora Avenue, Winnipeg, was arranging some of her doll's washing on a clothes rack, beside the stove, when she fell, and her hand, being thrown out to try and save herself, came in contact with the side of the hot stove. She sustained a serious burn, and her screams brought her mother quickly to the spot.

"I sent to the druggist for the best remedy he had for burns," she says. "and he sent back a box of Zam-Buk. He said that there was nothing to equal it. I applied this, and it soothed the pain so quickly that the child laughed through her tears. I bound up the hand in Zam-Buk, and each day applied Zam-Buk frequently and liberally, until the burn was quite cured.

"The little one was soon able to go on with her play, and we had no trouble with her during the time the burn was being healed. I would recommend all mothers to keep Zam-Buk handy for emergencies of this kind."

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at fifty cents box. Post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, and you are warned against harmful imitations.

New Salt Company.

Sarnia, April 21.—The Dominion Salt Co., Ltd., a new incorporation, with a paid-up capital of $100,000, will operate the plant purchased a month ago from the Empire Salt Co. here.

J. M. Diver of Sarnia is president, and the management will be in the hands of C. H. Rogers, formerly treasurer of the Dominion Salt Agency of London, and secretary of the Empire Salt Co. The plant is one of the largest in Canada.

Empire Day Bill Rejected.

London, April 21.—Yesterday the bill for the official recognition of May 24 as Empire Day was introduced in the Commons and was rejected.

No Seat, No Fares.

Trenton, N.J., April 21.—Trenton's new "no seat no fare" ordinance has already worked wonders in the way of improved trolley service, although it only went into effect on Tuesday. The company ran more cars during the rush hours yesterday than ever before, as it did not want to face heavy fines, the new ordinance providing that whenever the corporation fails to provide a seat for passengeres during rush hours it is liable to a penalty of $50 for each complaint.

Although there were numerous crowded cars during rush hours yesterday no complaint was made because the public realized the company was doing everything in its power to obey the provisions of the ordinance. However, a large number rode free.

Floods In Servia.

Belgrade, Servia, April 21.—Servia is again flooded as a result of torrential rains during the past few days.

At Kragujevatz, where the floods are most severe, twelve deaths have already occurred, while the damage to property is enormous.

The whole country from Kragujevatz to Lapeve, a distance of twenty miles, resembles a vast lake.

Several villages have been inundated almost to the tops of the houses and it is feared that a large number of people, as well as thousands of sheep and cattle, have been drowned.

The railway service in the district has been entirely suspended.

Negro Excitement In Cuba.

Havana, Cuba, April 21.—Yesterday Secretary of the Interior Lopez Leiva issued a statement denying the existence of the least disorder in Santa Clara or any other part of the island, although there was a condition of suppressed excitement among the negroes in consequence of incendiary utterances by the negro agitator Gen. Evaristo Estenoz.

The Government has decided to send troops for the sake of the moral effect.

Maintains Her Innocence.

Bracebridge, April 21.—The grand jury yesterday brought in a true bill charging Eva Sutter with the murder of her baby in a swamp near her home on Sept. 20 last. The trial will be proceeded with to-day.

Since Oct. 27 last, Miss Sutter has been in the local lockup. She has been in good spirits all along, and maintains that she is innocent. Apparently she does not fear the result of the trial.

Killed by a Train.

North Bay, April 21.—The body of Samuel Lalonde was found beside the T. & N. O. Railway track. He was a married man, with three children, from Plaissance, Que., and was employed as a brakeman.

City Auditor Missing.

Newark, N.J., April 21.—A sensation has been caused here by a mysterious disappearance of George Forman, city auditor of Newark, since Saturday last.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impair digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has a uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

New Surgical Method.

Baltimore, Md., April 21st—Dr. E. H. Richardson of Johns Hopkins Hospital announced yesterday a new method in surgery, recently practiced with success at that hospital in operations for a disease of the kidneys. First, a blunt needle is threaded with a fine silver wire, then an incision is made about the infected part and the wire is drawn seesaw fashion through the kidneys to the extent desired.

By the old method, in which the knife was used, serious and sometimes uncontrollable hemorrhages were caused. The silver wire method obviates this, as instead of cutting through the flesh it works through the vessel or arteries without severing them. The method is pronounced invaluable for exploring the kidneys.

Two Unique Weddings.

Girl Missing From Home.

Toronto, April 21.—Anxiety is felt for the safety of Katie Stewart, aged 16, of 98 Alexander street, who left her home at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and had not returned till a late hour last night. The police were communicated with, but could find no trace of her.

She is large for her age, about five foot three inches in height, dark brown hair and eyes, and was dressed in a red and green plaid dress, red jacket, and light straw hat. She is in ill-health and for that reason might have wandered away and been unable to find her way home.

A BAD MEMORY.

Complications That Brought About a Wedding.

By THERESA C. HOLT.
(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

"Mr. Rucker," said the pretty widow, Mrs. Taylor, "why will you be so uncomplimentary as to forget me, to pass me by as if you did not know me when we meet on the street?"

"I think it must be something in my eyesight," said Mr. Rucker apologetically.

"Eyesight! Nonsense!"

"You know perfectly well that I consider you one of my most valued friends."

"So valued that you can't remember you have ever met me before on seeing me after a week's separation."

"My memory for faces is execrable."

"You shall not treat me so slightingly again, I promise you. I will make you remember me."

"I beg you to do so. Then I shall be happy at receiving your smile that I don't get when I pass you without recognizing you. But suppose you forget me when you pass, what will come of that?"

"I'll bet you what you like I won't."

"What I like?"

"Yes."

"Very well. Let it be a kiss."

"A kiss?"

"Yes, a kiss against a dozen pairs of gloves."

"You mean, I presume, that if I fail to recognize you the next time we meet

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS!" EXCLAIMED THE LADY.

I am to give you a kiss. If I do recognize you, you give me a dozen pairs of gloves."

"That's right."

"It wouldn't be a fair bet. I am sure to recognize you."

"I dare say you will, and I shall have a good excuse for making up with the gloves for my forgetfulness."

Several weeks passed, when one day the widow, seeing what she believed to be the figure of Mr. Rucker on the street before her, hastened her steps. "I told him I would make him remember me, and I will," she muttered. Coming up behind the figure, she raised her parasol and gave the gentleman a vigorous poke in the back. He turned angrily; but, seeing a pretty woman smiling at him, he smiled, too, raising his hat at the same time. Nevertheless he looked puzzled.

"I told you I would make you remember me," she said laughingly.

"Ah!"

"And I'll take the gloves—I wear 5¾, usually four buttons."

"Eh?"

"How killing!" laughed the lady. "You've forgotten the bet."

"The bet?"

"I wonder if you really have forgotten it or are trying to get out of it."

"Not I," said the gentleman gallantly, by this time gathering his wits. "How many pairs have I lost?"

"Another lapse of memory—one dozen pairs, 5¾."

"Oh, yes; but would you mind telling me the terms of the bet? You know what an abominable memory I have."

The gentleman was walking with her and evidently enjoying her society.

"Oh, no," she said, "the last time I met you I bet you one dozen pairs of gloves against"— She hesitated. "It was the other way, wasn't it?"

"Your memory gone too?"

"Not a bit! Since you've lost there can be no harm in saying what it is—a kiss."

The gentleman opened his eyes and puckered up his lips. Then he smacked them as if he relished an imaginary kiss.

"Well, go on," he said.

"The bet was that I would know you the next time I met you."

"H'm!" said the gentleman.

"Of course I wouldn't have made such a bet if I hadn't been certain I'd remember you. I'd known you from your twin brother."

"Would you?"

"Yes; of course."

They came to a corner, and the lady said:

"I go down this street to my home. Good day."

"I'll go with you."

He walked to her door, and it was agreed that he should call the next evening to settle the bet. As soon as the door closed behind him he made a note of the number.

The man who made the bet with the widow was Mr. Ned Rucker. The man whom she met on the street was his twin brother, Mr. Fred Rucker. The latter had just returned from a long residence abroad. The two were bachelors and were in rooms together. Fred Rucker, after his meeting with the widow, went home and, finding his brother there, told of his adventure.

"Well, well," exclaimed Mr. Ned Rucker, "if that isn't the best thing I ever struck!"

"You ever struck!"

"Yes—I. Don't you see I've won a kiss?"

"Well, I like that. I propose to call on the lady tomorrow evening and receive payment. You've got nothing to do with this meeting. She didn't meet you and not know you."

Ned subsided. He pondered awhile and then said: "I tell you what we can do. You can go and get your kiss (if she'll pay it). Then I'll pass her and pretend I'm you. That'll give me a kiss."

"It wouldn't be fair."

"It isn't fair for you to claim a kiss either. She didn't make the bet with you. She made it with me."

"Do you object to my having what fun out of it I like?"

"No."

"Then I'll see it out."

The next evening Mr. Fred Rucker, armed with a dozen pairs of kid gloves, called on the widow. She came down pleased at having won the gloves.

"How nice of you," she said. "I wonder you remembered to bring them or your appointment this evening."

"I'm very forgetful," he said mournfully.

"Very."

"Still, this meeting today was no test. How would you like to bet a kiss against another dozen pairs of gloves that you won't know me next time we meet."

"Oh, I don't wish to win any more gloves from you."

OF DOUBLE INTEREST IS THIS LETTER

It Reports a Remarkable Cure of Kidney and Bladder Disease From Belleville, Ont.

Also Recalls Mr. D. M. Waters' First Purchase of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills and Ointment a Quarter of a Century Ago.

When you read this letter you will readily understand why it is of special interest to us, for the druggist who sold the pills in this case gave his first order in 1885.

For twenty-five years Mrs. Waters has watched the growth in popularity of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and other medicines and can now point to hundreds of cures in Belleville and vicinity resulting from his recommendations of these well-known medicines.

If you are tired of experimenting, why not use a medicine which has proven its undoubted control over diseases of the kidneys and liver? Let this letter convince you or send to us for records of hundreds of other cases.

Mr. Mark Ottrey, Bay Side, Ont., writes: "I purchased two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills from my druggist, D. M. Waters, Belleville, Ont., and the amount of satisfaction my wife obtained from their use has led me to ask my druggist to send you this letter.

Mrs. Ottrey suffered considerably with kidney and bladder trouble, causing great pain at times. The urine was very heavy and of a bad colour. After taking a few doses of these pills she felt better and when she had used the two boxes she was entirely well."

The definite, direct and specific action of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills on the liver, kidneys, and bowels enables them to bring about cure in the most complicated cases. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

EIGHTY YEARS OF AGE SUFFERED 20 YEARS

Then Cured by Gin Pills

Remember, right at the start, that Gin Pills are not a "cure-all". If you have Small-Pox, Typhoid Fever or Consumption, there is no use in your taking Gin Pills because they probably would not do you any special good.

Gin Pills are not a "hit-or-miss" remedy. They are a scientific preparation for the Kidneys and Bladder—for Rheumatism, Lumbago and Lame Back, and are made and guaranteed by the largest wholesale drug house in Canada.

Annapolis, N. S., May 14th, 1909.

"I wish to give testimony to the benefits I have received from the use of Gin Pills. I am over eighty years of age and have been suffering from Kidney and Bladder Trouble for about fifteen years. I took doctors' medicines but got no help.

I want to thank you for sending me the sample box of Gin Pills which I took, and found it helped me.

I have taken six boxes of Gin Pills, but got relief before I had taken near that amount. I used to get up some nights every fifteen minutes and had to use an instrument before I could urinate. Now, I can lie in bed four or five hours without getting up. I can truthfully say that I am nearly cured and am still taking Gin Pills and shall always keep a box in the house." W. H. PIERCE.

If you are suffering with your Kidneys—with sharp, shooting pains through back and hips—if your Bladder is weak—if you are all crippled up with Rheumatism or Lumbago—Gin Pills will do you good. We give you a chance to test them. Write National Drug & Chem. Co. Limited Dept. B. Toronto, for free sample box and you will receive it by return mail. Regular size boxes are sold by dealers at 50c., 6 for $2.50. 33

"But I wish to win the kiss."

"You can never do that."

However, he pleaded so hard that she made the bet. He entered a memorandum of it in his book, and they both signed it. It read:

We bet that Mrs. Taylor doesn't know me, Mr. Rucker, when we meet again on the street—a kiss against a dozen pairs of gloves.

During the call Mr. Rucker appeared as interested in her as before he had appeared indifferent. When he had gone she was quite astonished to note that instead of the hour being 10 o'clock, as she had supposed, the hands of the clock stood at 11:30. Indeed, she experienced quite a pleasurable sensation for the rest of the evening.

Mrs. Taylor was somewhat excited over the bet she had made and felt the necessity for watching very closely for Mr. Rucker on the street, fearing that if she passed him unnoticed he would claim payment of the bet. This kept her thinking of him most of the time. During his visit he had appeared very different from what he had ever appeared before—more vivacious, brighter; indeed, she had found him clever and entertaining. She was not averse to marrying and wondered why she had not thought of him before as a possible husband.

When Mrs. Taylor met Mr. Rucker again she was paralyzed with astonishment. He was doubled. The double's two right arms went up to his two hats, and there was a smile on his two faces.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the lady.

One of the Mr. Ruckers said: "You have a bet with one of us that you would know him when you met him on the street. One of us is a stranger to you. Therefore you can't know him, because a lady can't know a man to whom she has never been introduced. Please tell us which you have bowed to."

Mrs. Taylor was flustered. She tried to make out the one she had known, but failed.

"That's not fair," she said.

"Why not?" asked one of the twins.

Mrs. Taylor was not in a condition of mind to point out just why it wasn't fair. Had she been cool she might have thought of a way out of the dilemma. She made choice between the two and named the wrong man. Both men burst into a laugh.

"I've won," said Mr. Fred Rucker.

Mrs. Taylor colored to the roots of her hair.

"So long," said Ned Rucker, and he passed on.

"Of course, as a gentleman," said the lady to the remaining Rucker, "you'll not ask me to pay the bet."

"Not now," he replied, "I'll pay it myself. I'll call this evening with a dozen pairs of gloves."

"What do you mean by 'not now.'"

"I'll give you a sort of ticket of leave based on your good behavior."

That evening Mr. Fred Rucker called on Mrs. Taylor not only with a dozen pairs of gloves, but with a plentiful supply of flowers.

"How good of you," she said, "to win a bet and not only pay it, but bring these lovely flowers."

She sniffed the perfume with her beautiful nose, then continued:

"What did you mean by a 'ticket of leave' and all that?"

"The ticket may be exchanged for a full discharge this very evening if you prefer it."

"Explain."

"Mine is a case of love at first sight. Will you marry me?"

"What has that to do with it?" asked the widow in a low tone and with averted head.

"This: There is no harm in a kiss between an engaged couple."

Before Mr. Rucker left the bet was paid and the matter settled.

Editorial Pleasantries.

Two editors quarreled, and one referred to the other's early career in his paper.

"As for our contemporary," he wrote, "what can we expect from a man who was five years ago hawking from door to door with a donkey, and an ill conditioned beast at that?"

His rival did not deny it, but in his next issue appeared the following:

"Our contemporary says that five years ago we were 'hawking from door to door with a donkey, and an ill conditioned beast at that.' He is quite right. We were so occupied. But we are surprised to find the donkey has such a good memory."

Won by a Nose.

"Bernard Shaw," said a dramatic critic, "always does the original thing. I went to see 'Caesar and Cleopatra' with him once, and as we stood in the aisle—the house was crowded—a stranger behind us persisted in poking his head right over Shaw's shoulder.

"Shaw then did the original thing. Taking out his handkerchief, he wiped the man's nose, patting and twisting it pretty vigorously.

"The man, with an ugly oath, jerked back his head.

"'Oh, I beg your pardon,' said Shaw. 'I thought it was mine, you know.'"—Washington Star.

Politics in the Pulpit.

Preaching politics from the pulpit was responsible for a scene at the Congregational Chapel, Halmdy, Mostyn, recently. As the minister proceeded several members of the congregation rose and left. One of the most prominent members then intervened, and asked the preacher if he did not consider six days in the week to be quite sufficient to devote to politics, and that such matter should not be dealt with in a place of worship.

Hard to Kill.

The Hawaiian Islands have always been famed for their freedom from snakes. People and animals could wander with impunity through valleys and over hills and mountains. An importation arrived on the steamship Alameda from California that might have put an end to such delightful serenity. This was the arrival of three flimsy boxes containing fourteen large living snakes, five of them rattlers. Under a rule such animals arriving in the territory of Hawaii are ordered to be immediately destroyed or deported.

"In the destruction of these snakes," says the narrator, "we had a surprising experience. I placed the boxes in one of our fumigating chambers and applied a charge of double density of hydrocyanic acid gas. The snakes were still alive at the end of fifteen minutes, whereas if they had been warm blooded animals they would have succumbed in a less number of seconds. They were again shut up, and a quadruple charge of the same deadly gas was administered. At the end of one hour and a half the fumigator was opened, and several of the snakes still showed signs of life. We then immersed them in 95 per cent alcohol. That soon put an end to their venomous existence."—Youth's Companion.

Well Placed Generosity.

In 1835 Liszt went on a tour in the French provinces. He arrived at the little town of L. to give a concert, as announced. But the inhabitants appeared to take but little interest in musical matters, for when the musician appeared on the platform he found himself face to face with an audience numbering exactly seven persons. Liszt stepped very calmly to the front, and, bowing respectfully to the array of empty benches, he delivered himself as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I feel extremely flattered by your presence here this evening, but this room is not at all suitable; the air is literally stifling. Will you be good enough to accompany me to my hotel, where I will have the piano conveyed? We shall be quite comfortable there, and I will go through the whole of my program."

The offer was unanimously accepted, and Liszt treated his guests not only to a splendid concert, but an excellent supper into the bargain. Next day when the illustrious virtuoso appeared to give his second concert the hall was not large enough to contain the crowd which claimed admittance.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me is the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box. 2

Rouse the Congregation.

A certain Scotch minister, a newcomer in the parish, finding it impossible to arrest the attention of his congregation, became desperate. No sooner did he appear in the pulpit than they promptly composed themselves to sleep.

One evening, after taking up his position, he rapped sharply on the ledge in front of him and addressed his somnolent flock in tones of severe remonstrance.

"Now, brethren," he said, "it's not fair to go to sleep as ye always ha' done directly I begin my sermon. Ye might wait a wee till I get alang, and then if I'm no worth hearing sleep awa' wi' ye, and I'll no care. But dinna go before I ha' commenced. Gie me this one chance."

Finding they were all fairly awake by that time, he went on:

"I shall take for my text the two words 'know thyself,' but I will say before I begin the discourse that I would not advise this congregation to make many such profitless acquaintances."

There was not a single sleeper in the kirk that evening.—Tit-Bits.

Macaulay as a Child.

Thomas Babington Macaulay should perhaps have ranked with the universal geniuses, but it is true that his precocious gift was largely in the direction of literature. He read incessantly from the age of three. At seven he had composed a very fair compendium of universal history from the creation to 1800. At eight he had written a treatise destined to convert the natives of Malabar to Christianity. As a recreation from this weighty work he wrote in the same year a romance in the style of Scott in three cantos, entitled "The Battle of Chevlot." A little later came a long poem on the history of Olaf Magnus and a vast pile of blank verse entitled "Fingal—A Poem in Twelve Books." But he disliked mathematics and did not pass his examinations in that subject, thus standing out among all child prodigies. His memory was such that he literally never could forget anything and after twenty years could repeat bits of poetry read only once.

Spirit Rock.

A memorial to an explorer is that in honor of Jean Nicolet at Menasha, Wis. It is a huge bowlder of Winnebago Manitou stone, known as "spirit rock," and is mounted on a plain pyramid of sandstone twelve feet high. An inscription relates that Nicolet was the first white man in Wisconsin and that he met the Winnebago tribe and held the earliest white council with 5,000 of its braves. The monument was erected by the city of Menasha and women's clubs of that place.

Rome's Aqueducts.

The eight aqueducts of ancient Rome brought 40,000,000 gallons of water a day into the city. Had the Romans been aware that water always rises to its own level these huge erections on arches seventy feet high need never have been built.

Lengthen Shipping Season.

"There is no doubt at all that we could greatly lengthen our navigation season on the St. Lawrence," remarked a well-known member of the Shipping Federation, recently, in referring to the expectations of a busy shipping season, for which preparations are already being made, in the way of marking out of berths, the apportionment of shed space, and so forth.

"Dr. Barnes has shown what excellent work the Lady Grey and Montcalm are capable of doing in the way of ice-breaking; but it need not be doubted that still greater results would be realized by more powerful ice-breakers. We have the example of Russia before us. It is not a physical impossibility to keep the channel open the winter through, but, of course, that might not be a commercial proposition.

"Certainly we can lengthen our season at both ends by the persistent use of ice-breakers, and especially if we get bigger and stronger ones."

DON'T BE BALD

Almost Anyone May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair.

You can easily find out for yourself if your hair needs nourishment, if it is thinning, getting dry, harsh and brittle, or splitting at the ends. You simply have to pull a hair from the top of your head and closely examine its root. If the bulb is plump and rosy it is all right; if it is white and shrunken, your hair is diseased and needs nourishment.

We have a remedy for hair troubles that cannot be surpassed. It has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 93 out of 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. It will even grow hair on bald heads if the scalp is not glazed and shiny. That may seem like a strong statement—and it is, and we mean it to be and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so sure that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will completely eradicate dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall "93" Hair Tonic in every instance where it does not do so as we claim or fails to give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is perfumed with a pleasant odour, and does not grease or gum the hair. We have it in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. We urge you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic on our recommendation and with our guarantee back of it. You certainly take no risk. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rochester only at our store,—The Rexall Store. McDermid and Jury, cor. George and Charlotte Sts.

THE FIGHTING GAME.

Its Money Side Is Nearing the Realms of High Finance.

Pugilism continues to be the manly art of self defense, but it has taken on another aspect as well. In the light of recent events, as a means of livelihood it offers inducements superior to all others. It is a hard, grueling life, full of uppercuts and knockouts. It is attended with some danger and much talk, but the rewards in cash and fame which await those who climb into the ring and stay there are greater than are offered by commerce, finance, the professions, the stage or even royal thrones themselves.

Taking no account of the weeks of training and other preparation, but dealing only with the time consumed by the fight itself, the successful—and in some cases the unsuccessful—pugilist earns in that period more money than any other man on earth. Say the purse is divided on a basis of 60 and 40 per cent. The big fights are supposed to run three hours, although, as a matter of fact, they seldom last that long. Figure for yourself the division of the Nelson-Gans purse of $69,715, the Jeffries-Sharkey purse of $67,000, the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons purse of $63,000 and the Jeffries-Corbett prize of $62,340.

The purse offered in the coming battle between Jeffries and Johnson is $101,000, the largest amount ever "hung up" for such a purpose. The winner will receive approximately $63,000 for three hours' fighting, or $21,000 an hour. The hourly income of John D. Rockefeller is placed at $3,640, or something over one-seventh of the reward of pugilism. The czar of Russia is supposed to receive $2,165 every sixty minutes, while Caruso gets $650 and Edward VII. $270 for the same period.

But, as if this were not enough, the man who earns $63,000 for a three hours' battle will also receive the lion's share of at least $200,000, estimated as the value of the moving picture receipts. His total earnings may therefore amount to $150,000 and possibly $200,000. These are figures which make even multimillionaires sit up and take notice. The rewards of pugilism have raised it to the dignity of high finance.—Chicago Tribune.

Is Persia Doomed?

In a great yellow palace in Teheran a small boy sits on a peacock throne. He is a very unhappy little boy, and when they put him on the throne he cried as though his heart would break. His people call him king of kings for short, for he has so many names and titles that it would take a strong man from breakfast until tiffin to repeat them. And the throne on which he sits is shaky—yes, rickety, in fact. But one of these days he will not have any throne at all and will have to content himself with a cane bottomed chair or more probably a divan, for certain much older persons in London and St. Petersburg and Berlin are calmly planning to cut his country into portions, very much as a pastry cook cuts pie. The little boy's country, you see, happens to block up a road which one of his grownup neighbors wishes to have open, and so it will disappear just as other children's mud forts disappear when the street sweeper comes along. I feel sorry for that little boy.—Everybody's.

Animal Instinct.

Plainsmen on western cattle ranches have called attention to a new illustration of the adaptability of animal instinct to emergencies. The cattle of former days were of the long horned kind. When the herd was threatened with an attack by wolves the calves were placed in the middle of the bunch, and the older animals formed themselves into a solid phalanx about them, all facing outward. The cattle of today are largely hornless. If, as occasionally happens still, the herd is attacked by wolves, the calves are guarded as before, but the herd faces in instead of out. Their hoofs, not their horns, are now their weapons.—Exchange.

They Seem to Enjoy It.

"We all know the value of fresh air in cases of lung trouble," says a letter from Davos, Switzerland, "but the believers in its efficacy have gone a step further here than in most places. On any sunny day one may see a dozen children on cots in the open air, where they can look upon the snow covered mountains. They are not wrapped in heavy blankets and then stuffed into sleeping bags, as we have seen people at winter sanitariums. They are not even covered with a thin blanket or a sheet. There they lie, three-quarters naked, with not a rag in the way of a covering. And they seem to enjoy it."—New York Tribune.

Belgium.

That Belgium is perhaps the most prosperous state in Europe as well as the most thickly settled is being noted at this time with some interest. The late king's reign was at least marked by an enormous advance in wealth and social reform. One of the country's special advantages is that its international neutralization permits it to dispense with a navy, while the Belgian army is maintained on a very small and inexpensive basis.—Argonaut.

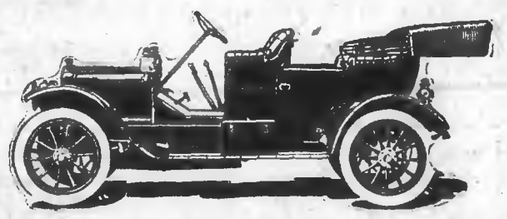
Specifications of the White Gasoline Car



CHAPTER III.

The more closely the White Gasoline Car is examined, the more apparent becomes the superiority of its design. In minor details, as in its main features, the White is in advance of all other cars. For example, the White is fitted with:

Compression Relief

To facilitate starting the engine, the compression is relieved by means of a small lever, located on the dash. The use of this lever allows the exhaust valves to remain open during the greater part of the compression stroke. As a result, the White is the EASIEST TO CRANK.

Lubrication of Connecting-rod Bearings

Oil is forced to each connecting-rod bearing, through oil-ways cut through the crank-shaft, and oil pipes carried upon it. (A connecting-rod bearing cannot be properly lubricated by the splash system.)

Crank-case Construction

The lower half of the crank-case is simply an oil-well, and it may readily be removed WITHOUT DISTURBING THE CRANK-SHAFT BEARINGS.

Adjustable Pedals

The pedals operating the foot-brake and the clutch are adjustable in height. Therefore, the driver of a White may operate the car in perfect comfort, whether he is tall, or short, or of medium height.

Radiator Support

The radiator is supported on a cross-member of the frame in such a way that it cannot receive any of the stresses and strains which come upon the frame. This is a great advance over the usual practice of supporting the radiator on the side-members of the frame, where it is subjected to the same strains which the frame receives.

THE SUMMER CARE OF FURS

From Farm and Dairy.

Mrs. R. T. Gillespie, Durham Co., Ont.

One is often at a loss to know just how to best care for furs during the summer season when moths, etc., are so liable to attack them. I have frequently wondered how the large furriers ensure themselves against loss from insects on the stock that they carry between seasons. Many recipes are advanced for the purpose of protecting furs from moths. While in Toronto recently I decided to find out at least one up-to-date practice in this particular. I was in Dineen's fur store and on enquiry learned that their practice was to store their furs in ordinary tar building paper.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 21.—The railways reported 112 carloads of live stock at the City Market, consisting of 1487 cattle, 2341 hogs, 184 sheep, 483 calves and 2 horses.

Exporters.

We generally take as much time in going over the market, as most of the reporters, viewing the cattle, and we did not see or hear of a straight load of exporters being offered and sold as such, and further we made diligent enquiry of the leading dealers on the market, all of whom stated that they did not know of a straight load of exporters being sold on Thursday's market. There were a few of the heaviest cattle picked from loads of butchers' cattle, and we heard of two of these weighing 1580 lbs. each, that sold at $7.60. Export bulls sold at $5.25 to $5.75 and a few light butcher bulls of choice quality, as good as many of the butcher steers, at $6 to $6.60.

Butchers.

George Rowntree bought for the Harris Abattoir Co., 620 cattle during Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Rowntree reports butchers' steers and heifers, at $6 to $7.30; cows, $3.75 to $6.15; and bulls, at $5.40 to $6.60.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a good trade for milkers and springers at steady to firm prices, ranging from $40 to $85 each, for the bulk, but there were a few that reached $70 and even $73 was paid for extra choice quality milkers.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby reports good feeders weighing 1000 lbs. each, as being very scarce and high-priced. During the two days' market Mr. Murby was kept busy in picking up and selecting lots to supply his many customers; he managed to select and buy 250 cattle at the following quotations: Steers, 900 to 1100 lbs. each, at $5.50 to $6.25 per cwt.; steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $5 to $5.50; steers, 600 to 800 lbs. each, at $4.25 to $5.10; common light stockers, $3 to $4 per cwt.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves were large with prices easier at $3 to $7.50 per cwt.

Sheep.

Receipts light, prices firm, as follows: Ewes, $6 to $7 per cwt.; rams, $5 to $6 per cwt.; yearling lambs, $8 to $9.50 per cwt.; spring lambs, $4 to $8 each.

Hogs.

Hog prices are weaker, with prospects of lower quotations. Prices for to-day were $9.25 for selects, fed and watered, and $9, f.o.b., cars.

Free Colonial Wheat.

Second Man Dies.

Toronto, April 22.—The inquest into the death of Alex. Smith, killed on Wednesday evening by lumber sliding off a truck-car at the Rosedale Sawmill Co.'s yard, will be opened today by Coroner Crawford.

Albert Montgomery, who was injured, died yesterday in the General Hospital. His skull was fractured. He lived at 96 Morse street, with his mother and family.

Buckley In Montreal.

Montreal, April 22.—W. H. Buckley, the Albany lawyer, whose presence is much sought by the authorities to clear up some points in the insurance investigation going on in New York, is in the city to-day. He is the guest of his father-in-law, Jas. McShane, ex-M.P., harbor master.

Teddy In Paris.

Paris, April 22.—Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President of the United States, entered Paris at half-past seven o'clock yesterday morning, and was received with all the honors of a reigning sovereign traveling incognito. A cordon of troops surrounded the railway station.

Apartment Houses In Galt.

Galt, April 22.—The old opera house block, recently gutted by fire, is to be converted into fourteen suite apartment houses under the plans of a Toronto architect. The cost will be $25,000.

Taking One's Own Pulse.

Being able to "take" one's own pulse is a doubtful accomplishment, because the heart has some peculiarities the importance of which are sure to be overestimated except by physicians and much uneasiness occasioned in consequence. Irregularity of the pulse is natural to no small number of people without other signs of disease. It may also be simply a transient symptom, due to errors of habit or other causes which, disappearing, leave no trace behind them.

Misleading.

"That is a fat, prosperous looking envelope. Does our salesman send in a big bunch of orders?"

"Not exactly. That envelope contains a receipt for his last check, his expense account for this week, a request for a salary raise and a requisition for some more expense account blanks."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Couldn't Walk.

Wifey—You told me the other day we must avoid all luxuries and confine ourselves to absolute necessities only. Hubby—That's so, my dear. Wifey—Well, last night you came home from the club in a cab. Hubby—Yes, but that was an absolute necessity.—Fliegende Blatter.

Not an Earthquake.

Mrs. Houser (hearing tremendous noise in the kitchen)—Great goodness, Jane, what was that, an earthquake shock? Jane (calmly picking up the pieces of glass)—No, mum; only a little jar.

Willing.

"Jane, at the table we wish to be served with alacrity."

"All right, mum. Will you have it after the soup?"—London Answers.

Kindness is the golden chain by which society is bound together.—Goethe.

A New Shrine.

Montreal, April 23.—If things continue as they are going at present, a rustic little sanctuary on the flank of Mount Royal will be able to offer as many cures by some miraculous means as those of Lorette in Italy or Lourdes in France.

The chapel, which is in charge of Rev. Brother Andre, of the College of Notre Dame, nearby, is called St. Joseph's Oratory, and there have been so many alleged miracles that now some two hundred are going every week day and thousands on Sunday, while miraculous manifestations are said to be of daily occurrence.

In fact, Mgr. Bruchesi has been obliged to take notice of this place and after making full investigation, his grace says that miracles are certainly being operated at the oratory of St. Joseph.

No General Elections.

London, April 22.—The country will be given a respite from a general election for at least three months. Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons yesterday that the spring recess of Parliament, which will begin on April 28, would continue until May 26, when the House of Lords, reassembling, will occupy the greater part of a week in the debate on Lord Rosebery's reform resolution.

Accordingly it will be impossible for the House of Commons to take up the veto resolution until June and the crucial period will not arrive until the month is well advanced.

An appeal to the country before the middle of July is out of the question.

New C.P.R. Steamers.

Montreal, April 22.—A special from St. John, N.B., says the C.P.R. expects to have two new Empress steamers, 630 feet long, running on the Atlantic within two years.

This information was given to Jacob A. Johnston in an interview with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. Mr. Johnston is president of the Halifax Board of Trade and one of the committee to induce the C.P.R. to extend their rails to Halifax. Sir Thomas says they have made a proposal to the Government that each party should appoint a representative to estimate the value of running rights, with a view to an arrangement.

Brockville Reduces Licenses.

Brockville, April 22—Brockville will have three less drinking places, the board yesterday harkening to the voice of the voters, who pronounced in favor of license reduction and increased fees. The axe falls on the Windsor, Continental and Imperial. The five tavern licenses held in the adjoining townships comprising Brockville district were again granted. The tavern license fee in Brockville is increased from $570 to $820.

Lock-Out Will Be Settled.

Berlin, April 22.—The lock-out in the building trades in Berlin will in all probability be settled, in consequence of a decision by the trades arbitration court, granting the men a small increase in wages, beginning Aug. 15, with a further increase on Oct. 1.

Protection For the Birds.

Albany, N.Y., April 22.—The bill prohibiting the sale in New York State of the plumage of birds belonging to any family that is represented by birds native to the state, passed the Senate yesterday with but three votes against it.

Laborites Have Working Majority.

Sydney, N.S.W., April 22.—A majority of ten in the Senate and thirteen in the House for the Labor party is the final result of the general election here.

Fire, Water and Light Committee Will Not Send Chief Howard and Ald. Metheral to Fire Chiefs' Convention at Syracuse, N.Y.—Money, it is Believed, Can be Spent to Better Advantage

DUTIES DEFINED

The Fire, Water and Light committee is of the opinion that the money that it would take to send Chief Howard and Ald. Metheral to the International Fire Chief's Association, to be held in Syracuse, N.Y., in August next, could be used to better advantage. A meeting was held last evening at which were present, Ald. Morgan, in the chair, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Batten, Ald. Graham and Ald. Metheral. Ald. Metheral stated that he did not care to go to the convention and he did not think it was necessary. He thought the money could be spent better. He thanked the committee for choosing him to go, but he did not think there was anything to be gained from such an expensive trip. The Mayor pointed out that the deputation was going to a place where they would see the very latest in fire-fighting appliances and he believed there was much to be gained from attending such a convention. It was moved by Ald. Graham and seconded by Ald. Metheral that the clause appointing Ald. Metheral and Chief Howard to go to Syracuse, be struck out. The motion carried.

The committee then took up the clauses in the by-law defining the duties of the brigade. Some sections of it called for a great deal of discussion, and the committee spent considerable time on it.

LOOTED A CHURCH

Thieves Robbed Cathedral and Stole a Most Valuable Ornament.

Special to The Examiner:

Moscow, April 21.—A diamond ornament valued at hundreds of thousands of roubles has been stolen from the greatly revered image of the Virgin in the Uspenski cathedral in the Kremlin, it was discovered to-day.

The theft, which was perpetrated during last night has thrown the Muscovites into great excitement and their emotion is pitiful to witness.

Many precious stones were cut out of the pictures of the Saints. The total value of the loot is estimated at $500,000.

The Uspenski or cathedral of the Ascension, is one of the three famous cathedrals in Cathedral Squire, and stands near the centre of the Kremlin. It dates from the 15th century, and was designed by an Italian architect. It is the principal church and contains man treasures. A rouble is equivalent to about 50 cents.

C. P. R. COMPLETE PURCHASE OF MOST OF THE PROPERTY ALONG THE RIVER FRONT

Sale Was Put Through Yesterday by the Real Estate Firm of R. A. Elliott & Co.---The Company Has Yet to Secure Peterborough Canoe Co. and Two Other Properties---Will Then Have all Land on East Side of Water Street From Charlotte to Sherbrooke Streets---Owners, It Is Said, Received Handsome Prices.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company have purchased the greater part of the property along the river front, on which they have held options for some weeks past. With the exception of the Peterborough Canoe Co., the blacksmith shop, owned by Mr. Wm. G. Morrow, and the property of the Chamberlain Estate, the Company will have all the land on the East side of Water street, from Charlotte to Sherbrooke streets. The sale of the double house of Mr. Isaac McColl, of Prince Albert, the house and land of Mrs. Wm. English, the property of Messrs. Wm. Taylor and R. Denne, was put through yesterday, handsome prices, it is said, having been paid the owners. The purchase was carried out by the real estate firm of R. A. Elliott and Company. Mr. Morrow, it was stated to the Examiner, this morning, was holding out for $12,000, for his property, while the company was not disposed to give that amount. If it cannot be secured in any other way, it is understood that expropriation proceedings will be resorted to.

What the company intend doing with the property is not publicly known, but it is believed that it will be utilized for the construction of the new grain route of the C. P. R. from Victoria Harbour to Peterborough.

Albert Street Houses Must Be Removed To Allow Extension To C. G. E. Machine Shop

In another column of The Examiner the Canadian General Electric Co. is advertising for tenders for the removal of houses owned by them at 462, 464 and 468 Albert St. When called up by the Examiner and asked if this was for the purpose of facilitating the extension of the machine shop, Mr. E. G. Patterson, the superintendent stated that it was. He said that the contract with the Water Commissioners had not yet been signed, but as soon as it was, and the above houses were removed, tenders for the addition and enlargement of the machine shop would be asked for. Labour conditions should be the very best in Peterborough during the coming summer. The extension to the C. G. E. will mean plenty of employment for the workmen of the city.

REMOVING BRUSH

Railway Commissioners Improve Crossing Conditions.

The railway commissioners have ordered the brush to be cut away from the railroad crossings in the country, at right angles to the track and a quarter of a mile distant, so that the public may see the approach of a train. Already many farmers have disposed of valuable orchards to the railway companies.

EXAMINER ADVERTISING PAYS

Advertising in the Examiner always brings results.

A short time ago Mr. George H. Paxman, 793 George street, advertised that he wished to purchase 1,000 hens. Believing in the efficiency of the Examiner as a business and result bringer, he used a small ad. in but one insertion of this paper, and the result has been a convincing testimonial to the effectiveness of the Examiner. Mr. Paxman, through the medium of that one small ad. was successful in obtaining a very large quantity of poultry. He is now in search of 1,000 more hens and expects through the Examiner to be able to obtain them without much difficulty.

Ottawa Policemen Must Be Bad Shots

Special to The Examiner.

Ottawa, April 21.—Pathetic pictures of the sufferings of the stray Collies and Fidos in the streets of Ottawa were drawn before the Board of Control last evening by Mrs. G. Baptie and Miss Laura Smith, representing the Humane Society.

They asked the Board to have a machine installed for the asphyxiation of dogs that have been injured, or that must be executed for vagrancy, rabidness or other offences punishable with death, under the canine criminal code.

The ladies considered that smothering would be a more merciful death than by shooting.

Sometimes "the poor animals are made a target for shots," said Miss Smith. "Some of the police are fairly good shots, but others are very poor in that respect."

It was suggested that an asphyxiation box similar to those used in other cities be secured. The ladies also proposed that a dog-pound should be instituted. Controller Hunchey and Dr. Law will make a report on the proposals.

OBITUARY.

AUSTIN JOSEPH HOGAN.

The death occurred early this morning of Austin Joseph Hogan, at the age of three years. He was the second youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hogan, Otonabee.

The funeral took place this afternoon.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL WILL BE WELCOMED BY CITIZENS TO-MORROW

SHOULD BE IN SEATS IN GOOD TIME

Audience for "Geisha" Performance at Grand Opera House To-morrow Night Should Be Seated Before 8:15.

EARL GREY TO ATTEND

In connection with the performance of "The Geisha" by the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, in the Grand Opera House to-morrow night, it is requested that the audience should be in their seats as soon after 8 o'clock as possible.

His Excellency Earl Grey, who has kindly signified his intention of being present, will arrive in the house and will be escorted to the vice-regal box promptly at 8.15 o'clock. The attention of those who have decided to attend is called to the fact that etiquette demands that the audience shall rise to its feet as His Excellency arrives, while the orchestra plays a few strains of the National Anthem; also that at the conclusion of the performance the gathering should remain seated until after the departure of the vice-regal party.

The curtain will be rung up promptly at 8.20 o'clock.

JACK THE RIPPER

Dr. Winslow Maintains That Murderer Escaped Police.

Special to The Examiner.

London, April 21.—There is more controversy over the identity of Jack the Ripper. Sir Robert Anderson's statements relative to the author of the Whitechapel murders are disputed by George Kebbell, who insists that the man was an Irishman, educated for the medical profession, who died while serving a ten years' prison sentence.

Dr. Forbes Winslow now steps to the front with a new challenge. He contends that he obtained clues to the criminal's identity through remnants of women's hats left in various lodgings. He continues;

"Jack the Ripper was never captured. I knew his haunts, ways of living and habits. He was a religious homicidal monomaniac. Every Sunday morning he was to be seen on the steps of St. Paul's. I offered to catch the man provided the police would assist.

"Red tapeism in Scotland Yard prevented. They said the clues were good, but they could not help a private individual's investigation. Receiving no help, I published my clues. From that time to the present there have been no more Jack the Ripper murders. He was never captured.

Dr. Winslow's contention was: "My hypothesis was that the murderer was a homicidal lunatic, who had a settled conviction that it was his duty to relieve society of the pest of prostitutes. The victims were all of the same class of abandoned women. One of the strongest clues established the fact that Jack the Ripper had lived in a certain lodging house, but had left it after the first three murders were committed. The landlord remembered him as a medical student. On each of the evenings of the first three murders he went out in disguise and came back with his coat stained with blood."

You need a good salve in the house. Davis' Menthol Salve is the best. It cures sunburn, mosquito and insect bites and stings, piles, old sores, skin diseases, etc. 25c. per tin.

His Excellency Earl Grey and Vice-Regal Party Arrive on the Noon Train—Details of Programme for Distinguished Visitors' Reception.

DECORATE YOUR PLACES

All citizens are asked to decorate their places of business and their residences for to-morrow, on the occasion of the visit of the Governor-General of Canada, His Excellency Earl Grey, and the vice-regal party. His Excellency will arrive on the noon C. P. R. train from Toronto, and will be welcomed at the station by his Worship Mayor Morrow and the members of the City Council. On the arrival of the distinguished visitors they will be taken to the Canadian General Electric Works, the Governor-General having expressed a wish to see this plant. From there they will go to the big mills of the Quaker Oats Co., where they will be shown through this immense factory. At half-past one luncheon will be served at the Oriental Hotel, to which are invited the members of all civic bodies, the local representatives in parliament and a few others. At three o'clock in the afternoon, at the Central Park, a civic address of welcome will be read to His Excellency by Mayor Morrow, following which the party will go to the Wolfe St. wharf, where they will take the "Bessie Butler" to go over the Lift Lock. In the evening the vice regal party will attend the presentation of the "Geisha" at the Grand Opera House.

TO OPEN ON JULY 1

New Lindsay Locks Will be Ready for Use Then.

(Lindsay Warder.)

The new locks will be open for navigation by July 1st, said Contractor Ritchie to a Warder man this morning. By to-morrow at noon the cement work will be completed, but it will take a couple of months to remove the debris, coffer dams, etc. The gates for the locks are completed and will be brought to Lindsay by the "Bob. Hall" some day this week. Several men are now working on the banks, which will be sloped and sodded. A number of men are also at work at Wellington St. bridge, which will be torn down in a few days, and navigation and traffic will be stopped for three months.

"Peterborough Means Progress."

FRIDAY, APRIL 22, 1910

CANADA'S CENTURY.

The stars in their courses fight for Canada. This country, has passed fourteen years, marked by great progress and prosperity; by growth from every centre of national activity. Only once in fourteen years has business dullness slowed the onward roll of progress. The bank statement is the pulse of the business world; its condition indicates the character of the circulation of a nation's life blood; its moving capital. During the month of March the deposits in the savings banks increased by nearly eight millions. This is exceedingly gratifying as showing that the people of moderate means and incomes, wage earners, etc., in spite of the high price of living, make enough to live, and live well, upon; and are able to put by a tidy nest egg represented by an increase in savings banks deposits of eight millions in one month or a daily average deposit, Sundays included, of over a quarter of a million dollars. At the same time, the general bank deposits show an increase of twenty million dollars for March.

The early arrival of spring conditions has had an important influence upon the interests of general industry, labour and agricultural operations. Among the farming community there is a buoyant spent of hopefulness and a lively looking out for excellent crops. The area under cultivation is likely to be largely increased. The dairy season opening much earlier than usual, will with favouring conditions hereafter, give excellent results. The general harvest expectations are indicated by the early and insistent demand for farm labourers in the older provinces and especially in the rapidly filling west. The Labour Gazette reports show "active" conditions in all the leading industries of all the provinces.

The great activity of immigration shows that Canada is reaping the harvest of the splendid crusade of publicity that has been pursued; the great crops of the west have themselves advertised the country. It is not surprising that the inflow of immigrants is already larger in volume than in any other year, and the quality is greatly improved, especially in the trans-atlantic immigrants arriving The quality from the United States has generally always been good, and the movement this year is larger than in the past. A telegram was received on Thursday morning by Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, from the Canadian inspector of agencies of the Immigration Department, at St. Paul, Minn., which is worth repeating as indicating the extent and good character of immigration now pouring into the Canadian west from the United States:

"There passed through this office to-day and ticketed here from one locality in Missouri twenty families comprising sixty people for Ochre River, Manitoba. They were a splendid lot, taking with them ten carloads of effects valued at $18,000. They had also $70,000 in cash. Some have purchased land and others intend to homestead on representation of some of the leaders who selected the location. Over two hundred registered at the office to-day seeking information about Central Canada. In addition to the Missouri party, 60 others were ticketed to different points in Central Canada, taking with them $65,000, one man having $25,000. In the past two days 150 have been ticketed from here with a total value of nearly $200,000. This kind of movement has been going on all spring. Most of the trains for Canada go out in two or three sections and special trains are going every day."

With such immigration going into the west at such a rate so early in the season, before the snow flies, Canada will be more populous by many thousands of productive citizens and richer by many millions of dollars than it was when the snow left the ground.

It is worth noting that the telegram mentions increasing interest, if not movement—yet—towards Central Canada. The older provinces complain that they are being depleted—that the west is being filled up and developed at the expense of the older provinces. This may be true in a certain sense, but not in the sense that obtained twenty years ago when our older provinces were losing population, to the United States by thousands. The United States exodus to the Canadian west is avenging the older provinces and restoring the drain of the past, but according to the above despatch the west is going further. It has a tremendous share in advertising Canada and now the older provinces are getting the advantages. According to the above quoted despatch the United States farmer with money is becoming interested in Central Canada. Those of the middle south west, who, may dread the cold of the Canadian west will find in Central Canada conditions that will attract and hold.

Everything seems to point to Canada's continued advance. With the Grand Trunk Pacific yet uncompleted, the enterprising managers have already placed steamers in Pacific waters to get "set" for capture of a big slice of Oriental and coast trade. The Hudson Bay Railway is practically under way to provide a new trans-oceanic transportation route to meet the demands of the rapidly developing grain production of the west. The Grand Trunk Pacific is nosing its way to the Pacific and before long it will belt the continent with a new railway of unheard of lightness of grade and ease of curve, from the Bay of Fundy to Prince Rupert, which in Miltonic phrase is "rising like an exhalation" on the Pacific coast.

Prince Rupert is a repetition of history. It is a made-to-order city, like Alexandria and the other cities built from the raw by the great conquerors of antiquity. Fewer than three years ago Prince Rupert had no place on the map. Last September it had a population of two thousand; to-day it has a population of five thousand, which will grow to ten thousand before the leaves fall and by the way people are pouring in, 25,000 citizens of Prince Rupert will witness the driving of the last spike of the Transcontinental railway.

During the coming summer Sir Wilfrid Laurier will, on the invitation of the Western Liberal members, visit the west. It is four years since he made his last visit and if he trusts only to the sense of sight, he will not recognize it. Wastes have grown into fruitful fields; villages have sprung up like magic; hamlets have grown into towns, towns into cities, and a tranformation unparalleled in history has come over the face of the land. When the Premier sees all this and ten thousand other evidences of growth and development, he will see far more than the dawn of fulfilment of his forecast that "the twentieth century belongs to Canada."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The cold cash now in the coffers of the banks of Canada would build fifty Dreadnoughts at fifteen million dollars each; or, if divided equally give $100 each to every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

The Montreal Gazette described the $500,000 placed in the supplementary estimates as a "vote-getting" appropriation. Will Mr. Borden dare to endorse on the floor of the House the Gazette's slap at this great short-route railway? Would Mr. Borden approve of the enterprise being dropped?
